Law Would Make Labels on All Products Bilingual by 1975

OTTAWA (CP) — French-Canadians will have a better idea what they are buying and English-Canadians will be able to round out their breakfast-table French courses under consumer product regulations given second reading in the Commons Wednesday.

Members gave second reading to four government bills in a pre-Christmas rush, including one that will make it an offence after 1975 to sell most Canadian products and imports without bilingual labels.

Today debate resumes on a bill to fix basic old-age pensions at $80 a month and increase supplementary pensions.

Other proposed measures given second reading Wednesday and sent to committee were:

—A bill to give the Dominion Bureau of Statistics access to tax returns and a new name—Statistics Canada;

—A bill to allow the use of the metric system for legal measurement in Canada, which also would allow the federal government to set accuracy standards for measuring devices such as scales, automobile mileage indicators and parking meters;

A bill to repeal the Leprosy Act —which provides for quarantine and treatment—on the grounds that medical advancement has eradicated much of the leprosy problem and made treatment possible at regular hospitals.

Two other bills were given third reading, and now need only royal assent to become law since they have been passed by the Senate.

They were a bill extending the jurisdiction of the Buffalo and Fort Erie Public Bridge Co. to the year 2030 from 1982, and a bill to strengthen the Anti-dumping Act.

Speaking on the labelling and packaging bill, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said that over the next few years bilingual labels will progressively be required on all consumer products subject to federal labelling rules, except those where "undue hardship" would be caused by the regulation.

False labelling would become a general offence and would apply to pictures on packages or labels, with offenders subject to fines up to $10,000.

Opposition spokesmen discussed on the value of the DBS bill.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) opposed giving the agency access to corporate and personal tax returns, even though they are to be kept confidential.

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) disagreed, and called for more access to information on tax returns that he said was needed by both researchers and the public at large.

MPs, public servants such as teachers and policemen, and persons whose wages are negotiated through collective bargain all make their earnings public, he said. Only the earnings of a privileged few were kept secret.

Mr. Basford said the bill to make the metric system legal and give the government power to regulate the accuracy of measuring devices is a needed companion to the packaging bill, which will force manufacturers to put accurate measurements on consumer product containers.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) criticized the "dangerous trend", of the bill to give ministers wide powers to regulate the country without returning back to Parliament.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said her party is in complete agreement with the bill's principle—giving a just measure to the consumer—but cautioned that the country should not "muddle along" with both the foot-pound and metric systems.

Mr. Basford agreed that metric measurements are superior to British standards of measure, such as the length of King Henry's arm for a yard.

But the British system would be retained as a legal standard as well.

Fishermen Fined In Ohio Court

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — Eight Canadian fishermen whose boat was seized in Lake Erie by Ohio authorities were fined a total of $3,200 on fishing violations Wednesday in Lorain Municipal Court.

Judge John J. Kolena also ruled that the catch of the 65-foot tug Liddle Brothers, of Wheatley, Ont., some 1,200-1,500 pounds of cleaned fish, should be confiscated.

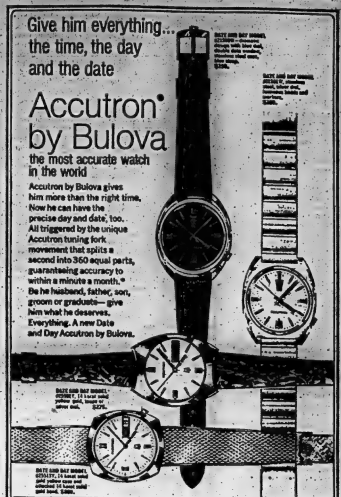
Wildlife officials charged the fishermen with fishing in Ohio waters without a licence and failure to mark fishing devices with the owner's name. All eight men pleaded guilty and each was fined $200 on each charge.

Captain Jerry Liddle, 33, and crew members James Lamb, Robert St. John, Michael Mohin, Donald Simpson, Sam Oxley, Larry Baldwell and Danny Baldwell, had been released on $500 bond after their tug was boarded by officials and brought to Lorain.

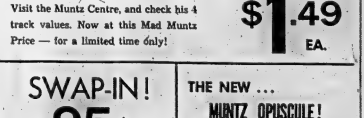
The state charged that the boat had been spotted by a patrol plane 14 miles off Lorain—within Ohio's 24-mile limit on the lake.

Officials had threatened to confiscate and sell the boat and nets found on it, but dropped the action after lengthy legal conference Wednesday during which it was established that Ohio's territorial limit was based on statute miles and Liddle had been operating on nautical miles.



Chichester Delayed

DEVONPORT, England (AP) — Sailor Sir Francis Chichester has run into minor technical trouble aboard his yacht Gipsy Moth V and has put back his departure for Portuguese Guinea, aides said Wednesday.



Chichester plans to sail nonstop from Bissau on Africa's west coast, to San Juan del Norte in Nicaragua, hoping to cover the 4,000 miles at 200 miles a day. This, he says, is the ultimate in high-speed sailing and something no single yachtsman has achieved before.

Chichester, 67, will not leave for Bissau before Friday, aides said. Gipsy Moth V is undergoing minor adjustments to her rigging and repair to the radio telephone.

U.S. Military Establishment Accused of Spying on Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret military guidelines give the U.S. army and air force intelligence-gathering duties in the United States similar to those of the army, which a senator says has spied on members of Congress and hundreds of other citizens.

Documents obtained by The Associated Press, including one stamped "secret" on every page, state the two military branches have "investigative and reporting requirements relating to civil disturbances" and dissident or subversive activities.

Until now little has been known about navy and air force domestic intelligence operations, although the army's activities in this field—undertaken under similar guidelines—have been the subject of a year-long controversy.

The furore flared again Wednesday when Senator Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.) said army agents had collected information on Senator Adlai Stevenson III (Dem. Ill.); former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge; and Representative Abner Mikva (Dem. Ill.).

Ervin, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights and a long-time crusader against invasion of privacy, said military agents also snooped on the activities of state and local officials, political contributors, newspaper reporters, lawyers and church figures.

His information, Ervin said, was supplied by a former army agent who wrote that his team "was collecting information on every individual and organization in the state of Illinois who espoused dissension with the military involvement in Southeast Asia or who openly opposed the Nixon administration's controversial domestic policies.

A spokesman said the army is gravely concerned by the reports and is looking into them. He added that army policy emphatically prohibits collection of information of the type reported to have been gathered in Illinois.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said in response to a question: "It's inconceivable to me that would take place. We certainly don't condone it."

Another former military intelligence agent said in an interview Wednesday night that similar data had been collected by army agents in other sections of the country.

As an example, he cited information he said was compiled by the Army in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area during April and May of 1968. The files, he said, consisted of index cards naming such individuals as university professors, civil-rights workers, college and high school students and a YMCA employee.

Other cards, the former agent said, mentioned such groups as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This former agent, who would not allow use of his name, said the files were being discarded by the army.

There have been earlier reports that other regional military intelligence centres were building files on civilians.

NBC television, for instance, reported Dec. 1 that agents in Washington had compiled dossiers on many private citizens, including Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.).

Still other reports have indicated that military intelligence agents had mingled among delegates of the 1968 Democratic and Republican conventions.

The documents obtained by the AP do not name individuals on whom air force and navy agents collect data. Rather, they trace the broad guidelines under which the agents operate.

One document, signed by Robert S. Moot, assistant defence secretary and dated Sept. 9, states that "The air force has similar investigative and reporting requirements, for which the Office of Special Investigations (OSI) is the focal point." It added:

"OSI has established requirements for collecting and reporting information relating to: (a) demonstrations, agitation, propaganda and disruptive activities directed against the role of the United States in Vietnam, selective service, or the military establishment which affect the security, mission or viability of U.S. Air Force bases and other installations; or

"(b) civil rights and racial agitation occurring on air force bases affecting air force personnel;

"And (c) riots, demonstrations and other civil disturbances . . . which may require federal intervention and use of military troops to preserve or restore law and order and which may therefore necessitate air force alerts of troops and material."

The documents issued by Moot said the navy "has issuances which prescribe investigative and reporting requirements relating to civil disturbances and dissident or subversive activities, which pose a potential threat to the security of a naval or Marine Corps facility, or to good order and discipline within the naval or Marine Corps command."

In addition, a document dated May 14 lists 14 elements of information which the Naval Investigative Service considers essential. Several of the points relate to suspected sabotage, espionage and "information of the clandestine introduction into the United States, or plans therefore, of foreign nationals, nuclear, chemical or biological weapons."

Details of the army's domestic intelligence activities were first disclosed last January by Christopher H. Pyle, a former intelligence officer, in an article in the magazine Washington Monthly.

In response to congressional inquiries prompted by Pyle's article, the army said it had kept so-called "blacklists" including the names, descriptions and pictures of civilians "who might be involved in civil disturbance situations;" that it had operated computer banks for storing civil disturbance information; and it had infiltrated civilian groups.

But in making the disclosures, the army said that during the past year it had sharply curtailed such activities.

Ervin disputed military claims that investigations of civilians were limited to those who showed leanings toward violence or other illegal conduct.

"Apparently," he said, "anyone who in the army's definition was 'left or centre' was a prospective candidate for political surveillance."

Representative Mikva termed the surveillance of himself and other civilians "an incredible breach of democratic principles" which "goes beyond McCarthyism."

Police Group Head Strikes Back at A-G

TORONTO (CP) — President Syd Brown of the Ontario Police Association has branded as "slanderous" a letter by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart which called the association's fund for a new police college a publicity stunt.

Mr. Wishart sent the letter to Robert Johnston, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for St. Catharines, after a citizens' group there had asked if the college could be built in St. Catharines.

Mr. Wishart said the association's fund was nothing more than a publicity stunt and "funds cannot be obtained in this way."

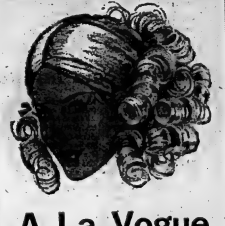
Constable Brown said Tuesday night that the letter almost blocked the association was collecting money freeheartedly from the public.

"It's disturbing he's making this type of comment. It's a pretty slanderous attack from the chief law-enforcement officer of the province."

"The present police college at Aylmer has been branded as antiquated and inadequate by the various police associations and groups in the province.

Assaulted Mayor, Gets One Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Refusing repeatedly to defend himself before a court he called a "pack of dogs," David Johan Johannsen, 36, was sentenced to a month in jail Wednesday for assaulting Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell.



"Blood debts will be paid in blood," the former Victoria man, a member of the Marxist Communist Party (Marxist-Leninist), told Provincial Judge M. E. Ferguson.

He was fined $100 or a month in jail but told Judge Ferguson he refused to pay a "Fascist court." He was charged after an assault on the mayor Dec. 2 during a civic election campaign meeting at the University of British Columbia.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced in his pre-Christmas mini-budget that unemployment Insurance benefits would be raised by 10 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1971. The graph shows weekly benefits to unemployed people in various wage brackets. A single person who had been earning under $30 a week will collect the minimum $14.30 benefit. A person with dependents who had been earning between $100 and $150 will receive the maximum benefit of $58.30 if unemployed.

Works Program Requested

TORONTO (CP) — Nine Liberal members of the Ontario legislature called Wednesday for a resumption of the winter works program which a spokesman said "is especially suited" to reducing winter unemployment.

Under the former program, the federal government paid 50 per cent of labor costs for public works carried out between Nov. 1 and April 30. The provincial government and the municipality each paid 25 per cent.

Richard Ruston who organized the group said in a statement:

"We feel that the winters since the program was abandoned have shown that this decision . . . was ill-advised."

Mr. Haggerty said the group is "pressing our federal colleagues hard to reconsider their decision."

Capital Said Invested Wrongly

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — There is plenty capital in Canada but it is being invested by the financial institutions in the wrong properties, national NDP leadership candidate John Harney said in London Wednesday.

The people's savings, held in trust by insurance and trust companies, is being pulled out of the public sector and invested in equity stocks while the municipalities are "screaming" for capital, he said.

Federal housing minister Robert Andras "discovered" only last week that $10 billion lies in the investment portfolios of pension funds, Mr. Harney said. This information has been available all along in reports of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, he said.

Mr. Andras said he had asked the institutions handling the funds to invest more in mortgages. "That's the difference between the Liberals and the NDP," Mr. Harney said. "We would tell them to do it."

He said $708 million has been invested in non-Canadian stocks at a time when the country is selling out to American capital for development.

State of Emergency

Guerrillas Terrorizing Ethiopia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new outburst of guerrilla terrorism in the Ethiopian province of Eritrea has sent thousands of women and children fleeing into neighboring Sudan within the last two months.

Eritrea runs along the western coast of the Red Sea from Ethiopia's border with the Sudan to the Gulf of Aden.

Wednesday, the Ethiopian government proclaimed a state of emergency for two-thirds of Eritrea to maintain law and order "in the face of infiltration by bandits supported by foreign powers."

Guerrilla rebels, fighting force of the Eritrean Liberation Front, are lined up in an eight-year-old insurgency against the government of Emperor Haile Selassie. Their Arab states backers, including Syria and Libya, have Soviet and, in some cases, Chinese support.

Selassie's government has received U.S. military and economic aid for years. A U.S. military advisory group of 100 men is stationed in Ethiopia, but officials here insist American guerrilla warfare experts, particularly Green Berets, are not involved in the country's problems.

Reports reaching Western capitals say the flight to the Sudan involved about 17,000 refugees mostly in November when fighting was reported to have flared up at various points in Eritrea.

Little is known of the recent military clashes. Diplomatic sources say the rebels blew up three bridges on the main road running north and west from Asmara to Keren, Agordat and the Sudan.

Nov. 21, the ELF ambushed an army convoy on the road to Keren and killed Maj.-Gen. Tesfaye Ergbatu, 52, commander of Ethiopia's Second Army.

The report here is that the Second Army revenged itself for Ergbatu's death by smashing the ambush group. Possibly, the reaction was wider.

The 2,300 Americans, including wives and children, stationed at Kagnew Station, a U.S. military communications centre at Asmara, have been issued advisory restrictions to travel in two-car convoys.

Western experts estimate ELF strength at from 1,500 to 2,000 men out of an Eritrean population of 1.6 million. The rebel group has included both Moslems and Christians, but officials say the Christian element is being squeezed out. Ethiopia has a military force of 40,000 men.

Eritrea was under Italian rule for 60 years prior to the Second World War. During the 10 years beginning in 1941 a British military government ruled. From 1952 to 1962, it had the status of a UN trusteeship with self-rule in local matters with defence and foreign affairs controlled by the Ethiopian government.

Death Verdict Hinted

Franco Patriots Staging Support Rallies

MADRID (Reuter) — Right-wing patriots planned a pro-Franco rally here today as a new delay in announcing verdicts in the trial of 16 Basque nationalists kept tension in Spain at fever pitch.

Amid reports from Burgos in north Spain that five army judges already have decided to hand down at least two death sentences in the trial, Spanish former servicemen scheduled an afternoon rally in central Madrid to protest foreign interference.

The veterans—including old-style Falangist civil war survivors—received government approval and support to stage their rally.

The staging point is the Plaza Del Prionte, only yards from the palace where Head of State Francisco Franco was scheduled to receive foreign ambassadors for a routine meeting today.

At noon—an hour before the rally—a mass was to be held in a Madrid church in memory of Melston Manzanas, the secret police chief of San Sebastian who was murdered in 1968.

Death sentences were demanded by the prosecutor for six of the 16 accused—who have declared themselves to be Marxist/Leninist underground fighters of the small Basque revolutionary movement, ETA—on charges of being involved in the Manzanas murder.

The five-man panel of army judges were reported to be still meeting formally in closed session at Burgos, but informed sources said they already have decided to pass down at least two death sentences.

The sentences now are expected to be made public Friday when the cabinet has its regular fortnightly session.

Meanwhile, there was still no word on kidnapped West German Consul Eugen Beihl, seized by Basque guerrillas 16 days ago.

The fate of the 35-year-old consul apparently hinges on that of the 16 Basques, and informed sources said the West German embassy in Madrid is anxious about the prospect of further time elapsing before the verdicts.

In San Sebastian, the consul's daughter, Lucy, 26, said she could not confirm the authenticity of a letter, reported to have been written by her father, which was made public Wednesday in St. Jean de Luz, a French town near the Spanish border.

The letter, written in German, said Beihl was losing hope of seeing the light of day.

Spaniards Demonstrate In Support of Franco

Police Run Test —And No One Files Complaint

MONTREAL (CP) — For 36 consecutive nights in November, residents of the west-end Cote des Neiges district were bothered by a noisy prowling gang of tough-looking men.

Already tense because of the kidnap crisis, apartment dwellers heard strangers trampling down usually quiet corridors at 3 a.m., grabbing door-handles and trying to force them open.

Burly hobos sat on the front porches of duplexes for as long as two hours or parked in their cars in private driveways. In the middle of the night, men would jump backyard fences and try to force locks on doors.

Sgt. Andre Quarton, in charge of the district crime prevention section, said Wednesday that not one citizen reported the incidents to police during the nights of harassment.

"People are so damned unresponsive, and coldly so, that it's unbelievable," he said. "They did absolutely nothing."

The sergeant was astonished. The hobos and prowlers were all his men—undercover officers conducting a survey to test residents' response to prowling incidents.

He said he doesn't know whether the results should be attributed to indifference, fear or a I'm-all-right-Jack attitude prevalent in many large U.S. cities.

However, he said, the second part of the survey will be aimed at finding some answers to those questions because the district has the second highest burglary rate in Montreal.

Same Classes

TORONTO (CP) — Adults and teen-agers should be able to attend school together in regular school hours and at night school, Prof. James Draper of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education says. He said teachers should be trained to teach any age group and be able to choose the age group they want to teach.

Fairways Need Perfect Batting Average

The Belleville Fairways will have to bat 1.000 in their next three games if they hope to catch Cobourg for fourth place in the Eastern Ontario Junior B standings.

The Cougars currently have a six - point lead over Belleville, but have played three more games.

The locals passed an important test Monday night by stopping Cobourg 3-2 in their own rink, despite the fact that several key players were missing from the Belleville line-up.

Team captain John Mulvihill was skating in the team's Tuesday night workout and should be a definite starter in Sunday's tilt with the second-place Oshawa Cromhams.

Centre Danny Lapoutte, the team's other injury casualty, is also expected back after missing most of the Cobourg contest with a hip injury. Besides the return of key players to action, the club also has a few other bright spots.

One would certainly have to be the play of netminder Ron Jary, who turned aside 27 of 29 shots in Monday's win and appears to be approaching his early season form. Jary's goals against average has climbed to 5.35 after back-to-back pastings by Peterborough and a loss to Kingston.

Tim Yohn has provided a big offensive lift in the last two games since being shifted from defence to left wing. Yohn has clicked for three goals and come close on another couple chances.

On the defensive side, second year man Kevin Dockrill has been vastly improved in his last two outings, cutting down his mistakes and handling out some solid body checks.

The Fairways get a break in their hockey schedule tonight when the players and their parents attend a team Christmas party at the Royal Canadian Legion hall.

Last year, Larry Mavety finished the WHL season as the league's highest-scoring defenceman with 87 points. Mavety, who spends his non-hockey-playing months in Belleville, had 20 points in his first 24 games this season but that wasn't enough to make him the most productive Western League defenceman.

Portland's Rick Foley had three goals and 22 assists to tie him for fifth place in league scoring statistics after his first 29 games.

Mavety's 39 points had him in a three-way tie for tenth place in the league scoring parade.

Second-place, incidentally, was injured by San Diego's Gerry Geyer (11 goals, 22 assists), another Bantam name locally.

all-time league record defenceman's total of 76 points when the redhead played with Calgary in 1961-62.

Mavety, the only blueliner habitue with Denver when the current season started, is in check to improve upon last winter's output and, in addition, may enjoy his first playoff action in four Western Hockey League seasons, three with Denver and one with Vancouver.

The Spurs were holding fourth place in the six-team league ahead of Salt Lake and Phoenix.

Another Belleville hockey shaman, Ron Riley, is enjoying a successful hockey debut with Montreal's Loyola University Warriors. Ron, a winger with Belleville Mc-Hawks three seasons back, has 11 goals in Loyola's first 12 games to lead the team in that department.

The Warriors currently lead the Ontario-St. Lawrence Athletic Association group by one point, with a 5-1-1 league record and 9-1-2 record including exhibition games.

Loyola's most impressive showings have been a 5-2 tie and 5-3 win over University of Toronto Varsity Blues, defending national intercollegiate champions.

The Toronto Marlboros' Trenton representatives continue to make their presence felt.

Tuesday night, rookie defenceman Bob Dailey and forward Gregg Sheppard, a late acquisition this season from Oshawa Generals, each scored as the Marlies were beaten 9-6 by Hamilton Red Wings.

Marlies' General manager Tom Smythe doesn't stand a snowball's chance in Bermuda of landing a third Trenton hockey product, flashy goalkeeper John Garrett who has almost personally put the Marlies through Peter in top spot in the ten-team OHA Junior A "Major" league.

Garrett, son of Trenton High School principal John Sr., has a goals-against average of 2.84 per game and the halfway mark in the schedule, phenomenal in the high-scoring junior ranks.

Gary Darling, chief area scout for the National Hockey League's St. Louis Blues operating out of Peterborough, says Garrett should be one of the first six average junior players in Canada to be picked in the 1971 NHL draft.

That won't necessarily mean Garrett will get stuck with one of the big league west sisters. For instance, Boston Bruins own Les Aagcles' first draft choice while Montreal Canadiens should also get an early selection with Dahlman's first pick.

Garrett, leading goalie in the Ontario junior loop in his rookie season last year, was picked up by Montreal Junior Canadiens en route to their second straight Memorial Cup and he practically stole regular goalkeeper Wayne Wood's job.

It's a good bet the senior Habs were watching.

"Moe" Benoit, who used to belt 'em high, wide, and handsome on the Belleville McFarlands' baseball line, is now living in Dayton, Ohio and selling insurance, as well as operating the "Moe Line" bar.

"Moe," who played and coached Dayton's International League entry after leaving Belleville, has four sons active in that city's amateur hockey set-up.

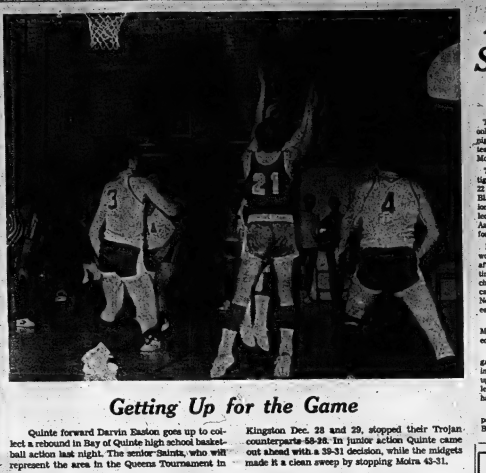
Watch for the big spread in the Dec. 26 issue of Weekend Magazine on Point Anne's premier hockey exports, Dennis and Bobby Hull.

Titled "What It's like to be Bobby Hull's Brother", the story is an often humorous one as told by the younger of the two Chicago Black Hawk sensations in Weekend writer Stan Fischler.



Bobby wasn't my only teacher," confides Dennis. "My dad, who was a darn good amateur player in his day, taught Bobby and me.

"I have to give Dad credit. It was obvious that Bobby was the star of the family — if not the world — but Dad never put me down by holding up Bobby as an example."

Moira Snowed Under

The weltherman wasn't the only busy person Wednesday night as Quinte's basketball teams "snowed under" their Moira opposition.

The midget Saints got a tight first half defence and a 22 point effort from Rod Blakely to take a 46-34 decision from Moira. The winners led 26-7 at half time. John Ashley was second high man for Quinte with 10 points.

In the junior contest Quinte won a low scoring 39-33 game after building up a 25-11 half time lead. Terry Collins notched 12 points in a winning cause, while Bruce Nickle and Neil Dunning had eight points each.

Ken LaPalm was high for Moira with 16 points followed by Bill Henry's eight.

Quinte broke open a tight game by ringing up 22 points in the third quarter to come up with a 58-36 decision after leading by only three points at half time.

Getting Up for the Game

Quinte forward Darvin Easton goes up to collect a rebound in Bay of Quinte high school basketball action last night. The senior Saints, who will represent the area in the Queens Tournament in Kingston Dec. 28 and 29, stopped their Trojan counterparts 58-36. In junior action Quinte came out ahead with a 39-31 decision, while the midgets made it a clean sweep by stopping Moira 43-31.

Mo-Hawks Draw Better on Road

If Belleville Mo-Hawks could draw the same crowds in their own rink as they do in road games, they'd probably feel more at home.

The local OHA Senior A entry helped fill nearly 1,800 Kingston Memorial Centre seats Tuesday night when they whipped the Acre 5-3.

A couple of weekends ago,

Meanwhile, the Mo - Hawks fifth - place showing (only one point behind fourth - place Kingston) has been rewarded at home by such meagre turnouts as the 500 souls who graced the Memorial Arena with their presence for last Friday night's 5-2 win over Woodstock.

Whether or not they have any spectators for Friday night's 9 p.m. visit by second-place Galt, the Mo - Hawks hope to make it three wins in a row as they continue to shake off a slump that saw them lose five out of six games before last Friday.

After beating the Hornets 5-3 here in the teams' first meeting of the season, the locals dropped 7-3 and 5-2 decisions in Galt. A win Friday would be a pleasant way to enjer the second half of the 49 - game schedule and improve upon a 9-11 record.

Some say Christmas shopping has cut down on Belleville hockey crowds. But they also have Christmas in Kingston, Owen Sound, Barrie, ...

Moira Grapplers Win

Moira stopped the Collegians 42-15 and added a 46-29 win over Centennial. BCI came back with a 38-25 edge over the Chargers.

Brothers John and Bill Hinchey won both their matches for Moira, while Neil Laforte and Mike Kumpf also went undefeated for the winners.

Orr Easy Winner Of Sportsman Award

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins' spectacular defenceman who won four major awards in leading his team to the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup last season, was named Sports Illustrated's 1970 Sportsman of the Year Wednesday.

"Thank you, thank you, thank you—this is a great honor," Orr, 22, said as he received a Grecian amphora at a luncheon held by the sports magazine.

"Bobby Orr was an obvious choice," said Sports Illustrated publisher Dick Munro. "It probably was the easiest selection we've ever had.

"Bobby would have been an obvious choice in any year. We can't think when an athlete in any sport dominated his sport to such a degree."

Orr led the NHL in scoring with 120 points, becoming the first defenceman ever to do so.

His 33 goals were the most ever scored by a defenceman and his 87 assists were an all-time record for any scorer.

Orr became the third Boston athlete in four years to win the magazine's top award. Carl Yastremski of baseball's Red Sox won it in 1967 and Bill Russell of basketball's Celtics won it the following year.

Other former winners were track's Roger Bannister of Britain, first four-minute miler; Rafer Johnson, U.S. Olympic decathlon champion; golf's Arnold Palmer, and baseball's Stan Musial and Tom Seaver.

"Not the greatest defenceman, the greatest player at either end of the ice."

Orr, as modest as he was when he broke into the NHL at 18 said:

"When I left home my parents told me, 'Don't ever pretend.' So I won't pretend that I can speak now."

He noted he does not have a wife to thank for his success, and went on to thank others, including former coach Harry Sinden, "but most of all my parents."

"Without my parents' help and guidance I wouldn't be anything," he said.

Campbell thanked Munro for selecting Orr as hockey's first winner of the award and said:

"This is a great tribute to a great player and a great young man."

Two More for Espo

Mikita Pots Four as Hawks Drub Blues

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

On any other National Hockey League club, Stan Mikita would rate superstar status.

But playing with Chicago Black Hawks, the 29-year-old centre has surrendered much of the spotlight to the Golden Jet, Bobby Hull, and more recently to Tony Esposito, the spectacular Hawk goaltender.

Mikita, the Czechoklovakian-born veteran of the Black Hawks for 11 seasons, took the centres Wednesday night, scoring four goals and assisting on another as Chicago drubbed St. Louis Blues 8-3.

In other games, Boston Bruins dumped Los Angeles Kings 6-4, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, Minnesota North Stars and Montreal Canadiens played to a 1-1 tie and California Golden Seals thumped Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

Mikita's four goals pushed his season's total to nine and with 23 assists moved him to seventh spot in the NHL individual scoring race, 25 points back of Phil Esposito of Boston, who has 57 points.

At Chicago, Mikita's first goal evened the count at 1-1 in the first period. The Hawks exploded with five goals in the second and two more in the final 20 minutes to register their 12th straight home-ice victory, a club record.

Mikita's other points came in the second-period barrage.

Four-time winner of the Hart Trophy as the league's scoring champ, Mikita said after the game he has only started "to feel good" the last week or so after spending the early part of the season trying to adjust to the slighter hook in his blade.

League rules cut down on the amount of curve in the blade this season. Mikita felt the lesser curve had hampered his shooting.

"I was compensating for that, but I was doing it wrong," he said.

He changed his' angle of carrying the puck last week, however, and if Wednesday's performance is any measure it did the trick.

The win gave Chicago 45 points in the West Division standings, seven ahead of second-place St. Louis.

At Boston, Esposito scored his 27th and 28th goals of the season within a space of 49 seconds as the Bruins handed Los Angeles its ninth consecutive setback.

The Bruins, who led 1-0 after 20 minutes, increased their margin to 4-0 in the second period before Los Angeles tallied twice. The teams exchanged goals in the final period.

Esposito has nine more points than team-mate Bobby Orr, who picked up three assists in the game and who holds down second spot in NHL scoring. Esposito's 28 goals is tops in the league.

STAN MIKITA

The victory enabled the Bruins to hold their two-point edge over New York in the East Division.

At New York, Ed Giacomin became the first NHL goalie to register his fourth shutout this season, stopping 20 Sabre shots.

The Rangers snowed the Sabres under with three third-period goals against goaltender Joe Daley as they skated to their 15th straight victory on home ice.

Billy MacMillan rapped in his ninth and 10th goals this season to pace the Leafs, who needed two late goals to break a 2-2 tie.

Claude Larose's 10th goal of the year midway into the final period at Minneapolis lifted the Canadiens to the tie with the North Stars, offsetting Bill Goldsworthy's first-period goal.

The Canadiens, who tallied 14 goals in their previous two games, were stopped cold by former team-mate Gump Worsley, who kicked aside 26 shots until Larose's long slap shot.

At Oakland, the Golden Seals, West Division cellar-dwells, upset the Wings, fifth in the East, with Carol Vadnais's seventh goal of the year at 1:05 of the third period proving to be the winner.

California led 2-0 after 20 minutes. Detroit made it 2-1 in the second period before Vadnais and Doug Roberts nailed the game away in the final period.

Reports of Leafs' Death Are Greatly Over-rated

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Reports that Toronto Maple Leafs were dead are greatly over-rated, Ask Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Leafs, who have lost 18 games this season, more than any other East Division team, won their fourth consecutive National Hockey League game Wednesday night with a 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh.

Nine days ago the Penguins defeated Toronto here 6-0. It was the last time the Leafs lost.

"When we got back to Toronto we read reports in the papers about how bad we played," coach John McLellan said.

"We did play a terrible game that night. But maybe the comments of the Pittsburgh players did something psychological to us."

"A couple players said we weren't hitting, and our young players weren't making goals," said Bill MacMillan, a rookie. "Maybe that got us up a little bit."

"I was worried about that," Kelly said. "You never criticize another team. You praise them a little, keep 'em contented."

McLellan is in his second year of coaching in the NHL, and he admits the job has been rough. Last year the Leafs finished last. This season they are making a push for fourth.

"I'll tell you one thing," McLellan said. "It's not easy. . . . Playing was a lot easier than coaching.

"We've lost 18 games and 10 of those have been by one goal. We're going to make the playoffs. There's no doubt about that."

MacMillan scored the Leafs second and fourth goals, both on n e t - a r o u n d shots that beat goalie Les Brinkley.

Jon Dorey, a defenceman, scored his first goal of the season to give the Leafs a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Campbell Levies $15,850 Fight Fines

MONTREAL (CP)—Some National Hockey League players may have second thoughts before they become embroiled in any more bench-clearing brawls this season.

The players—members of Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins, Chicago Black Hawks, Minnesota North Stars, California Golden Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins—received a word Wednesday from NHL president Clarence Campbell on fines the league is imposing as a result of five general melees this season.

Campbell imposed a total of $15,850 in fines following an investigation into the five brawls. Included in the total was $13,600 given automatically for the infractions.

A club fine of $1,000 against Montreal was assessed because the Canadiens were involved in three of the five incidents on which Campbell passed judgment Wednesday.

"This type of brawling has got to stop," said Campbell. "Penalties will be increased, including suspension until the proper result is achieved."

A rule went into effect last Saturday stating that "a bench minor penalty shall be imposed on the team of the first player to leave his bench" to join a fight.

The first of the bench-clearing incidents took place in Boston Garden Nov. 8 in a game involving the Bruins and Canadiens.

Fourteen Bruins and 13 Montreal players were handed automatic $100 fines each for leaving their respective benches to engage in the on-ice fracas.

Left winger Peter Mahovlich of the Canadiens was handed an additional $100 for being the

Similar automatic fines of $100 per player were assessed against 14 members of Pittsburgh Penguins and 13 Canadiens when both benches emptied at the end of the second period in a game at the Montreal Forum Nov. 28.

Boston and Chicago became embroiled in a dispute Dec. 2 in Chicago with 12 players from each team jumping off the bench to join the melee, punishing the NHL coffers by $2,400.

In addition, Boston defenseman Gerry Cheevers received an automatic $100 fine for leaving his bench to fight and a further $150 fine was given to Boston forward John McKenzie for being the first player to leave his bench.

The same night in Minnesota, the North Stars and California Golden Seals got into a brawl resulting in $2,550 fines.

A total of 23 players—11 from each team—jumped into the fray in which the main event was a bout between Dennis Hextall of the Seals and Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy.

The two main combatants were tagged with game misconducts worth $100 each, while Danny Grant of the North Stars was fined $150 for leaving the penalty box to join the fight and picked up a misconduct penalty worth another $50.

Minnesota team captain Ted Harris was the recipient of an additional $150 fine for leading the Minnesota charge from the bench, while Hextall also got an additional $150 fine because the Campbell's opinion the California player was not adequately punished by the $100 fine that went with his game misconduct penalty.

The latest bench-clearing incident occurred at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto Dec. 9 when 11 Maple Leafs and 13 Montreal players left their benches and were fined a total of $2,450.

Goalies Phil Myre of Montreal and Bruce Gamble of the Leafs received $300 penalties for leaving their respective goal areas to join the fracas.

Guy Lapointe of the Canadiens was fined $150 for leaving the penalty box to join the fight and $300 for molesting the penalty timekeeper.

Six misconduct penalties were given out by referee Bill Friday —to Montreal's Bill Collins, Terry Harper and Rick Ley, Darryl Sittler and Jim Harrison. This added another $300 to the NHL collection.

Dancer's Image Doesn't Have Derby Purse Yet

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A decision on what thoroughbred won the 1966 Kentucky Derby purse appears headed to Kentucky's highest court today, following a decision by the state racing commission to appeal a lower court's ruling to award the money to Dancer's Image.

In a unanimous vote Wednesday, the five commissioners agreed to take the case to the court of appeals as soon as the Franklin circuit court decision is made final.

Circuit Judge Henry Meigs, in a ruling last Friday, said there was insufficient evidence to disqualify Peter Fuller's colt from participation in the purse of the 1966 Derby.

Meigs' ruling overruled the commission's decision last year which held that Calumet Farm's Forward Pass should receive the $122,600, first prize but that Dancer's Image was the winner of the race.

Fuller, a wealthy Boston auto car dealer, began his legal battle after that decision.

Meigs said in his ruling that tests run on Dancer's image by the commission chemist, Kenneth Smith, were "inadequate and contradictory."

Smith had tested the colt after the race and reported later that Dancer's Image showed traces of phenylbutazone, a forbidden medication, in his urinalysis.

If the appellate court upholds the lower court decision, state racing commissioner George Egger indicated the matter would not be appealed further.

Frazier's Camp Asks $3 Million For Clay Fight

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Yancy (Yank) Durham, manager of heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, is asking $3 million for Frazier to fight Muhammad Ali.

Moreover, he wants the same guarantee for the deposed champion, who is also known as Cassius Clay.

Durham said Wednesday he has received offers from several places, including Madison Square Garden, the Astrodome in Houston and from closed circuit television.

"Another one was from some business people in Philadelphia," Durham was quoted in the Philadelphia Bulletin as saying.

"They offered me $2 million and I told them it wasn't enough," he said.

"I have an agreement with Clay and his people that both boys will get the same amount of money when they fight.

"Between us," Durham continued, "there's no question that we're gonna fight.

"The only question is where and for whom. When we get what we want, we'll settle on the date," he said.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Muhammad Ali said Wednesday he's getting out of the boxing business if and when he beats Joe Frazier Feb. 13. He also said he plans to retire "unscratched."

NEW YORK (AP) — A 10-round heavyweight fight is set for Jan. 22 in Madison Square Garden between Oscar Bonavena and Floyd Patterson, but Bonavena says he can't make it—doctor's orders.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for the Garden, announced the fight Wednesday. But Wednesday night Bonavena said in Buenos Aires:

"I want to have this fight since I gave my word to Mr. Teddy Brenner (Garden matchmaker), but my personal doctor has advised me to rest and forget boxing for awhile, and I have no other choice but to do just that."

Told of Bonavena's statement, Markson said: "I don't know what this is all about. We were talking to Bonavena on the phone only yesterday (Tuesday), and he told us he was ready to fight on Jan. 22 and would be here on Jan. 19.

Bonavena's physician, Dr. Robert Paladino, said last week after Bonavena returned home after being stopped in the 11th round by Muhammad Ali that the fighter was in excellent physical condition but "he is exhausted after his extraordinary fights . . ."

Bonavena said he thought he would be ready to fight again by the middle of February.

Markson said Patterson, the former world heavyweight champion, and Bonavena each would be guaranteed $60,000 against 25 per cent of the gate.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sonny Liston, former world heavyweight boxing champion, was arrested Wednesday night for investigation of drunken driving, the highway patrol said.

The patrol said it observed the 214-pound fighter driving his late model car erratically on the San Bernardino Freeway in East Los Angeles.

The boxer has been involved in minor traffic violations in the past. He was convicted of carrying a concealed weapon in 1963 after police stopped his auto for a routine check.

LONDON (AP) — Pele, the Brazilian soccer star, was named Sportsman of 1970 Wednesday in an Associated Press poll of European sports writers. Heavyweight boxer Muhammad Ali was eighth.

Eddy Merckx, a Belgian cyclist, was second and Chris Papanicolaou of Greece, the only man ever to vault 18 feet, was third.

More Hurt On Fake Turf

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University, playing all of its 10-game football schedule on supposedly safer artificial turf, this year suffered more player injuries than ever before.

But while the team doctor believes a synthetic field allows players to run faster and hit harder, Dr. Lawrence Jarrett says the culprit is the modern equipment that's worn these days.

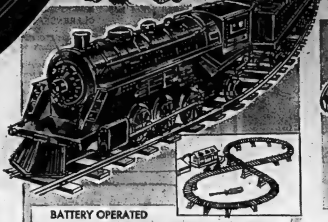
Out of 26 injuries for the MSU Spartans this year, 13 sidelined their victims for the rest of the season, Jarrett said. Some 10 "important players" missed considerable portions of the Spartans' 6-4 season this fall, said Fred Stabley, sports information director.

Last year, when MSU first began playing and practising on the tough, asphalt-based playing surface, season-long injuries sidelined about a dozen players — more than twice the norm over all the years stretching back to 1930 when football started here.

Safety was a widely stressed rationale for the various types of synthetic carpet that have been promoted. MSU had one installed during the summer of 1969 at a cost of $250,000.

Wearing short, molded-rubber cleats long used by European soccer teams, players supposedly would face less risk to knees and ankles than they had with longer, nylon and metal cleats on grass and mud.

But 10 knee injuries and four sprained ankles led the list of categories that cost the Spartans' top players on football Saturdays this year, Jarrett said.



There were three shoulder separations, two broken hands, two broken feet, one broken shoulder blade, two neck injuries and two concussions.

College Bowl Format Changed

TORONTO (CP) — The national collegiate football championship will continue to be played in Toronto next year, but the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has endorsed a change in venue for semi-final games leading to the College Bowl.

CIAU officials decided Wednesday that because of the obvious strength of both the Western college setup and Ontario teams, they would not face each other next year as happened in 1970 when Manitoba defeated Queen's University, Kingston, in the Western Bowl at Winnipeg.

Instead, the West will meet the winner of the recently-revamped Quebec college setup in Montreal, while teams formerly the Atlantic Bowl game in Halifax will move to the Toronto area with the Maritime representatives the visitors.

NFL Jury Probes Player 'Blackballing'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal grand jury investigation into possible anti-trust violations in the National Football League was to continue today.

Jurors heard testimony Wednesday from former NFL players Larry Benz and Henry Wallace.

Benz, the fourth former defensive back of Cleveland Browns to testify, and Wallace, a defensive back for Los Angeles Chargers, in 1960, told reporters that they were questioned about blackballing.

Benz, 28, now a Chicago stock broker, was the Browns' starting safety from 1963 to 1965 before being put on an expansion draft list and picked up by Atlanta Falcons.

He left the Falcons' camp after one day. His lawyer, Norman E. McIntyre, said Wednesday that Benz's contract with the Falcons was based on how many games the team won and that Benz learned on the first day of practice the coaching staff had the attitude that they weren't going to win any games.

McIntyre said Benz received his release from the Falcons the following year and pursued every other team in the NFL for a tryout but was refused by each.

"Larry played three years as a regular and was on two championship teams, but at the age of 25 wasn't able to get another job," said McIntyre. "He tried to go back with the Falcons but they wouldn't take him."

Wallace, 32, who said he works in "personnel administration" for a Los Angeles firm, said he volunteered to testify after reading about the investigation.

He said he was also with the Chargers in 1961, although club rosters don't list him. He said he had differences over salary with the Chargers and that after he left the team was unable to get a job with another club.

Sid Gillman, general-manager of the Chargers who was head coach of the team in 1960, said Wednesday that Wallace's release "was an injury thing."

"He wasn't with us very long because he wasn't very good," Gillman said.

"The only thing I remember about Henry is his getting hurt very early. He claimed he had an injury. I thought we settled it. I don't believe he was with us during the regular season."

Wallace told reporters Wednesday that "I have material information—evidence of a chain of events . . . not just complaints" about discriminatory practices against players. He refused to discuss his evidence.

Wallace said that NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle was the single person responsible for perpetrating the discriminatory practices.

Johnny Sample, another former pro football defensive back, had declared after appearing before the jury Monday the grand jury should indict Rozelle.

The jury is looking for possible anti-trust violations and is apparently concentrating on owner-player relations to determine if there have been illegal restraints of trade. Conviction on restraint indictments could be punished by a fine of up to $50,000 and a jail term of up to one year.

BOB HOUMARD

Eskies Get Houmard

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Houmard, fullback with Montreal Alouettes, has been acquired by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, it was announced today. At the end of the 1970 Canadian football season, Houmard, 23, was traded by Winnipeg Blue Bombers for fullback Dennis Duncan of the Alouettes. It has not been announced who Edmonton will give up for Houmard.

Kaline Honored

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Veteran Detroit Tigers outfielder Al Kaline has been voted the 1970 Hutch Award by major league baseball writers and broadcasters.

The award, sponsored by the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Scholarship Fund Inc., is voted to a major league player who exemplifies the competitive instincts and character of the late Cincinnati Reds manager.

Previous Hutch Award-winners were Mickey Mantle (1965), Sandy Koufax (1966), Carl Yastrzemski (1967), Pete Rose (1968) and Tony Conigliaro (1969).

Strike Follows Looting, Violence in Strife-torn Poland

WARSAW (CP) — Shipyard and other workers in Gdansk and miners in Silesia were reported on strike today after three days of looting and street fighting in Poland's Baltic ports over sharp price increases. The outbreaks were reported to have left at least six persons dead, by official count.

Other sources said the death toll was at least 12 and more than 150 persons were injured, many of them militiamen—police.

The Polish Communist party newspaper Trybuna Ludu admitted for the first time that stiff pre-Christmas price increases in food, fuel and clothing announced last weekend were at the root of the trouble.

The paper, also making the first editorial comment in Poland on the clashes in Gdansk (formerly Danzig), Gdynia and Sopot said some of the workers who battled with militia still were not back at work. The paper urged them to return to their jobs.

The clashes Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday left buildings burned out and stores looted, and led to tanks being brought on to the streets and a dusk-to-dawn curfew being clamped on the three coastal cities.

Observers said the Trybuna Ludu article indicated that all was not yet well in Gdansk, although earlier Polish reports said calm and order had been restored there and in the neighboring port of Gdynia and the vacation resort of Sopot.

All three cities form an almost unbroken built-up complex stretching for about 15 miles along the Baltic coast, with a total population of more than 600,000.

The government-controlled Warsaw radio said, however, that life in Gdansk "has returned to normal."

"The population went quietly to work this morning. All city transport is running normally.

"Although the city council set the opening hour for shops at 7, tradesmen voluntarily opened their doors at 6 to enable people to buy food. The streets are almost clear of rubble. Only glass panes in some display windows have not been replaced."

The broadcast did not say whether the 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew had been lifted, but the city's two newspapers were publishing on schedule.

Tight security was still in effect around Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot this morning. All flights to the area on the western shore of the Bay of Danzig were suspended and long-distance telephone service had not resumed.

Travellers arriving Wednesday night from Gdansk said the fighting between street crowds and police was dying down, but that a sit-in by workers in factories and shipyards was under way. Miners in Silesia, in southwest Poland, also walked out in sympathy with the Gdansk workers.

As the Polish Communist authorities took stock of the material and political damage wrought by the street clashes, they were also looking cautiously for signs of unrest elsewhere over the price changes.

The adjustments were approved as justified only Monday by Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. Party economists have made clear the aim is to switch consumption away from scarce foods to consumer durables.

Reliable sources reported dissatisfaction over the increased prices in the Cegielski marine diesel engine works in Poznan in West Poland and in an automobile plant at Zeran, on the outskirts of Warsaw.

But there was no word that this had taken a violent turn as in Gdansk.

Reports said students and some housewives also took part in the Gdansk demonstrations.

Polish television showed a brief film of burned-out automobiles, trolley cars, buses and food delivery trucks in debris-strewn streets.

A Western diplomat who was in Gdansk Monday gave this report of the start of the fighting:

Shipyard workers were marching peacefully in the city Monday afternoon to protest increases averaging 30 per cent in the government price of food, fuel, clothing and other commodities.

Police, seeing they were outnumbered by the demonstrators, penicked and started shooting. This triggered demonstrations all over the city. An angry mob, singing the Communist Internationale attacked the party headquarters and also tried to burn down the railway station. Only slight damage was done to the station, but there was widespread arson and looting.

Eyewitnesses arriving in Sweden aboard a Polish ferry said the police used tear gas and helicopters during the fighting, while other arrivals told of seeing military columns in the area.

Unconfirmed reports said tank or jet hits were sent into Gdansk.

On the Warsaw-Gdansk highway Wednesday the only vehicles allowed through a tight cordon had commercial permits. Reporters were turned back 70 miles from the city.

Trybuna Ludu said "those responsible for murders, arson and looting must suffer severe punishment."

The paper's account also said the outbreak started with a peaceful march by the shipyard workers. But it told a different story of subsequent events.

Warsaw radio told of looting by "long-haired hooligans." 16 and 17 years old, armed with knives, who roamed the streets with bottles of wine in their hands.

The broadcast said some of the looters were selling shirts in the street for 16 zlotys, about 88 cents. Last weekend the price of cotton shirts was raised to 250 from 225 zlotys.

Luxuries Looted In Reaction

VIENNA, Austria (Reuter) — An unknown Polish journalist who broadcast the first detailed account of riots in the Baltic port of Gdansk described Wednesday how mobs looted fur coats and champagne in protest against sharp rises in food and fuel prices.

He said crowds raced across the railway tracks near Gdansk station "with a wild uproar" and broke into the Street of May Third, where police headquarters and some Communist party buildings are located.

Gdansk radio said public buildings, stores, cars and trucks were set on fire and destroyed.

The radio also carried an official communique, issued by the presidium of the local government of Gdansk province, which said "murders have even been committed against public officials and civilians," and that more than 138 militiamen (police) were injured.

Both the Gdansk communique and the journalist's description spoke of arson, with losses amounting to millions of dollars.

Waitress on Job After $50,000 Win

TORONTO (CP) — A 38-year-old waitress who won $50,000 Wednesday in a lottery sponsored by the Ontario Art Gallery, kept on working as if nothing had happened.

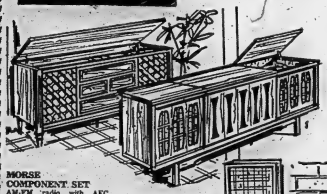
Helen Nabirniak, who makes about $100 a week, described the win as "quite a Christmas present."

She said the first news of the win came from a friend who asked to borrow some money. She said she had none to lend.

"My friend told me I had just won," she said in an interview.

"I'm all mixed up, I guess. I know I'm not going to spend it all at once but I don't have any special plans."

Miss Nabirniak, who came to Toronto 10 years ago from Holden, Alta., said, it "would be nice to go home for Christmas."



William Davis, Ontario minister of education, drew the winning ticket in a ceremony at the gallery.

Second prize of $5,000 went to Mrs. M. Turnbull, also of Toronto.

There were 10 $500 winners, all from the Toronto area.

Husband Refuses Blood for Wife

SARNIA (CP) — A young wife was listed in critical condition Wednesday while her husband, a Jehovah's Witness, refused permission for a transfusion.

A surgeon at Sarnia General Hospital said that Donna Hardy, 30, required six to seven units of blood and that her husband James had refused to permit the transfusion. A unit is about a pint.

Mrs. Hardy, of Huron Park, about 25 miles north of London, Ont., had been unconscious and under intensive care since Sunday when she was injured in an automobile accident.

Her sister, Madge Perizeau of Sarnia, said Wednesday night she had been trying to convince Mr. Hardy to permit the transfusion.

Mrs. Perizeau said the Hardys joined the Witness asetuob's TAOIN ETAOIN H the Witnesses about 10 years ago.

Neville Cardus

British Writer Captures His Memories

LONDON (CP) — "In 1947 I was still a 'member of the National Liberal Club in Whitehall Place. The vast building received a direct hit from a Hitler bomb, demolishing the main staircase. When I re-entered the portal in June, 1947, not having been there during the world's years of agony, the hall porter greeted me with:

"'Oh, good evening, sir—some letters waiting for you here.'"

Thus is from Neville Cardus, who is 81 and still types out lovely words on such diverse things as the opera and sport. He must be the best two-way man on the history of English literature.

Every day fans of Sir Neville, knighted in 1967, pick up The Guardian to see what he might be writing about culture, or cricket, or maybe himself which is more interesting a subject than the others.

Now Cardus has put down his memoirs in a book called Full Score, a combination of music and sport. The jacket calls it "a marvellous distillation of a life compounded by wine, women, song and cricket." For once, the blurb is right.

Cardus writes gently of his loves, merely suggesting that he has been between the sheets with some noted stage and opera stars.

Here's a passage in a chapter about one called only Milady.

"She burned a flame of sex and being. She had found my wavelength; and it was a flame blown about fitfully now and then. She sensed what was passing through my mind and in a low voice said:

"'Yes, I have been naughty but I was educated in a convent in France and always help with the harvest festival in our church.'"

Once when Cardus couldn't scare up tickets for himself and Milady at the Salzburg music festival, Milady took over and in an hour appeared with a card of admission to the Herr Direktor's private box.

When Cardus asked how she got this carte blanche, she replied: "I was NICE to him."

"And I find it necessary," Sir Neville writes, "for the purposes of true and living communication, to have the word 'nice' printed in capital letters."

And now he writes of an actress, still alive, of their good times in 1925 or so:

"We are young and the spring morning is young. The sun dapples the leaves of the trees. The open-air restaurant in the Stadtpark (Vienna) is animated and, we could think, everlasting. . . . Yet behind our backs, so to say, the sand is running out in the hour glass."

As befits Cardus, he writes as a connoisseur of sex in English music. Here is Sir Neville:

"English women have assured me that it is only out of England—in France, Italy or Austria—that a woman is made aware that she is indeed a woman; not in England.

"I do not regard the swinging sex obsessions of London's 1970s as erotic. They have as much to do with romantic and civilized sexual passions as pills, drugs, guitars and the erotically respectable wailings of the Beatles and the Rolling Stones. There is little, if any, erotic English poetry or music."

And for a switch to his beloved cricket, Sir Neville, who detests the current trend to one-day matches, hymns nostalgically of the fading days of the five-day games. He writes like a poet for chapters but here is just a small piece of Cardus catching the flavor of a match between Lancashire and Yorkshire, cricket's current Battle of the Roses.

"A man sat among the denizens of the county, applauding everything appreciative of good cricket by Lancashiremen and Yorkshiremen alike. He was looked at curiously by the cloth-capped populace surrounding him. At last he was addressed by a man clearly from the Lancashire hinterland."

The dialogue as translated by Cardus goes like this:

"'Tha seems to be enjoying thisel impartial like.'

"'Oh yes,' replied the impartial spectator enthusiastically. 'Splendid cricket. Oh, well hit, sir—well fielded.'

"'Tha's not from these parts, eg tha' asked the man from Rainbottom. 'Tha's not from Lankyshire or Yorkshire.'

"'Oh no,' responded the enthusiast. 'I've come up from Brighton.'

"'Oh, hast tha' said the Lancastrian. 'Then let me tell tha' to keep thy clapper shut.'

This match has nowt to do with thee.'"

Well, that's Sir Neville writing casually about his second favorite pastime. And, as the blurb on his book says, on every page there is a reminder that the English language is a thing of simple and expressive beauty.

Son Beats Father In Election

PLYMOUTH, Montserrat (AP) — In a father-son contest, Austin Bramble has won control of the government of this 37-square-mile island in the Leeward Islands of the Caribbean.

Bramble's Progressive Democratic party swept all seven seats of the governing council in elections Tuesday, defeating the slate headed by his father, William.

The elder Bramble, a former union official, had headed the government 15 years. Father and son disagreed vigorously during the campaign.

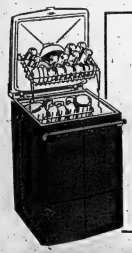
Students Flood Market When No One Hiring

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Melvyn Swain, a personnel co-ordinator with the London Life Insurance Co., said Wednesday university students in Ontario are flooding the labor market at a time when neither business nor government shows signs of increased hiring.

Mr. Swain, speaking to the Ontario commission on post-secondary education, said he has been told by two campus placement officers that graduates are already getting panicky over the unemployment situation.



He said he felt producing so many graduates was a waste of the taxpayers' money.

"When are we going to stop wasting taxpayers' money on educating so many people at the master's and PhD level?

"We should be ashamed of the great waste of manpower in such arts programs as philosophy, psychology, history and the languages where limited employment is already obvious. Industry simply has not room for them and teaching has begun to dry up."

Cash In On Florida
Real Estate Boom

"Woods knows where money grows"

The big difference between the Florida Real Estate boom of the years "boom and bust" of the 1920's and the present boom is that the Florida Development Commission was strong and insisted on sound development. Governor Claude Kirk and Comptroller Gordon Woods has secured the right to inspect the books of any developer who wishes to sell in Florida. By virtue of this control millions of dollars have been saved the purchasers of Florida property and assured that relatively small investments will grow substantially in value. Florida Development Commission approved property in Florida. Inquire today.

Night Gallery New Twilight Zone

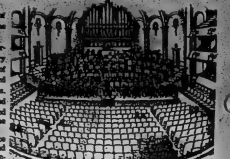
NEW YORK (AP) — Writer Rod Serling has gone back to his old twilight zone for source material.

His new Night Gallery, a sixpart section of NBC's Four in One, had its premiere Wednesday night and the opening program indicated it will be most popular with people who like horror films.

Each program in Night Gallery consists of two half-hour stories.

The first, The Dead Man, was a tale of a doctor who was deeply involved in an experiment with a young attractive man especially susceptible to hypnosis. The doctor, played by Carl Betz, placed the patient completely under his control even to a point where, on signal, his heart and breathing stopped.

The doctor's beautiful wife was involved in a love affair with the patient, an affair encouraged by the hypnotist because it was the only way to keep the young man around. When the patient failed to respond to his "wake up" signal, the wife became distraught. Most of the remaining action took place in a picturesque graveyard, Hot stout was designed to be the snapper ending was, unfortunately, pretty easy to anticipate almost from the outset.



The second, The Housekeeper, was a bit of nonsense with a slightly Hitchcock flavor. In this, a mad scientist discovered a way to transfer personalities from one individual to another. He had a cold, beautiful, and rich wife and his plan was to provide this shell with a warm heart and gentle spirit.

To obtain both, he hired an ugly old hag, cowed and humble from years of rejection. With the aid of this single powers of the common jumping frog, he effected the transplant.

One hardly needs to be a Serling to imagine the result. Larry Hagman, late of I Dream of Jeannie, played the bearded schemer with lethal gentleness. Susy Parker was his wife and Jeanette Nolan, concealed under a lot of putty, was the property repulsive victim.

There probably is an audience for this sort of amusement and Serling, walking a fine line between fantasy and science fiction, handles it well.

Reports Heard By Authority

Although land acquisition for reforestation purposes by the Moira River Conservation Authority has been stalled by rising land costs, the number of trees planted is gradually growing.

A report of the forest advisory board presented to authority members yesterday showed the authority owns a total 18,124 acres of reforestation property with the number of trees now more than 3½ million.

This year the Department of Lands and Forests planted 97,800 trees on authority properties with the actual number now planted being 2,533,425.

In addition, the authority has planted more than 50,000 coniferous and deciduous trees on conservation area land with another 15,000 ordered for planting next year.

In addition to reforestation properties, the authority has 1,640 acres of water control and multiple - use conservation area property.

Main conservation area properties are at the Oakleaf Underwater park at Thomasburg, the O'Hara's Mill property northwest of Madoc, and the Price area at Actinolite.

Reporting on the water control advisory board, chairman Guy Hughes said that the Deerock reservoir dam on a tributary of the Skootamatta River in Kaladar township had been completed during the year.

However, due to the fact that clearing had not been entirely completed, the dam had not been put into operation.

The authority operates nine dams in the watershed, the newest being at Deerock Lake, Lingham Lake and at Deloro.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

The medical name for high blood pressure is hypertension. If you have been down that word you will find that it means too much tension. In the great majority of cases we don't know the cause of the high blood pressure, and we call such cases essential hypertension.

However, in a very small number of cases, we can find specific reasons, such as an adrenal gland disease of one kidney, etc. When these known causes are successfully treated, the hypertension reverts to normal.

In a patient with essential high blood pressure, our management is based on mapping out a new way of life for him and administering the so-called miracle drugs which have done so much to lower abnormally high blood pressure.

You hear little these days about patients having sympathectomy operations done to diminish high blood pressure. Most cases are treated by medical means rather than by surgical procedures.

Consider the name, "hypertension" again. What it means is that people contribute to the ailments by living lives that are too tense. I recall many patients who aggravated this condition — and may have actually caused it, by tenseness in their daily life.

One man said, "I get red in the face when I have to stand in line waiting my turn in a restaurant or trying to cash a check in the bank. I have no patience. I get upset and boil inside."

Another complained that he got upset when in traffic. If the car in front didn't jump right ahead when the light turned from red to green, he'd lean down on the horn and look daggers at the innocent driver as he passed him.

Consider the many confrontations we all have with our fellow man as we go through an ordinary day. We can either take it philosophically or with a chip on the shoulder.

In my practice, I've found that the people who resent quickly, who become easily upset and bury their resentment as well as explode quickly often become high blood pressure patients; or, already having hypertension, aggravate their condition.

If there's a moral, it is this: if you hope to prevent high blood pressure or, keep it in bounds, you have to develop a way of life which is an antidote against living in too much unnecessary tension. Learn to relax — mentally as well as physically.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like to have a mole removed but prefer to do it myself. If I went to a doctor, it would embarrass me. Isn't it possible to remove a mole by placing some kind of mixture on it? — Mrs. B.

Play safe. Do not use experimental treatment on something that may or may not be serious. In other words, don't play Russian roulette. You must know that some moles can be life-threatening if not treated adequately.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm confused. Don't know what to do. I had phlebitis and a blood clot during my pregnancy. Yet, immediately following delivery, my doctor prescribed the "pill."

When I consider what I've been hearing, I've lost confidence in my doctor. Isn't it dangerous to take the "pill" after phlebitis? What shall I do? — Mrs. C.

You have sufficient reason for apprehension to ask for consultation with another obstetrician and gynecologist.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 18

Your birthday today: A year of reasonable progress is best achieved by diligence and continued study. Your present line of effort is broadened by technical developments so that you must hurry to keep up with the changing times. Your earnings rise with steady effort. Emotional expression comes rather impulsively with frequent dramatic moments. Today's natives have strong literary talent in telling an interesting story, and usually help in community affairs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You need to be clearly heard; outspoken with peers and competitors, quite the reverse with people who outrank you. Disregard unfair or incomplete comment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): In your social group, you will find the young striving for adult freedom, needing advice, unwilling to ask for it — and others trying to live in bygone years.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You can't keep a secret now, so don't try. Stay with routines. A health checkup will put you know what's what and whether you have to do anything special.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Everything should go rather well today. Avoid the tempting let-down and drift, press right ahead to do as much as you can enjoy doing.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Wind up the week-end with no loose ends. Dress well, but realize you don't have to be extravagant to make a good impression. See everything with a sense of humor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Devotion to exactness only causes needless squabbles. Let reasonable lapses go. Impromptu arrangements work out better than detailed plans now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Career prospects brighten with an idea gained while traveling, listening to strangers. Your community needs your talents; find a graceful way to volunteer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Everybody has his own special tantrum to throw today. Your success is determined by how you cope with all this without taking sides. Don't try too hard. Relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Do your normal work in good spirits. Enjoy your friends and companions to be somewhat shy or concerned about something. Gentle consideration should come naturally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): An idea that looks fine to you from your sketches doesn't arouse the enthusiasm of others. Don't go on pushing it through only makes the situation worse. Stand alone if possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It's better to catch an error yourself, before others discover it. Today they will not let you escape responsibility for the blunder.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): If you will muster your courage and demand some improvement, or increase, you stand a chance of getting it, particularly in a newly setup situation. Nothing lost by trying.

Hypertension Can Be Treated

Inquest Verdict Is Released

PICTON (Staff) — A coroner's inquest into the death of Martin Thissen, 17, North Marysburg, who died following a motorbike accident on Lake - on - the - Mountain road this fall has established that speed was not a factor in the mishap.

A five-man coroner's jury recommended that motorcycle operators should be required to show proof of experience before being allowed to carry passengers.

Martin Thissen was a passenger on a motorbike driven by David Whattam, 17, North Marysburg. The Whattam youth had owned his motorbike for approximately two months prior to the accident, which occurred Oct. 26 when he and Martin Thissen were riding toward Picton to attend classes at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

A second jury recommendation concerned better sign posting on the hill and curve at Lake-on-the-Mountain road. Jury members following the presentation of medical evidence, agreed that the Thissen youth died accidentally as the result of a fractured skull.

City Said in Flames As Poland Erupts

Warsaw (CP) — The major port of Szczecin was reported in flames today as troops armed with orders to shoot patrolled riot-torn cities along the Baltic coast of Poland.

Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz indicated a virtual state of emergency existed in the country when he ordered the military and police to take tough measures to control the spreading anti-government demonstrations.

Radio Szczecin reported during the night that "firebrands" and "bandit elements" had set fire to buildings in parts of the city and looted stores and other public buildings.

The radio reports, monitored in Bonn, said "a great disaster" has befallen the city, which lies on the border with East Germany and is Poland's principal port.

An earlier report by the radio station said Szczecin (formerly Stettin) was put under a 6 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew Thursday, although no reason was given.

Telephone and telegraph links between the port and Warsaw also were cut—a Warsaw exchange operator attributed it to a switchboard fault—and the regular evening flight between the cities was cancelled without explanation.

Troops, police and security forces got tough new orders Thursday night, empowering them to shoot to control rioting, looting and destruction in Polish cities which first broke out Monday in the port of Gdansk (formerly Danzig).

Cyrankiewicz, speaking on national radio and television, reported that between 12 and 20 persons had been killed and called on police to "reject the provocateurs."

He said the first three days of clashes which started over sharp pre-Christmas price increases had created a grave situation in the country.

Military and police units and demonstrators responded with Molotov cocktails in Szczecin Thursday night, a Swedish radio reporter returning from the city said today.

The reporter, Anders Tunborg, telephoned his report to Stockholm from a Sweden-bound ferry, said he saw a mother and child mowed down by a tank as troops and police charged the crowds time and again.

The main battle took place in front of the local Communist party headquarters, which, like several other buildings in the town centre, was ablaze, the reporter said.

Tunborg said: "It was in the middle of the street in front of the burning party headquarters. The tanks repeatedly charged the crowds, who sprang out of the way to avoid being run down."

"A mother and her young daughter did not get out of the way in time and an onrushing tank hit them both. A young soldier stood watching nearby and crying."

Tunborg said several police and party buildings were on fire at the peak of an "explosive development . . . a chain of events which in a matter of hours transformed Szczecin from a town of total calm into one besieged by tanks and with home-made Molotov cocktails going off in the streets."

Tunborg said the trouble started in the morning when news of the clashes in the Baltic ports of Gdynia and Gdansk reached Szczecin.

Almost one-third of the city's 22,000 shipyard and dock workers did not go to their jobs, while those who did never started work.

"By lunchtime, about 1,000 workers stood on the bank of the River Oder ready to march up to the party building . . . to protest against the Polish leader Gladyslaw Gomulka refine's economic policy," he reported.

"Thousands of others tried to leave their work-places at the docks but were stopped by police.

"Police sirens screamed and policemen tried to make the workers return to their jobs, but the angry workers overturned a couple of police cars and continued as if nothing had happened," he said.

Radio Szczecin, before reporting new outbreaks of arson and looting, appealed to workers in the city to maintain peace and order.

It also urged parents and teachers to keep young people off the streets.

There were earlier reports of shooting in the seaport of Gdynia one of the three-city complex which includes Gdansk and Sopot. News was received later of clashes in Slupsk, about 80 miles to the west.

The order empowering militia and security authorities to use arms said the government had taken this measure because of serious breaches of law and order in recent days.

Then it's moved and seconded. It's MP's get a raise!

No Check On Billions For Science

OTTAWA (CP) — Billions of taxpayers dollars have been sunk in programs and scientific activities that were never adequately assessed by the federal science policy-making machinery.

That is the judgment of the Senate science policy committee in a 100,000-word document tabled Thursday as the first instalment of a proposed blueprint for reshaping the nation's science effort.

The report will be available at Information Canada centres across the country.

The committee recommends that the government devise a clear over-all science policy ensuring that activities, costing annually more than $1 billion, are mainly directed at solving social and economic problems.

Until now, the main thrust of Canadian science has been basic research. This has gained Canada high marks internationally but a low place in competition among nations to harness science to the production of new goods and services, it says.

"The main fault is with the politicians in that they were not interested in what the scientists were doing and they left the scientists free to develop their own projects and programs," Senator Maurice Lamontagne told a news conference.

Senator Lamontagne has been chairman of the Senate's science policy inquiry started in 1967. He was one of the cabinet ministers the committee indicts during part of the period since 1916.

He was Liberal secretary of state in 1964-67 and president of the privy council 1963-64.

The committee's report gives examples of the results of this "gap at the top" in the period between 1950 and 1968. In those eight years, the cabinet's chief science policy-making body, the committee on scientific and industrial research, never met once.

Nevertheless, Canada embarked on a huge program to produce electricity from nuclear energy, competing with giants

Politicians' Guards Increased in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of soldiers guarding political leaders has been increased in recent days in the national capital, officials disclosed Thursday.

Reasons given was the belief that the Front de Liberation du Quebec might seek a "replacement hostage" for freed James Cross.

Most of the soldier-guards had been withdrawn in the Ottawa area.

But they have been returned to duty and persons who were without any guards for weeks now have them again, at least at night.

The remounting of the soldier-guards in Ottawa has been circumspect. The operation has been carried out almost unnoticed.

No sub-machine-guns have been in evidence on Parliament Hill for weeks.

All political leaders used to be driven from home to the Parliament Buildings and back again with a soldier riding shotgun in the car or taxi.

However, this practice has been eliminated, thus doing away with an enormous traffic jam in front of the buildings when the Commons finished its daily sitting.

But soldiers are back again patrolling in the snow around the homes of political leaders.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield gave a party for his Progressive Conservative colleagues Wednesday night at his home and all had to produce identification for guards before they could enter.

The defence department declined to disclose the number of soldiers on guard duty or the size of the increase.

Thalidomide Trial Ends Without Verdict

ALSDORF, West Germany (AP) — An Aachen state court today ended the 2½-year-long thalidomide trial without a formal verdict but said it was convinced that the drug was responsible for the epidemic of malformed infants a decade ago.

Judge Benno Bietz, reading a 30-page explanation of the court's ruling, said there was a definite correlation between the marketing of the drug in West Germany from 1957 to 1961 and the thousands of babies born during those years with malformed or missing limbs.

The judge also held thalidomide responsible for causing nerve damage in some adult users.

It was the longest trial in West German history.

Five past or present employees of Chemie Grunenthal, the company that produced the drug, were charged in a 972-page indictment with negligent manslaughter, inflicting bodily injury and violating federal drug laws.

The defence moved Dec. 7 that the trial be ended with no verdict and the prosecution accepted the motion because Chemie Grunenthal had set up a $27.3 million fund for malformed children and agreed to pay $1.08 million to the adult plaintiffs who claimed they suffered severe damage.

The West German government has offered to pay another $15.6 million to families of the malformed children. Between 2,200 and 2,300 children, most of them West German, stand to benefit from the company and government compensation.

"We can't afford to spend any more time on legalistic problems: we have other problems of education and health," said Karl-Hermann Schulte-Hillen, a lawyer for 600 persons or families who were co-plaintiffs in the action. Although he would not endorse the defence motion to end the trial, he did not oppose it.

Thalidomide, a sleep-inducing drug, is blamed for the malformation of some 6,500 babies in 28 countries whose mothers took it in the early stages of pregnancy. The trial in Alsdorf dealt only with cases recorded in West Germany, where an estimated 4,000 thalidomide babies were born. One-third of these are said to have died.

English and Swedish companies that produced the drug under a licence from Grunenthal have agreed to compensate families of children crippled in their countries. Another suit is pending in Japan.

Apollo Launch Jan. 31

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After reviewing all aspects of preparations, the Apollo program director has given the go-ahead to proceed toward a Jan. 31 launching to the moon.

Dr. Rocco Petrone met Thursday with key Apollo officials to discuss the readiness of the Saturn V rocket, the spaceships, launch operations, tracking, recovery forces, the astronauts and other phases.

"We had a very thorough review," Petrone reported. "All elements appear ready at this time to support the Jan. 31 launch date."

Among those who participated in the review were the three astronauts who will fly the Apollo 14 mission, Alan Shepard, Stuart Roosa and Edgar Mitchell.

Shepard and Mitchell are to attempt a landing in the lunar highlands near the crater Fra Mauro to search for ancient soil that might provide clues to the origin of the moon.

The Moira: It's at It Again

The Moira River, with a years-old record of floods and fears of floods in downtown Belleville, is at it again. Constant watch is being kept on the winterbound stream after it suddenly rose three feet during snow squall early Thursday. Frozen snow plugging down-river channel, was blamed for flood hazard. For details see page 3.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A new but relatively weak disturbance west of Great Lakes will spread snow across the upper lakes and far northern regions today and into the Maritimes and eastern Lake Ontario region on Saturday. Snow Bit Too Early

Public works crews will have a steady job ahead of them for the next few days as they continue the clearing of the more than 10 inches of snow dumped on the city Wednesday night.

Last night after midnight snow loaders and tandem trucks went to work in the downtown area and by morning Front Street and the municipal square was cleared of snow.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the snow removal crew would be back on the job tonight cleaning off Bridge and Pinnacle Streets.

But the cleanup job will not end with the downtown area the city engineer assured.

"With this amount of snow piled up so early in the season we will have to continue snow removal on the main streets," he said.

Snow removal from the downtown area is being done by rented trucks, rather than by city trucks which are being kept busy snowplowing.

This morning regular public works crews were back on the job at 6 o'clock clearing snow from driveways and street areas, and from sidewalk entrances where snowplow operation has filled in the intersections.

And where is all the snow being dumped after removal from city streets?

The city engineer says it is being "stockpiled" at East Zwick's Island and with the quantity of snow being moved the pile is certain to get bigger.

Airwaves and Education

Communication Loyalist is weekly FM program now being broadcast over Radio Station CJBQ by community college students like Bob Carter. Project gives working knowledge of medium to communications arts participants.

Students' Radio Show Is on the Air Weekly

Bend an ear slightly and weekly and you'll discover a few ripple in the airwaves these days.

It's a resource pool that's widening a program with a two-way educational potential.

Origin of the operation is a natl studio area at Loyalist, urged in to the station's M broadcasting facilities.

Since October, this is where radio students have been attending Communication Loyalist — a 56-minute, Wednesday afternoon program of interviews, talks and music.

The project was the inevitable extension of close cooperation in the communications arts program that earlier brought CJBQ staffers to lecture the students on radio technology.

Obviously, there is no knowledge like a working knowledge and when CJBQ manager Frank Murray pointed out that "live radio is what it's all about," the project became reality, says communications arts course supervisor Ray Cunnington.

A couple of turntables, microphones and a small control panel were installed as working tools.

The rest relies on the students' imagination.

Music is a matter of personal choice. So are the talks and interviews. The only guiding rule to format is the general principle of good taste, says Mr. Cunnington.

The student and faculty population at Loyalist is a ready-made reservoir for topics and interviews — an aspect which makes Communication Loyalist something of a showcase - of the - air for the community college.

But, the program is not restricted to collegiate themes.

Interviewers are drawn from the community. Among its more dramatic scoops was an interview with an anonymous drug user.

It is a teaching tool which makes a valid working project of what might be a totally classroom-oriented course.

It also has merit for listeners.

"I think that people listening will find students more interesting, more responsible and more informed than they would have believed possible," says the supervisor.

Each student must produce two programs. This places the young broadcaster on his mettle to strive for improvement after his first broadcast.

They will continue in broadcast Communications Loyalist live while the rest of the college is on Christmas holidays.

Vandalism Increasing in Schools But Not as Bad as Some Areas

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Vandalism is increasing in Quinte district schools, including attempts to burn down where, as one official says, "we didn't expect it".

Hastings county board of education would like to instal a surveillance system in the schools, but can't afford to.

In 1970, vandalism is expected to cost the board $61,000 — provided no major incidents occur between now and the new year.

This includes $40,000 damage to Sir Winston Churchill on Macdonald Ave., when vandals set fire to several classrooms, completely gutting one.

The remaining $15,000 is the cost of repairing broken windows and the damage done when people break, enter and ransack schools, usually in search of petty cash collected in pupils' funds' drives.

They tear up shrubs, cut down flag poles and deface the exteriors of buildings with obscenities," says an administrator.

Last year the board wrote $25,000 into its preliminary budget to cover the cost of a surveillance system. It was removed from the final budget because of tight money. It is expected to come up in the budget again this year, and probably meet the same fate because of even tighter money restrictions.

The system administration would like to see installed would warn of fire and loss of heat (from broken boilers or switched on sprinkler systems) as well as indicating when doors and windows are breached after hours.

All secondary schools in the county are now covered 24 hours a day by members of the custodial staff. But as an official said, "the custodian can't be in all parts of the school at once and when he's at one end of the building all hell could be breaking loose at the other end without his hearing it".

Insurance company procedures give an idea of the extent of vandalism in Ontario and its rapid acceleration in recent years.

Just four years ago, says a county board business official, schools were insured against vandalism with a $50 deductible clause in the standard policies.

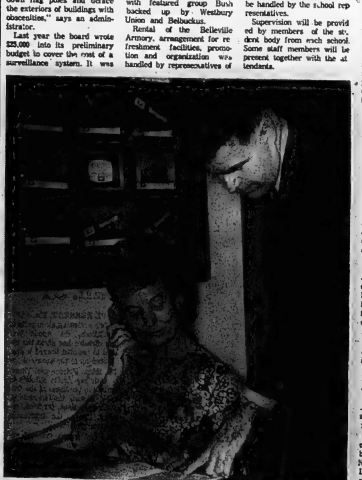
In the borough of Scarborough, school officials say the cost of vandalism has tripled in the last five years, from $37,134 in 1963 to about $140,000 this year. The city of Toronto tops this, with an annual vandalism bill of $300,000.

Scarborough board has authorized its administration to set up a fund to provide bonuses to schools that report damage. Each of the borough's 116 schools will have vandalism funds approved for it, based on average costs of repairs in the past. If the school reports a decline in vandalism, the surplus from the fund will be paid to the school's student council.

The bonus system here has not yet reached the critical stage reported from Detroit, where some schools are being systematically destroyed by vandals who smash windows, burn desks, tear out toilet facilities and deface walls.

But school damage in the schools there cost taxpayers more then $1 million last year and the figure is expected to remain the same this year.

Students Join Forces In Promoting Dance



Six area high schools have banded together to sponsor an interschool community dance.

Continuous playing will be featured on Tuesday, Dec. 22, between 8 p.m. and 12.30 a.m., with featured group Bush backed up by Westbury Union and Belbuckus.

Rental of the Belleville Armory, arrangement for refreshment facilities, promotion and organization are handled by representatives of Quinte Secondary, Belleville Collegiate, Moira, Centennial Secondary, Trenton High School and Centre Hastings Secondary in Madoc.

This dance is the first in a series of proposed events to be handled by the school rep resentatives.

Supervision will be provid ed by members of the st dent body from each school Some staff members will be present together with the al tendants.

Working Together the Secret

Mrs. Mary Colling, manager of the Bowes and Cocks Real Estate office in Belleville, a salesman with her office, prove that working together gains dividends. Belleville and Reeli Ruttan, a salesman with her office, proves thatt working together gains dividends. Mrs. Colling will take office in Febfluary as the first woman president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board and Mr. Ruttan was elected recently as salesman of the year for 1970.

Realtors Elect Woman

Belleville and District Real Estate Board members elected their officers which take office in February at a recent combination meeting and Christmas Party.

Elected to president, was Mrs. Mary Colling, manager of the Bowes and Cocks Real Estate firm in Belleville. She is the first woman in the history of the board to hold the office. She will replace Frank Tolwell as president.

Gerald Joyce was elected vice - president, Hugh O'Neil, Harry Taras, Grace Long wood, Ted Saunders, Lionel Kelly and Donald Alexander will also be on the board.

The party also celebrated he fact that multiple - listing sales had increased during the past year.

According to Kenneth Burkett, present secretary of the board, sales this year until Nov. 30 amounted to $3,081,350. Last year at the same time sales were $2,185,000.

Mr. Burkett also told The Intelligencer that the number of real estate dealers in Belleville has doubled since December of 1968. At present there are 23 real estate offices and 112 sales personnel.

He said that outside interest in the growth of Belleville by real estate people had caused the increase.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON — In loving memory of Mary Ann Wilson, who passed away December 15th, 1962.

Sadly missed, no night nor morning

But we think of you,

Memories of you very good,

But some replaces you,

Nothing can fill or heal

The void we all know.

The sad hour comes every month,

The day you left us,

Sadly missed by daughters Mary and Jean and family.

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Charles Ernest Wilson, who passed away December 15th, 1967.

Sadly missed and always remembered

By daughter Sharon and son-in-law Bill and family.

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Charles Ernest Wilson, who passed away December 15th, 1967.

A wonderful father laid to rest,

God took him home,

It was His will but we miss him still,

We miss you dad and always will.

Sadly missed by the heartbroken,

Grace and families.

ROBERTS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Ernest Roberts, who passed away Dec. 14, 1967.

Sadly missed and the day we miss and Friends may think the wound is healed,

But they little know the sorrow

Lying within our hearts concealed.

Always remembered by daughter Jackie, son-in-law Bob, grandchildren Bonnie and Bobby.

like the United States. After a $1 billion investment this is only now beginning [pulls] in the form of electricity—one station feeding into the Ontario Hydro grid and several others under construction.

Also, in the same eight-year, directionless period, Canada designed and built a $458 million jet fighter, the Arrow, a considerable scientific and technological achievement that was cancelled before any planes were produced to serve with the armed forces.

Those were the days, too, when Canada was designing and building the CF-105 all-weather fighter, at a cost to the taxpayer of $146 million before production started, and the sophisticated Velvet Glove missile system that was scrapped after many millions went into it.

The Senate committee says Canadian science policy efforts failed right from the start in 1916 when the National Research Council came into being to make science available to industry and to act as a central advisory agency to the government.

The politicians were apathetic and NRC began a long and bitter fight with the establishment of that day to build its own research labs. It eventually won and emerged from the Second World War with a big laboratory complex, including an expertise in the field of nuclear science.

There followed the exciting days of big progress with big science councils, such as production of nuclear power.

The committee says that, when in 1963 the Glassco commission made proposals which would have "brought science under control," the government of Lester Pearson accepted recommendations of Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, an eminent scientific administrator, which, in effect, exempted the existing government science structure from general policy control.

The only real controls were those on spending, exercised by the treasury board, a cabinet committee whose task was to supervise planned spending.

"The Senate committee regretfully regards this as a science policy by accident," says the committee report.

While the cabinet's committee on scientific and industrial research was beginning to meet more frequently in the 1960s, its chairman was C. M. Drury, the treasury board president.

Senator Lamontagne noted that Mr. Drury, who thereafter has publicly expressed unhappiness at the position of conflict of interest in which this placed Mr. Drury.

Saunders To Be Chief At Trenton

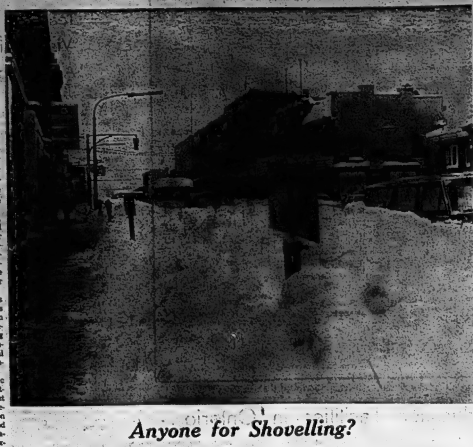
TRENTON (Staff) — An administrative shuffle in the Trenton Police, department will make the town deputy chief its new chief of police on Jan. 1.

The change in command puts the town force under the charge of Chief Saunders, a Toronto native, who arrived here Jan. 15, 1970.

With 18 years police experience, he had served as detective sergeant on the Metropolitan Toronto police department.

Winnipeg-born police chief Robert Rutherford, who has held the post since 1955, will stay on with the force as deputy chief.

Chief Rutherford has been a member of the town force since he was discharged from the armed forces here 25 years ago.



The change in command was planned late in 1969 at the request of Chief Rutherford, and deputy chief Saunders was hired with the view of becoming chief. At the same time he was police chief at Deseronto.

Establishment of the deputy-chief's position here was the recommendation of an Ontario Police Association survey of the department last year.

Price Commission chairman Hubert Carmichael disclosed today that both Trenton's chief and deputy chief of police will receive a 13 per cent pay boost retroactive to January, 1970.

Annual salary for the new chief will rise to $11,500 and for the deputy to $10,500.

Anyone for Shovelling?

It will be some time yet before Picton residents recover from the blanketing effects of the 14-inches of winter which hit Prince Edward County early yesterday. Not only were many rural residents unable to travel, but the downtown area of Picton is still in need of active snow removal.

Ode to Moira

River Stay Away from My Door

A constant vigil has been mounted on the Moira River in downtown Belleville, which yesterday had risen three feet above its normal waterline.

Officials believe the swell —linked to Wednesday's violent storm—will soon recede —has now reached a maximum and should begin receding without flooding its banks.

Nonetheless — with its poor record of floods and fears of floods — a round-the-clock watch is being maintained on the Moira by police and city works personnel.

The sudden bulge above the waterlines was first spotted early Thursday morning by police patrolling the river area, said emergency measures coordinator Angus Duffy.

Frozen snow breaking off the Moira's banks was carried downstream in chunks and apparently blocked the river channel around the new Dundas Street bridge and the adjacent CPR bridge, he said.

The backup continued during the night, reaching its peak Thursday morning. Between noon and 4.30 p.m. yesterday the level only rose a further three inches and has since been stationary, said Mr. Duff.

This hopefully indicates the downstream stream channel has now been unplugged and the river is flowing freely into the Bay of Quinte.

"But we're still watching it pretty closely and the police will be keeping an eye on it continuously," said Mr. Duffy.

The stretch of the Moira most vulnerable to floods is its low-lying east bank between the Lower and Foot bridges — the flank of the city's downtown commercial core.

Low-lying basements in adjacent Front Street stores are prone to flooding when high water starts seeping through the river bank.

No flooding was reported by merchants in the area this morning and Mr. Duffy was hopeful the river would recede without causing further problems.

Holiday Activity In PE

PICTON (Staff) — Holiday celebrations in Prince Edward County will be highlighted this week with Prince Edward Collegiate Institute's drama club production of the classic play A Christmas Carol. The play, which opens in the school auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight, features Charles Dickens' Christmas villain Ebeneezer Scrooge who must grapple with his past to overcome his miserly ways. Marley's Ghost, which appears fettered by chains provides the proper touch of terror in the play's plot to intimidate Mr. Scrooge. A Christmas Carol will also be performed tomorrow evening.

Residents of Bloomfield village this week are competing in a decorative lighting contest which begins Saturday. Judging will take place between Dec. 13 and 23 with an announcement of the judges' decisions to follow. This award winning competition for decorative residential lighting is a popular annual event in Bloomfield.

Snowmobile enthusiasts can enjoy a holiday gathering during the race meet scheduled to be held this Sunday at Picton fairgrounds. Cash prizes and trophies will be awarded by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce in several race divisions. There will be stock classes, modified stock classes and a powder puff derby run on the half - mile fairgrounds track. A second race meet is planned for Jan. 3.

UIC Appointments

Vern Perry, left, former director of operations of the Ontario region of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, has assumed the duties of acting regional director, Lorne R. Carr has moved from the Pacific coast to take over as the new director of operations at the Belleville headquarters of the Ontario Region of UIC.

Trudeau No Fan

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is widely-reputed to be a ballet fan, but he seems to have little appreciation of the similar toes of Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Stanfield, as well as Barnett Danson (L — York North), the prime minister's parliamentary secretary, are currently appearing in bit parts in the children's production of the Nutcracker at the National Arts Centre.

Jack Cullen (L—Sarnia) asked in the Commons Wednesday whether Mr. Trudeau would consider implementing MPs' pay raises quickly, considering the need of Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Danson to moonlight on tiptoe.

Mr. Trudeau said the pay raises, recommended by an independent commission this week, are up to Parliament.

As far as he was concerned, the dancers in question could "go and jump into Swan Lake."

Musical Offering Scheduled

It takes place Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym.

The event, sponsored by the school's music department under the direction of teacher Ronald Mason, will involve 200 to 400 students.

Appearing during the evening will be the junior and senior bands, the Moira folk singing group, and the junior choir.

The second part of the program will be a performance of Mozart's Toy Symphony with "special guests" whose identity will remain secret until the performance.

PLAYED TO DEATH

TOKYO (AP) — Police attributed the death of Seikichi Sakuragi, 22, a confectionery salesman, to cardiac paralysis resulting from exhaustion incurred in playing mah jong nonstop for 36 hours.

Christmas Trade Slow On Picton's Main Street

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's main Street is "beginning to look a lot like Christmas" but the majority of shoppers seem to remain unimpressed. Several merchants have observed that the extended shopping hours now in effect are not providing extra business. Most of Picton's stores are remaining open until 9 p.m. each evening this week except Saturday and will follow the same policy until Christmas Eve next week, when stores close at 5:30 p.m.

At least three businessmen admitted that they didn't "take in a dime" when they remained open evenings earlier this week. Others observed that business was, "slow", probably because shoppers are waiting to receive pay cheques before splurging on Christmas gifts. One clothing retailer suggested that the snowmobile is playing a part in slowing his trade. He explained that many familiar have purchased snowmobiles this winter and since these machines are major expenditures their owners have tightened down on further spending. The merchant added that he personally knew of one family that has agreed to consider its new snowmobile everyone's Christmas gift and to forego additional presents. He also pointed out that winter sportsmen buying the special suits and jackets designed for snowmobiling are unlikely to duplicate their purchases by buying winter coats from local merchants.

A second clothing retailer observed that business seemed very slow and noted an apparent indifference to Christmas buying on the part of many shoppers. He felt that "a tight economy" is responsible for this season's slow sales.

One store manager suggested that lack of advertising could be responsible for the public's failure to take advantage of evening shopping hours. He added that he feels it is too costly for just one store to advertise its holiday service policy. Most Picton retailers yesterday prominently displayed signs stating their business hours during the Christmas season.

Picton postal employees, however, were handling their usual Christmas rush yesterday as they prepared for their peak days expected today and Friday. Four additional workers have been hired during the holiday season: Postmaster Robert Carter said that today is the last date for mailing to ensure local delivery by Christmas. He estimated that approximately 45,000 cards, letters and packages would be handled during the peak of Christmas mailing. Although the volume of parcel deliveries this year compares with last season the volume of cards and letters remains slightly below last year's figure. Comparison with last year's volume on an overall basis is impossible at this time because of the earliness of the season.

Preceptory Names Officers

FOXBORO — The Royal Black Preceptory 382 of Foxboro has elected the following officers: Walter Chumbly as Worshipful Preceptor; Douglas Shaw as Deputy Preceptor; Garfield Evans, registrar; Jesse Chatten, financial registrar; Glenn Ross, treasurer; Allan Bigsen, chaplain; Jack Chatten, first lecturer; Chris Lyons, second lecturer; John Beale, first censor; Daniel Keene, second censor; Everette Lyons, first standard bearer; Milton Blakefoot, second standard bearer; Harvey Goodfellow, purser; Stewart Goodfellow, tyler; and Donald Evans, color captain.

Elected on the committee were Sir Knights Stanley Hayton, Robert Beale, Eugene Kelly, Orville Bullis and Ross Goodfellow. M. Lazier, and Howard Elliott.

Minister Named Evangelist

Rev. James M. MacKnight of Belleville has been appointed senior evangelist of Canada for Christ. He will start in his new position on Jan. 1, 1971 and will reside in Oshawa.

Born in Campbellton, New Brunswick, he graduated from Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in 1953.

Ordained a minister of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada by the Eastern Ontario and Quebec District in 1955, he has had successful pastorates in Verona, Alabama and Belleville. He has served as a presbyter of the Eastern Ontario executive and a member of the board of directors of the Bible course.

He was president of the youth organization for three years. For 11 years he has taken part in camp meetings and conventions in Canada and the U.S., and has conducted radio ministry for several years.

Former District Forester Gets Conservation Job

Former lands and forests district forester at the office in Tweed, Norman Patrick, is on a familiarization trip across Ontario, preparatory to taking over as director of the conservation branch of the department of energy and resources management next year.

Mr. Patrick this week attended the final meeting of the Moira River Conservation Authority at Canniton and took advantage of the visit to renew acquaintances made during his term as lands and forests head at Tweed.

Railroads' Decline

The CBC's interesting documentary on the decline of passenger rail service in Canada — "The Great Canadian Train Robbery" — merely confirmed the obvious, that the two major railroads have been overtaken by the automobile and by air transport.

The real matter for regret though is the fact that neither the railroads — Canadian National and Canadian Pacific — nor the government have moved to update rail travel in face of this competition.

We agree with Pierre Berton when he says that modernization, including adaptation of the tracks to take much faster trains, and routes that would take high traveller flight to the heart of cities, could be the salvation of the railroads. That, and the kind of on-board service provided by the airlines (and by the CN's turbo-train service between Toronto and Montreal).

At present the trend is very much in the other direction, with attempts being made to scale down the CN's passenger train service. At present only heavy subsidies keep them going and the spectre of these famous trains being eliminated altogether remains a distinct possibility.

This would be a tragic loss, a damaging blow to the national fabric almost on a par with say the secession of Quebec from the rest of Canada. Already it has meant loss to many communities out west where services have been suspended.

Unfortunately at present there seems to be an entirely defeatist attitude on the part of railroad management which if allowed to go unchecked will only have the results feared. We wonder for example could nothing be done to boost rail travel by visitors from overseas, quite apart from those arriving regularly by ship in Vancouver and Halifax. What about Europe — have we tapped the tourist market there to its fullest, so far as vacations by rail in Canada are concerned? Has anyone ever augurate educational trips for students? That sort of thing. Amalgamation of trans-Canada services is another possibility that must be considered.

The Young at Heart

Bellsville Rotarians had an interesting look at the philosophy and mechanics of retirement the other day and it is safe to say some at least were jolted by reminders such as the advisability of making a will. For the fact is, something like one in four persons fall to do so and this means problems for the family left behind.

Chairman of the panel discussion J. G. (Pat) Houston, a recently retired Belleville executive who now keeps his hand in as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, quoted statistics from a recent issue of Time Canada Magazine. They were from the article on "Being Old in a Society That Worships Youth," and are worth repeating.

Most people want to live to a ripe old age, the article notes, but many of them do a great deal to prevent it, adding: "Like smoking three packages of cigarettes a day and passing cars on a curves. Then it proceeds to list ways of helping to ensure a longer-than-average life, taken from the proceedings of the second BC Conference on Aging.

Little activity for example can add five years to your life. So too can the state of marriage, as distinct from being single, widowed or divorced. Overweight can chop life expectancy by 1.17 to 3.6 years and smoking from seven to 12 years on one to three packages a day. Women can expect to outlive the male of the species by three years and you can add 3.7 years to your expectancy if both parents lived to 80 years. If both died before 50 that could mean 1.8 less.

But there is hope even for those who are careless about their health, for the author of the report concluded: "If it is any consolation to single, overweight males who smoke heavily and whose parents died early, we all have gained 15 years from the recession of childhood and infectious diseases during the past century."

Take heart also from ageless personalities like comedian Jack Benny at 66 is off again on his annual Christmas tour of United States bases overseas, and round-the-world yachtsman and pioneer aviator Sir Francis Chichester, who as he approaches his seventieth birthday sees — this time on a lone 4,000-mile voyage from Portuguese Guinea, on the western tip of Africa, to Nicaragua in Central America. One of the objects of this odyssey is to sail up the previously unattained speed of 200 miles a day.

Such courage and spirit are an example to all. If we cannot embark on such journeys ourselves, we can at least foster the progress of those who do. Chichester, incidentally, is one of those people who triumphed over cancer to be the enduring character he is today.

"Oh, by the way, that nice next-door neighbor borrowed the axe today!"

Special Education Facilities in Ontario

Letter to the Hamilton Spectator

On October 23, your paper reported an address by Rev. Alec Pudwell of St. Barnabas' Parish School in which he stated that "education authorities in Ontario have not accepted the fact that these children have to be segregated from the regular students and have to be among their peers".

Mr. Pudwell has been guilty of generalization from too little evidence. He may know of one or two contact with some educators and politicians who do not completely understand, that is one children have problems learning, although their mental ability appears to be normal, but not all educators and politicians are unaware of these children. There are they unaware that some children need a segregated class situation with their peers.

Mr. Pudwell states that "teachers should be forced to follow the recommendations of the psychologist's report to the letter in teaching these children". Such a statement reveals a basic ignorance about the training of psychologists and their evolving function in school systems in this province and in educational systems in North America.

It is interesting to note the authority with which Mr. Pudwell states that "quite a number of very clever criminals come from this group and that in United States psychologist has established a definite link between perceptual handicaps and criminal activity." I assume he is referring to Dr. Lester Tarnopol who has done research concerning delinquency and perceptually handicapped youth in California. Dr. Tarnopol, in reporting his work, is very careful to state that the evidence tends to indicate that there may be a link between perceptual handicaps and criminal activities amongst a population taken from minority ghettos. He does not claim that many United States or Canadian delinquents are the result of student frustration due to a perceptual handicap. He does claim, however, that there is a high correlation between delinquency and school failure. It is obvious that all school failures are not due to perceptual handicaps.

I find it most intriguing that Dr. Tarnopol and many educators, psychologists and physicians are still searching for ways for diagnosing and educating children with learning problems and yet, Mr. Pudwell states, "I told (Education Minister) William Davis, give me five years, and I'll show you that my way is the only way to educate these children."

The Department of Education is quite aware of the "way", as well as the "ways" developed by many others. Mr. Pudwell's methods may well work with some children. I am equally positive that there will be unsuccessful with others. The posturing propagation of singular solutions is frustrating, since technical problems in the area of learning disabilities does not support the many sincere parents, trustees and educators who so eagerly pursue the desires and implications of the pogrom of special education. I would hope that Mr. Pudwell will make these points clear the next time he appears on a public platform.

Kingston Problem Focus On Tax Exemptions

Kingston Whig-Standard

This year, in an effort to help ease the burden of tax-exempt property in Kingston (about 35 per cent), the Ontario Government paid the City a grant of $25 for each full-time Queen's University student. This amounted to $185,000. Clearly, as Dr. John J. Deutsch, principal of Queen's, pointed out recently, this grant is a beginning, but something bigger is expected. . . .

Speaking in support of the Queen's brief to the Ontario Government's Committee on University Affairs, Dr. Deutsch said that the key period in which Queen's property has been tax-exempt has "placed a burden on the city." Kingston has the highest percentage of tax-exempt property of any city in the provinces. If Kingston were permitted to levy full taxes on Queen's University property today, it would make an additional estimated $3 million in revenue.

We believe that Kingston, because of its large percentage of tax-exempt property, deserves special consideration by the Government. It is to be hoped that there will be a significant increase in interim relief for this city in 1971 and in each subsequent year until provincewide re-assessment is completed and a solution to the tax-exempt property problem put forth.

Teachers Rather Than Visual Aids Is Need According to Student

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have been reading many letters in the editor's section by only adults, educating on every subject day education system. I am a student and would like to say my thoughts in some of the present issues.

It has been stated that the student to teacher ratio is 17:1. I won't bother making why we are stating it the same with it as to students because I have been told many times, that I still think that they should take into consideration only the teachers that have actual contact with the pupil (it around signed papers).

With so many students in one class like this, it is impossible for the teacher to give the student and vice-versa. With so many students in the classes the teachers can't possibly give everyone the attention that is necessary for the pupils to progress. There are many students who sit through class and study each day and only get further and further behind as to what they are doing and they don't get help because the teacher can't give them time.

It would solve the problem if the true ratio was 17:1 in all class or even 20:1 (not 30 to classes with only 17 students).

The Board of Education in spending $2 million more next year, parts of visual aids. Are these visual aids teaching the students any more than they would learn without them? I ask, are these aids helping the student or the teacher? It seems to me that they help the teacher more than pupils. Are the $2 million dollars the ones who are being prepared for the world ahead of them? Why don't we concentrate on helping the students to build a future?

The taxpayer's money is being spent on all sorts of visual aids, but exactly, the money being spent on hiring more teachers to student ratio of 17:1 decreased and there would be a much better chance for student relationship which would benefit the student (who are the ones who need to be properly outfitted for life ahead) to the citizens and the taxpayers since that he or she requires and if not, the adult taxpayer will get deeper involved in the subject. Then, they would realize that the money is being spent on what it is for.

To the parents, I would like to pose a question: How many of you have taken the time or the time came for electing a school board? I understand that only 19 per cent of the people in Toronto voted. That shows just how much concern the parents have for our students.

We, the students, are the ones who are being prepared for the immediate future of us. Students are human. We need to be treated as such. We have a real emotional need for attention that must be taken into consideration by the adults who control our school. I wish to make one thing clear to the public and that is that we students are not merely mere machines that are being produced in a factory. We go to school to learn. We expect and have to attain it in the most efficient manner.

I hope that I have shown one way to make our educational system a little more efficient in filling its major purpose.

A CONCERNED STUDENT

Claims No Evidence Presented As Yet That Kraft Pulp Mill Would Not Be Pollution Source

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The report in last Wednesday's Picton Gazette of the attitude adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of the proposal to erect a kraft pulp mill at Hoyt's Point, in Prince Edward County, is a sad commentary on the refusal of some people in public office to see beyond the possible immediate material benefits of a given situation.

Their support for the project is based entirely on vague promises from the Canadian International Paper Company, and Provincial Government Departments, that the proposed mill will be non-polluting, or very close to that desirable condition.

What are the facts that anyone has been given, to back up these promises?

There are none, repeat, none. There is a price of $200,000 at present being offered by the Government of British Columbia, and advertised in the Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada, by any company or individual that can come up with a system that will reduce the total suspended content of the gases from the stacks of a kraft mill down to 5 p.p.m. This price is as yet unclaimed.

2. There is not a kraft pulp mill at present operating, anywhere, that is not a major polluter of the water and air around it.

3. There have been no recent inventions, or discoveries published, for controlling pollution from kraft pulp mills, that would lead us to believe that all of a sudden it is commercially possible to operate a kraft mill that is not a major polluter.

4. The mill in question was a first projected for the Bancroft area, near the wood supply, for economic reasons obviously the most desirable place from the point of view of the company.

Permission to locate there was refused by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. The reason? Because it would mean that the water quality of lower Lake Ontario would pollute the Madawaska River unacceptable far beyond allowable limits.

There are other points that could be stressed, such as the obvious reluctance of the Canadian International Paper Company to make any effort to discuss this proposal at a public meeting, or with any group, since then one does they know have to answer to the public at large, and that the mill will be a good thing for the County, even if it is not true. As I am firmly convinced, a major pollutor of the water and around it.

Nixon Hits Oil Industry

By ROD GURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's decision to take a swipe at the politically-powerful petroleum industry in defence of United States taxpayers illustrates the importance he places on fighting the country's economy if he hopes to get re-elected in 1972.

The two-barrelled assault on the U.S. petroleum industry included penalization for U.S. companies in use their overseas oil import quotas to bring in Canadian oil and the threat of federal takeover of complete regulating responsibility for federal offshore leases—formerly regulated by the states.

While the move brings a happy Christmas-time boon to Canadian oil interests, it has enraged the domestic industry. Indications are that the Texas and Louisiana congressmen—and their influential supporters in Congress—will not take the new decree without a fight.

What inspired Nixon to take this first cautious step toward dismantling the oil import quota policy that has had the effect of maintaining—if not increasing—oil prices, was a recently announced 25-cent-a-barrel increase.

The president's move, in a New York speech recently not only represented a turnaround in traditional Republican policy toward the industry but a change of heart by Nixon himself.

Less than a year ago he went against the majority recommendation of a presidential committee on oil policy that urged virtually unlimited oil imports from Canada, in the context of some sort of energy-exchange policy.

Instead Nixon set, by presidential proclamation, a quota of 366,000 barrels a day from Canada, about 100,000 barrels a day less than had previously been flowing in.

Nixon's decision to open the U.S. market to Canada at this time amply reaffirms an overriding determination by the U.S. Administration to keep the Canada-U.S. oil conference meetings in Ottawa last month.

The idea seems to be Canada can export to the U.S. all the oil that pipeline facilities can handle, as appreciated day by mid-1971 this could reach 700,000 barrels or more.

Even more damaging perhaps, from the Administration's hitherto untouchable arrangement whereby Texas and Louisiana oilmen enjoy a depletion price of domestic oil artificially high by holding down production. In any other industry, such apparent collusion would be illegal. But a history of repeated concessions to petroleum has given official blessings to such dealings.

The thing that apparently gave Nixon pause for thought, in the opinion of some observers, was that only the 25-cent increase could be made up the price of jet fuel and gasoline and slow the state of the economy in general.

On the day he spoke, unemployment was announced at 5.8 per cent of the labor force—the highest level in five years.

As voters in the Nov. 3 congressional elections underlined, that crisis of rising unemployment with spiralling inflation is a major cause of public concern and voter anger apparently, than the concern over crime and violence.

Nixon, in his first move to correct the economic balance, seems to be saying he will have good results to prove his concentration is on fighting unemployment. Petroleum, the industry, a lucrative source of generous campaign support.

A Few Reprimands

Report of Duke-OPP Inquiry Clears Police

TORONTO (CP) — A judicial inquiry has found no evidence of improper relationships between any policemen of the Ontario Provincial Police and persons of known criminal activities.

In his report, released Thursday, Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Supreme Court — specifically said there was no evidence to support allegations of improper relationships by senior OPP personnel with George Clinton Duke, Duke's underworld boss Lucien Rivard and Rivard's brother-in-law, Donald (Rad) LaBerge.

The allegations were made by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, in a speech to the legislature committee June 4.

In his report to the municipal inquiry, which opened Sept. 14, Mr. Justice Grant was critical of the conduct of some OPP officers relating to Duke, an Oakville, Ont., lawn equipment dealer. He made no findings on the conduct of OPP personnel and other participants in the hearings because of pending judicial proceedings.

In his speech, Dr. Shulman alleged that Duke received special treatment because of his special connection with certain senior officials of the OPP, and associated with Gasbarrini, Pepalis and LaBerge, whom he described as men with Mafia connections.

The speech also said Duke had used undue influence to have a criminal charge against him withdrawn by the family court, and to escape prosecution for traffic offences.

Dr. Shulman said in his speech that the OPP gave Duke a permit to carry a gun although he had a criminal record. The permit was revoked last December after Duke pleaded guilty to a charge of threatening Elizabeth Citron, a friend of Mrs. Duke, by pointing a gun at her.

Mr. Justice Grant said OPP Commissioner Eric Silk had been ignorant of Duke's record when he accepted an invitation to the businessman's home in April, 1968, and subsequently entertained Duke at a luncheon with a number of senior OPP officers.

The report blamed Mr. Silk's subordinates for allowing the commissioner to accept the original invitation but said the return luncheon should not have been tendered on such short acquaintance.

"By inviting Duke to such a luncheon . . . Silk was clothing him with approval. It was a public endorsement of him as a friend of police officers . . ."

When the commissioner learned of Duke's record four months later, he ordered an immediate halt of all social relationships by OPP personnel with Duke and officials of his lawn equipment firm.

Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger and Supt. Albert Wilson were subsequently reprimanded and fined two days pay for their part in the arrangements of developing Mr. Silk's invitation.

Mr. Justice Grant said Supt. Wilson was the officer who advised the commissioner to accept Duke's invitation and that Rodger, as the officer responsible for supervising the force's inspector to reduce a speeding charge against Duke although he was aware of the businessman's continuing driving infractions.

The report said Supt. Wilson's failure to warn Mr. Silk of Duke's criminal record and his boasts of influence with senior officers was "unforgivable."

"He apparently thought that his relationship with Duke was more important than the duty he owed the Force. His continued relationship with the latter after acquiring knowledge is evidence of his utter lack of appreciation of his responsibilities as a senior law enforcement officer."

The report dealt at length with the disappearance of a careless driving charge against Duke March 23, 1968, on which he was originally convicted even from Supt. Rodger and Insp. J. H. Jones, who said the superintendent had asked that the charge be withdrawn.

The superintendent had testified that he had discussed the case but had not asked for a withdrawal. Three copies of Duke's traffic ticket disappeared from a court officer's in-tray and the charge never reached court.

Mr. Justice Grant said he was satisfied that Supt. Rodger had suggested that the charge be withdrawn but did not ask for it officially.

Three copies of the ticket disappeared from a court officer's in-tray and the charge never reached court.

Mr. Justice Grant said he was satisfied that Supt. Rodger had suggested that the charge be withdrawn but did not ask for it officially.

There had been nothing improper in the suggestion, he said, but in view of the commander's social relationship with Duke he would have been more prudent to consult a Crown attorney.

Dealing with the handling of Mrs. Citron's complaint against Duke, Mr. Justice Grant said he was satisfied that it had been properly handled by police and law enforcement officers.

Although there was some legal doubt whether the case should have been heard in the privacy of family court, Judge Kenneth Langdon had ordered the transfer in the interest of both parties.

The report noted evidence that a number of senior OPP officers had received Christmas gifts from the Duke Lawn Equipment Co.

The gifts had never exceeded $10 in value, there was no attempt at concealment and there was nothing in the OPP regulations prohibiting them.

But Mr. Justice Grant said a police officer less himself open to public suspicion when he accepts a gift from a man who has breached the law.

Food Forecast Published

OTTAWA (CP) — A special food forecast for 1971 published Thursday by the agriculture department indicates a generally mixed bag for Canadian consumers.

The forecast:

Veal—small increase in production.

Poultry and eggs—unpredictable prices due to various provincial marketing board policies. Supplies will be adequate.

Dairy—increased sales of milk and cream, particularly partly skimmed milk. Increased production of Canadian produced cheese. Butter and skim milk powder surpluses will be reduced.

Fresh fruits and vegetables—apple prices slightly higher. Increased supplies and consumption of mushrooms. Onion prices will continue low.

Two Police Forces Had Missing $18,000

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Insp. D. D. Higley of the Ontario Provincial Police said Thursday night two police forces had custody of $18,000 that disappeared while being held as a court exhibit.

He said the money had been held by the Mississauga police and later by the RCMP.

Earlier Thursday Peel County Sheriff J. W. Raine denied published reports that the money disappeared while in his custody. He said the money had not been held by his office at any time.

Police said the money came from the sale in Nassau of bonds stolen in New York.

Marie Fontaine and Pierre Beaudoin, charged with conspiracy to possess money obtained by crime, appeared at a preliminary hearing last February and police believe the money was intact at that time.

Shulman Disappointed, May Quit Politics

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman says he may leave politics after hearing that a judicial inquiry found no evidence of improper relationships between any personnel of the Ontario Provincial Police and persons of known criminal activity.

"I've been so upset about this I'm not convinced I'm going to continue politically," Dr. Shulman, whose allegations to the Ontario legislature prompted the inquiry, said Thursday night. He called his report a "bitter disappointment."

Other reactions:

—George Clinton Duke, the Oakville millionaire who was linked by Dr. Shulman with senior OPP officials and with persons of known criminal activity, said the report made him "very very happy."

He told a news conference the report convinced he had been the victim of "many lies, much hounding and many false appearances." He said he had instructed his attorney to proceed with litigation against Dr. Shulman, the Hamilton Spectator and Spectator reporter Gerald McAuliffe, who wrote newspaper stories on the charges.

—Commissioner Eric Silk of the OPP said the report confirmed his actions and he thought the force came off completely clean.

"Of course any other result would have been ridiculous."

He said charges under the Police Act of eleven officers, two OPP officers of disobeying his order not to associate with Mr. Duke will be proceeded with immediately in the light of the report.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he wants to "pursue" a suggestion in the report that Dr. Shulman be liable to prosecution for obtaining secret documents. He said the inquiry was "most through." It "left nothing undone" and was valuable in clearing the air.

—Liberal Leader Robert Nixon called the inquiry a waste of time and public money and blamed Dr. Shulman and Mr. Wishart. He said the hearings "shed no important new light on the activities of organized criminals in the province, in the business community and in the protection and extortion rackets which seem to be growing."

Mr. Nixon said that while the hearing was going on and the report being prepared, "organized criminals were continuing to expand their operations in Ontario."

Dr. Shulman said:

"I'm going to wait and see what the reaction is of the public of the press.

"If they back up this type of report, well, then, obviously, I'm out of step—I should be in some other field."

It was Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Yuvaio High Park, who in a speech to a legislature committee June 4 alleged that Mr. Duke received special treatment "because of his special connection with certain senior officials of the OPP."

Wishart to 'Pursue' Shulman Prosecution

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday night he wants to "pursue" the suggestion in the Grant report that Dr. Morton Shulman may be liable for prosecution for obtaining secret documents.

Meanwhile, OPP Commissioner Eric Silk said the charges under the Police Code of offences against two OPP officers of disobeying an order from Mr. Silk will be proceeded with immediately in the light of the report.

In a report Thursday, Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court found no evidence of improper relationships between senior provincial police officers and persons of known criminal activity.

Mr. Wishart said in an interview he intends to study the Criminal Code and the transcript of Dr. Shulman's testimony at the Grant inquiry with possible charges in mind.

Mr. Justice Grant reported that "Dr. Shulman admitted acts of securing secret and confidential information from his informant may render him guilty to prosecution . . ."

Dr. Shulman, member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, refused at the inquiry to identify a police informant he said told him of relationships between George Clinton Duke, Oakville millionaire, and OPP figures.

Commissioner Silk said Thursday night the charges against Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger and Supt. Albert Wilson, both of Burlington, had been held in abeyance pending receipt of the report.

The two officers face a total of eight charges preferred by the OPP's legal department. They allege failure to obey an order from Mr. Silk to end contacts with Mr. Duke.

Mr. Silk said the Grant report contained no surprises.

"I thought the force came off completely clean," he said. "Of course, any other result would have been ridiculous."

Although the attorney-general said the OPP are not investigating Dr. Shulman, the NDP member said a news conference is the subject of a police investigation.

"By invoking Duke to such a luncheon . . . Silk was clothing him with approval. It was a public endorsement of him as a friend of police officers . . ."

When the commissioner learned of Duke's record four months later, he ordered an immediate halt of all social relationships by OPP personnel with Duke and officials of his lawn equipment firm.

Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger and Supt. Albert Wilson were subsequently reprimanded and fined two days pay for their part in the arrangements of developing Mr. Silk's invitation.

Mr. Justice Grant said Supt. Wilson was the officer who advised the commissioner to accept Duke's invitation and that Rodger, as the officer responsible for supervising the force's inspector to reduce a speeding charge against Duke although he was aware of the businessman's continuing driving infractions.

City Women Busy with Christmas Projects

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Some Belleville women's groups are certainly doing their share in bringing about peace on earth and goodwill towards men this Christmas by donating a number of favors to the sick and elderly.

Mrs. P. M. Till, holiday treats convenor of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary is collecting hand made gifts to be given to patients at Christmas. Members of the WHA are making bead-knit bed socks and slippers for long term patients who are generally elderly. They are also making colored holders for packages of tissue paper.

Mrs. C. D. Ashley, convener of puppets for children in hospital will be getting some special ones for Christmas appropriately decorated with holly and other festive ornaments. The gifts will be distributed by members of the auxiliary on Christmas morning.

All the five CGIT groups in the city are making tray favors for those who happen to be in hospital on Christmas day. The favors will be in the form of "poinsettias," Santa Clauses or some other festive trinket and will be small, bright and symbolic of Christmas.

A group of members of the St. Thomas' ACW are preparing hand-made mitts for regarded children. Some of the articles left over from their Christmas bazaar such as stuffed toys, sweaters, sleeves and aprons will be packed in bales and sent to mission areas in Canada.

A "military tea" will be sponsored by the ACW of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill. Mitts will be collected for the Indian children of Northern Ontario. Sunday School students of the church will make "white" gifts - gifts wrapped in white paper for the needy who live north of Moose.

Guide and Brownie groups are a veritable hive of activity this season. One group is busy making felt socks to be filled with candy and given to the Fire Fighters' Association who distribute gifts of candy, fruit and toys to children every year.

Several groups will prepare food baskets and present them to the minister of the church where they hold their meetings. The ministers will distribute them as needed.

Two groups ushered a bit of Christmas cheer into a local nursing home where they sang carols and presented small gifts made by themselves to each patient. They also left behind a hand-made door wreath to brighten up the nursing home.

Four groups collected used toys and books in good condition for the retarded children in the hospital in Platofield. Yet another group of brownies knitted squares in different colors and assembled an afghan to be given to the same hospital.

A group of Brownies earned a dollar each to buy a record player for the John St. School for retarded children. Other guide and brownie projects include the making of a white Christmas tree laden with toys for children in the pediatric ward of the Belleville General Hospital; entertaining the residents of Hastings Manor with carols and skits; dressing dolls for distribution to needy children by the Five Fighters' Association; filling baskets with fod for the Salvation Army and Children's Aid Society and contributing to the Christmas Sharing Program of the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Company three, the first Girl Guide company to be formed in Belleville will pay their annual Christmas visit to Mrs. N. E. Branscombe, the founder of the girl guide movement in the city.

They will spend an evening with her and also sing carols at a local nursing home.

These are just a few examples of the sharing projects undertaken by the women of Belleville. A number of other organizations are also involved in plans to make this Christmas bright and happy one for the less fortunate in the community.

St. Columba Women Hold Party

ST. COLUMBA WOMEN

The Presbyterian Women at St. Columba Church met on Monday evening for the annual Christmas potluck supper. This was not only a party but an opportunity to meet the new minister and his wife, Rev. D. Murphy and Mrs. Murphy. The tables were attractively arranged with Christmas decor which added greatly to the various items of tasty dishes contributed by the members.

A short worship service and carol singing led by Mrs. Trudy Smit was enjoyed after which Mr. Murphy officially installed the new officers in a brief ceremony.

A number of gifts were brought to be donated to the Mental Health Association gift sharing program and a member of fun gifts were also exchanged. Retiring president, Mrs. Doreen Hackett was also presented with a gift.

At the close a number of games and contests were enjoyed.

Mrs. Nancy Burke is the new president for the year 1971.

CHRIST CHURCH
PARISH GUILD ACW

Canon R. B. Wright and Mrs. Wright, Rev. D. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. R. Caverly, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Fletcher were guests at the December meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild which was held recently. Others at the meeting were members of the afternoon and evening branches of the Women's Auxiliary and husbands of the guild members.

Everyone enjoyed a delicious dinner before the meeting. Carols were sung with Mrs. Jordan at the piano. Miss Helen Salman gave several readings and was presented with a gift by Mrs. E. Hickey. A short business meeting followed and a cheque was presented to Mr. R. Caverly from the guild.

Earlier, all were welcomed by Mrs. P. Lasier, president of the guild who wished them a merry Christmas before the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Nix, treasurer.

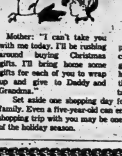
ARC Party Swings Despite Bad Weather

The A.R.C. Industries held its Christmas party at Club Cedars on the worse night of the winter (weatherwise), but in no way did this deter the crowd of young people who showed up from Brighton, Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Campbellford, Peterborough as well as those from Belleville. Also young people everywhere, they gyrated to the mod music of the Chipperfield group, most of the evening.



The highlight of the event, however, was the announcement of the trainee of the year who is chosen by the executive of the A.R.C. Industries, Belleville. The Belleville workshop trainee holds office for the year and the award is given on merit, co - operation in working habits and attitudes. This year's winner was Danny Gilhooley who was presented his chain of office by last year's winner, Faye Walsh.

The Santa Claus Marshal parade trophy was on display for parents and guests to view. This was won by the A.R.C. Industries of Belleville for the float "The Old Woman in the Shoe" which many admired in the recent Santa Claus parade.

A deal of credit goes to the Loyalist College students who along with Mr. Bill Cooke prepared and arranged the tasty buffet served later in the evening.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I can't take you with me today. I'll be rushing around looking for Christmas gifts. I'll bring home some gifts for each of you to wrap up and give to Daddy and Grandma."

Mother: "We'll all go shopping tomorrow and you can choose the gifts you want to give. Maybe we can have lunch in the tea room where they have a beautiful big tree."

Set aside one shopping day for the young children of the family. Even a five-year-old can enjoy selecting gifts — and the shopping trip with you may be one of the most pleasant events of the holiday season.

Legs get new emphasis this season. Hose should be light or dark, matched to shoes or contrast. Or, wear boots to the knee.

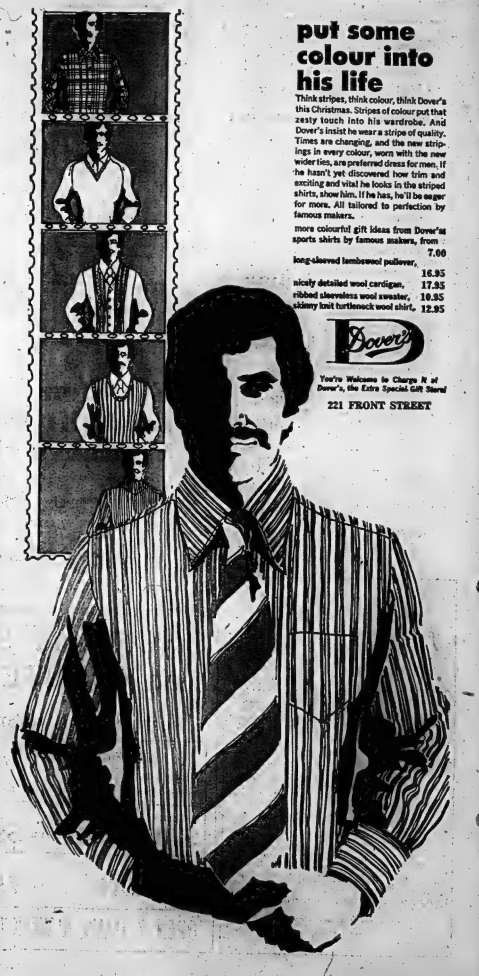
U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT
RAWDON UCW

On Wednesday evening December 3 the Mount Pleasant-Rawdon church hall was artistically decorated with three tinsel trees, red candles and wreaths for its Christmas meeting of the U.C.W. There were 50 women in attendance.

The program convenery was Mrs. Donald Knight and Mrs. L. David were in charge of the devotional, the theme of which was the "Room in the Inn". Those assisting were Mrs. Burton Sharpe, Mrs. Don Campbell, Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mrs. George Grills, Mrs. Ralph Jeffs, Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. Vernon Harvey. A vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. James Hoard and Mrs. Robert H. Hoard, with Miss Margaret Hoard providing the accompaniment. A quartet composed of Mrs. M. Sharp, Mrs. Claire Knight, Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Milton Shaw sang several carols with Mrs. Will Jeffs at the piano.



During the business period, the president, Mrs. Garth Joslin welcomed the group. It was reported that since April the members have made 275 calls in homes and hospitals. Correspondence read included messages of thanks from Hastings Manor for helping with the tuck shop and also from the Wingfield School for retarded children at Mount Pleasant for the donation sent to them. All the older people in the community will be remembered with a Christmas greeting.

The next meeting will be at the hall on the evening of January 13 and members were asked to bring a friend. Mrs. George Grills and Mrs. Robert H. Hoard displayed the 4-H wool project. The record books and sewing material of the 4-H club were viewed.

At the close of the meeting the gifts from "unknown friends" were distributed to the members. Christmas refreshments were served by Mrs. Cecil Merrick and Mrs. Norman McConnell, with everyone sitting round long, decorated tables to enjoy them. At the close of the social hour the president was given a vote of appreciation for her year's work.

Successful Living

Process of Aging Affects Mind Much Less Than Body

By DORIS CLARK

One of the great consolations life has to offer a mankind that is rapidly increasing in average age is that the process of aging affects the mind much less than the body. Minds get rusty more for the lack of operation than for any basic deterioration in the apparatus.

Mental potency as a whole rises sharply until the age of 20 and continues to rise thereafter, although at a decreasing rate, until a climax is reached at about 40. Then there is a slow decline through the next 20 years, though even at 80 the mental standard is still as good as it was at 25.

It is a different mind, but no less valuable. And only an old pigmented brain produces that particular mixture of knowledge, experience and contemplation which is the reaction of intelligence to the changing circumstances of a long life.

"The test of life, for which the first was made" is a key to remember. For the mind dominates in later years and grows only upon what it has been fed. How far it can fathom itself and the surrounding universe we have yet to learn. — Man's Emerging Mind" — N. J. Berrill.

Dear Doris: I am 15 and four - foot - eleven. I am faced with one of the most depressing problems, being short. It is the first thing people notice about me.

When anyone speaks to me of my shortness, it just crushes me. I am just plain sick of being teased about it..

Another good example is at weddings, dances or any other occasion, all the people tell me that I'm so short, especially the guys, and I'll tell you, I get pretty irritated.

Doris, I have read about hormones, prescribed by a pediatrician, that stimulate the pituitary glands, and you grow to the height you should be. Could you give me advice about these? — Shorty.

Dear Shorty: Your mistake is to mind the kidding. Just kid right back. Tell them good things come in small packages. What counts is the size of your personality: Be big about things!

Believe me, the extra tall girls envy you.

If you are eating a good maintenance diet for a growing girl, and your health is good, you are likely to grow taller in the next few years. Ask your doctor about this — and about the use of hormones in your case. I'm betting he'll tell you to forget about them. . . .

Confidential to Need Help: There are tough years for you. There is not a doubt in my mind but that the chaos and bitterness between your parents is affecting your outlook.

Someone who can make them realize that they are ruining your chance for happiness, besides making their own lives miserable, could intercede for you with your parents. Someone who can make them realize that they are ruining your chance for happiness, besides making their own lives miserable.

Girl is too studied, somewhat inhibited and can shed light on your dilemma. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

Club Activities

ROSLIN HI-TOPS

The Roslin Hi-Tops held its annual Christmas mother and daughter banquet last Tuesday evening at the Thomasburg United Church with a good attendance. The tables were gaily decorated with red poinsettias and red candles.

A short business period was conducted after which carol singing led by Mrs. H. Rockman was enjoyed.

Leader of the group Mrs. H. Minch expressed thanks to Mrs. G. Baldrick for the preparation of the Christmas turkey. Mrs. Rockman also thanked for their contributions of favorite dishes.

On behalf of the club Mrs. H. Rockman presented the leader with a gift of jewelry.

The next Tops meeting will be held Dec. 22.

SECOND THURLOW NEIGHBORS' AID

Mrs. Harry Thomson and her assistants were in charge of the euchre party held by the Neighbors' Aid on Friday night at the Aid hall. Prizes were won by Mrs. Ruth McEachern, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, Mrs. S. Ray, Gordon Woods, S. Ray and Manley Mitchell. The draw was won by Mrs. Charles Wood. Lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed by all.

The Neighbors' Aid held their annual potluck Christmas dinner at the Aid hall on Saturday night. The president, Mrs. Robert Atkins welcomed about 70 members, their husbands and families. Several visitors were also present.

Jack Chumbley acted as chairman of the program. Readings, recitations, accordion music and carol singing with Mrs. M. Mitchell at the piano were enjoyed. Santa Claus arrived to the tune of jingle bells and distributed gifts and bags of candy to the children. Mrs. Atkins thanked the chairman, Mrs. Chumbley and Santa Claus (Ralph Grossrite) for the enjoyable program.

Variations for Light Shortbread

By MARY MOORE

Several requests for repeats of 1953 Dalsay Medium-Dark Fruit Cake and 1959 New Light Shortbread are answered today.

EMMA'S 1953 DELUXE FRUIT CAKE (Medium-dark)

½ lb. butter
2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups brown sugar
10 large eggs
One 20-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained (reserve juice and pour over fruits)
1 tsp. vanilla
4 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 tsp. mace
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. baking soda
1 lb. walnut halves
½ lb. whole red candied cherries
½ lb. whole green candied cherries
½ lb. citron peel
½ lb. orange and lemon peel mixed
1 lb. currants
2 lbs. seedless light raisins
1 lb. seeded dark Muscatel raisins

Cream butter and sugars till light and fluffy. Add eggs, beating well after each. Add well-drained pineapple and vanilla, beat till light and smooth by hand. Sift flour, mace, cinnamon and soda. Mix all the raisins, currants, cherries, peel and nuts in a very large container, separating Muscatel raisins if necessary. Pour reserved pineapple juice over. Add flour mixture and mix well until the fruits are well-coated. Slowly add the fruit; flour mixture to the butter-egg mixture; mixing carefully, but thoroughly. Pour into three greased pans which have been buttered, lined with triple thickness of waxed paper and buttered again. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. (no higher) with a pan of water under pans during the entire baking period. Small cake takes about 3½ hrs.; medium and large, 3½ - 4 hrs.

NEW LIGHT SHORTBREAD

(48 variations; highly recommended)

½ cup sifted icing sugar
1 cup butter (room temperature; no substitute)
1¾ cups unsifted instant flour (no substitute)

Into beaker bowl measure the icing sugar and butter and beat 1 min. on "low". Pour in "instant" flour and beat 1 min., scraping down sides with rubber spatula at halftime. With hands shape into 1" diameter balls and place 2" apart on two ungreased cookie sheets. Into each ball on one pan I pressed a whole unblanched almond. On the balls of the other pan I pressed my thumb deeply into centre to make depression. (When served this depression is filled with ½ tsp. red strawberry or raspberry jam or red currant jelly.) Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. 30-32 min. but watch them — they should not brown at all. Store in single layers, separated with wax paper, in cool place. Crisp and light the "best - yet" short bread.

Ann Landers

Dangers of Accidental Poisoning of Children

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have helped us a great deal in our fight against mental retardation. We are again asking for your help in alerting your millions of readers to the dangers of accidental poisoning of children.

ANN LANDERS

Poisoning is one of the major causes of brain damage among children under 12 years of age. In Illinois alone during 1969 there were 11,629 cases of accidental poisoning of children, over one-third of these being from aspirin tablets. Other leading causes are household cleaning preparations, pesticides, paints and varnishes.

Please, Ann Landers, remind parents to keep all medicines and poisonous materials locked up or safely out of the reach of children. Such precautions could save thousands of children from brain damage and death. Thank you for your help. — DAVID MOSS, Executive Director, Illinois Association For The Mentally Retarded.

DEAR DAVID MOSS: Here's your letter with an added word to every mother who reads this column. Nothing you do in the next 30 minutes can be so important as checking your medicine cabinet and supply cupboards to make certain all medicines and potentially harmful substances are locked up and safely out of the reach of your children. I urge you not to put it off. Do it Now. It's a matter of life and death.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I admire your willingness to admit that someone else might have a better answer than you. I also admire the way you pressed both sides of a story. Please print this letter because it is the other side of the mother-in-law problem. The woman signed her letter "Dishpan Hands And Swollen Feet." She said she'd enjoy a can of beans at her daughter-in-law's house if they'd only invite her. Do you believe it? I don't.

I have not invited my in-laws to a meal for four years. This is the reason: When we were first married we had dinner at her place every Sunday. When I helped my mother-in-law peel potatoes I was criticized for taking off too much potato. When I put ice in the glasses I put too many cubes in one glass. I couldn't set the table right. I placed the silverware too close to the plate. So we quit going there for meals and I refused to invite her to our place. Why? Fear. Fear of being criticized every time I drew a breath. If I couldn't even fill a glass of water to suit her how could I fix a meal? She destroyed by confidence and made me feel like an idiot.

I hope you print this letter and give the daughter-in-law a break. For some reason you always favor the mother-in-law. Yours must be great. If so, you're lucky. — TUESDAY'S CHILD.

Toy Menagerie, Culmination of Firemen's Efforts

Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson, fire chief Leo Culhane, deputy fire chief Robert Emerson and fire inspector Reginald Christopher sort through a section of the thousands of toys and gifts that are stored in the gymnasium at the Belleville City Police Station. The toys are to be sorted and packed and distributed Monday by the firefighters.

Christmas!

...And It Means Different Things To Different People

Firemen Do It Again

If visitors were to find themselves in the Belleville City Police Department's gymnasium from now until Monday they might be confused by its appearance as a toy department in a large store.

But there's a good reason for the thousands of toys that are stored there this soon before Christmas.

The toys, rows of stuffed animals, sleds, tricycles, games, puzzles, mittens and hockey sticks and pucks, not to mention any other toy imaginable are the result of weeks of work by members of the Belleville Fire Department and the generosity extended by several local organizations and associations.

Once more this year the fire department volunteered to collect toys for children who might not otherwise receive any for Christmas.

And as of Tuesday of this week, the registered total of such children was just over 1,100 and, according to Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson that number is growing.

MORE

About 90 percent of the children listed come from Belleville directly, he said.

This year's toy collection has been a greater success than last year's, judging by the number of toys in the police gymnasium.

Mr. Stephenson explained that organizations and local associations had come forward this year with a lot of assistance and many donations.

He quoted the recent receipt of 181 gift-wrapped toys from the Quinte Twirlers, a local square dance organization, as an example.

Since the toy collection began four to five weeks ago, schools, Girl Guide and Brownie organizations, clubs and associations have been donating gifts in bulk. In addition the fire department was able to raise money on its own to buy hockey sticks and pucks mittens.

The toys will be sorted and packed this weekend for distribution by firefighters Monday.

Hazards Great At Christmas

Christmas may be a time of cheer, but to members of fire departments in North America, it can be a time of despair and horror when winter temperatures and Yuletide carelessness turn the enthusiasm of celebration into the death and disaster of fire.

And so Christmas takes on another form for fire departments in Canada and, in particular, in Belleville where the coming of the holiday season means a concentration of effort in preventing fires.

The intensity of the need for fire safety at Christmas is the result of so many potential fire hazards at this time of year.

Winter brings the importance of heating homes and the likelihood of faulty heating equipment. Christmas itself brings the traditional hazard of Christmas trees and the carelessness of people busy with the fun of the holidays.

"Christmas brings temptations to many parents, while visiting with neighbors or completing last - minute shopping, to leave small children unattended for short periods," Fire Chief Leo Culhane told The Intelligencer.

He urged all parents to recognize the fire danger of this season and not to leave small children alone in the home even for a moment.

He pointed out that the Criminal Code of Canada forbids such action which endangers the life or health of any child under the age of 10 years.

Chief Culhane reiterated warnings about Christmas trees, probably the most severe fire hazard in homes at this time of year.

"At the same time decorations, trees and wrapping paper add an increased threat of fire danger, unless constant care is exercised."

Care must be taken to keep butts of natural trees immersed in water and to ensure that the tree itself does not obstruct access to a door or window.

Chief Culhane also urged families to review their home fire escape plans for a quick exit in an emergency.

Quinte Area Communities May Get Aid On Cost of Transporting Prisoners

As result of representation made yesterday to the Ontario attorney general's department, there is a strong possibility that Belleville may be relieved of costs involved in the transportation of prisoners to the new central jail at Napanee.

Estimates were that the transportation of prisoners to and from the jail for court appearances could have meant annual costs to the city of more than $30,000.

But the larger urban municipalities in the four county areas to be served by the new jail objected to the expected costs and a meeting was arranged for yesterday with Attorney General Arthur Wishart in Toronto.

Attending the meeting were Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott; Mayor Valerie Swain from Kingston and Mayor Duncan MacDonald of Trenton. The Picton mayor was snowed in and could not make the trip.

Today Mayor Scott said the delegation had been well received by Mr. Wishart who promised that he would request money from the provincial treasurer to cover prisoner transportation costs.

If money is not provided by the treasurer, Mr. Wishart said his department would set up a prisoner transportation service with costs charged back to the municipalities.

With this method it was hoped that the cost of transporting prisoners could be reduced by 35 per cent.

And if the transportation service could not be set up in time for the opening of the Napanee jail (expected about April 1), Mr. Wishart said he would have Ontario Provincial Police look after prisoner transportation temporarily.

This, according to Mayor Scott, will eliminate the need for the city to purchase a "paddy wagon" for use until the department transportation system could be set up.

Mayor Scott said that in their presentation to Mr. Wishart the visiting delegation explained that municipalities had been told that there would be no local costs involved with the operation of the new central jail.

However, under present policy, it had been learned that costs of transporting prisoners would be the responsibility of the local municipalities until time of sentence.

Under the policy all urban municipalities with their own police forces would be expected to pay transportation costs.

Local municipalities affected would be Belleville, Trenton and Picton and the county municipalities of Deseronto and Tweed.

Other county villages, Stirling, Frankford, Madoc and Bancroft are patrolled by Ontario Provincial Police who will look after prisoner transportation involving these municipalities.

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward School trustees last night refused to support letters from two other county boards objecting to arbitration reports and cost ceilings on education.

In a letter from Essex County School Board, trustees protested arbitration reports charging costs back to the now defunct municipal school boards and to the municipalities themselves.

It was approved by Essex trustees that the government should pay any deficits discovered in the municipalities.

A spokesman for the Prince Edward County Board of Education said today that county trustees feel this ceiling is "realistic".

Prince Edward trustees also supported the reports of their arbitration board and felt they should be implemented.

The former township school boards were supported primarily by government grants and in part by the municipalities.

Still Missing

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — Police in Campbellford reported no trace has yet been found of Clifford Vance Wannamaker, 66, who disappeared Sunday evening and is believed to have drowned in the Trent River.

A spokesman for the Campbellford Police Department reported that Mr. Wannamaker's tracks led one way, ending at the bank.

Arbitration board reports recommend that current budget deficits and surpluses should now revert to the municipalities in question.

Prince Edward County's three - man arbitration board included county clerk Thomas Walker, former Prince Edward County assessor Sidney Manley and judge Robert Walmsley.

Judge Wilfred S. Lane originally occupied a seat on the board but was replaced because of ill health by Judge Walmsley.

A business administrator for the Prince Edward County Board of Education, Ernest Shortt, today commented that a few of Prince Edward's 19 municipalities have marked deficits while several others will enjoy surplus returns.

The remainder will not be affected to a great degree by either a deficit or a surplus.

Sharing Program Needs $2,500 for the Needy

A bleak Christmas faces about 400 Belleville families unless the Christmas Sharing Program receives more local support. It needs $2,500 before Dec. 25.

The Sharing Program provides Christmas dinners for needy families — families for whom Christmas would be just another day without the help of their fellow citizens.

This is the fourth year the program is formerly called the Christmas Exchange—has operated from 234 John St.

In other years, donations contributed either money or food hampers for the families and children needing help.

But this year a new system is in effect. Only cash, either money, or food vouchers for those unable to handle money, will be distributed.

Mrs. Mark Haslett, director of the exchange, says that donations occurred in the past when different individuals and organizations packed hampers. Some families received an embarrassment of riches, and some not enough.

All other organizations that formerly provided Christmas dinners are joining the Sharing Program this year, to make it a truly community effort.

The names of the 400 families come from welfare agencies, churches or schools. To avoid embarrassment to the recipients, no names will be given out to private donors as was the custom in the past.

The program will give $5 a person, up to a maximum of $35 for a family. Co - operating in the venture is the Firefighters' Association, which is collecting new and used toys, sports equipment and candy to be distributed by the volunteers of the Sharing Program.

The program needs an additional $2,500 if it is to provide for all who need help this year, and there are only eight days left to collect the money.

Many city organizations, including the teams of students and young peoples' groups of many kinds have traditionally raised money at Christmas time to give their community a collective gift — a donation to the Christmas Sharing Program.

Donations can be addressed to the Christmas Sharing Program, 234 John St. All are tax exempt.

Education Will Suffer If Ceilings Too Rigid: Principals

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario secondary school principals have protested the six per cent limitation recently imposed by the province on increases in educational spending.

Their stand, taken last weekend in Toronto was explained by Centennial Secondary School principal W. J. Musgrove, a member of the executive of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council. The council represents the province's 600 secondary school principals.

"The government is back tracking on the Hall-Dennis report," he said. "Implementing the recommendations of the report involved re-organization in the schools which is now proceeding. By putting a ceiling on expenditures the government is being responsive to the desires of the public — but you can not expect a Cadillac for the price of a Ford."

The kind of education recommended in the famous report costs more Mr. Musgrove said, because it involves individual timetabling, subject promotion, and small group discussion instead of lectures All these require more teachers and other personnel before they can be used effectively.

"The most critical area in education and the most expensive, is the classroom," the principal said.

Cutback on educational spending will be felt there first, he indicated, probably through a decrease in the number of teachers and a return to a more rigid system of instruction.

At one time the department of education recommended a pupil - teacher ratio of 17 to 1 in secondary schools, and indicated the ratio could be lower. Hastings county has finally achieved a 17.5 to 1 ratio in secondary schools — still higher than the Metro Toronto average. Indications are that the department of education will recommend raising the ratio to 18 to 1 in 1971, as an economy move.

However, a ratio of 17 to 1 doesn't mean every secondary school class has only 17 pupils. The ratio includes teachers who take no part in classroom instruction — principals, vice - principals, librarians and guidance teachers.

Class size in some schools, both elementary and secondary, goes as high as 40 pupils.

Part of the reason for the climbing costs of education, Mr. Musgrove says, lies in the increasing services demanded of schools.

"The school is usurping a number of services it didn't want, but which no one else is looking after," he said. "The public thinks the school is a straight educational institution, but it isn't. We are expected to provide for health problems, both physical and mental, that should be charged to the department of health. We have to provide guidance and counselling services because the home and the church has declined as an influence in the lives of young people. Teaching ethics, manners and morals is now in the hands of the school."

And these extra services demand extra people — nurses! psychologists, guidance teachers, secretaries and even extra vice - principals to take care of discipline problems.

Ontario's secondary-school principals see a bleak time ahead if the government continues to curb educational spending.

"We will not be able to give the students the personal consideration their parents demand of us," said Mr. Musgrove. "We won't be able to provide counselling to both parents and pupils that we have given in the past."

In an effort to effect savings he suggested principals and teachers will "have to use what we can improvise instead of having improvised for us".

But he warned that students expect as sophisticated equipment in their schools as they have in their homes.

"Otherwise the schools are considered dated and the students won't respect them," he said.

Teachers' federations are pushing for a watch dog to be set as a guardian over education expenditures. They went to see an auditor-general for education appointed in Ontario to blow the whistle on the continuation of excessive or foolish spending.

He would operate at the province educational level in the same way Canada's auditor-general Maxwell Henderson does at the national level.

The teachers see the appointment as a means of controlling the unequal distribution of educational money which sometimes appears now to be used to make the rich boards richer at the expense of poorer, rural boards.

CAHA Fears Parents

By WALTER ERZEVENCHUK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Executive director Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association says governing bodies in amateur sport are being seriously threatened by parents in courts.

Parents have gone to court in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, recently and received orders allowing their son to play for the team of his choice, which could upset the entire hockey organizations have long exerted on what teams individuals can play for.

"I see it as a serious threat to all amateur sport governing bodies," says Juckes. "This includes soccer, lacrosse and football."

In the most recent case Nov. 26, Mr. Justice S. S. Lieberman of Alberta Supreme Court ordered the Edmonton Metropolitan Hockey Association to allow 13-year-old Mark Lindsay McDonald to play with the team of his choice.

Mark's father, Hugh S. McDonald, had asked for court action because, he said, the association had refused to permit his son to play in the Knights of Columbo Bantam AA program during the 1968-69 season.

Mr. McDonald said it would be in his son's best interests, religiously and morally, to play for the Knights of Columbus. The McDonalds are Roman Catholic.

He said he went to court after the EMHA told him he had no right of appeal and he could not get help from the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association.

Juckes said there is a provision in CAHA rules that says a player can go to court if he feels his appeal has been handled in bad faith or "justice was not satisfied . . . that is, if he felt we had conducted some sort of kangaroo court or something."

"But our position is that when we have a player who signs a card or a club joins our organization, they should abide by those rules and the courts should not be involved."

Sabres Snap Slump

Veterans Still Paying Punch

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

During his 10 years as general manager and coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, George (Punch) Imlach was a student of the theory that veteran players are the key to winning in the National Hockey League.

Imlach had experienced hands in Johnny Bower and George Armstrong, then wheeled-and-dealed for the services of oldtimers Terry Sawchuk, Allan Stanley, Marcel Pronovost, Bert Olmstead, Andy Bathgate and Red Kelly, while amassing four Stanley Cups for Toronto.

When Imlach took over Buffalo Sabres last May, he quickly fortified the expansion team with aging stars such as Don Marshall, Phil Goyette, Roger Crozier, Floyd Smith and Jean-Guy Talbot.

Three weeks ago, with the Sabres' see-saw record between the last two spots in the East Division standings, Imlach decided more age and experience was needed.

Eddie Shack and Dick Duff, both of whom played right wing for Imlach at Toronto, were obtained by the Sabres from Los Angeles Kings for defencemen Mike McMahon and future considerations.

Duff, 34, a member of Stanley Cup-winning teams with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto, made the move pay off Thursday night.

The Kirkland Lake, Ont., native fired the winning goal and assisted on two other scoring plays as Buffalo edged the Kings 4-3 in the only scheduled NHL game.

In games tonight, Montreal meets the Canucks in Vancouver and California Golden Seals play host to Philadelphia Flyers.

But with Los Angeles' Gilles Marotte in the penalty box, Duff and Meehan set up rookie Gil Perreault with his 12th goal with 38 seconds left in the second period to tie the score.

Early in the final period, Duff and Meehan assisted on Al Hamilton's first goal as the Sabres jumped to a 3-1 lead.

DICK DUFF

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for the Sabres who hold down the East Division cellar with 17 points, six back of the high-flying Maple Leafs.

Los Angeles' loss was its 10th in a row. The Kings are two points ahead of California, last place in the West Division with 18 points.

Elsewhere in the league, Detroit Red Wings announced that veteran right winger Gordie Howe may return to the Red Wings' lineup in about 10 days.

Howe, out of Detroit's last 19 games with a torn rib cartilage, has been skating daily and may see action one to two weeks before his expected return.

However, left winger Frank Mahovlich, acting as Detroit's leader in Howe's absence, has been sidelined with the flu and missed Wednesday's 4-3 loss to California in Oakland.

In the low, light 200 series, you get a choice. The dependable 201, 201T or 201E, or the more powerful 281.

But no matter how you choose, you get a lot of action. And a lot of features that have a proven history of reliable performance.

Features like the Variable Speed Drive that delivers extra power when you need it. Or the specially reinforced drive belt. Double drive cleats, and extra durable track. All features that have been tested under the most torturous circumstances. So you know Snow Cruiser is one of the toughest machines you can buy.

On the 201 and 201E models, power is a full 20 horsepower single cylinder 295 cc. engine. Combine that with the Variable Speed Drive, and the smallest inch, you're ready to handle the toughest snow conditions you care to offer.

On the 281, you get a twin cylinder 398 cc. 28 horsepower engine. For even better handling, the 281 comes with Snow Cruiser's new 1976 inch model 7 suspension system. That means faster starts, surer stops, and a surmounting get can take almost any hill, snowbank or crevice in stride.

The 200 series is quiet, smooth and vibration-free. The windshield is distortion-free. There's a parking brake, a convenient storage box, twin sealed-beam headlights, and thick foam seating with room for two adults.

For all 'round dependable winter action, see your Snow Cruiser dealer. There are seven models in all including the stable Wide-Track 2000's, the high performance RX series, and the fast, light 200's.

Batawa Club Member Takes Long Lift

Skiers Tickled White

Snow Didn't Bring Us All to Standstill

By KEN SMITH
Staff Reporter

BATAWA — Wednesday's snowfall brought some activity in the district to a standstill but it was just what the Batawa Ski Club needed to get started.

A handful of Quinte ski enthusiasts were on the slopes here yesterday for the official opening of the 1970-71 season.

Already club membership for this year has topped the 400 mark and the club executive is talking about imposing a ceiling on the number admitted.

"We are reaching the point where we will soon have all the members we can handle. There are just so many people who want to ski" club publicist Tom Hudson said.

Fifteen years ago, there was no ski tow and only one hill open — now there are three rope tows serving the three hills.

August Smets of Batawa, one of the founding members of the club, contends that the efforts of the members rather than their money has been key to the success of the Batawa club.

Members themselves cleared the trees from the slopes, built the tows and the chalet. "Some guys spend every weekend working here from September on" he says.

The Alpine School here will begin its second season in the next few weeks under Austrian instructor Kasper Zackner.

And to develop candidates for the Canadian National Ski team, the Batawa club will be launching its Nancy Greene Little League Racing Team into a third competitive season against five Eastern Ontario teams in the under-14 age bracket.

A Class "D" racing team is also being organized by the club because several young members have graduated from the Nancy Greene league but want to continue competitive giant slalom racing.

There will be five certified "D" Class giant slalom races in Ontario this winter, one at Batawa February 13.

Club interest in the promotion of competitive skiing was boosted in 1968 when one of its members, Peter Wellstein, won a spot on the National team. Wellstein coached Little League skiing here last year.

Facilities at Batawa are backed by the name this year. However, a new ski shop has been built next to the chalet and the chalet itself has been overhauled to provide a larger canteen and clubroom.

Weekend Outlook

The Batawa Ski Club will be operating Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. There will be two tows in operation and conditions are good to excellent.

Picton Snow Job Paves the Way

PICTON (Staff) — A speedy snow job spread over Picton earlier this week has primed the fairgrounds track for Sunday's snowmobile race meet. This event, co-sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Prince Edward Snowmobile Racing Committee, is the first of several such competitions scheduled to provide winter sport in the county.

The race program will open at 1 p.m. Sunday featuring nine classes, each with two heats, and a powderpuff race. Trophies and cash prizes will be awarded to winners in each division. All interested snowmobilers are asked to report to the fairgrounds to register their entries before 11 a.m. Sunday.

Admission charge for adults is $1, while children under 12 enjoy free admission. Race officials describe the track's condition as "excellent" owing to Wednesday night's blizzard.

Mo-Hawks Standing Pat With Their Winning Hand

Just matching Tuesday night's effort in their 5-8 win over Kingston Aces would go a long way for Belleville Mo-Hawks in tonight's senior hockey meeting with powerful Oak Hornets.

Making their second visit to Belleville in tonight's 8 p.m. game (they lost the first 5-3), the second - place Hornets aren't a complicated team to assess.

"They're about like Orillia — a solid, steady hockey club, that just keeps coming at you," says Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones, who plans to start virtually the same lineup that enjoyed Tuesday success in Kingston.

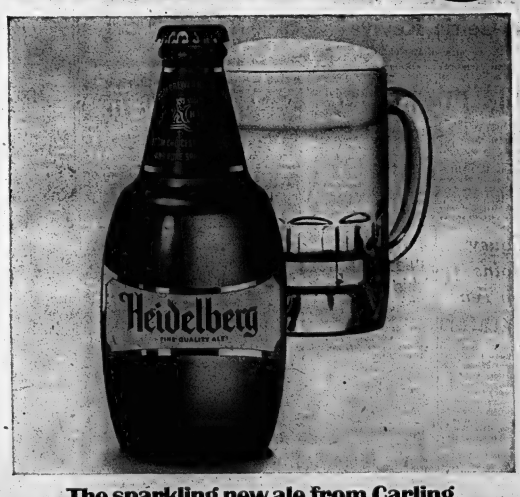
GEORGE GODSON
Centres New Line



Meanwhile, the Georges Godson - Wayne McConnell - Ray Johnston threesome which jelled so well Tuesday will be kept intact. McConnell enjoyed one of his better outings, in Kingston, picking up two goals, while Godson set up three of the five Belleville scoring plays.

The Mo-Hawks only dressed 13 players in addition to goalkeeper Steve Rezo Tuesday, two fewer than they are allowed.

In addition to O'Donnell, Jones hoped to dress newcomer Paul Grills, if the former Eastern League winger's release could be obtained by tonight.

Saturday night finds the Mo-Hawks in Owen Sound and Tuesday they are at home to Kingston Aces.

Brant Really 'Up in Air' Over European Trip

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Moira Secondary School wrestler Harold Brant, who appeared to be "up in the air" when he failed to receive free transportation for a European tour by the Canadian Junior Champions, was just that yesterday as the team flew to Vienna.

Over 50 individuals in the Quinte community raised $745 to finance the 19 day tour of Austria, Yugoslavia and Greece.

"Harold was about four feet off the ground", noted Moira phys-ed teacher Gord Smith who was in charge of raising funds.

Eight other wrestlers received free transportation, but Brant was forced to pay his own way because there were not enough tickets for all of the competitors.

The Department of Indian Affairs was the major donor, contributing $200 towards the junket. Hastings County Council, the Bay of Quinte COSSA coaches and the Moira student council each chipped in $100.

Also donating to the cause were the Township of Tyendinaga Recreation Association, Moira Schuster Limited and Corby Distillery.

Contributions from Brant's home village of Shannonville came from the Wayside Inn, Reid's General Store, Cook's garage and Long's TV Repair.

Adding to the total was a collection from the students of Harry J. Clarke public school and money from two anonymous Belleville contributors.

Former Moira student Fred Abrams (canvassed a total of $30 towards the tour, which is designed to give the wrestlers international experience.

While no money was received from the city of Belleville itself, Smith noted that, "Mayor Scott went to bat for us with the Department of Indian Affairs."

Brant, who captured the Canadian junior heavyweight title in Edmonton last June will be returning with the team Jan. 5.

Petes Join Junior Football

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough has obtained a franchise in the Ontario Junior Football Conference next season, it was announced Thursday.

The entry will increase the league to six teams, with each team playing 10 games consisting of a home-and-home series with each of the other clubs. The first game will be in early August.

Scarborough, Oakville, Burlington, Hamilton and Lakeshore are the other teams.

Peterborough has not had a football team in regular league play since 1959 when the Ortuns were in the old Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate A league.

Don't Look A Gift Sponsor In the Mouth!

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian equestrian team announced Thursday it will receive $150,000 from Rothmans of Pall Mall Ltd. to sponsor a major cross-country circuit of Grand Prix jumping and dressage events and schooling sessions in 1971.

Dennis Whitaker of Toronto, the Canadian team chairman, said that the cigarette company's contribution will be "the biggest boost that has ever been given to our sport."

"It will be of great assistance in helping us obtain our short and long-term objectives which are to win medals, preferably gold medals, at the Pan-American Games next year in Colombia, at the Olympics in Munich in 1972 and, most important, the 1976 Olympics in Montreal when we will be hosts."

Whitaker said the money will be used in staging some 22 competitions across the country, including the provision of prize money, show facilities and transportation costs.

There will also be one three-day event in each of the eastern and western regions with national championships to follow.

"This will improve on the concept of a national team," said Whitaker. "We want to get away from the image of being a bunch of Bay Street boys and get participation from the East, from Quebec and from the West.

A minimum of two members of the Canadian national team will be required to attend each Grand Prix event to compete and conduct schooling sessions for promising young riders.

Whitaker noted that a verbal promise from the federal government's Fitness council to provide transportation costs to the Pan-Am Games next year and the development of the new Canadian circuit has resulted in cancellation of plans for a European tour next spring.

Expos Young Men May Be Going West

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal Expos are pondering a shift of their baseball spring training base to Arizona from Florida.

John McHale, president of the National League club, has been invited by Arizona Governor Jack Williams to inspect a proposed site in Glendale and is scheduled to go there next month.

Authorities there are willing to build facilities provided the Expos sign a long-term contract.

The Expos have trained in West Palm Beach, Fla., for two years and will return there in February as guests of Atlanta Braves. They are anxious to find a home of their own.

"We've been grateful to the Braves, but we only use the second-class facilities there and we have to find our own," says Expos' general manager Jim Fanning. "The West Palm area can't really support two teams."

The Braves have first call on the excellent West Palm Beach facilities, leaving the Expos two adjacent baseball diamonds and offices in trailers. There is not enough room for the Expos' minor league training and almost 700 players must work out 130 miles south of West Palm Beach in Hollywood, Fla.

The Expos would require a 3,000 player seating capacity in Arizona along with at least five baseball diamonds and clubhouse and office space.

Rookie Plays Role In Celtic Revival

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cowens has played a vital role in Boston's revival this season and teamed with Jo Jo White and John Havlicek to lead Boston to 102-91 victory over Buffalo Braves Thursday night.

In other NBA games, Phoenix Suns topped Detroit 113-114 in overtime and Philadelphia 76ers turned back Seattle SuperSonics 123-117.

Cowens has taken over under the boards for the Celts and his rebounding was a major factor in their 11th victory in the last 12 games.

Havlicek had 36 points, 11 in the final quarter, and White contributed 25 points. Bob Kauffman led Buffalo with 25 points.

Phoenix blew a 21-point lead against the Pistons but came back to whip Detroit in the second period.

Philadelphia scored 12 straight points at the outset of the second half, opening a 25-point lead over Seattle, and coasted the rest of the way.

Cousy Joins Top Ten

NEW YORK (AP) — Guards Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Sam Jones, who starred for Boston Celtics in 1950s and 1960s, and Bobby Davies, former Rochester Royals standout, were named today to the National Basketball Association's Silver Anniversary team.

The selection, announced by commissioner Walter Kennedy, completes the 10-man team of stars from the NBA's first 24 years who have completed playing careers.

Previously named in balloting by players who achieved all-star recognition since the NBA was founded in 1946, were forwards Bob Pettit, Dolph Schayes, Paul Arizin and Joe Fulks, and center Bill Russell and George Mikan.

Alworth Fed Up

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Receiver Lance Alworth says it will be "my last game" when San Diego Chargers play host to Kansas City Chiefs in a National Football League game Sunday.

He filed a $1.8-million action against the NFL club last week, alleging breach of contract.

This is Alworth's ninth season as a pro. He caught passes for more than 1,000 yards in seven seasons, a pro record.

Still Sportsman

Oscar Hay, now 72, uses Stratford lawn bowling green to show the sports savvy that half a century ago made him a top hockey player. Hay says his induction into the Hockey Hall of Fame two years ago was his biggest hockey thrill. He retired in 1934, coached various teams for a few years, and moved to Stratford in the early 1940s to work for an assurance company.

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, says he is negotiating with a United States firm for sale of CFL films in television cassettes.

The cassettes enable people to play the films on their home TV sets by means of a special attachment similar to a record player.

The CFL has been selling game films in the United States for several years but Gaudaur now has a new idea to help sales. He has put together a pilot film on the role of the quarterback.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (CP) — Sandy Hawley, North America's leading jockey, was still winless after 21 mounts as he placed ninth and second in the only two races he entered Thursday.

Hawley, a 21-year-old native of Whitby, Ont., has only one win in 37 starts since he arrived here Dec. 7, aiming for Willie Shoemaker's one-year record of 485 wins set in 1953.

Hawley has 483 first-place finishes this year.

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Canadian equestrian team said Thursday the team's 1971 training program remains in confusion because Colombia has not yet decided on dates for the Pan-American Games.

He said that the Games dates had first been announced as July 18-31, and later as July 23 to Aug. 6.

Maple Leafs Cut Boss Roster

TORONTO (CP) — The board of directors of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd was chopped to nine from 28 Thursday during an annual shareholders' meeting which turned into a wrangle between lawyers.

Among the controversial points brought out at the meeting that jammed the Gardens' press room was that a certain amount of money had been received "in reference to Mr. Ballard and Mr. Smythe."

Harold Ballard and Stafford Smythe, who control 46 per cent of the Gardens stock between them, were among only four holdovers returned from last year's board. The others were T. D. Jefferies, president of a rubber goods company, and Paul McNamara, president of a restaurant and hotel chain.

Newcomers are lawyer A. Campbell Burgess, manufacturer Donald P. Giffin, Dr. J. L. Hall, investment executive Douglas H Roxborough and Dr. Hugh A. Smythe, brother of Stafford Smythe.

Arthur Patillo, a lawyer and shareholder, asked how much money had been received and when.

Gardens lawyer Ian Johnston replied that if any amount was stated it might have a bearing on a matter "that could be subjudice at the courts" and might be taken as an admission.

Another shareholder, unidentified, said explicit answers might be damaging to the company's tax position and to the legal position of two directors.

He said he felt his responsibilities to the shareholders had been fulfilled, then stepped down.

Nor returning to the board are Senator J. H. Alex Russell, Sydney, Bermuda, Q.C., A. Lidstone, Q.C., Bruce Matthews, R. J. Ansell, Henry Nevins, G. R. Gardiner, W. A. H. MacBrien, W. O. Twain, W. M. Hatch, James Stewart, Johnston, Mara and Burns. There was one vacancy.

Pat Osler, another shareholder, asked Mara:

"Were the directors invited to stand again?"

"No," said Mara. "They weren't."

"Then they were fired?"

"I don't feel as if I have been fired."

Patillo questioned Mara and Johnston and the outgoing firm of auditors—the new auditors will be the third firm to handle Gardens books in three years—whether they had heard of a bank account in the name of "S. H. Marlie." None of them had, and Patillo dropped the subject.

Another question was whether expenses were requested from the Gardens concerning the wedding of a relative of Smythe's.

Mara said the request was made but was denied.

Actress Takes Anti-nude Stand

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's too early to sight a trend, but here's one actress of the "now" movies who declines to strip on the screen any more.

She is Brenda Vaccaro, the darkly beautiful Broadway-trained actress who has appeared opposite Dustin Hoffman, Elliot Gould, Jon Voight and Michael Douglas. Her most noted performance so far was as the kinky doll of Midnight Cowboy who entertained Voight in a for stake. That's all.

"I've let it with the nudity bit," said Brenda, who speaks in a rapid, persuasive style that indicates her Brooklyn-Italian background.

"I've done it twice in pictures —once in Midnight Cowboy and once in Summertree.

"I've tried it and I don't like it. I'm just not comfortable. It's too unnerving. Instead of being concerned with your character, you end up worrying where the sheet is and whether one of your breasts is exposed."

It's doubtful if Miss Vaccaro's anti-nude stand will blight her career. She is well established as a versatile performer who seems ideal cast with the anti-heroes of today's film market. Among her recent roles was as Elliot Gould's spouse in I Love My Wife.

She is the same actress who came to Hollywood in 1961 and was told she would never make it in films.

After the Hollywood rebuff, Brenda returned to the stage, which was her principal interest anyway. She was nominated for a Tony in Cactus Flower, playing the role that won Goldie Hawn her Oscar.

Then came How Now Dow Jones, another Tony nomination. One night Carson Kanin and Ruth Gordon brought British director John Schlesinger to see the show. He sent for Brenda to try out for a role in Midnight Cowboy.

"I knew about the role because some more of my friends had tried out for it," she said. "Some of my other friends had refused, because they knew the role had to be played in a gay string.

"That held me back, too, but I decided I might as well talk to Schlesinger."

She did, and was told she wasn't right for the role. Then he reconsidered and gave her the part. That prompted her moral dilemma: "My first movie! Do I want to show my body and set the screen before I show my face"

She had just about decided against Midnight Cowboy until she was talked into it by her best friend, Gladys Knight.

The enormous hit of the film boosted Brenda's career. Producer-director Mike Sommerfree, directed by Anthony Newley and co-starring Michael Douglas, son of Kirk. She says she and Michael now share a rented house in Hollywood, Marge.

"Not for me," says Brenda. "I tried it once—with Martin Fried, the producer.

"We lived together for two years and were married for three. There was no ill feeling, but I just decided that marriage was not the right kind of life for me."

Basque Verdict Secret

MADRID (Reuter) — The Spanish cabinet will meet today amid reports that the verdict on 16 Basque nationalists whose military trial ended last week might not be disclosed before next week.

The cabinet meeting today was announced Wednesday as speculation that the oft-delayed announcement of the verdict against the 16 could be expected today.

But lawyers for the defendants said they did not believe the five-man tribunal of army judges will give the verdict before Saturday, and possibly not until early next week.

The judges have been sitting in closed session in Burgos since the controversial trial ended Dec. 3. Six of the accused face possible death sentences for the alleged murder of the chief of political police in San Sebastian in 1968, and the delay in the verdict has led to speculation that at least two of the six will be sentenced to death.

Head of State Francisco Franco is expected now to call another cabinet meeting after the sentences are announced to commute the death penalties at a Christmas week gesture.

The other 10 accused have been variously charged with subversion, terrorism, rebellion and illegal possession of firearms.

Meanwhile, there was no news of kidnapped West German Consul Eugen Beihl, abducted by Basque extremists and believed held pending announcement of the sentences.

In Barcelona, a time bomb exploded in a large department store Thursday, but caused little damage. No one was hurt.

Yard-long Towel Found in Body

TORONTO (CP) — An inquest has been scheduled into the death of a Port Erie, Ont., man whose body contained a surgical towel almost a yard long.

Wilfred English, 63, a retired border customs inspector, underwent abdominal surgery at Toronto General Hospital a few days before his death Nov. 22.

Dr. K. R. Baxter, coroner in the case, said the inquest is set for Jan. 8, but would not comment on the details. Hospital officials said Mr. English had been a patient there but would make no statements.

Dr. H. B. Ottman, Ontario's supervising coroner, notified police after learning that a towel was found by surgeons who performed an autopsy.

Police said they have been investigating the case for more than two weeks.

Mr. English was admitted to hospital Nov. 10 and operated on for an abdominal aneurysm —an abnormal dilation of a blood vessel resulting from disease of the vessel wall.

He died a few days later and surgeons obtained family permission to perform the autopsy.

Ceasefires Announced

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in Vietnam will observe 24-hour ceasefires for Christmas and New Year's, but informed sources said American bombers would continue heavy raids on North Vietnamese supply routes in Laos and Cambodia during the truces.

The allied commands announced today that their forces in Vietnam would hold their fire unless attacked from 6 p.m. Dec. 24 Saigon time until 6 p.m. Christmas Day, and from 6 p.m. New Year's Eve to 6 p.m. Jan. 1.

The Viet Cong announced earlier that its forces would observe ceasefires of three days each over Christmas and New Year's, and four days for the Tet festival of the lunar new year's that week in January.

The ceasefires proclaimed last year by the opposing sides were of the same length.

SITUATIONS VACANT

BUYER

As a key member of the management team, reporting to the Manager-Purchasing, the Buyer is primarily engaged in the purchase of raw materials and miscellaneous supplies. In the execution of his duties, he develops and maintains economic sources of supply, provides liaison with suppliers and users, negotiates purchases and, generally, ensures that the company is assured of an uninterrupted supply of the raw materials and the miscellaneous items it requires.

The successful candidate will have a minimum of a high school education coupled with a number of years of related experience or, alternately, higher academic qualifications with a minimum of a year of related experience.

An excellent starting salary, comprehensive employee benefit and an opportunity for personal growth in a dynamic setting is offered to the qualified individual.

Please address replies, in complete confidence, to:

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Upset May Be Pancreatitis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is meant by pancreatitis? I have been having indigestion lately. Some fever occasionally, pain in the upper part of my stomach, and nausea. My doctor thinks I have some trouble in the pancreas. All I do is try to stay on a low-fat diet and not eat too much at one time. The antacid pills don't seem to help much. — Mrs. D.

Comment: The "itis" signifies inflammation. That brings up the question: What's causing it? The answer is not an easy one.

For example, in some acute forms of pancreatitis the abdominal pain may be quite severe, and medical attention must be made to overcome the upset. But the most common form — and one often overlooked as "just chronic indigestion" — is the chronic form. Anyone suffering chronic indigestion should consult a physician for the cause, since it may result from trouble outside the stomach.

A diagnosis of pancreatitis is confirmed by special laboratory tests that pinpoint the trouble. Then comes the job of trying to discover the actual cause of the chronic inflammation. Is it due to a virus infection? In some patients' I have seen great improvement after a badly gall bladder was removed. (Its infection had slowly spread to the pancreas.) In others, alcohol was the irritating factor. Patients who were able to curtail or completely stop drinking felt better. In still others, overeating was the cause.

Substituting a half - dozen small meals daily for one or two very large ones has helped some patients. Medicines to aid digestion and enzyme extractions are often effective.

Not knowing your actual medical history or your habits, Mrs. D., I can't give you any specific advice. But from what I've said, it makes good sense to take the following steps, if you haven't already done so:

1. Have special x-ray made to check on the pancreas.

2. Have X rays made of the gall bladder.

3. Review your eating and drinking habits.

Chronic pancreatitis can sometimes be a stubborn ailment. Specialized care does more for it than haphazard pill-popping to relieve "indigestion."

For Mrs. V.: Osteomyelitis is not a cancer of the bone. It is an inflammation caused by germs, such as the staphylococcus, or tuberculosis bacillus. Injury is often the exciting factor. Unfortunately, the condition is not always easily cured, so don't add the needless worry about cancer. But in many cases seen early and treated effectively, operation and the use of antibiotics and other medications lead to cure.

For Mr. Y.: Weight lifting is all right for a 14 - year - old boy — but be sure it is fully explained or supervised by a gym instructor. Because some of these young fellows want to become Superman overnight so swerde and may hurt themselves. The same holds true for overdoing push-ups and situps. First make certain your son is physically well enough to undergo demanding physical effort.

For Mrs. N.: Whenever a woman in her 50s who has never had acne as a youngster complains of breaking out, I make this diagnostic stab in the dark: perhaps the trouble is due to a new cosmetic you are using. Are you? Look into it. Have a dermatologist investigate.

* * *

For Mr. K.: Chances are you have overlooked recent statistics. Concerning it on the increase rather than on the decline. Antibiotics haven't — as you say — wiped it out, as a major health problem.

New Hemorrhoid Treatment Works

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto doctor says he has a snappy answer to one of man's most painful ailments. He treats hemorrhoids, or piles, with rubber bands.

Hemorrhoids, a form of varicose veins, usually now bother sufferers by making the rectum lose control of elimination or putting up with their misery.

Dr. William Rudd recently described in the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians his 100-per-cent success in treating 10 patients using the Barnes-Hemorrhoidectomy Ligature technique — removing them by tying them off.

A special light rubber band is slipped over the hemorrhoid, constricting it at the base, and in about six days the hemorrhoid falls off with the rubber band.

The operation takes place in the doctor's office and requires no anesthetic. Four hemorrhoids can only be dealt with one at a time, about two weeks apart.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Machines Replace Doctors

I went over to the Chicago Cancer Prevention Center for a checkup the other day, and saw what the future has in store for us. It's a little spooky at first, but we might as well get used to it.

"Medical electronics" is the name of the new game, and while it may be true that a machine can't replace a really good doctor, it's equally true that doctors are in short supply these days and can't give as much time to each patient as they'd like to — or even as they need to.

What I visited was a "multiphasic health screening center," which not only can detect cancer or precancerous conditions, but also alerts the doctor to the possibility of other ailments lurking beneath the surface, by means of a computerized "profile" of the patient's symptoms.

In something under two hours, I was checked out for sight and hearing, heart and lungs, urine and stool, blood, on blood tests, and a complete medical interview with a counselor hooked up to a computer. All these are analyzed and summarized in an eight-page printout given to the doctor who sees you at the end of the procedure.

This saves him a couple of hours of time, and saves the patient that weird and expensive sense of dashing around to different doctors and clinics to get all this material together.

As we know, not only is there a desperate shortage of doctors, but there aren't enough trained technicians and para-medical workers around to take the routine load off the physicians' hands. The computer, in the long run, is the cheaper, faster, and probably more reliable than the element of human error we have sadly become accustomed to in the laboratory.

America's health problem is growing, not diminishing. People are living longer, and we are getting more old folks in our society. Nearly 100 million of us suffer from one or more chronic ailments. If we can detect these in the earlier stages, we can save billions of dollars in medical costs and innumerable lives that need not be lost.

Until now, it has simply been too difficult for the average person to submit to a thoroughgoing physical that is comprehensive enough to disclose any latent ailments or diseases. My own checkup came to $48, which is a bargain on a one-visit - to - one-place - once - a - year basis.

The U.S. will be spending more than $39 billion for health care this year, and much of it will be a waste of too little and too late. Cancer deaths are rising at the annual rate of about two per cent — which is higher than our population growth and our prosperity rate. The richest bit far from the healthiest country in the world, it is time we began using our new technology to save lives, not to kill them.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 19

Your birthday today: A time for settlement of basic patterns commences. If relations are precarious balance, perhaps your unconscious prefers it this way — you've already had several months in which to adjust. In all the excitement coming unseemingly circular, matters rise only a moderate degree above the starting point. You are to make real savings for later use, however. Today's natives show special temperament, a willingness to work, often a gift for music.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Stay around home and your neighborhood — it's quite enjoyable. Some chores can be done that never need repeating. Gather friends for a sociable evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You have more help than usual. Just put everybody to work as you get to them. The amusing side of existence should be fairly visible today.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): See what's going on in your favorite hobby. Sports events are prominent with odd incidents here and there, perhaps some record broken. Join-a-party this evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Let your sense of humor grow a little, there's encouragement all around you. Good news and warm emotional expression comes from somebody who cares.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): There's so much to do for the weekend's success, pitch in and get the chores done. The evening is sociable, with some serious exchanges of views amid the amenities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your morale and luck should be riding high. Go visiting, ask for anything within reason from the right people. Dress up and have a fun - time evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Go out of your way to make amends for any past errors. There's a delightful new pro mise to anticipate; share confidences with one who really understands you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be considerate of whatever you do, especially if it's for your personal interests instead of employment. People of more experience can be very helpful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Push right ahead with your available energy. Ask and you will receive. There is always somebody who has information on special things you need to know.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Get out early and wander around the edges of your regular "stamping ground"; or find detailed pictures of faraway places, from which you can learn something.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Unless you have already scheduled very important travels, stay home and see what can be made to happen. There is much to do, including things you've neglected.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Some little thing you do makes the world much brighter for a few people around you. Many of you need checking out; the more people involved the better.

Pension Increase Bill Receives Third Reading

OTTAWA (CP) — With Christmas only a week away, the Commons Thursday passed a government bill to increase old age pension and supplements the wish Health Minister John Munro estimated at more than 1.1 million Canadians — effective April 6.

The legislation — which would set the basic pension at $80 for all those 65 and over and increase the guaranteed annual supplement to a maximum $50 from $30 for those in need received third reading. But not before it had ultimate Conservative-New Democrat proposal that the motion not be put was defeated 109 to 72.

While the pensions bill was still at report stage — the step before third reading — an amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) which would have retained the cost-of-living escalator for the basic pension was defeated 165 to 78.

During debate at report stage the government was labelled by Scrooge by opposition MPs for not retaining the annual two-per-cent cost-of-living escalator for the basic pension.

Health Minister John Munro rejected opposition attacks, saying the bill would increase incomes for 64 per cent of those eligible for pensions.

Under present pensions legislation, 1.1 million of the 1.7 million people who would be 65 and over in 1971 would receive increase or less than $1,200 each. But with the bill, the single person over 65 would have an income under $1,620. No couple 65 and over would have combined incomes less than $2,660.

Mr. Munro said that with four million Canadians living in poverty the government has to be selective in distributing benefits. Persons most in need must have top priority.

F. R. Scott (PC—Simcoe North) said the bill is discriminatory because it creates "haves and have-nots" among pensioners. Also, the value of the basic pension would be eroded by the cost-of-living.

That is the line heard in Scrooge and here we are at Christmas time."

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said the Liberals are ignoring the democratic process by rushing through bills and brushing aside reasonable amendments.

The cabinet refused to be persuaded, even by Liberal backbenchers and government members were becoming "puppets and non-contributors."

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) said the legislation boosts bureaucracy and is hard on people.

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) said the bill should not be held up but he urged the government to find enough money to restore the cost-of-living escalator to the basic pension by next spring.

Roland Godin (Creditor—Portneuf) called on the government to get credit from the Bank of Canada to improve the pension increase.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said old people are being poorly treated because they have no important friends.

She said she had to support the "dishonest and "diabolical" bill to help the destitute who would benefit.

Robert G. Coates (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) said the bill takes away the value of saving. If people had savings it would jeopardize the assistance available to them from the government.

Government, Specialists Agree

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement between the Quebec government and Quebec's medical specialists was announced Thursday, ensuring application of the province's medical care insurance plan and ending a lengthy dispute.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay announced in the Quebec national assembly the signing with the 4,800-member Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists and said it gives the specialists about 8 per cent of the pay scales they sought.

The specialists were the leading critics of various themes in the legislation and went on strike for 10 days in October before being forced back to work at the height of the kidnap crisis.

Recent negotiations have covered mainly matters of pay.

The medical care plan was implemented Nov. 1 without signed agreements with the various medical professional associations. General practitioners have already signed an agreement although their approval have not reached a solution.

Mr. Castonguay also told the national assembly that the government will review the welfare policies to establish "better equilibrium" in services for the aged.

He said some old persons give up their possessions to qualify for admission to institutions and that the emphasis would shift to allow old persons to live out their lives independently instead of in institutions.

The language issue arose several times in Thursday's session.

Premier Bourassa told the assembly he is "not completely satisfied" with results so far achieved in his bid to make French the working language of the province.

A major test was the dispute between General Motors of Canada Ltd. and 2,300 members of the United Auto Workers who work at GM's plant in Ste. Therese, Que.

Mr. Bourassa told reporters outside the assembly that GM has accepted French as the working language at the plant "in principle."

He said his government has had some success in applying its language policy "but not enough to satisfy us."

Manpower Minister, Immigration Minister Francois Cloutier insisted that he had promised members of the governing Liberal party's caucus that he would present an amendment to a bill allowing immigrants to practice certain professions before becoming Canadian citizens as long as they have a working knowledge of French.

A caucus source said earlier that Mr. Cloutier had pledged to present an amendment to put the immigration department in charge of preparing a French test for immigrants by 29 professions specified in the bill.

The bill is the first piece of language legislation to be presented by the Bourassa government.

Its purpose is to encourage immigrants to Quebec to integrate into the French-speaking majority in the province.

Concerning electoral reform, a Quebec government spokesman said Thursday the legislative committee investigating electoral reform in the province will hear opinions from various groups interested in Quebec's electoral map, voting methods and the electoral law.

Denis Hardy (L — Terrebonne), government spokesman for the legislature committee, said hearings may be held throughout the province to gather opinions.

Mr. Hardy said the committee will call on experts "to make concrete recommendations which will formulate after hearing all the representations."

Members of the opposition Union Nationale and the Creditistes objected to proposed legislation which would exempt 17 provincial ridings from redistribution.

GM Back at Work

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. workers began returning to their jobs Thursday night as United Auto Workers locals gave overwhelming endorsement to a new three-year contract.

Maintenance men began warming up machinery, idle during the 96-day strike in preparation for a return to full production Monday.

Attendance at ratification meetings was low, and workers at Oshawa, the largest local, booed and jeered the union's Canadian director, Dennis McDermott, accusing him of a sell-out on the wage-parity issue.

But the final vote tallies showed 10,826 in favor of the new agreement and 1,162 against.

The 23,500 Canadian workers will get an immediate pay raise of $4.12 an hour in the case of assemblers, from the pre-strike level of $3.35.

By 1971 the rate will rise to $4.51 an hour plus cost-of-living increases if the consumer price index, based on the value of $1 in 1961, rises by more than 53 points.

The Oshawa local endorsed the contract 4,089 to 563. Other votes: St. Catharines 3,127 to 344; Windsor 1,286 to 147; Ste. Therese, Que., 1,285 to 161; Fridgidaire, Toronto, 337 to 126; London 512 to 8.

Mr. McDermott told the Oshawa members: "We came through for you and I'm telling you now this was a hard struggle, and if it hadn't been for the guts of your negotiating committee from Oshawa we wouldn't have won all that we did."

The wage-parity issue also drew comment at the other meetings but the vote indicated satisfaction with the deal that will bring Canadian workers back to base-rate parity with United States GM workers in December next year.

Then, Canadian workers will be making the $4.25 an hour U.S. workers settled for last month. Increases of three per cent in each of the second and third years of the contract will maintain equality with the U.S. base.

Troops Open Fire To Quell Riots

Twenty Persons Killed

WARSAW (CP) — After quelling mobs with rifle fire in the country's biggest shipyards, police and troops in Poland have placed another darkness curfew on the country's rebellious northern cities. Rioting was reported to have spread to a fifth city Friday, but there were no confirmed reports of new violence today.

Quoting newspaper accounts, Radio Gdansk reported Friday night that some of the thousands of rioters in the Gdynia shipyards fired on the troops and police.

"There could have been only one reply to this," the broadcast said, "a resolute action."

Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, clustered beside the Bay of Danzig, were torn by rebellious mobs early in the week. The fighting spread to Szczecin, 188 miles to the west, and outbreaks were reported Friday at Slupsk, a city of light industry 69 miles east of Szczecin. Authorities are reported to have used tear gas at Slupsk to restore order.

The government says up to 20 persons have died in the clashes and hundreds have been injured.

Radio Warsaw said the Polish news agency PAP reported that "calm prevailed in the whole of the triple cities" today, with trade and transportation working normally and 15 ships being loaded at the docks.

Poland's central press and radio kept silent about the situation in the Baltic port of Szczecin but a Radio Szczecin report monitored in London today said the city had passed a quiet night and was returning to normal.

Szczecin radio earlier reported arson and looting and word of violent street fighting in the city Wednesday. It was confirmed by a Swedish journalist Friday who spoke of street battles between tanks and demonstrators hurling gasoline bombs.

But not a word of this has appeared in a Warsaw newspaper, nor has it been reported by Warsaw radio.

Absence of any mention of Szczecin, Poland's biggest port, was regarded by observers as a sign that the authorities considered the situation not sufficiently under control to warrant a public statement.

Resentment at sharp pre-Christmas increases in food prices and some aspects of current economic reforms have been acknowledged in local press reports as the root cause of disorders along the Baltic coast.

Can Santa Do It?

At Santa's Village yesterday Dr. Richard Potter, MPP Quinte, stopped to meet the jolly gent himself — then decided to mail the first Christmas letter at the village's opening day. It's contents: A request for a Conservative party leader who will match all requirements for Ontario says the MPP.

March Ends 40 Years of Waiting

With a highland piper in the lead, city and Quinte area municipal heads walk across the new Dundas Street bridge following official ceremonies this morning. The structure will remain closed until Tuesday to allow completion of lighting details.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cold air already in the far northern regions of the province will sweep southwards overnight. Near the lower lakes temperatures will be in the 20s by morning. Cold weather will be general across the province on Sunday.

Laporte's Widow Pensioned

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly gave third and final reading Friday to legislation that provides a lifetime pension to Mrs. Pierre Laporte, wife of Quebec's former labor minister who was slain by his kidnappers.

Approval was unanimous.

Mrs. Laporte is to receive a special pension of $12,000 per year along with the $4,900 given annually in the case of the death of an assembly member.

The pension is retroactive to Oct. 18

Mr. Laporte, kidnapped Oct. 10, was strangled to death Oct. 17.

Totals Growing

Santa Has Full Schedule

He's the busiest man in town, but he has time — and happy talk — for everyone.

And, now he's happily at it again.

No one has ever figured out Santa's work schedule and the computer has yet to be built that can codify his magical labor performance each year.

Like yesterday, in Belleville, for instance; sharp at 2 p.m. he merrily rolled up at Santa's Village — the East Dundas Street site of fun and fantasy provided since last year by city ambulance operator Stu Meeks. From now until Christmas Santa will hold regular court there for thousands of city youngsters.

Then, as quick as you could say Merry Christmas there was the jovial gentleman spreading festive fun at the patients in the paediatrics ward at the annual Women's Hospital Auxiliary children's party.

From now until Dec. 24 such instant appearances will be the order at a myriad of party events with Santa trooping happily from scene to scene.

Between times, he'll be holding still from 7-9 p.m. each day at Santa Village — except Sunday.

Even then, the bustling jovial gentleman finds time to make exceptions. He's available for school groups in the mornings and afternoons — if they phone ahead.

Help! It's Santa!

Santa's appearance sometimes produces some startling effects — as at the hospital children's ward. It took 10-month-old Betty Anne Radway a moment to recover from the surprise of the jolly gent's visit at party organized by Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Frustration Compounds Problems of the Young Unemployed

TORONTO (CP) — A feeling of frustration is setting in among the thousands of youthful unemployed in this city, one of Canada's largest job-opportunity areas.

It's an employers' market and the young don't have the experience although they are better educated than ever before, say experts in the job-placement field.

In a city which has a wide variety of jobs, one-third of the estimated 47,000 unemployed persons registered at Canada Manpower Centres are under 25.

This figure can't be compared with the recent Dominion Bureau of Statistics report that said 18.3 per cent of the national labor force under 25 was unemployed because the figures are compiled differently, says Robert Gordon, Ontario economist for the department of manpower and immigration.

"But I would have to say that this year it is significantly worse for job-seekers under 25," Mr. Gordon said. "Any time unemployment gets worse, this means it hits young people harder."

"The fluctuations in unemployment are wider in the younger people because of this," says Geraldine Sperling, Metropolitan Toronto economist for manpower and immigration.

Mr. Gordon said the main reason for the high unemployment among young people is that the job market is glutted because of the post-war baby boom.

A spokesman for Drake Personnel, Canada's largest private-employment agency, says registrations in the under-25 bracket are up 19 per cent over last year.

"We get many inquiries from high school graduates but very often it is pointless for them to come down and register," he said. "Most of the jobs we have are for qualified people who are in the $10,000 to $25,000 bracket.

"Hundreds of university graduates are unable to find work. Employers aren't willing to pay them what they think they are worth because it's an employers' market.

Most students and graduates now still want any kind of job they can get although "there's a certain element in any group that will not take a certain job."

"But for the most part they are willing to take any kind of a job whether it is full time or part time."

She says the student job situation has not improved much this year over November.

The situation is even more critical among unskilled and uneducated workers. Before, they could count on casual labor to keep them off welfare rolls. Today, what little unemployment insurance they had built up has run out.

As a result, the Metropolitan Toronto welfare department has been forced to open an office to deal exclusively with single, employable men who have neither income nor savings.

John Anderson, Metro social services commissioner, says the number of people asking for welfare in the city now is higher than it was during the depression.

Mr. Anderson says the men, most of whom are under 30, are streaming into the office at a rate of 50 to 75 a day. Of the estimated 47,000 registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission in Toronto, about 7,000 have come here for welfare.

Many are handicapped because they lack high school education and they are a migratory group.

Frank Ianni, regional information officer for manpower, warns young people who want to come to Toronto to seek work to check first with their local manpower centre.

"We don't want them needlessly coming to the big city," he says. "We've had a lot of sad cases of people coming here for the big jobs and big money."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has forecast "civil unrest" among the young people because of their growing unemployment rate, but there are doubters.

Mr. Gordon says "there are individuals who are very frustrated and I'm sure there is the odd person who is militant, but we can see no signs that they're going to have to start barricading the streets."

Mrs. Sperling says January traditionally will be the worst month, but if the economy eases it will take companies time to make necessary interest adjustments before they start hiring.

"For many people, I think it is going to be a long, cold winter," said Mr. Gordon.

Christmas Present

Cavalcade of Vehicles 'Opens' Dundas Bridge

A Christmas gift was presented to residents of Belleville and the Quinte district this morning.

It was the official opening of the new Dundas Street bridge over the Moira River which Mayor J. Russell Scott said has been talked of for more than half a century.

More than 50 area civic officials and interested spectators turned out for the opening termed by Mayor Scott as "an early Christmas present" for area residents.

Following the opening the bridge was closed immediately to allow completion of last minute details and will go into public use early next week.

Taking part in the special ceremonies were Mayor Scott and AM Arthur Keegan who unveiled a plaque bearing the names of the general contractor, consulting engineers and members of city council.

Quinte Riding MP said the cost of the new bridge was being paid by city funds with the assistance of provincial grants.

"But don't let us kid ourselves," he said, "everybody is helping to pay for the bridge."

While the bridge was being completed in the term of present city council members, Mr. Potter said that the work of previous councils and of former Mayor Jack Ellis who laid the groundwork must also be remembered.

Other area municipal heads speaking briefly during opening ceremonies incluc Ameliasburg Reeve Russell Thompson; Reeve Brenda Casey of Thurlow and Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney.

A plaque at the sidewalk railing abutment at the Front Street ramp/way to the bridge was unveiled.

Then a ribbon across the bridge was cut by Mayor J. Russell Scott and AM. Arthur Keegan, chairman of the city council traffic and light committee.

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony, officials of the "piped" across the bridge along with a cavalcade of vehicles, including city trucks, a fire engine, taxis, ambulance and other transport equipment representative of vehicles which will be using the bridge.

Although now "officially" open the new bridge will not go into public use until noon on Tuesday to allow a final check of new traffic lights, removal of roadway "detail" on East Dundas Street between the new bridge and Pinnacle Street and completion of street lighting.

Rideau Valley Constructors of Strafford were the general contractors for the bridge structure, while the bridge ramps and Dundas roadway reconstruction is being carried out by Lightfoot Construction of Belleville.

Lightfoot also constructed the Bay Bridge, Road 49 CPR overpass which had been in use for the past two years.

The new bridge and Dundas Street between the river and the CPR overpass will be four lanes. For this winter, however, the roadway on the old "Dutt's Elbow Hill" will be only two lanes with the contractor this winter completing the necessary rock excavation to widen it to four lane width.

Fire Damage Extensive

Extensive fire, smoke and water damage resulted yesterday afternoon at a West Bridge Street residence after a blaze erupted in a second floor front bedroom and forced two young boys to the street.

The blaze was confined mainly to the one bedroom but other upstairs rooms were smoke blackened, and water went through the floor to drip through ceilings into first floor rooms.

"The two boys were fortunate," said Fire Chief Leo Culhane. "The fire could easily have resulted in fatalities."

The house at 49 West Bridge is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Court Bradley, both of whom were at work at the time of the fire.

The fire chief said the two young Bradley boys, Craig and Scott, aged about seven and nine years, apparently attempted to put the fire out before calling firemen.

He said kitchen pots were found on the upstairs bathroom floor where they possibly attempted to get water.

The boys turned in the alarm and when firemen arrived they were standing on the sidewalk in front of the burning house.

Chief Culhane said the boys could easily have been overcome by the heavy smoke before they got out of the house.

Firemen used two lines of booster hose to quell the flames. Burning bedroom furniture was tossed through upstairs window to the front lawn.

LEGION LA BRANCH 99

Four new members were initiated at the monthly meeting of the ladies' auxiliary branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion which was held in the Legion hall on December 13. The new members were Mrs. Marie Cooney, Mrs. Norma Van Alkan, Mrs. Evelyn Mossip and Mrs. Lorraine Fournier. An application for membership was received from Mrs. Alice Clare.

The meeting was chaired by the president Edna Seamark. For the benefit of new members it was noted that the bereaved and badge are to be worn to all general meetings. The beret can be bought from the secretary Marcie Spencer. The uniform consists of a grey skirt, navy blue blazer and dark shoes. The berets are navy blue when the member is in full uniform.

Members were asked to give their names to Jess Bushell for the entertainment to be held on January 16. Her phone number is 968-3356. The bus will leave the legion hall at 12 o'clock. It was reported that Freida Mason is ill in Belleville General Hospital.

The meeting closed with a delightful lunch served by the lunch committee. There was also the lucid exchange of gifts. The next general meeting will be held on January 19 at 8 p.m.

All Quiet on the Surface But Candidates Out Working

Christmas is coming — and so is a leadership campaign for Ontario's ruling Conservatives.

And — in the Quinte ridings at least — that's the one notable feature of the Robarts-succession contest: It's still on the way.

In fact, 11 days after Premier Roberts announced his intended retirement, things are so quiet along the Quinte campaign trails you could hear a snow flake fall.

As yet say the presidents of local Conservative constituency organizations, they haven't heard a word from a single contender for the leadership — to be decided at a mid-February convention in Toronto.

"I've received several Christmas cards I wouldn't normally expect — but that's about all," said one constituency president.

The Christmas holiday is seen as the biggest single deterrent to a more committed tone in the race to date.

Once the season's over the campaign will step up, with leadership candidates finally announcing themselves, the local party organizers feel.

There also is a major secondary reason. Behind the scenes, activity is afoot, as passive as things up front, indicates Ted Parker, president of Quinte riding.

Candidates with ambitions for leadership now are likely engaged in probing their bases of political support and financing before launching themselves into a bid that is costly and time-consuming, he says.

With bases secured, the candidates then will officially announce themselves and hit the campaign trails seeking convention support from the ridings.

At the same time the local organizations will begin holding meetings to name voting delegates to the convention.

In Quinte riding this could come between Christmas and the New Year or early in January.

Harold Boster, president of Prince Edward - Lennox Conservatives says no such meeting has yet been organized in his riding but he expects it early in the New Year.

Kei Smith, president of Hastings riding association, said today his group likely will name its delegates toward the end of January.

Drinking Drivers Are Target

PICTON — Members of the Picton provincial police detachment have begun their seasonal campaign to keep "spirits out of Christmas."

Constable Douglas Goodkey reported today that four suspected impaired drivers were apprehended last night at different points in Prince Edward County.

He said police officers are "cracking down" on impaired drivers in an effort to make the holiday safer for all motorists.

Having trouble making last minute selections for Christmas toys? Mrs. E. D. Fyffe of Picton was overwhelmed at the selection at this downtown Belleville store's toy department. Managers indicate major buying is over, last minute stocking-fillers are now being considered.

No Stopping Junior

Local toy sellers indicate parents have an easier time buying Christmas presents for girls this year. Pauline Ryan, 4, and sister Christine, 2, of RR 5, Belleville, were out shopping with their mother yesterday and the selection seems to have been made.

Youngsters Selective About Toys

According to some local store managers, children have been setting their sights higher than "visions of sugar-plums" and the parents are having a hard time making toy selections their youngsters will be satisfied with.

At least at this time, a week before Christmas.

It was generally agreed that the best selection was "wiped out on Christmas eve closer."

In some cases parents made their selection some weeks ago on the lay-away plan.

"Either they're done or they haven't started yet," was one observation.

But one store spokesman expressed an air of frustration about toy selections.

"Every year it gets worse . . . people don't know what to buy and we have difficulty in knowing what to stock," he said. He explained that the "trouble lies with kids wasting one specific thing and in many cases parents cant' get it."

And this man, a veteran of the retail selling business blames a great part of the confusion on television advertising.

It was his opinion that the U.S. based firms have been bombarding kids with television advertisements for new games, dolls that bathe themselves (none yet that can clothe themselves, but the manufacturers are working on it), and faster cars; in other words, youngsters get snowed under when it comes to choice.

But what is advertised in the U.S. doesn't necessarily show up on Canadian toy shelves.

"Canada usually is the last to receive the new items . . . the advertisers who have their commercials beamed north of the border don't cash in on the Canadian market."

The result?

"Everyone is out of the best sellers, the kids don't get satisfied in what they want, and the parents don't know what to select, the choice is too varied."

"Of course," another manager noted, "there are still a lot of stocking fillers left, that's what people are buying for the most part now . . . inexpensive, small items."

Managers indicated that stockpiles were about the same as last year, but opinions were varied when it came to describing sales.

Some managers indicated good sales, others found the weather had kept a lot of people away from stores.

No real rush has occurred, but some of the retailers felt that a possible rush had been cut off by poor weather.

Brochure Promotes Area Conservation

"Conservation is our business — make it your business too!

The new brochure, covering all phases of conservation work in capsule form, sets out the major programs administered by the authority's five advisory boards and lists the conservation areas or parks, along with the facilities available for public use.

A color picture of the O'Hara Mill and damsite northwest of Madoc appears on the front page while inside are color shots of recreation areas, waterrelated sites and reforestation projects and pictures depicting nature and wild life studies.

Also included is a large scale color map of the Moira watershed with its more than 1,000 square miles. The map places conservation areas, dam sites and reforestation projects administered by the authority.

The Population Problem

The latest round in the "Zero Population Growth" dialogue has been illuminating if not conclusive so far as solving the problem of population explosion.

A Belleville audience heard once again at a recent EPG-sponsored symposium that at present population rates the world is heading for a point of time around the year 2000 when, to put it simply, there will be too many people in a universe drained of the food and other natural resources necessary to sustain life.

And it is no use suggesting, as did one speaker on the EPG panel, that the public has not been warned on this matter. Newspapers, said Dr. J. R. Coleman of the Canada Fisheries Research Station, have an obligation to bring over-population to public attention. For Dr. Coleman's information, and that of the public, it is needless reminding once again, the subject was discussed in this space some weeks ago.

At that time we noted that Canada, with the world's second largest land mass after China, and countries like Australia, as well as large tracts of the United States, still have space enough to absorb further population, but against this there was Alderman Enos David's interesting point at the meeting that North Americans are using up 30 times as much of the world's resources as the people of underdeveloped countries. Be that as it may, is there not some hope in continuing efforts not only to encourage family planning, birth control, but the world's supply of food? If the Pill is losing its popularity, as Dr. J. R. Birchard of Belleville claims, then surely the "good, reliable, innocuous" method of birth control he says is required should not be beyond the ingenuity of researchers to devise. Maybe it is not as simple as that, but whether it is the Pill or some other method, people must be made to realize that the era of very large families is past, that there is a very real threat to the world's population, if not right now, then only three decades or so hence.

The other area of hope we envisage along with effective voluntary restrictions on the size of families is an increase in the food and other resources of underdeveloped countries. India, we understand, has made big strides in increasing its wheat acreage and if other nations can move toward a greater degree of self-sufficiency so much the better. The resources of the ocean too are largely untapped, and we must move forward on this as well as the other fronts mentioned.

Meanwhile, let the people of this area, and Canada at large, take seriously the warnings of the experts. Our very means of life are at stake. It will be a hollow victory if we survive George Orwell's dire predictions for 1984, only to perish around 2006 for lack of food, oxygen or whatever.

Ottawa Shooting

The shooting, in cold blood, and without warning of a 31-year-old armored car messenger in Ottawa recently is one of those sick episodes that should make Canadians the day the government abolished the death penalty. It is a curious fact that our capital city, relatively small as the country's big cities go, relatively law-abiding too, does however occasionally erupt with violence of this nature.

There was the killing a year or two ago of two men travelling with their wives in a separate cars near the village of Carp after they had been followed out of Ottawa by a carload of young men and forced to stop. Now this pre-Christmas killing in which a young father of three was shot down.

It is unlikely that we shall see the restoration of the death penalty, but nevertheless occurrences such as this cannot go unpunished. Three early suspects are reported to have been released. However, if convictions ultimately are obtained, and life imprisonment is imposed then the courts should see to it that the term of imprisonment is just that — life. Society must be protected and short of the death sentence which no longer applies, this is the only way such protection can be afforded.

Destination Japan

Japan and Germany are in the van of world industrial achievement and in the research into new methods. Each, it is interesting to note, is benefiting from the progress of the other, for German Features reports that the giant German complex of Krupp is sending machines — described as the world's largest — to Japan for use in the country's hydro power system. The equipment, weighing 63 tons, can twist cable up to 4.1 inches in diameter and is similar to machinery exported by Germany to other countries.

Prime Minister's Announcement

University Radicals Will No Longer Have A Free Hand

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Finally, one of Ottawa's best-kept secrets has been broken.

By Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. So the disclosure of it could scarcely be more official.

In breaking the secret, the Prime Minister broke some startling news — to some in the academic community. It could be bad news — that from now on the university campus no longer can count on being the sanctum of student revelation.

Not, at least, with the immunity they have enjoyed from police surveillance through these last seven increasingly violent years.

Here is the background of it. Back in 1961, certain elements in the university community drew up a manifesto — a sort of bill of education rights — demanding the barring of the canons in the inter-cover agents of the RCMP Security and Intelligence Division.

That was just about the year, coincidentally, that the F.L.Q.— Front de Libération du Québec — the separatist terrorist conspiracy that later was to kill Pierre Laporte and Bishop James Cross — was born on the campuses of French Canada, to a large extent. It has been said by Quebeckers, at the University of Montreal.

The RCMP Security and Intelligence men kept watch.

And then, over the protests of the then RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan and his deputies, the Canadian Association of University Teachers sold this bill of goods in the name of Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

There was one small qualification, in the fine print of this strange agreement to enshrine the campus from the infection of police surveillance.

The Security and Intelligence men of the RCMP could still profane the closed academic community if — and only if — they were checking on the loyalty ruling of professor or student who might be a candidate for a "sensitive" position with the federal Government.

Otherwise the university was out of bounds — by prime ministerial decree laid down in 1963 — to the RCMP.

So that slammed the doors of the University of Montreal and other Quebec campuses to the RCMP undercover men who had been attending — and attempting to infiltrate — early academic sessions of FLQ partisans and sympathizers.

It was the unilateral decision of the Prime Minister, and the few senior RCMP officers and senior civil servants in on the secret were instructed to keep quiet about it.

If the campus had not been called sacrosanct seven years ago, conceivably the S and I Division of the RCMP might have been in a better position to get to the heart of the FLQ terror when it struck down Pierre Laporte this fall and held British diplomat James Jasper Cross — and the nation — to ransom.

A former senior RCMP Intelligence officer has been quoted as saying:

"Those in vehement in espousing the cause of academic freedom overlook the fact that some radicals, revolutionaries and professional subversives are trying to destroy it; we in the RCMP always wanted to protect true academic freedom as much as any of the universities do.

"As it stands now" — but Prime Minister Trudeau has warned that it may no longer hold good — "a revolutionary can come to Canada from the United States or Europe, enrol in a university and then devote the bulk of his energies to revolutionary activities, and still be accorded all the protection provided by the sanctuary of the campus.

"The revolutionary on campus has been normally then a Communist diplomat busy with subversion. At least the diplomat can be expelled; but the anarchist using the campus as a base for subversion can not even be investigated."

Well, how do the universities feel about it?

They set out their position in a brief to the Royal Commission on Security which only last year warned of the explosive FLQ danger.

They argued that the universities themselves should ensure that groups and activities on campuses "are not influenced or used for subversive purposes of alien activists from outside or without the country."

In its brief to the Royal Commission on Security, the Canadian Association of University Teachers suggested there should be no security or intelligence surveillance whatsoever on the campus.

The brief, in part, said: that the Association "decidedly disputes the idea that police security forces are best able to deal with possible subversion, arguing that such surveillance creates the slightly sinister — and entirely misleading — aspect of "security officers spying on universities."

The RCMP still insists it does not oppose the concept of free discussion of ideas or ideologies, either on campus or on the street. But it warns that it has been hamstrung by the "hands-off" prime ministerial decree that overlooked the trend towards violence and evidence of revolutionary propaganda and subversive activity on some campuses.

And now, another and tougher Prime Minister than the inquisitive Pearson is warning the campus community of its peril.

These are his words, broadcast the other night over the Canadian Broadcasting System television network in the U.S.:

"A policy affirmed in 1963 [by the universities] and reaffirmed I believe in '68 or '69 (by Mr. Pearson) that there would be no RCMP surveillance of university campuses in the name of freedom of thought and freedom of speech was, and is, at that time a good decision.

"But it is apparent that if the revolutions and the revels are going to begin on campuses, it is apparent that if the instigators of violent dissent are going to find their natural milieu there, that there can be no more exception for the intellectual part of the community, in the name of academic freedom, than there can be for you and me in the name of other freedoms."

Taking the Prime Minister at his word, Quebec Education Minister Jean-Jacques Cherre has called a Royal Commission of investigation of the universities in his province where birth was given to the infant FLQ at the turn of the decade.

(The next Ottawa Offbeat will reproduce the text of Prime Minister Trudeau in his question and answer session with the CBS on the meaning and price of real freedom in Canada.)

Link with the Past

Canadians in recent years have become increasingly interested in their past, in the traditions of pioneer days and back to the time of the early explorers. Municipalities are similarly motivated and locally there is the move to acquire Glanmore House, the home of Mrs. George Faulkner, for a museum and art gallery. Here is a similar establishment, Huron County, the Pioneer Museum in Goderich, one of the growing number linking Canadians with their heritage. Snowmobiles

Is New Sport Menacing Rights of Citizens?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Snowmobiles are means for family recreational sport, vehicles for the outdoors to breed and butter for many who manufacture, sell and service it. But what about the great majority who do not own one and do not want one or the accompanying noise, pollution, carbon monoxide and lead pollution, danger on the sidewalks, playgrounds, parks and roads.

Council is meeting to discuss new bylaws regulating the use of snowmobiles within the city limits. As a citizen of Belleville I would like to add my voice to the chorus of the many on this issue: Unless equipped day with earplugs, use of the harbor (Victoria Park) skating facilities and of the Zwicky Island skating and tobogganing facilities, which used to be enjoyed by dozens of people, in well-nigh impossible because of the roar and dangers from even one-half dozen snowmobiles. And remember, a snowmobile costs from about $500 up, but a pair of skates or a toboggan less than one-tenth of it. I suggest our city fathers search their social conscience well before allowing snowmobiles in our city limits created to be enjoyed by all, they are now reserved largely for the affluent.

Even the enjoyment of a Sunday walk along once quiet wintry residential streets is a thing of the past. Not only because of the relatively few that ride on sidewalks, but because of the constant din.

The snowmobile is in many respects like a car. Therefore, only snowmobiles and their drivers complying to the same regulations applicable to cars and their drivers should be allowed on public property. They should be equipped with anti-noise and anti - pollution devices in their engines, public liability and property damage insurance, safety checks for second - hand vehicles, compliance with regulations governing the use of roads, sidewalks and parks.

The snowmobile brings perhaps advantage to some, but certainly all the disadvantages to all the rest of us.

DIETHER PESCHKEN

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 18, 1970 . . .

CSM John R. Osborn gave his life for his comrades of the Royal Winnipeg Grenadiers 29 years ago today—in 1941—during the Japanese attack on Hong Kong by throwing himself on a grenade a second before it exploded. For this he was awarded a posthumous VC after the war, when the survivors of Canada's C force at Hong Kong returned from captivity. Of the total of 1,973 Canadians, 555 died in combat or in Japanese camps.

1949—Canada, Britain and the United States agreed on standardization of military terms and fighting methods.

1941—British evacuated Penang, Malaysia.

1890—Egerton Ryerson, educationist, died.

1812—British troops occupied Fort Niagara.

Property Tax—Is It A Tool For Economic Oppression?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Property taxes were first invented about 40 years ago to replace statute labor in order to release people from public services, in exchange for money and to gain from efficiencies of a stable labor force.

Since then property taxes have eroded into a tool for economic oppression.

Property taxes are now split more or less equally for education and other services. The County school boards will further accentuate this trend toward growing rural educational tax surpluses to pay for growing urban educational tax deficits. Other services, i.e., garbage collection, etc., devouring the other half of our property taxes will now be controlled from Toronto, and equalized assessment will again increase the rural share.

We have now arrived at the point where our local property taxes are not only spent on maintaining our local services but to bail the cities out of their financial difficulties.

The solution regarding the educational share of our property taxes, is for the provincial government to assume a greater share of the educational cost, and regarding the other services for the provincial government to embark upon a program of decentralizing to relieve the urban pressures and accelerate rural development.

Political Extremes Are Threat to Our Freedom

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Freedom, as Canadians have known it, is based on the delicate balance between the left-socialist-communist on the one hand and the right-capitalist monopolist on the other. When we fall towards one or the other, we lose freedom. The left tend toward the ultimate use of guns to enforce their will while the right tend toward the use of cash. In either case, whether we give in to guns or cash, we lose freedom.

The more prospered we are to locale between these two extremes, the greater will be the degree of our individual freedom.

As the Canadian population increases, new laws develop to regulate our lives and therefore constitute a loss of freedom. If these required laws are shaped by the leftist or rightist, they will undoubtedly constitute a further loss of freedom.

The Canadian governments, whether Federal, Provincial or municipal, maintain absolute power and therefore Canadian government is itself a near monopoly. This is in contrast to the U.S. type of government where the president, House of Assembly, Senate, and Judiciary act as checks on each others activities and is further removed from being itself monopolistic.

We must remold our governing process if we are to maintain a maximum degree of freedom. We must develop a government that is free of the right - capitalist - monopolist-orientated or left-socialist - communist orientated. This can either be done by rewriting our constitution or by encouraging more political parties. The National NDP, Quebec Creditiste, and Parti Québecois are popular examples of the latter approach.

Astrology Called Substitute Faith

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Horoscopes are a "substitute faith," says Rev. Benson Jones, minister of Red Deer First Baptist Church.

There are many reasons that people turn for guidance to horoscopes, he feels.

These include widespread fear and anxiety, confusion of the times over standards of morality and right and wrong, failure of institutional religion to answer people's needs, interest in the heavens sparked by recent space exploration, curiosity about the mysterious or occult and the need to count as an individual in an impersonal age.

Many of astrology's converts are refugees from the churches, Mr. Jones said, adding that there is a danger that many make it a substitute faith and no longer look to God for assurance and meaning in life.

WHA Concludes Year at Dessert Party

A dessert party for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held last Tuesday at Education Hall. Two beautifully decorated tea tables were admired by the members. A red net cloth over white with a centrepiece of poinsettia plant held an array of desserts made by the executive. At the other, tea table, the centrepiece was an attractive Christmas candle. Arrangements for the luncheon were made by Mrs. J. B. W. Carlin.

Mrs. B. E. Burley issued a warm welcome to John Kuneky, acting administrator and Miss Ruth Gaw, director of Nursing Service. The administrative secretary, Mrs. R. Dearborn and medical records secretary, Mrs. J. Watson were also present as guests.

In her monthly report, Mrs. S. B. Bochnek, chairman of Volunteer Services, revealed that 1280 magazines were circulated in the hospital during November. There is a constant need for current magazines, which may be left at admitting, the switchboard or volunteer office. The volunteers are helping in the Pediatric playroom, while ten prospective volunteers were interviewed in November. A request was made for members who could drive patients to physiotherapy for their treatment. In November 340 patients were visited. Mrs. Bochnek expressed appreciation to all volunteers who had served so faithfully during 1970.

In her report Mrs. C. D. Ashley told the meeting that Christmas puppets are now being distributed to Pediatric patients on their discharge from hospital.

Mrs. M. E. Manning, bulletin editor, thanked Mrs. Owen Clarke for her help in processing the bulletin also Mrs. R. S. Knight. There were 358 bulletins mailed for the December mailing. Mrs. Manning noted that Mrs. J. H. Forrester had written the bulletin during the months of November and December.

Holiday Treats convener, Mrs. P. M. Till, is busy collecting the handmade gifts that have been made by Auxiliary members to distribute to patients who are in the hospital on Christmas day. Mrs. Till does require people to help her on this day and would appreciate their assistance.

A co-chairman of the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, presented a cheque for $1,000. The Shop workers are pleased with the generous donations they have received throughout the year and all the willing help that has been given by interested volunteers. Mrs. Burley added her recognition of the outstanding contribution made by the Opportunity Shop.

On Friday a children's party for the patients in the paediatrics will take place. Gifts have been purchased by the Auxiliary for this event.

Mrs. Burley thanked all officers and chairmen of committees who have helped maintain the success that the Auxiliary has always enjoyed. To show appreciation, Mrs. Burley presented each chairman of the Opportunity Shop with Auxiliary membership pins. These chairmen are: Mrs. P. H. Bowler, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, and the other C. A. Campbell. The other chairman, Mrs. F. H. Beeby is at present in India.

Mrs. Burley called upon Mrs. W. H. Fiehle to take the chair for the election of officers. Mrs. Fiehle thanked Mrs. Burley for her outstanding leadership during the past two years. She asked Mrs. W. G. Hervey, past president of the Auxiliary, to read the slate of officers which follows: past president, Mrs. B. E. Burley; president, Mrs. J. E. Nelles; 1st vice-president, Mrs. S. B. Bochnek; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. D. Ashley; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. A. B. Duffy; recording secretary, Mrs. D. G. Burr; treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Adams, and corresponding secretary, Mrs. N. E. Manning.

Area W.I. Hold Yule Meetings

QUINTE WOMEN'S

The December meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of the president Mrs. Arnold Mitchell with an attendance of 25 members and ten visitors.

Mrs. Mitchell opened the meeting in the usual manner and extended a special welcome to all. Roll call was answered by repeating a verse from a favorite Christmas card. Reports of Activement Day held at Moira Secondary School in November were given. Mrs. Bessie Keepe and Mrs. Edith Thomson were selected as delegates to the Quinte Institutes 4-H Club.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Harry Tufts assisted by Mrs. W. Tufts gave an interesting paper on the motto "It is by giving we receive and hearts that serve need never grieve". Three Christmas carols were sung with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Parrott.

Main speaker was Mrs. E. Denyes who brought an inspiring Christmas message. She also gave a-vivid description of her tour to the village of Oberammergau located in the Bavarian Alps in Germany. While there she attended the Passion Play which is only performed once in every ten years. It lasts six and one half hours and is played five times weekly for 39 weeks. There is no applause throughout and due to the reverence of the performance, the audience files out silently.

Mrs. Grills read a poem and Mrs. Denyes told of the presentation of the St. John Ambulance award presented to her by Governor General Michener for her volunteer work.

Mrs. Mitchell thanked all for taking part in the program.

QUEENSBORO WI

QUEENSBORO — Mrs. Arthur Holmes was hostess for the December meeting of the Queensboro branch of the WI which was held on Wednesday evening December 9 at the Institute hall with Mrs. McMurray, branch president in charge.

Members decided to give a donation towards the Christmas party for the children of the township to be held in Actinolite next week. Mrs. Roy Rollins was appointed to buy eight more chairs for the Institute hall. It was also decided to buy curtains for the hall. A report of the program and the committee in charge served lunch.

The branch directors were in charge of the Christmas program. They had an attractively decorated tree with gifts for the members.

Mrs. Arthur Holmes showed pictures she had taken of different places. There were readings by Miss Roberta Sager, Mrs. McMurray and Mrs. Bosley and a monologue on Christmas shopping by Mrs. Harry Declair. Several carols were sung and Santa Claus arrived and presented each member with a gift. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting and a social time was enjoyed.

Ann Landers' Divorcee Contemplates Daughter's Advances

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a divorcee, 34 — but I look younger. The "problem" I am writing about isn't exactly a problem yet, but it could be. So I am writing to Ann Landers — in the spirit of "preventive medicine."

ANN LANDERS

I am planning to marry a man who is a few years my junior. Phil is divorced, but he has no children. We are both in love for the very first time. The potential problem is my daughter. Baba is 14 going on 29 if you get what I mean. She is as fully developed as I was when I married. The girl has entirely too much sex appeal for a kid her age.

Whenever Phil is around she behaves in a flirty manner and is shamefully aggressive. (Probably testing her femininity.) I have said nothing to anyone but it bothers me a great deal. Should I speak to Baba or to Phil or should I keep quiet? Does this bode ill for the future? Baba is really a good girl but her own father ignored her and perhaps this is why she is so eager for male attention. I should tell you that my daughter is hostile and openly competitive with me. Am I over-reacting? What do you think? — TINDERBOX.

DEAR T.: Psychiatrists call the step-daughter-dad crush the Phaedra complex. (Phaedra was a mythological character in Greek literature who married an older man.) This sometimes occurs with natural fathers and sexy daughters but less often because of our cultural taboos against incest. One of the principle motivating factors, of course, is a daughter's jealous competitiveness with her real mother.

Say nothing to Baba. She would interpret your uneasiness as fear and insecurity. Phil should be alerted to the seductive nature of the girl's behavior. His reaction should be a fatherly response. — friendly but not too intimate. The poor girl's problem is, as you suggested, rejection from her real Dad.

* * * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law is a nice guy — but BUT — after a big dinner when he starts belching that makes me sick to my stomach. Just before the dessert is served, he lights up a cigarette — then he mashes the cigarette out in the leftover potatoes or whatever is on his plate. When I see him do this I get so mad I can under my breath. Don't suggest that I tell him. My husband will not tolerate any criticism of his father. Please, Ann, suggest something. My ulcer kicks up every time he does this disgusting thing. — DYSPEPTIC DORIS.

DEAR D.D.: The moment your father-in-law lights up, remove his dinner plate and replace it with a nice big ashtray. — Simple wasn't it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three months ago I bet a friend $20 I could get a phony letter printed in your column. I wrote ten letters and they were all pretty darned good. The deadline passed yesterday. I lost my $20. You didn't print a single one of my masterpieces. How do you tell? — SKUNKED.

DEAR SKUNKED: Phony letters, like phony people, have an insecure quality . . . hard to describe, but fairly obvious if you know what to look for.'

Then, of course, a New Haven postmark is often a tipoff that the Yalies are at it again. Of course I get fooled now and then, but not very often anymore.

Points for Parents

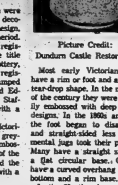
By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Those girls are too old for Jenny to be running around with. She can't have dates or stay out as late as they do."

Mother: "Jenny's very smart for a 12-year-old. Her teacher says she has the IQ of a 16-year-old. Children her own age bore her."

The IQ is a measure of potential mental ability, not of maturity or responsibility. While Jenny may be ahead of her age mentally, she needs time for her emotions and her judgment to mature.

Jenny may be intrigued by older children because their conversation and actions are more stimulating, but problems may develop if the age span is too great. Parents should help a precocious daughter find interesting friends closer to her own age.



Jugs Once Popular As Storage Vessels

Jugs became popular as storage vessels in the 18th century, both for the table and as parts of wash sets. Early jugs of the Georgian period prior to 1800 were small, usually simple in design and somewhat bulbous. Victorian jugs were much larger and by 1900 came in every conceivable shape with at least a gallon capacity.

Jugs used for the table were particularly likely to be decorated with embossed design, during the Victorian period. The one illustrated was registered in 1859 under the title Diana, by the Villa Pottery, Cobridge. Beside the register mark the jug is stamped with a coat-of-arms, and Edward Walley, Cobridge, Staffordshire. It is fitted with a Britannia metal top.

The jug is a typical Victorian example of a white or greyish body with heavily embossed design. The outside of the jug is lightly glazed and the inside is heavily glazed with a smooth shiny finish.

Many jugs of this period are marked "published by . . ." giving the makers name and date. This indicates that the design, which must include human or animal forms, was registered at Stationers Hall, an earlier method of protecting design that pre-dated the register mark of the Patent Office. Like the register mark the "published by. . ." date indicates the, date of registration, not the date of manufacture, which would be some time later.

Picture Credit:
Dundurn Castle Restoration

Most early Victorian jugs have a rim or foot and a basic tear-drop shape. In the middle of the century they were heavily embossed with deep relief designs. In the 1860s and 70s the foot began to disappear and straight-sided less ornamental jugs took their places. Many have a straight side to a flat circular base. Others have a curved overhang at the bottom and a rim base.

By the 80s the shapes were "Oriental", and rather freakish. In the 90s, "French rococo", asymetrical sculptured designs took over, to be replaced in their turn by art nouveau.

Jug values are increasing. Many are quality products. Early Victorian sculptured jugs are probably the best investment. Originally they sold for less than a dollar and in 1900 were still priced from 10 cents to 75 cents. Now less than $10 is a bargain, $20 likely and $40 not unusual.

A Poem on Christmas Fir Tree

By DORIS CLARK

CHRISTMAS FIR TREE

When the sky, above the tree
Unveils the moonlit for us to see,
In the evening's chilly air
The majesty of Christmas fir.
The spiky branches are adorned
In breathless beauty, nature formed.

For when ice forms on branches green
And flims the tree with silver sheen,
The slightest breeze, and tinkling bells
Like orchestra the music swells.
The air is filled with holy sound
Of heavenly music all around.

Then, for the day that Christ was born
The tree is felled. Bright lights adorn.
And shining at the very top
A star looks down, and says look up.
And hearts take on a special meaning,
As overhead the star is gleaming!

— Audrey Nicoll.

Dear Doris: My only daughter plans to marry. Her fiance has never mentioned a word about sharing the wedding fee to my husband before he passed away. Do you think he is entitled to it? — Just Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Probably he doesn't know his manners. The day is past when a suitor formally asks a parent's permission for a daughter's hand in marriage, but it is gracious — as well as good sense — to talk with a girl's mother about plans to marry. Next time he comes for dinner (same a special invitation if you have to) open up the subject yourself. Welcome him to the family.

Point out that as mother of the bride this is your territory and a conference is called for.

Dear Doris: I got a letter from my brother's wife in England a few days ago and I am still upset about it. She writes as if we were struggling pioneers living in a wilderness, wondering why we would keep on slugging hard here when our children could have a "decent chance" back there.

My husband is a good, hard worker and is giving service on farm machinery. His business is worth many thousands of dollars.

My brother's family came out to Canada when we did but couldn't make a go of it and went back to England. Do you think she is right in saying that we are standing in our children's way? — Upset.

Dear Upset: Perhaps she just wasn't a homesteader, and you were. Here in Canada we think we have some pretty good opportunities for our young people.

Reminds me of the young lady from Wales whose father refused to write to her when she wrote from Canada that she was getting married and going to live here: "He finally believed that she was giving up "the good life" for something inferior. From last reports, she's doing fine.

Why not thank your brother's wife, but explain that you are too well established here now to give up everything. Just see the funny side of it and continue to enjoy Canada.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Red and White Jellied Mould

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: About three years ago you gave a recipe called You-Name-It Salad. It was a two-layer jellied salad and I made it dozens of times. Now I can't find that recipe and want it in time for my Christmas dinner because it is a beautiful ruby red and white. — Mrs. E. R.

ANSWER: I think you timed your request perfectly. Other readers liked this too.

RUBY RED AND WHITE JELLIED MOULD

NOTE: You need a 1¼-qt. mould for this.

Red Layer:
One 3-oz. pkge. black cherry jelly powder
1 cup boiling water
One 14-oz. can pitted red cherries (50 per cent syrup)
White Layer:
2 envelopes (2 tbsps.) plain gelatine
¼ cup lemon juice
One 3-oz. pkge. vanilla pudding mix
2 cups milk
1 cup commercial salad dressing (not mayonnaise)
½ cup milk

To make red layer dissolve the black cherry jelly powder in the boiling water, stirring. Drain cherries and, reserve them. Measure ¾ cup cherry liquid and add to jelly mixture. Chill until it begins to thicken. Arrange cherries in bottom of a 1¼-qt. mould (fancy if available). Carefully pour partially jelled red jelly over and chill until firm.

To make white layer soak the plain gelatine in the lemon juice 5 min. Then stir over low heat until dissolved and clear. Prepare vanilla pudding mix by heating 2 cups milk and stirring pudding mix in until thick. Stir in dissolved gelatine liquid and salad dressing and ½ cup milk. Beat well. Just before pouring over gelatine mixture make some gashes in the red layer about ¼" deep then pour a little vanilla pudding mixture over making sure some flows into the gashes. This binds the layers together. Pour on remaining pudding mixture and chill until firm.

When mealtime arrives loosen edges of mould with tip of paring knife, then lower mould into hot water and count steadily to 10. Cover with large serving plate and deftly invert. Very pretty.

Kingston Unleashes 5-3 Surprise On League Leading Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fourth-place Kingston Aces unleashed the only surprise punch Friday night in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action by defeating first-place Orillia Terriers 5-3.

In Barrie, the Flyers downed second-place Owen Sound Crescents 3-2 to strengthen their hold on third place.

In Woodstock, Oakville Oaks made a comeback in the final period to down the Athletics 4-2 and move into sixth, one point ahead of Owen Sound. Woodstock remains in last place with four points.

In Belleville, Galt Hornets skated to a 3-1 win over the Mo-Hawks to move to a five-place tie with the Terriers. The Mo-Hawks continue to occupy fifth place in the league standings.

Kingston's win came as a surprise as they made a comeback in score three goals to Orillia's one in the final period to register the win.

John Ford, who returned to the Aces lineup after missing the last 11 games with a knee injury, helped pace the Kingston attack with a pair of goals. Johnny Mercer also netted two goals and Bob Rawson scored once.

Kingston outshot Orillia 31-27.

"I've seen a lot of hockey in my life, but never was the officiating this bad."

He was referring to second-period miscondct penalties to Flyers's Fern St. Onge and Jon Weeks. Weeks also received a match penalty when he pushed referee Larry Regan.

Barrie took a 2-1 lead in the first period on goals by Don Fraser and Butch MacLean. Don Whitting replied for the Crescents.

Both teams scored once in the second. Dave McGrath for Owen Sound and Mike Dubeau for Barrie.

Dubeau and Pete Panagabko scored in the third period to complete Barrie's scoring.

Oakville Oaks, trailing 3-1 entering the final period, rallied for the win on three unanswered goals.

Two games in the league will be played tonight. Barrie at Galt and Belleville at Owen Sound.

On Sunday, Woodstock travels to Oakville and Kingston meets Orillia.

Mo-Hawks Give Full Value Despite Loss

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Some may have been disappointed, but nobody who saw Belleville Mo-Hawks lose a 3-1 senior hockey decision to Galt Hornets at the Memorial Arena Friday night can claim they were cheated.

The Mo-Hawks, still a bit defensive - minded after the tactic worked against Kingston earlier in the week, managed only 21 shots at the Hornets' "Toni" Hockey despite showing flashes of offensive power.

If coach Dave Jones was critical of anything, it was a lack of aggressive play by the Mo-Hawks in their own zone.

"I'd like to know the last time we only took three penalties in a game and won — unless it was against Woodstock," said Jones.

On the other hand, it may be fortunate for the locals that they didn't draw any more than three of the game's eight minor sentences issued by referee Bob Nadin.

The best of the three Mo-Hawk infractions — a roughing minor to Lee Colligan in the dying minutes of the second period — doused the most serious Belleville scoring threat of the game.

Al Ferguson's powerplay goal at 16.24 came with the Hornets playing two men short and neutralized a first-period Galt goal by Bill Hway. The Mo-Hawks continued to apply pressure with a one-man advantage until Colligan was fingered for poking a Hornet in the face.

Just as Colligan's penalty was expiring, Fern Belanger finished off a pretty three-way passing play from Normales Vence Miller and Bruce Reier to give the visitors a 2-1 edge with only 29 seconds remaining in the middle period.

Belanger, who was listed as Galt's extra forward in the official game lineups, proved a trifle more valuable to the Hornets than his pre-game billing indicated.

The diminutive winger, spelling Pete Bettiol on the first defence unit, broke up the tight contest when he potted Galt's second through Steve Rexe's pads midway through the final period.

Rexe himself was worth the price of admission for the small (721 paid), but appreciative crowd.

On one Galt powerplay early in the second period, with much brilliant moves on first his glove, then his stick side on successive blazing missiles from the stick of Ron Hergott.

Midway through the period he made an impossible deflection of a shoulder-high shot steered for a corner by Vance Miller.

Rexe was modest. "I guessed on that one — if it hadn't gone high it would've been in."

"But I guess that is the best home game I've played in a while. Its rough because I've secured to have played my best in games we've lost."

Coach Jones agreed Rexe was the man of the hour. "Steve kept us in there — it could have been a lot worse because we didn't give Hurley much to worry about."

With seven minutes remaining in the game and the Mo-Hawks pressing to reduce Galt's two-goal edge, the rawboned bearded for the blueline to try and beat an onrushing Hornet in the neck.

He overskated it and denouncen Bob Wilson had to make a nice skate save to prevent a 4-1 score going up on the board.

Wayne McConnell probably had as many chances as any Mo-Hawk to alter the scoring outcome. He just shot wide of the open corner on a passout from Ray Johnston as the second period opened and couldn't get a strong enough shot on the slot on another Johnston setup late in the third.

Fortunately for the Mo-Hawks, Owen Sound lost a 5-3 decision to Barrie last night, keeping the Crescents four points behind Belleville's fifth-place rung.

Tuesday night, Kingston is back in town at 8.45.

In addition to their first loss in three games, the Mo-Hawks got another bit of bad news Friday night.

They learned that a New Year's Day game with Woodstock here is on as scheduled, with festivities due to begin at 7 p.m.

Fairways Hope to Start Different Type Of String

The Belleville Fairways snapped a three game losing streak last Monday and will be hoping to start a string of a different nature when they meet the Ottawa Crashmen Sunday night.

Oshawa is currently holding down second spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B league behind the red hot Peterborough Lions, who have won 11 consecutive games.

The Lions will be taking part in the Province of Ontario Games, Dec. 27 and 28 where representatives from the eight Junior B leagues in the province will compete for the right to represent Ontario in the Canada Winter Games at Saskatoon.

Peterborough w i l l meet Owen Sound in a Sunday afternoon encounter at Pine Point Arena, Toronto and the following day they will play against either Windsor or Petrolia. The top four teams in the first round will enter the semi-finals elimination.

The Belleville B's will be looking for a return by scoring leader Danny Lapenette to his early season form. The strong skating centre has failed to collect a point in his last three games after a fast start. Lapenette missed most of Monday's game against Cobourg with a hip dislocation, but is expected to be back in the lineup for the Oshawa encounter.

Kinston Shows Spirit

TRENTON (Special) — The Kingston Frontenacs got into the holiday spirit of giving last night, as they handed out a 14-0 drubbing to the Trenton Golden Hawks.

fenceman Dave Henry missed most of the game because of job commitments.

Despite the player shortage, team manager John Yott admitted, "We just didn't play well. It was probably our worst game all season."

It was the 12th loss in 13 games for the Golden Hawks this season.

By Hook or by Crook

Belleville Mo-Hawk winger Ray Johnston gets some fancy stickwork from Galt's Howie Ehlerich as he buries in on goalie "Toni" Hurley during the first period of OHA Senior A action Friday night.

The Hornets won the game 3-1 to even up their season's record on Belleville ice and snap the Mo-Hawks' two-game winning streak.

Super Bowl Champs In Battle for NFL Play-Off Berth

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ten teams, including the defending Super Bowl champions, Kansas City Chiefs, will be battling for five remaining postseason playoff berths on the National Football League's final regular-season - program Sunday.

Baltimore Colts play host to New York Jets in the only action today, but that game means nothing to the future hopes of either club since the Colts already have clinched the East Division crown of the American Conference and the Jets have been relegated to the uncertainty title of also-ran in the AFC East.

During the first 13 weeks of the season, only three teams have clinched spots in conference playoffs scheduled for Dec. 24-27—Baltimore, Minnesota in the National Conference Central Division and Oakland in the AFC West.

But Sunday is the day for all the rest, with Cincinnati in AFC Central, Miami in AFC East, San Francisco in NFC West and New York Giants in NFC East in the most advantageous positions under the complicated playoff procedure.

The Bengals and 49ers can clinch division titles and playoff posts with either a victory or a tie. The Dolphins, runner-up to Baltimore in AFC East, can clinch a playoff spot with either a victory or a tie. The Giants need a victory to clinch their division title, but also might qualify for a playoff with a tie.

In addition, Kansas City, in an admittedly precarious position, still is in the running, along with Dallas, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Detroit, for either division titles or a playoff berth.

Here is the way the division races stand as the teams head for the final showdown:

American Conference

East—Baltimore has clinched the title. Miami, the runner-up at 9-4, can become the fourth AFC qualifier by either defeating or tying Buffalo. That would eliminate the Chiefs from any chance of gaining a post-season berth.

Central—Cincinnati, 8-4-1, leads Cleveland, 6-7. Bengals can clinch the title with either a victory or a tie against Boston or a loss or tie for the Browns against Denver.

West—Oakland has clinched the title with an 8-3-1 record, despite the fact Kansas City, at 7-4-2, can wind up with the same record. But the Raiders posted a tie and a victory in two head-to-head meetings with the Chiefs. Kansas City can only qualify for a playoff spot, as the conference runner-up with the best record, if it beats San Diego while Miami loses to Buffalo.

National Conference

East—New York Giants and Dallas are tied for the lead at 8-4 with St. Louis at 8-4-1. A New York victory against Los Angeles would bring the Giants the division title. All three also are in the running for the playoff spot that goes to best runner-up.

Central—Minnesota, with an 11-2 record, has clinched the title. Detroit, at 8-4, is in the battle for the playoff spot that goes to the best runner-up.

West—San Francisco, at 8-3-1, leads Los Angeles, 8-4-1, by one game and can clinch by either beating or tying Oakland or with a Rams' loss to the Giants.

Flood Gets Verbal Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood and Washington owner Bob Short have an agreement by which Flood cannot be traded without his consent, The Associated Press has learned.

The controversial outfielder, who has a $4.1-million antitrust suit against baseball against a standard contract with Washington Senators, calling for $110,200 a year, has his signing was prepared by an oral agreement with Short.

"The oral agreement, sealed by a handshake, provides that Flood cannot be traded without his consent, a no-cut pact guaranteeing a full season's salary for 1971 in any eventuality, and that if Flood and the Senators are unable to agree on a new contract following the 1971 season, Flood will be given his unconditional release and becomes a free agent.

Flood was not available for comment Friday but Short, reached in Minneapolis, said:

"I will stand behind the contract, which bears his signature and my signature.

"It doesn't include the stipulations he requested about not having the reserve clause in the contract.

"The ball with verbal agreements. There is a written agreement and I stand behind it. It's been published. The only thing not standard about it (the signed contract) is that it says it won't prejudice his case against baseball."

Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner, said "Any oral agreement between Flood and Bob Short that may have been made is not binding."

"I am sure they both understand it. The only agreement that is binding is that written in the standard contract."

Flood has signed a standard contract and, like any other player, is subject to the reserve clause, Kuhn said.

The agreement made by Flood and Short came after Kuhn refused to allow those provisions in the written Flood-Short contract.

The rules, known generally as the reserve clause, bind a player to a club until it trades, sells or releases him with or without his permission.

Flood lost the first round in his suit against baseball when a federal court judge in New York ruled against him. An appeal now is pending before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Sport Briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitcher Bill Singer of Los Angeles Dodgers undergoes surgery on his pitching hand today. Singer, who missed four months of the 1969 season with hepatitis, suffered two fractures of his right index finger when hit by a Bob Veale pitch in a game against Pittsburgh Pirates Aug. 12. The surgery was scheduled to correct knuckle problems.

DETROIT (CP) — Plans for a $50 million domed sports stadium on Detroit's riverfront were given a boost Friday when Detroit Tigers' owner John C. Fetzer said he supports the idea. Thomas D. Adams, chairman of the Wayne County stadium authority which would be in charge of building such a structure, said a letter from Fetzer was the first positive interest in the idea shown by either Tigers or Detroit Lions, Detroit's entry in the National Football League.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas County grand jury indicted convicted football player Lance Rentzel of Dallas Cowboys Friday on a charge of indecent exposure to a juvenile. District Attorney Henry Wade said Rentzel's trial probably would be held in February. Rentzel, 27, is a wide receiver for the National Football League team.

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty students "of proviedent athletic calibre" have been given $1,000 grants to help them pursue athletic and academic careers, Health Minister Allan Munro announced Friday. The grants are renewable for a four-year period, providing the students continue post-high school education and maintain an active training and competative schedule. Among the recipients were: Paul Manns, Hamilton; Paul Hughes, Toronto; James French and Paul Rile, Windsor, Ont. and Jean-Marc Angrignon, Ottawa.

CALI, Colombia (CP-AP) — The 1971 Pan-American Games will be held here from July 31 through Aug. 15, sports officials said Friday. They were responding to a request for firm information on the dates, which had been shifted.

Cournoyer Leads Canadiens to 4-3 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Yvan Cournoyer, the diminutive right winger with Montreal Canadiens, appeared headed for a successful season in the early weeks of the National Hockey League before an injury forced him out of the lineup.

The five-foot, seven-inch 165-pounder and a specialist on the power-play was the NHL's leading goal scorer between the end of October with 10 goals—eight scored when his team had a man advantage. Then he was sidelined.

But since his return to regular action, the speedy Canadien has been slowly regaining his scoring touch and Friday night he scored two goals—his 18th and 19th—to lead his team to a 4-3 victory over Vancouver Canucks.

In the night's only other game, Norm Ferguson scored his second goal of the season to lead California Golden Seals a 1-0 victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

The Canadiens, after taking a 4-1 lead midway in the second period, had to hold on to stop the Canucks who would have moved two points behind the third-place Canadiens with a win.

Cournoyer's play sparked the Habs especially in the first two periods as he tested Vancouver goalies Charlie Hodge and Dane Wilson continually. The Canadiens fired 36 shots at both Hodge and Wilson while Rogatien Vachon blocked 20 for the Canucks.

Vancouver was again led by their captain Orland Kurtenbach, who scored a goal while Montreal was shorthanded and assisted on goals by Wayne Maki and Murray Hall. Maki's goal was his 18th of the season.

About midway in the third period a small scuffle broke out when Pete Mahovlich and Wilson tangled in front of the Vancouver net and John Ferguson of the Canadiens and Kurtenbach moved in.

Wilson and Mahovlich each received minors and majors and but with the financial benefits of being just outside. Lower taxes, lower land costs and several acreages to you. Imagine — a 3 bedroom bungalow for only $38,900.00. The lot is really large, the well is good and the road is paved almost to the door. One only.

BACK YARD UNLIMITED

seems this way maybe there will be buildings soon, but for a few years at least you can have the privacy of your own yard. Set on a quiet cul-de-sac (if you like children, this is the ideal spot) in a neighborhood that offers a lot for kids. Make us an offer on this home. Streets are finished and lawn is seeded. Carries for $168. plus taxes.

2 BEDROOM APARTMENT — $495.00

Kitchener Up 500 Per Cent

Across the Province Welfare Costs Have Shown Jump

TORONTO (CP) — One Ontario city—Kitchener—has had a 500 per cent increase in welfare costs since November, 1968, a survey shows. In some others the number on welfare has declined.

Kitchener spent $119,200 on welfare last month, compared with $17,600 in the same month a year ago. Welfare rolls have increased to 1,250 last month from 417 in November, 1969.

Despite the sharp increases, the survey by a Toronto newspaper shows Kitchener has a smaller percentage of its total 180,000 population on welfare 1.2, per cent—than other urban centres such as Ottawa or Windsor.

John Birnstihl, welfare administrator, said one thing that has contributed to the increase is civic some go to Kitchener looking for work and end up on welfare. One official compared the situation to the depression of the 1930s.

Individuals on welfare increased to 3,771 from 2,771, and included 232 employable heads of families, said assistant welfare administrator Ross Riddell.

Ottawa's welfare list increased from 8,700 individuals in October, 1968, to 12,340 in September, 1978. It included an increase in male heads of families from 978 to 1,438 and an increase in single men from 1,176 from 625.

However, this was fewer than in April when there were 1,981 male heads of families and 1,200 single males on welfare.

Col. John Gould of the Ottawa Salvation Army estimated there will be a 75-per-cent increase in its Christmas relief program over last year.

Cornwall's total welfare budget increased from $51,497 in October, 1968, to $106,315 this October. The number of employable welfare recipients increased to 285 from 133 in a city of 47,000.

In Sault Ste. Marie, the number of individuals being supported on welfare dropped to 2,022 in October from 2,023 in October, 1968. Welfare spending, however, increased to $162,342 from $94,222 reflecting an increase in welfare rates.

In Sudbury, the number on welfare dropped in the same period (in 813 from 1,141. But in North Bay the number on welfare increased to 613 from 447.

One possible explanation for the lack of increases in the North might be a migration in the larger urban centres in southern Ontario in search of work, the survey indicated.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Welfare Council said today that several proposals in the federal government's recently-released white paper on income security are inadequate to meet the needs of the poor.

The council, in statements to be mailed to all members of Parliament and the Senate committee on poverty, said that $80 a month in old age security benefits as proposed in the white paper is too low.

It said that with no escalation based on the cost of living, the flat $80 soon "will diminish in value because of rising costs and standards of living."

The council said the proposed legislation for increased old age security, benefits and guaranteed income supplements would provide minimums of $1,620 annually for a single person and $3,089 for a married couple—below the Economic Council of Canada's poverty lines.

The guaranteed income supplement, the council said, will never be an adequate, anti-poverty measure as long as its clawback ability is based on income.

"Many older people who own their own homes and have substantial savings at average interest rates are eligible for supplementation because their income are low. Many others have no savings. "Both own homes and are ineligible for supplementation because their incomes are slightly above the present eligibility rate."

The council said it also deplores the proposal under which families earning more than $10,000 would lose their children's allowances.

"It does not take into consideration the number of children in a family. A couple with six children earning $10,001 a year loses a minimum of $360 while a couple with one child loses a minimum of only $60—a significant difference."

Canada Claims Fishing Waters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian fishing industry Friday applauded Fisheries Minister Jack Davis' declaration of Canada's claim to control over fishing and pollution in wider areas of coastal waters.

But the announcement drew apprehension, regret and disagreement from the United States government.

Mr. Davis told the Commons that new fisheries, closing lines that go into effect at the end of February will give Canada exclusive fishing rights and pollution-control jurisdiction over an additional 80,000 square miles of coastal waters.

Enclosed in the East Coast will be the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Bay of Fundy. On the West Coast, Canada will assert control over Queen Charlotte Sound, Dixon Entrance and Hecate Strait.

In Washington, a U.S. state department spokesman said his government regards the new declaration as "a unilateral act totally without foundation in international law."

However, Mr. Davis said U.S. and European officials will continue to enjoy fishing rights in the zones because of treaties between their governments and Canada.

More directly involved are traditional fishing activities—particularly in the Gulf of St. Lawrence—by British, Norwegian, Danish, Portuguese, Spanish and Italian fishermen.

The U.S. state department spokesman noted that the new regulations don't apply to American fishermen, but still the Nixon administration regards the law of the sea a matter for multilateral consideration.

Homer Stevens, president of the 7,000-member United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said in Vancouver he regards the new lines as a step in the right direction.

"We certainly feel any steps to get some foreign fleets out of Canadian waters will be advantageous," said Mr. Stevens.

Japanese, Russian and U.S. vessels have vied with Canadian vessels for many years for rich catches in Queen Charlotte Sound, which separates the Queen Charlotte Islands from Vancouver Island.

Last summer about 300 fishing boats staged a "sail-in" at Victoria to signify opposition to foreign fishing.

Too Dangerous

Detergent Aid Phased Out

TORONTO (CP) — Three major Canadian detergent producers announced plans Friday to phase out use of a substitute chemical for phosphates linked in the United States this week to birth defects in rats and mice.

The decision was announced by officials of Procter and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd., Lever Detergents Ltd. and Colgate-Palmolive Ltd., all based in Toronto.

Earlier Friday, the U.S. detergent industry voluntarily agreed to remove nitrilotriacetic (NTA) from its washday products. The industry had used it as a partial substitute for phosphates—tagged as a major source of water pollution.

The move by the U.S. detergent industry followed a report by the U.S. surgeon-general's office that NTA can aggravate water pollution in conjunction with other pollutants.

Experiments in the United States showed that rats and mice are 10 times more likely to have stillborn or deformed offspring when fed a combination of NTA and the metals cadmium or mercury.

A. T. Davidson, Canada's deputy minister for water in the federal fisheries and forestry department, said in an interview Friday night that the government was "aware that something was forthcoming in the United States regarding use of NTA."

However, Canada had not completed its own research on the phosphates substitute. "We will study the U.S. view and then we will make our recommendations to the government on what the policies should be," Mr. Davidson said.

Procter and Gamble said in a statement it is moving immediately to phase out NTA. But for those products in which NTA has been used, "we are absolutely confident of their safety."

Lever president A. J. Rae said it obvious that the public will lose confidence in detergents containing NTA as a result of the U.S. surgeon-general's report.

Mr. Rae said five of his company's detergents now contain NTA, which makes up a small proportion of total substances in laundry products.

A Colgate-Palmolive spokesman said his company has also decided to stop using NTA. He declined to specify the number of detergent brands Colgate-Palmolive now produces containing the substance.

The surgeon-general's report said there is no evidence at this time to indicate that any human has been, or is being, harmed by the combination of NTA with metals in the environment.

NTA is not dangerous itself. The surgeon-general's report says that when it is combined with cadmium or mercurypollution already in the water, it might lead to a third substance that would be harmful.

Duke's Lawyer Planning Action Against Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer for George Clinton Duke said Friday he hopes to launch Ontario Legislature disciplinary proceedings against Dr. Morton Shulman and civil actions against the NDP member for Toronto High Park and against four other parties.

Harvey Dalter, counsel for the Oakville lawn-equipment dealer, said he will move to have Dr. Shulman brought before the legislature's standing committee on privileges.

Dr. Shulman prompted a judicial inquiry when he alleged in a speech to a legislature committee June 4 that Mr. Duke had improper relationships with senior provincial police officers and persons of known criminal activity.

However, Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court said in a report released Thursday following the one-month inquiry that he could find no evidence to support the allegations.

Mr. Dalter said he will also launch civil action in January on behalf of Mr. Duke against Dr. Shulman; the Hamilton Spectator; reporter Gerry McAuliffe of The Spectator; former city editor Warren Barton and Elizabeth Citron, also of The Spectator charging conspiracy to defame his client.

The complaint arose from allegations by The Spectator and Dr. Shulman of a "cozy deal" charge by Mrs. Citron that Mr. Duke threatened her with a revolver in September, 1969. Mrs. Citron, a Burlington, Ont., dress designer, was a friend of Mrs. Duke.

Mr. Dalter said he will drew up a list of charges "based on Shulman's career" and refer them to the legislature speaker for submission to the committee on privileges.

"If the committee says it, they can take away his privilege of immunity, suspend him or have him impeached," said Mr. Dalter.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said disciplinary action against an MPP for breach of privilege is possible, "but that is of no great moment."

MPP's guilty of the offence may be censured or suspended for a fixed period by the legislature. An MPP cannot be prosecuted for anything said within the confines of the legislature.

The attorney-general also said he intends to pursue a suggestion in Mr. Justice Grant's report that Dr. Shulman may be liable to prosecution for obtaining secret documents.

During the inquiry, Dr. Shulman refused to name a source from whom he said he obtained confidential information from OPP files.

Development Plan Said Premature

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's plan for the future development of the Toronto centred-region seeks to make use of a good part of the province as a solution to the problems of Metropolitan Toronto, Walter Pitman New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Peterborough, said Friday.

Mr. Pitman, in a brief prepared for the government committee studying the provincial plan, said no single regional plan should be used in developing policy until there is "a provincial plan. . . . which identifies the goals of the entire province and sets out a path by which these goals can be attained."

"It is impossible for such a plan to be given serious consideration before details and background papers are revealed."

He said the Toronto-centre region plan indicates:

—That recreation land is designated with a simplistic approach without regard to the true needs of the people by the year 2000;

—That there is worship of rapid growth which threatens the ecology not only of the province but of the continent;

—That a city is regarded as a collection of people and "no governmental policy and plan for a region which fails to recognize the full sociological effect of its economic decisions upon an area within the region."

—A belief that pollution is best controlled by dumping it into large bodies or water, leading to a plan of residential and industrial development that would eventually pour the wastes of 5,700,000 human beings into Lake Ontario.

Bourassa Gets Tough on Business

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa has suddenly adopted a tougher approach in his campaign to make French the working language of Quebec.

The reason is the apparent lack of success of attempts to persuade Quebec business and industry to give their French-speaking employees the right to use their own language in their work.

Consequently, the 37-year-old Liberal premier is turning to legislation as the only practical means of fulfilling his promise to make French the province's working language.

"The failure of friendly persuasion became clear with the settlement of the three-month General Motors strike.

Language was one of the local issues involved in negotiations between General Motors of Canada Ltd. and 2,500 members of the United Auto Workers, who work at GM's plant in Ste. Therese, Que.

The UAW's Ste. Therese local demanded that French be made the working language in the plant, with French-speaking employees, who form 80 per cent of the work force, using their own language while on the job.

Mr. Bourassa supported the workers to the extent that he met several times with GM officials in an attempt to persuade them to accept the demand.

The results of what Mr. Bourassa regarded as the test of his language policy were disappointing.

The language issue was not resolved in the settlement of the strike. The strikers agreed Tuesday to return to work and brusquely tossed the language issue to Mr. Bourassa.

"If Bourassa wants GM to do something about French he will have to negotiate directly with the company," a shop steward said.

The premier maintained that GM had accepted the principle of French as the working language in the plant, and had made a few other concessions.

However, he acknowledged that he is "not completely satisfied" with the outcome of the GM dispute and will hold further talks with company officials.

More significantly he told the Quebec national assembly the government has asked its labor and management advisory committee to study possible amendments to the province's labor code.

The amendments would at least require all firms in Quebec to allow their employees to express their grievances in French if they wish to do so and might go further.

Additional legislation will probably follow the publication early next year of the government's white paper on language and the preliminary report of a provincial royal commission studying the matter.

The government also has a special cabinet committee headed by Francois Cloutier, minister of cultural affairs and considered one of the government's most nationalist members, working on measures to apply the language policy.

Any progress Mr. Bourassa has made in getting French established as the province's working language has been modest at best.

Besides the decision to introduce amendments to the labor code, Mr. Bourassa can cite only two other accomplishments in the language field.

The first is a government order that French be used exclusively in its own internal and external communications, with one exception.

The exception is that English-speaking Quebecers can write to the government and receive a reply in their own language.

However, the order does not represent much of a change from the present situation, and only gives official status to the almost exclusive use of French within the government.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 20

Your birthday today: You are apt in a path from which you are unlikely to drift for quite a while. It is as though you have a part in some formal theatre and the actions and words were already written — all you must do is fulfill the role. The rewards for doing your part well are great and satisfying; you are not limited, merely guided, prompted to strong successes. Today's natives have a great sense of drama and a knack for politics.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): For once, a very late start is all right; it gives you a chance to work out amenities, poetic expressions. Do what is expected of you by your community, rest early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Start earlier than usual. A bit of "hurry up and wait" is inevitable now. Divert yourself by watching what is happening around you, noting how often things repeat themselves.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Complicated arrangements defeat themselves. It is better to have simple plans and improvise. Your friends all have something to fret about; let them do it in peace.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You can't let yourself go unheard today, let your do yourself no good by shouting. Say only what you believe and affirm firmly. Just staying near home keeps you busy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Don't slow momentary doubts to slow your schedule. All clears up by late afternoon, even your search for somebody who is somehow not where you thought he would be. Outside interests thrive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your own inner austerity is enough now without following the strictures of others. Be yourself and it works out well. Older people have to be treated gently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You have to do it yourself today. Be sure of what you're starting, and be prepared to finish. Everybody eventually comes back to you, so let them alone now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): If you must ask a favor, lead up to it carefully, and rather late in the day. Something is learned at home that you would miss by gadding about.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Do the lick-and-a-promise routine with home chores; cultivate important people you need to know and can learn from. Help surprisingly continuity projects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Self-criticism, self restraint help in communicating with relatives, neighbors. Keeping matters simple is an art-form. Experiments today go to excess.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Prepare to strike your own course, gently dismayed by poor advice. In time your view prevails and you are back in favor, but for now you're ahead and in a minority.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Younger people are mischievous, older people hurt out unthinking comments. Take care of your own: great others the luxury of deciding how to take care of theirs.

For December 21

Your birthday today: This is a year of many surprises, changes, diversity. Following up on opportunities to see if they are really promising leaves you with enterprises scattered all around — many different things going on. Your emotional life is exciting, difficult to keep within bounds of discretion. Today's natives have tremendous, deeply hidden, driving ambitions which often find outlet in special skills.

ARIES (May. 21 — Apr. 19): Your gogetter instincts displace cultural interests temporarily. Don't throw out hobby things — you'll want them back or find them a better home later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Rely mainly on your own resources. Others, off their beaten track all weekend, haven't settled down. Expect a seige of emotional demands from friends.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Changes beginning now are not permanent, so don't be greatly concerned if things move. Help a younger friend get started rather than try being a star yourself.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You get in your own way due to a passing, perverse mood. Old debts, questions you thought resolved turn up again. It's easy, but unwarranted, to feel neglected — others are simply busy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your plans for the future are generally sound, but your estimate of the present miss the point. Let somebody else lead the way until your intuition catches up again.

Plastic Packaging Plant Building Begins Soon

Harry McHall

Sweet News at City Hall

Good news at city hall today is reflected in three contented faces in Mayor Russell Scott's office: Mobil Oil Canada, Ltd. had just announced plans for plant to manufacture plastic packaging film. Scanning happy details with the mayor are (from left) Michael Foy (Mobil project manager) Ald. Gerald Joyce, industrial commission chairman and Mobil legal counsel Fred Pfirrmann.

Labor Force Of 30

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville has been selected as production centre for a new, national wrapping-paper supplier.

Mobil Oil of Canada today announced the Quinte City's newest industry — a $1,500,000 plant producing plastic packaging film by late summer, 1971.

Construction of the plant — on an 18-acre site in the city's northeast industrial park — is expected to commence within the next few weeks.

Ortginally, employing about 30 men and women, Mobil is optimistic of future expansion of its Belleville enterprise, Mobil officials said today.

Mobil Oil Canada is an affiliate of Mobil Oil Corporation, which through its chemical division, produces a wide range of polyethylene film and foam packaging materials in the United States.

Announcement of the new industry came at city hall this morning where Mobil spokesmen discussed final phases of the plant's location with municipal officials.

Later today, city council will be asked to seal the project by approving land conveyances involved in sale of the industrial park site.

It will be the final, official phase in a round of planning moves, negotiations and discussions that began earlier this year.

Ald. Gerald Joyce, industrial commission chairman, dated the initial phases of the project from early summer, when Mobil first showed interest in Belleville's industrial potential.

The Mobil project was not associated with any provincial government industrial incentive loan — a program which has generated much Quinte-area industrial development in recent years — and its initial stimulus came from private business sources.

Ald. Joyce credited the industrial development branch of the Royal Bank of Canada with providing the original contact between Belleville and Mobil.

Mobil spokesmen said the Belleville site was chosen because of "the excellent transportation facilities and hospitable industrial climate" of the city.

"It's a fine town for future growth — and we're very optimistic," said Michael Foy, Mobil's project manager for the enterprise today.

Mr. Foy and Fred Pfirrmann, legal counsel for Mobil's plastics division, formally announced the new industry in Mayor Russell Scott's office this morning.

The Mobil enterprise — east of the present Allied Chemical plant — will be housed in an 18,000-square foot building containing production, warehouse and office space.

Mr. Foy believed Mobil will let a construction contract shortly and work will get under way either by the end of the month or early in the new year.

Ald. Joyce noted that the building project will provide local construction jobs during a period of peak winter unemployment in the building industry.

The city's sale price for the industrial site was $2,613 an acre, he said.

One in, One Out

Wladyslaw Gomulka, right, has resigned as chief of Poland's Communist Party, the official Polish radio announced Sunday. It said he was being replaced by Edouard Gierek, left, former first secretary of the party in the Katowice area, centre of Poland's coal-mining region. (AP Wirephoto)

Economic Policy To Get Priority

WARSAW (Reuter) — The new Polish Communist leadership under Edward Gierek faces a reappraisal of the "ill-considered" economic policy which set off bloody rioting last week and led to the ouster Sunday of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Gierek used the phrase "ill-considered" in a speech to a plenary session of the party's central committee Sunday which forced Gomulka to resign after 14 years as party secretary.

The central committee also fired four members of the 11-man ruling politburo, including President Marian Spychalski, who remains, however, as head of state.

Among those dismissed was Zdzislaw Jaszczuk, 53, responsible for carrying out economic reforms aimed at modernizing Poland's stagnant economy through a transition to more selective, intensive development of key industries.

Jaszczuk, a former ambassador to Russia, was regarded as the main advocate of sharp pre-Christmas food price increases a week ago, which ignited smouldering resentment over other aspects of the reforms and led to strikes and street clashes in Baltic coastal towns.

Warsaw radio said workers in riot-torn Gdansk and Gdynia had returned to work today but did not mention Szczecin, hit hardest by the disorders. Telephone lines to Gdansk remained down and its airport closed to regular traffic a week after the riots began there.

Troops were believed still occupying Szczecin, and a source reported from Gdansk that tanks were on the streets and a nighttime curfew remained in force. Damage at Gdansk alone was estimated at $3.5 million.

In a radio and television address after his election as new party first secretary, Gierek, a 57-year-old former miner, said the party would give a difficult and self-critical but clear and true answer to the question of how this disaster happened.

Some causes were the result of real difficulties but others were due to "ill-considered conceptions of economic policy" which would have to be reviewed, he said in what appeared to be an obvious criticism of Jaszczuk.

The burly, crew-cut new party chief then appeared to turn his fire on Gomulka himself to add that the true rule of party policy must be "to respect the principle of collective decision-making and democracy in the life of the party and the activity of the supreme authorities."

Political observers said the obvious implication, was that his predecessor had neglected this rule.

Informed sources said the 63-year-old Gomulka had grown increasingly irascible and intolerant of opposition in recent years, and was involved in a stormy clash with Gierek at a session of the politburo which approved the increase in food prices, which Gierek opposed and Gomulka backed.

The bill, passed Friday by the House of Representatives, authorizes funds for state alcoholism programs and prevention and treatment projects, and establishes a national institute on alcohol abuse and alcoholism.

'Copter Stolen, Still Missing

MONTREAL (CP) — Police in eastern Ontario and southwestern Quebec were on the lookout Sunday for a police helicopter reported stolen from near Buffalo, N.Y., earlier in the day.

A provincial police spokesman in Montreal said it was not known who was aboard the aircraft nor where they were going. He said the Ontario Provincial Police earlier reported seeing a helicopter near Kingston, heading northeast.

A department of transport spokesman said the aircraft was lost on radar and "could have put down anywhere."

The helicopter, used for surveillance work by the Buffalo police department, was reported stolen about 4:30 p.m. It was believed to be carrying only enough fuel for a trip of 300 miles, the approximate distance between Buffalo and the Ontario-Quebec border.

Buffalo sheriff's deputies said thieves slipped into a hanger Sunday, filled the Erie County sheriff's department helicopter with fuel, rolled it outside and flew away.

Sweep Win $486,000

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto couple got the biggest Christmas present of their lives today —$486,000.

Bob and Bessie Jacobs were awakened at 4 a.m. today by a telephone call from Ireland telling them they had won $350,000 on a super prize in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes.

The Jacobs's prize for the first ticket drawn out of the sweeps drum. The sweeps jackpot normally is $121,250 for a ticket on the winning horse, but for this race—the Sweeps Derbies scheduled Dec. 27—a super prize was added.

The official results of the draw have not yet been released by hospital officials in Ireland, but the Jacobs got the good news by telephone.

Price Index Stays Same

OTTAWA (CP)—Consumer prices declined last month in St. John's, Nfld., Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Regina, but rose in seven other metropolitan areas, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

DBS said movements were mixed in food, housing and clothing. While food prices fell 1.4 per cent in Winnipeg, they rose 1.3 per cent in Vancouver.

The indexes, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, measure the change in consumer prices in each city independently, and cannot be used to measure living costs between one city and another.

Davis Move Expected

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis called a news conference for 1 p.m. today at Queen's Park. He was expected to announce his decision to enter the race for leadership of the Ontario Conservative party.

Mr. Davis indicated Sunday night he would deel himself into the race.

This May Be A Surprise But Winter Not Here Yet

But this year the almanac has again pulled one of its frequent upsets and according to the calendar, winter doesn't officially get under way until 1:36 tomorrow morning.

That is when the sun reaches the furthermost point on its apparent journey south.

Tomorrow is also the shortest day, but that doesn't mean the sun will rise later and set earlier.

The earliest setting of the sun was reached more than a week ago when for 10 days — from Dec. 5 to 14 — it set at 16:41 p.m. Tomorrow the sun will set at 16:48 p.m.

But the mornings will continue to be shorter for another week before the sun commences to rise earlier.

Tomorrow's sunrise will be at 7:30 a.m. but the latest sunup time will not be reached until Dec. 28, 10 days — from Dec. 5 to 14 — it set at 16:41 p.m. Tomorrow the sun will set at 16:48 p.m.

The almanac says sunrise will be at 7:33 on Dec. 26 and will continue at that time until Jan. 5.

Ice on Lakes Not Yet Strong Enough for Use

Tomorrow is the first day of winter — but in the Quinte district ice is still something to add to a drink.

The lands and forests department at Tweed warned today that ice surfaces on all lakes and waterways in the district are still unsafe for human use.

Recent mild weather and heavy snow has slowed freezing on all lakes in the district.

Saturday, provincial police were called to the Trent River after a nearby householder — spotting tracks on shaky ice covering the waterway — feared a drowning.

Police traced the imprints to the river bank and discovered they were the pawmarks of a large dog.

Pets Ideal Gift

The centre — which shelters animals the year round — has an on-going adoption program which steps up annually around Christmas.

Biggest demand comes from parents seeking puppies as an ideal surprise gift for youngsters, says OHS superintendent Harry Brown.

Such purchases cost an adoption fee of about $8 and there are scene 30 puppies available at the shelter this year.

Kittens come next in the order of demand, says the superintendent.

Meanwhile, boarding of animals over the holidays continues the biggest Christmas business at the shelter.

"Quite a few people make reservations for putting up their animals over the Christmas," says Mr. Brown.

Six Picked For Conference

TRENTON (Staff) — Delegates to the Liberal party provincial policy conference to be held in Toronto January 23-24 have been selected by the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association.

Those attending will be Gerald Weaver, Trenton; Dennis Collins, Campbellford; Joseph Moore, Brighton; Anthony Dalzar, Batawa; Nancy Daly, Brighton Township and John Gates, Picton. Also attending as ex officio delegates will be the riding candidate George Cunningham and the association president, William Menzies.

Bel-Ra Mosque Elects Officers

They are: president, R. E. Cooper; vice - president, R. N. Plumpton; secretary-treasurer, H. T. Dolge and executive committee members H. G. Richenshaw, A. H. Evans, J. A. Kinmers, C. Mulholland, R. A. Owen, D. A. Pierson, L. J. Tremblay and H. West.

Christmas Hampers Community Effort

TRENTON (Staff) — The concerted efforts of the Salvation Army and other interested groups and individuals will be responsible for brightening the Christmas of needy families here.

Captain Eugene Pyne of the Trenton Branch of the Salvation Army said yesterday that approximately 150 hampers would be distributed this year. Each contains a chicken or turkey, canned goods, toys and clothing.

Most of the goods have already been collected and the parcels are being made up for delivery Dec. 23.

Distribution of the hampers is being handled by service clubs and church groups. Delivering on the 23rd is wise, Capt. Pyne says because "if anyone is missed, it still leaves time to get to them".

Composition of the Christmas packages will vary according to the particular needs of each family as determined by the Children's Aid Society and the welfare department.

Giving out the hampers is a yuletide tradition here but the task has become more of a community effort than in the past" Capt. Pyne stressed.

Assisting this year are Ebenezer Christian Reform Church, St. Peter's and St. George's, brownies and guides from the town and CFB Trenton, the sing out group from the base, seven service clubs and ladies and numerous individuals.

A Pet Project

The Ontario Humane Society has plenty of pets available for Christmas adoption at its Quinte shelter. But not Cicero, here nestling on five-year-old Sandra Lamb's shoulder. The Mexican burro stays on as part of the OHS' pet project — an animal farm now being assembled as a children's attraction.

Viewing Deer Part of Fun Of Park Snowmobile Run

BRIGHTON (Staff) — The snowmobile route through Presqu'ile Provincial Park two miles south of here has been opened for a second season, park superintendent Kenneth Moore said yesterday.

Last year's trail through the park was 12 miles long but this has now been extended to 15. Moreover, a third of the old course has been rerouted through scenic wooded areas and "places to open up machines" have been added, Mr. Moore explained.

"We moved off the summer roads more this year . . . and had a bulldozer go over the trail and level it out" he added.

The department of lands and forests has purchased its own snowmobile for use in the park this season and, with this, park officials are making periodic trail checks.

Mr. Moore said that the park staff work to "keep the trail in shape and make sure that dangerous obstacles are removed from the path of vehicles".

The trail is well marked and is suitable for use at night. More than 100 signs and fluorescent trail symbols have been placed along the course.

Starting point for the Presqu'ile snowmobile trail is at the first parking lot inside the main entrance to the park. The lot is being ploughed regularly.

"It makes a nice trip" to take the route through the park, Mr. Moore said, adding that part of it runs along the beach itself.

To make the run along the snowmobile trail takes at least an hour and the last time his family had been through they spotted eight deer, he said.

Hungry Vandals Ransack School

Belleville City Police are investigating a pair of weekend break-ins that resulted in the theft of $10 and school vandalism.

Intruders got away with $10 from the East Dundas Gulf Service Station at 144 Dundas Street East sometime between 7.30 p.m. Saturday and six p.m. Sunday.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the building. The $10 in coins was all that was taken.

A break-in at Queen Alexander Public School sometime between two p.m. Saturday and 8.30 a.m. Sunday resulted in vandalism instead of theft.

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said that every room in the school was entered and all the teachers' desks ransacked.

A cake in the home economics room was eaten and a dozen eggs were smashed on the floor.

4-H Girls Present Wool Show

PICTON (Staff) — Working with Wool provided the theme for Prince Edward County's 4-H homemaking girls' recent achievement day. Eleven clubs were represented in a fashion show held during the afternoon portion of the program in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. Wools, skirts and jumpers sewn by club members were modelled by the 162 girls taking part in the project. The fashion show highlighted a day-long program which started with a quiz presented by visiting home economists Mrs. Janet Jeffrey and Mrs. Joyce Patterson.

Mrs. Pierce Jones, district president of the Prince Edward Women's Institute presented county and provincial honor pins to 4-H members completing their sixth and twelfth clubs. Provincial honor pins were presented to Jennifer Roxborough, Demorestville Club; Sylvia Brooks and Elizabeth Doxsee, Dorsee Club; Arlene Alyea, Hillier Club; Marilyn Walker, Milford Club; Susanne Minaker and Dixie Mosley, Mountain View Club; and Janice Istead and Kathy Parks, Wellington Club.

Girls successfully completing their projects also received a sterling silver spoon and certificates of achievement.

F.B. Allore Hearing to Begin in Belleville on Jan. 11

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

KINGSTON (Staff) — The hearing of evidence on the suspension of Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School superintendent, F. B. Allore, will begin in Hastings County Courthouse on Jan. 11. It is expected to continue for five days.

The inquiry into the suspension began in Frontenac County Court house in Kingston this morning before Mr. A. R. Campbell, appointed a commission by the Ontario Government to "inquire into and make recommendations upon the suspension."

The purpose of the first session was to decide upon rules of procedure for the inquiry.

In attendance were Mr. Allore and his lawyer, John Winternmeyer, Q.C., Kingston; former Ontario Liberal Party leader, R. J. Buckley, 1949-1970 Separate School Board chairman and the board solicitor, Willard Estey and John Murphy, both of Toronto.

Grounds for Mr. Allore's suspension, Mr. Estey told the hearing, were three of the reasons permitted under section 83 of the Schools Administrations Act: neglect, misconduct and inefficiency.

The board solicitor outlined six allegations on which the board based its suspension of the superintendent. They were:

1. Inability and failure to work with the office staff.
2. Failure to supply accurate and required information to trustees in the ordinary operations of the board.
3. Failure to follow directions of the board and conduct amounting to usurpation of functions and powers of the board.
4. Conduct thwart understanding required mutual trust between the board, superintendent and staff.
5. Disregard by Mr. Allore of department of education regulations.
6. A course of conduct that declares serious lack of the type of judgment required of a senior executive in education.

Stating that "we have never seen the six complaints before", Mr. Winternmeyer referred to them as "very general" and asked that a more detailed list be made.

"For my client this is like or death," said Mr. Winternmeyer. "Under section 83, he is precluded, if dismissed, from ever exercising the duties of a superintendent anywhere in Ontario. On May 7 this board took the extraordinary step and did what to my knowledge has never been done in Ontario before — notified the regional director of a superintendent."

He asked for transcripts of board meetings held at which the suspension was agreed upon by a majority of trustees.

He also asked for financial statements, balance sheets and minutes of meetings. These, he said, were essential if he were to prepare a case for his client.

The board's counsel agreed it had a duty to put public documents forward for examination.

Judge Campbell turned over to the two counsels the list of the case prepared by the department of education, it contains, he said, copies of correspondence dating from May 7, petitions, newspaper clippings and Mr. Allore's speech at a public meeting.

The two lawyers studied the material during the afternoon to decide what documents will become a matter of public record. In addition, they agreed to exchange lists of witnesses and synopsis of what they are expected to say.

Mr. Estey said that the purpose of the hearing is to put information before the commission so that the commissioner (Judge Campbell) can report to the department of education. It is not a trial, he said, and he asked that it be conducted on an informal basis. However, "the favor of advocacy has to be in this inquiry," remarked Judge Campbell.

He decided at the outset of this morning's session to make the inquiry public because "I am impressed by the fact there has been a lot of publicity" on the issue, he said.

"The inquiry will be public subject to my ruling on particular instances. I will rely on counsel to raise the issue again if any part should be heard in private."

His decision was in agreement with requests by Mr. Winternmeyer who said his client (Mr. Allore) preferred a public hearing.

Mr. Estey, speaking on behalf of the board, said that although the separate school board operations were public business and had received a lot of publicity the inquiry "does affect the career of an individual".

He added that evidence given before the hearing might affect people not in the room and he does not wish to be involved and asked the judge to give consideration to hearing the evidence in private.

After the judge ruled in favor of a public hearing Mr. Estey asked that it be held in Belleville for the convenience of witnesses and for the information of the public.

He will call people who will speak of their personal knowledge," he said.

"The board of trustees must show that they acted within their power and authority in suspending the superintendent," he said. "The trustees must show that they acted on evidence and then in the course of acting as public officials they acted reasonably." Mr. Estey said in outlining his concept of the rules of procedure for the inquiry.

Curling Club Roof Collapses

COLBORNE (Staff) — A meeting will be held tonight by members of the Colborne Curling Club to discuss steps to be taken to rebuild the club rink which collapsed Thursday, under pressure of snow.

The roof of the Dorham Street rink collapsed about 4.30 p.m. splitting the roof and pushing out a wall.

Total damage to the rink was estimated at $14,000. No one was injured as the result of the collapse.

Duty Forecasters Get Briefing

Forecasters on Duty at All Times

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — For the 25 people employed at the department of transport's meteorological service here, talking about the weather is a fulltime job.

The "Met section" or weather office is located in a corner of the Air Movements Unit at CFB Trenton and is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"We take weather observations at Trenton and the findings are circulated on a national teletype circuit" David Parkinson, head of the section explained. Additionally the local office receives weather data from all over North America and Europe "in one great transfer".

Four forecasts are produced daily — each covering a 24 hour period. These predict the cloud height, cloud amount, precipitation, wind direction and speed for the Quinte area.

Our predictions are available to aircraft crews in Vancouver, Lahr or London" as they prepare to return to Trenton," Parkinson said.

Eight civilian forecasters, schooled in mathematics and science, with post graduate courses in meteorology make the predictions by scientific methods that are constantly being updated.

They are assisted by a staff of 18 military technicians who compile and transmit weather reports as well as make meteorological observations on a round-the-clock basis.

Most weather offices are not engaged in forecasting. The one at Kingston, for example, is only engaged in taking weather observations. "They do not have meteorologists, so they cannot do forecasting" Parkinson pointed out.

There are major forecast centres across Canada at Vancouver, Edmonton, Whitehorse, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Goose Bay, Gander and Halifax — each predicting for its own region.

The reason for positioning a forecast office at Trenton is the heavy air traffic situation. "Each terminal has its own peculiarities of weather" Parkinson said, adding that nothing can beat on-the-spot observation and prediction.

However, the Trenton office relies on the meteorological centre in Toronto for much of its information. Four teletype machines relay data from around the globe through Toronto to the Met section.

Weather offices in Canada are now connected by a computerized communications system that greatly speeds the carriage of the latest statistics. In the past, information had to be relayed across the country from one meteorological centre to another — a process that, at times, took hours rather than minutes.

When particular weather facts are not received at Trenton meteorologists have can program the computer in Toronto to send the desired material.

Three wirephoto machines also assist the local weatherman by providing a constant stream of weather maps, particularly of North America and Western Europe. Some of these are being sent from the central analysis office in Montreal, others from the United States meteorological service in Washington.

The composite of data received by teletype and wirephoto assists the Trenton weatherman in predicting local weather conditions as well as in the preparation of briefs on the conditions to be expected along the routes of plans leaving here on long distance flights.

Basis of local reports, however, are observations made hourly by technicians at Trenton in a building located next to the Trenton control tower. Here a battery of machines record the "particularities of weather" at CFB Trenton — knowledge of the field conditions vital to all arriving aircraft.

The transmissometer determines visibility on the runway. This apparatus is comprised of a bright light at the end of the runway and a sensitive receiver 450 feet away. A percentage of the light received across the distance gives a measure of the visibility.

Besides a barometer and barograph, the field house also contains a wind recorder giving direction and speed on the ground.

A beam of light is periodically turned to the sky. When it comes in contact with cloud cover, it records the level of the base of the cloud cover on a device known as a ceilometer within the observation centre.

The hourly reports are fed onto a teletype for transmission across the continent. No weatherman is more interested in them than the forecaster at air movements as he pieces together his prognostications.

Wind conditions, not only on the ground, but at various levels are of interest to the forecaster too. At Trenton hydrogen balloons are released daily and followed by instruments in the roof of the observation house.

Using a theodolite, the wind direction and speed is measured at various levels as the balloon rises at 600 feet per minute — an ascent rate determined by the amount of hydrogen fed into the balloon.

"Upper air data has improved the quality of forecasting . . . It helps in predicting surface storms" Parkinson said, explaining that these storms tend to be moved by upper level wind flows.

Such upper level wind flows as jet streams are of particular interest to flight crews too. Riding with a jet stream can cut flying time.

As a rule these tend to flow from west to east and are sought after by pilots heading for European points and avoided by those returning to Canada.

Meteorologists at Trenton, predicting the local weather for flight crews, also serve the general public through forecasts given to the local media. However, the primary function is serving the military, Parkinson said, adding that the cost of operating the local office is underwritten by the department of national Defence.

In November outbound crews were briefed on weather conditions for 166 domestic flights and 55 international flights, mostly to Canadian bases in Germany.

These weather briefings comprise one of the most time-consuming responsibilities for the meteorologist — yet it is one of the most important roles.

The weatherman must advise the crew both on what the most favorable route will be for the flight involved and what points will serve as alternates if adverse weather conditions develop.

Crews can have some faith in the prognostications of the Trenton weatherman — for forecast accuracy in November topped 89 per cent. And when those conditions developments occur, amendments are sent out immediately to the aircraft.

ANAF News

At this joyful Yuletide season the president and executive wish to add their sincere wishes to all members of the Unit and Edinburgh Unit and their families and to the staff and the youthful protegee of the unit, 608 Belleville Air Cadet Squadron, for a bright and Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year. "Long may ye're bun reek."

Special greetings from the Club to the ladies auxiliary and comrades unluckily enough to be in hospital and in ill health and hope that the visits of the chairman and members of the sick committee will help cheer them up a wee bit.

Letters will soon be going out to those faithful comrades who have been members of the unit continuously for 25 years or more. It is expected that approximately 16 or more will be eligible. It is planned to present them at the next general meeting which is when nominations and installation of the 1971 executive will be held. The date is Thursday, Jan. 14 and should be one of the largest turnouts for some time. The meeting will finish with a social evening and refreshments.

Old Propaganda Pete takes this opportunity to extend the season's greetings and to thank his very helpful committee for past services and hopes to have the continued assistance from them in 1971.

The results of the Saturday afternoon darts, played on the last sports event of this year, are as follows: Singles: winner, R. Thomas; runner-up, R. Hatfield. 1st doubles: winners, R. Reid and W. Anderson; runners-up, C. Guy and J. Asseltine. 2nd doubles: winners, K. MacLeod and R. Reid; runnersup, W. Totten and H. Farrell.

Mike Acquafredde, chairman of the sick committee also wished to thank his committee and wish them all the best. On the sick list at present are Comrades R. Woods, RCHI; J. Pelan, 727 and J. Lucciola, 715, both in RCH. F. Cronin and D. Locke are both resting at home. May they all fully recover in the New Year.

Travel Still Popular As Christmas Holiday

To some Belleville residents, Christmas is synonomous with travel and this year is no exception as members of Christmas travellers for forsaking this old custom by Christmas is about the same as last year's number.

Tony Warren of Division and Division Travel Agency said this year's amount of Christmas traffic was "holding steady."

The main change is travel this Christmas is an increase in the number of people with European destinations.

But outside of that, Mr. Warren said things were pretty much the same.

"The Caribbean traffic comes after Christmas," he said. "It's heavily booked there usually."

The biggest travelling influence is the continental travel with destinations in the United States and Canada.

A spokesman said that travel was comparable in amount to last year and probably down a little overall in the bigger cities.

The big destinations at Rokaf's are the Caribbean, Florida, California and Hawaii a little later on.

European travel has remained stable with most of the destinations being in Canada.

Deloro Purchase

The purchase of Deloro Stellite of Belleville by the British Oxygen Company Ltd. seems to have been greeted quietly enough. Apparently British takeovers cause less heat than those initiated by our American neighbors, on the premise presumably that there is no danger of Britain extending its influence to the point that our sovereignty is threatened.

But consider for a moment the degree of British influence through trade and the marketing of immerous British products here, either by export from that country or through their manufacture here by Canadian subsidiaries.

British aircraft like the Viscount and Vanguard, although now being superseded largely by U.S. aircraft, have played an important part in the development of commercial aviation in this country.

United Kingdom-produced cars also find a ready market here, although we sometimes wonder if, in view of Britain's shaky economic position, they could not be sold in even greater numbers, utilizing the kind of promotion methods which have proved so successful for other European rivals.

Clothing and the food industry also have boosted Britain's earnings and a look at the shelves of any supermarket tells the food story and in many instances there is no counterpart of comparable quality bearing a Canadian label.

It is interesting to recall that a British subsidiary of Deloro Stellite manufactures alloy artificial hip implants for persons with severe arthritic conditions, and that in 1957 a visiting British surgeon performed two such operations at Belleville General Hospital.

An idea of the financial contribution of Deloro Stellite to the Belleville economy may be had from the fact that British Oxygen is paying $14 million for all the issued share capital of the local firm and its British subsidiary.

We should imagine the purchase will mean further prosperity for the firm and a continuing important part in the industrial life of this community.

Poland Erupts

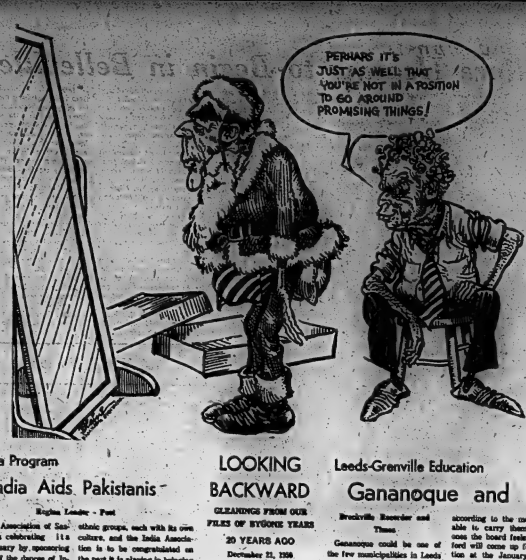
The events in Poland are a reminder of the agony of Hungary in 1956, although they do not seem to have reached the scale of full insurrection.

We hope for the sake of the people of Poland, remembering the brutal Soviet repression of the Hungarian uprising, that events will not escalate as they did in Budapest 14 years ago. As it is, some 20 deaths have been reported, and many more injured. A Swedish journalist saw a mother and her child overrun by a tank.

The riots were sparked by pre-Christmas price increases and considering that the Poles are a volatile people and that they have little regard for their nation's status as a satellite of the Soviet Union, one can only wonder at the stupidity of the government in ordering such increases at this time.

It is an unhappy day for the people of Poland. They will be sympathy with them in a Christmas period that is climaxing in tragedy.

Now Montreal



For all its general acceptance — in more than 300 communities throughout Canada for example — artificial fluoridation of water supply, as a means of reducing tooth decay, still excites controversy!

Trenton recently turned it down for a second time, by public vote, and there is the evidence that some countries, Sweden, for example, do not permit it. Why we are going to have it accepted in areas of Montreal which apparently are also holdouts.

The Montreal Gazette observes: "The founders of the Montreal Urban Community presents an opportunity to push for fluoridation of all drinking water supplies on the island. Some suburban municipalities already have fluoridated water, and they do not want to yield control of their water supply to the metropolitan government unless Mayor Drapeau will agree to the islandwide fluoridation."

Calling for the issue to be thrashed out now and noting the effectiveness of fluoridation in preventing tooth decay, The Gazette adds: "It is high time that Mayor Drapeau exposed his objections in serious scrutiny."

Thus we have another round in the battle of fluoridation.

Regina Program

India Aids Pakistanis

Regina Leader - Post

The India Association of Saskatchewan is celebrating its first anniversary by sponsoring a program of the dances of India to be performed by the internationally famous dancer, Sasha Camdra Gehter, in the auditorium of the Education Building, Regina Campus.

This will be the first time a program of the dances of India has been given in Regina and doubtless many will attend to see at first hand the cultural art of the great sub-continent.

Saskatchewan in general and Regina in particular is rich in ethnic groups, each with its own culture, and the India Association is to be congratulated on the part it is playing in bringing the art of their nation's land to the attention of all citizens of this part of the country.

Part of the proceeds from the Rhythmic India program will be donated to the Pakistan Relief fund of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

It is encouraging to note that the people of India in this distant part of the world are reaching out the hand of friendship to the Pakistan following the disaster when a cyclone and tidal wave hit the Bengali islands.

Escape European-Style Is to The Mountains—But Don't Expect Any 'Grass'

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

Syd O'Farrell writes from Ottawa: "What's wrong with kids is that they never have the opportunity of escaping from unreality for a few days. When I was a teen-ager I would have gone stark raving mad had it not been for the Youth Hostel Association.

In Europe there is a hostel every 10 or 20 miles along the walking trails. They are loosely supervised. The price of a night's lodging is maybe 25 cents plus the responsibility for doing some housework and washing up. Most hostels have cooking facilities, and some serve meals at remarkably low prices. Any kid who gets chesed out with home can sling a pack on his back and fling a beer for a week. He's fairly safe and his parents needn't worry too seriously.

Everywhere you go in Ruraria, even on 8,000 - foot peaks, you meet hundreds — really, hundreds — of kids ranging from 12 years of age pounding along the trail from one hostel to the next. I think that half our problems would disappear if there was even one chain of hostels in Canada. Oh yes, we do have some hostels: but without a car you can't get from one to the other. Since we don't have any one chain, kids don't know where they are missing. If they did, they'd storm Parliament Hill. Or would they?"

Salvation Army Expresses Thanks for Support Of Work in the Community

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I thought I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of all Belleville Salvationists, Mrs. Garney and myself, to express to the citizenry of Belleville and the Quinte area Season's Greetings, and to extend to our many friends a hand clasp of appreciation for your support and interest in our work.

For a number of years now The Salvation Army has been actively engaged in the "Volunteer Christmas Sharing Program", and the citizens of Belleville have enabled us to bring happiness to many homes by providing us with the financial muscle both at Christmas time and throughout the year. Saying thank you seems inadequate, but it is expressed on behalf of those whose lives will be made more satisfying and rewarding because you took their interest to heart.

To all . . . the workers; the business men, the stores, churches, service clubs and individuals, The Salvation Army says "thank you" for so many who can't say it for themselves.

May God bless you and may you and yours enjoy happiness and peace at this Christmas time and throughout 1971.

E. T. GURNEY,
Captain.

Leeds-Grenville Education

Gananoque and Local Election

Brockville Recorder and Times

Gananoque could be one of the few municipalities in Leeds and Grenville that is happy about the new educational system. Or it could be one of the most apathetic.

When nominations were held recently for the town's seat on the counties board of education, the former chairman, Mr. D. R. Price, who is also chairman of the Board, received an acclamation. From reports there wasn't much interest in the nomination. Trustee James Reid of Gananoque also received an acclamation as the separate school representative on the Board.

And . . . when the list of educational priorities was submitted to the Board, there were no requests from Gananoque. The submissions came from other municipalities. Specials, teachers, consultative staff and professional organizations all had items. 193 requests covering 23 different categories but not one from Gananoque.

Of the 193, there were 112 requests from elementary schools, 37 from secondary and 34 from the elementary school principals' association. These came from all over the counties, except Gananoque. These are priorities that will be considered by the Board this month and whittled down according to the money available to carry them out. The ones the board feels it can afford will come up for ratification at the January 11 meeting. Surely there must be something that the people of Gananoque and the township want for their schools. This is their opportunity to make their desires known.

The fact there weren't any requests from Gananoque brought the comment from Mr. Price that he didn't know whether they had "simply failed to answer or haven't considered the requests yet". This suggests that Mr. Price, the lone representative of the public school supporters in Gananoque, has not been doing his homework.

We feel it accretible that the town with the greatest interest in school affairs. (If this is a true indication) is also the home of the chairman of the board.

Computer Course by TV

MUNICH — West German television has taken a major public service step, offering TV viewers a once - weekly introductory course to computers and how they work.

The series, which runs 18 weeks, is being watched by an estimated 50,000 people, who have a chance to earn a diplomas via active participation in the course: during each of the programs, a lesson is assigned and viewers can work it out at home, sending it in to the program for grading.

As a special help, four volumes as a backup for the series are being sold at bookstores throughout the country for about $12. A number of German firms are supplying computers with the books for free to encourage participation.

Focus on Media

A Critical View of the Davey Report

Hamilton Spectator

Pages of the Davey report are taken up with unsubstantiated trivia about Canada's press in blanket attacks, some clearly politically inspired, on regional papers and groups. Apart from some obsequious knee-bending to the politically powerful metropolitan giants, which will fool only the naive, virtually all the rest of the country's newspapers — some of them models for any nation's press — are tossed on the garbage can with a snort. The credibility gap of the committees so - called "research" brushes out to the horizon. If there was any valid research, apart from statistical data on finance and ownership, the evidence will be very interesting to the taxpayers when it is revealed.

Here the big questions come in: (1) Was Davey doing this job as his own initiative, or was he handling somebody else's laundry? (2) What kind of "research" was done in most Canadian cities and towns? (3) How many people, and what kind of people, were questioned on their opinion of the newspaper's role in the community? (4) Who were the authors of this document? (5) Were these authors knowledgeable enough to do a job, or were they part of that army of casuffs and hacks, who feed off Ottawa's massive and entrenched bureaucracy? (6) Is it a coincidence that this attempt to downgrade Canadian newspapers in general comes at a time when an operation called "Information Canada" — starting off with another 150 or so of the battalion of publicity boys in the capital — has raised very real suspicions that to throttle critics of government is deep in the whole power clique inclination?

We hope Senator Davey takes this in the kindly way it is intended. It is getting close to Christmas and some of these important questions were quite properly wait until the body of the Senate, made up in the main of living institutions, does its new bible. Maybe they won't be too interested because the squinting spectators of Davey who had to go down there to appear certainly won't soon be forgotten. It was hard at times to single out a committee quorum. We suspect some of the good fellows were either bored or disgusted. Loose and senseless questions were tossed around; the lack of any authentic research was disgracefully evident, and the whole thing became something of a burlesque.

Ann Landers

Emotional Problem Causes Bed-Wetting

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl who is too ashamed to talk to anyone about my problem. I still wet the bed and don't know the matter how hard I try. Because of this I have never been able to go to camp or sleep at anybody's house. The worst part is I have a big mouth brother who calls everybody. He teases me and calls me "Baby." This is awfully hard to take.

They've taken me to see Mom look me to a urologist to see if there was something wrong with my kidneys or bladder. The doctor took all kinds of tests and said I was in perfect health. That very night I wet the bed. Mom got mad. She called me "lazy," and said I was "rotting the bed on purpose. Nothing could be further from the truth. I'd give anything if I could stop. Ann, it would change my whole life. Please help me. — NIGHT FRIGHTER

DEAR N.F.: When a parent takes a child to a doctor and is told, "The tests show nothing organically wrong," and the doctor is right. What then? Is the reason for my problem? What should we do next?"

The vast majority of bed wetters have no organic illness. The bed wetting is caused by an emotional problem. Every good urologist knows this. You should have had professional counseling years ago. Your mother should waste no more time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We married young and had a baby the first year. For financial reasons we moved in with my husband's family.

I appreciate everything they are doing for us but my mother-in-law is very bossy and I can't stand up to her. What bugs me most is that she has taken over my baby and made him feel like her baby. My mother-in-law decides what the baby will eat, when he will nap, what he will wear — all the things a mother should decide.

My husband calls me any help because he works two jobs and is never around when I need him. Shouldn't a mother be allowed to take care of her own child — even though she lives with her in-laws? Can you help me? — EXCLUDED.

DEAR EX: You can help yourself. Move. Since your husband is working two jobs you can surely afford a couple of rooms somewhere. An unfurnished broom closet over a bowling alley would be better than a home where you can't even take care of your own child.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there a special place at God's right hand for the women's editor of a newspaper? I refer to that incredibly snobbish, self-important female who decides whose daughter is going to get her engagement or wedding picture in the paper and whose party is going to make the page.

I live in a city where the Cabots speak only to the Lowells and the Lowells speak only to God. If you don't happen to belong to one of the "better" families you have no chance of getting your name, much less your picture, in the society section.

It makes me sick to see the same names and the same ugly pussies day after day. Something should be done about this unfair managing of the news. Land a bomb, will you? — HATE.

DEAR L: I know a great many women's editors (some are men) and they are invariably the hardest-working, most harrassed people on the paper. Space is always a problem and I'm cautiously amazed at how well they do. If some of you complainers walked in the women's editor's moccasins for one day you'd be less critical.

Points for Parents

By MARY BETSON

Mother: "Susie, I'll spank you if you touch that creche again. The shepherds don't belong there where you put them. I had it all arranged so nicely for Christmas."

Mother: "You may help me place the figures for the creche. The three wise men really belong here at the back because they were late in arriving on the scene. The little crib belongs in the middle."

A perfectly arranged Christmas decoration is not as important as is a happy little girl who feels she is helping with the festivities.

Successful Living

They Doubled Their Money by Planning Ahead

By DORIS CLARK

The president of the women's group at a small, semi-rural church writes to tell me that by holding a little special effort, the ladies were able to double previous years' profits at the annual Christmas bazaar. How did they do it?

Last January they appointed a bazaar convener. She immediately lined up conveners for each booth. Throughout the year she checked regularly to make sure that they were planning and accumulating articles for sale.

With the help of a special committee, the convener had booths built in the style of little stores to be set up as an old English street called "Spend - Penny Lane". The theme was carried through with a tea shoppe at which an English tea was served — scones, strawberry jam and thick cream. Another committee worked all year on advertising and publicity.

After years of slap-dash last-minute bazaars that netted disappointing profits, the ladies were thrilled to learn that extra effort and team-work can be rewarded to make a resounding success.

Dear Doris: I am very much interested in working in an orphanage. I would be willing to get my degree in social work but I am aware of my capabilities towards such a situation. — Occupational Hazard

Dear Hazard: You'd have to look to find an orphanage. There aren't the number of orphans there used to be, since medical skill is helping parents have long enough to get their children well launched.

Institutions serving children are well-staffed with the ones who are disturbed, and not because they have no parents.

It is more that the parents are not going, or are not grown-up enough to give proper guidance to the tiny persons. Sickness, death or a divorce has rocked the small boy or girl to his very foundation.

So the institutions work at getting the little one back on an even keel, while at the same time repairing the marriage. Working with such a situation calls for a knowledge of people and how to help them; the things you learn in a course of social work.

I'm sending you my letter about this interesting — and demanding — profession. If you are interested in children, and in how people's minds work, look into it.

Dear Doris: My dad is wonderful but my mother and all her relations drive me crazy. My mother is a complainer and what's more she has been up all night with him, if this turns out to be the only obstacle! — Under a Strain

Dear Under: Some parents seem to have the idea that nobody but royalty is good enough for their daughter; and I would run away.

This is hard on the guy, but we are very happy together and I can feel his love for me just radiant and warm, even though we haven't touched each other yet.

One thing I should add, my boy friend is wonderful in every way, but he is homely. Is there a possibility of a happy married life with him, if this turns out to be the only obstacle? — Under a Strain

Dear Under: Some parents seem to have the idea that nobody but royalty is good enough for their daughter; and if a prince proposed there would turn out to be something wrong with him, too!

One great danger of constant objections from the family is that you may accept your suitor because you want so much to be some place else than home. You may have to move into your own apartment for a while to discover how you really feel and to be free from pressure when you make your decision.

From the sound of your letter you are in love, in which case the homeliness matters not one whit!

An Extra Special Christmas Pudding

By MARY MOORE

While our 1970 Christmas pudding was steaming merrily away on the stove this mailman came and among the letters was a request for my 1969 Plum Pudding. Although our Christmas test baking and cooking program started in September the pudding was last on the list simply because I like it to be fresh, plus the fact I could not get around to making it because of other commitments.

I think you will like it for it is neither too rich or too bland and because it goes together easily.

CHRISTMAS STEAMED PUDDING 1970

2 eggs
¾ cup light brown sugar
1 cup finely chopped suet
1 cup, one-day-old bread crumbs
½ cup orange juice
1 cup sifted cake and pastry flour
¾ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
1 cup chopped walnuts or blanched almonds
1 lb. cut mixed peels
1 cup raisins
Into large beater bowl measure eggs, sugar and suet and beat until blended. Add bread crumbs and orange juice and beat in. Sift together sifted flour, spices, soda and salt and beat in. Stir in nuts and fruits until all are well mixed.

To make removal easy butter a 7-cup mould, pudding or stainless steel (not aluminum) and criss cross the it with two 4" strips of cooking parchment and butter them. Turn in pudding batter and smooth top. Cover snugly with foil and tie it on.

Lower into large kettle containing boiling water to come halfway up outside of mould. Cover steamer and simmer 5 hrs., replenishing boiling water as it evaporates.

Carefully lift from steamer, remove foil and cool to room temperature. Replace foil and store in refrigerator until about 1½ hrs. before serving time. Reheat in mould in boiling water 1¼ to 1½ hrs., turn out on large fancy plate and serve with Perfect Hard Sauce made by beating until pale and light ½ cup butter. Add ¼ tsp. salt, 1¼ cups unsifted icing sugar, ¼ to ½ tsp. almond flavoring and if desired, 1 tbsp. brandy or rum and beat until light and airy and smooth as velvet. Pile on attractive cut glass dish peaking up the top with fork tip. Sprinkle with nutmeg, if desired, and chill until hard.

Or serve with

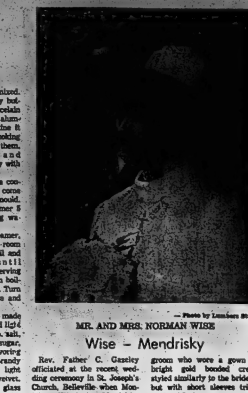
RICH BROWN SUGAR SAUCE

1 cup light brown sugar
2 tbsps. corn starch
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 cups hot water
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 or 3 tbsps. butter
1 tsp., vanilla or rum flavoring

Mix well together dry the brownsugar, corn starch, salt and nutmeg. Over medium heat stir in the boiling water until thick and clear, cooking and stirring a few minutes longer. Add lemon juice, butter and flavoring, heat through and serve hot.

Somewhat Safer

Dry chlorine bleach is initially somewhat safer to handle than liquid, because the chlorine is not released until the powder begins to dissolve in water.



DICKENS REMEMBERED

TORONTO (CP) — Some 150 admirers of Charles Dickens gathered at York University recently to listen to learned papers on the famed author of the 19th century, drink a wine he would have savored and dine on a menu lifted from a cookbook published in 1859. The event commemorated the fact that Dickens died 100 years ago.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN WISE

Wise – Mendrisky

Rev. Father C. Gazeley officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville when Monika Elisabeth Mendrisky daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl J. Mendrisky, Belleville became the bride of Norman Douglas Wise of Willowdale, Sister Mary Avila rendered traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length white velvet gown in Aline style featuring long Victorian sleeves and a high collared neckline and highlighted at back with chapel train. A long sweeping veil of silk illusion was caught to a white pillbox headdress. She carried a white gladiola encircled with white daisy 'mums and trailing ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Margaret Lynch of Belleville who wore a gown styled identically to the bride's (but without train) in deep gold velvet. She carried a basket filled with bronze, yellow and white daisy 'mums and trailing ivy. Bridesmaids Miss Antoinetta DiTomaso of Belleville and Miss Sandra Marshall of Toronto (Willowdale) were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried identical flowers. Flower girl was Miss Leslie Sloane, niece of the bridegroom who wore a gown of bright gold bonded crepe styled similarly to the bride's, but with short sleeves trimmed with lace as was the collar. She carried a small version of the bride's bouquet with a yellow rose substituted for the gladiola.

A reception was held at the Prince Edward Suite, Hotel Quinte where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a melon colored wool dress with an A inset in front trimmed with brown braid, brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother wore an apple green shantung dress accented with lace and silk sash, green and white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Eastern Ontario, the bride travelled in tweed slacks and green sweater, fitted tweed overcoat, with a single red rose corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Wise will reside at 5453A Yonge Street, Willowdale.

Senior Citizens' Club Has Busy Month

For the conclusion of the year 1970, the Belleville Senior Citizens Club has spent a busy month. Earlier in the month 46 members enjoyed a bus trip to Trenton where they attended the Senior Citizens' tea and bazaar there. The local club had also been busy in preparing a float for the Santa Claus parade.

To top the month's events was the annual Christmas dinner in St. Thomas parish hall where a tasty meal was served by members of Ontario Eastern Star Chapter #5. Rev. Peter Tett who gave the invocation, also brought a inspiring Christmas message.

President of the club Mrs. Kathleen Adams welcomed the gathering and introduced head table guests and executive members. On behalf of the City of Belleville, Alderman Arthur Keegan brought greetings in representing Mayor J. R. Scott. Also attending were Lorne Williams, Clifford Belch Jr. and Mrs. W. Summers representing the recreation commission who brought greetings from their department.

A number of Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. Lulu Adams the accompanist.

Mr. Rawson of Rawson Tours gave a talk and explained the various tour details and showed slides of an English tour. He was thanked by Mrs. Bedell as well as the president.

For the last meeting of the year a large number attended with Mrs. Adams presiding. A moment of silence was observed in memory of. Immediate past president, Mrs. Mabel Doyle who had been a most active member.

Monday were read by Mrs. K. Ferguson, the treasurer's report by Mrs. Jackson, and Mrs. Gist reported that two members William Thompson and Jessie Armstrong were in hospital.

Following a short business meeting cards were enjoyed, with winners: Mrs. Ray Fox, Mrs. Keitha Ferguson, Mrs. Eleanor Stevens, Frank Edgar, Mrs. Amanda Brown and Joseph Bailey, Mrs. Elma Doyle won the door prize.

At the close refreshments were served by Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Thurston with the assistance of other members.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holgate of Eldorado, will be receiving their friends and relatives on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, December 27 from 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at their home. No gifts please.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lessard and sons have returned home after spending a holiday in Bermuda.

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Norman Wise (nee Monika Mendrisky) was honored at a linen shower given by Mrs. Linda Sloane in Toronto and at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Antoinetta De Tomaso in Belleville with Miss Margaret Lynch as co-hostess.

Boot buyers, note well. Shiny textured 50s vinyl and light colors make feet look large. Dull textures like kid or calf make them look smaller.

Club Activities

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA (LAMBDA CHAPTER)

Mrs. Pat Soulter, Mrs. Nancy Scott, Mrs. Ann Colborne and Miss Heather Grant were initiated int the Lambda chapter of the Alpha Delta Kappa sorority at the December meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Pearl McCurdy. The four new members were presented by Marion Craighead.

A Christmas tree and other decorations adorned the room. Mrs. Laura Fisher gave a Christmas message on Christ the Master teacher. Miss Phyllis May led the carol singing.

An exchange of Christmas gifts took place. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Fay Burnett and Mrs. Pearl McCurdy.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

COMPANY 5, GUIDES

Company 5 recently held an enrolment ceremony when 13 girls received their tenderfoot pins. Brownie packs 7 and 17 were also present, enabling four girls to receive Brownie wings.

Many parents attended the ceremony. Tea and coffee were served by the girls who were trying for their hostess badges.

The company is now engaged in a Christmas project of donating toys and making dolls' clothes. This year the girls are also making a donation of money to help needy families enjoy Christmas. The money was earned by the girls through various sales and by doing car washes.

Another Wayne on the Way

John Wayne's youngest son, John Ethan Wayne, 8, who last spring was an extra with his father in "Rio Lobo," makes his acting debut in a featured role of "The Million Dollar Kidnapping." Young Wayne plays the grandson of Wayne and is kidnapped and held for $1 million ransom. Top, Wayne and son go over script before scene; bottom, young Wayne hugs his father in terror during a shootout.

Khrushchev's Book Creates Speculation

NEW YORK (AP) — If Nikita S. Khrushchev's memoirs are genuine — and the evidence points to this — he has in spite of himself produced a remarkable condemnation of the Soviet system. His views are bound to provoke speculation about what may be amiss in the Kremlin today.

Khrushchev Remembers, already abridged in four instalments in Life, will be published today in more complete form by Little Brown and Co.

The system which developed under Joseph Stalin is here indicted as a political machine dominated by interlocers. The book then criticizes the present system...by implication, as one that is overindustrialized and that keeps its people far-too-firmly sealed off from the rest of the world.

A notable thing about this book is that its reputed author did not, apparently, intend to indict the system or even imply any particular criticism of it as it exists today. On the contrary, it seems to have been intended to extol the Soviet way as the way of the future for the world.

It seems so strangely by an old man — he is now 76 — to justify what he did when he was one of the world's most powerful men, premier and Communist party chief of the Soviet Union.

Yet the words suggest to the reader that few among the Soviet leaders who came up under Stalin had any redeeming features. The world of that clique, to use one of Khrushchev's terms, was populated by "poisonous snakes."

If the memoirs are to be credited, Stalin was a murderous madman; former premier Georgi Malenkov was a sneak and a schemer; Lavrenty Beria, the secret police chief, was a brutish, power-loving beast; Lazar Kaganovich, one of Stalin's closest collaborators, was a sycophant; the late Marshal Klimenti Voroshilov was a drunken bumbler.

"But from my position as a parishoner," he says, "I can't help noticing that now money is being wasted on unnecessary items and categories, and that this trend of military overspending is putting a pinch on some of the more important but still underfinanced areas of our country's life."

The book is remarkable for its portrayal of a hell that Stalin and his henchmen constructed. The memories are equally fascinating for their look into the mental process of a top Soviet leader who was a product of a half-century of Communist-style socialism.

An appearance of genuineness is reinforced by an abundance of Khrushchevisms, plus many contradictory statements, obvious errors and downright lies, all characteristically Khrushchevian. The memoirs suggest rambling remembrances transcribed from tape, carefully edited, cleaned up and organized into coherent narrative.

Khrushchev has not specifically denied the memoirs but rather has denounced as a "fabrication" the idea that he participated in plans to publish them. The Soviet news agency Tass quoted him as saying he never "passed on" the material.

If the words are his, the manner of their transmission westward is a matter of importance. The possibility that there was high-level complicity in getting them out could not just division at the top in the Kremlin. Somebody, perhaps, badly wanted the memoirs published.

U.S. Army Reacted to Riot

DETROIT (CP) — The 1967 riot in Detroit caused the United States Army to step up its domestic surveillance of civilians to its present controversial point, The Free Press quotes army intelligence agents as saying.

One former agent, Ralph M. Stein of Flushing, N.Y., said in a telephone interview the size of the national intelligence collecting office was multiplied by five times after the Detroit riot, which pointed out serious gaps in the army's knowledge of civil disorders.

Stein said his army superiors "were very conspiracy orientated."

"They felt like if they could just find out who organized the riots and who ran them then they might be able to stop them."

Last week, another former agent said the army spied on a number of Illinois office holders, including U.S. Senator Adlai E. Stevenson III and former Illinois governor, Otto Kerner, now a federal judge and the chairman of the U.S. national commission which investigated civil disorders after Detroit's riot.

The 27-year-old Stein said he was in 1967-68 in charge of the "left wing desk" in Washington, a national collection point for information about radical activity. After the riot, he said, a right-wing desk and a racial desk were added, and the size of the section was increased to 15 men from three.

He said he had an open line during the Detroit riot to the local Intelligence branch which sent "every bit of information they could, including the number of drunks arrested."

Stein said the FBI provided much of the information about the University of Michigan chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), classified as either confidential or secret. He said the army accepted FBI reports as gospel with no cross-check.

Much of the SDS information given to the army, Stein said, was from undercover agents known only to army intelligence by a code name.

He said the FBI compiled "a complete investigation of every one of the 600 people arrested at the Pentagon" during an anti-war march in October, 1967.

"Going, are we?"

Majority of Doctors Ignoring Parcost Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's campaign to reduce drug costs, begun two months ago, is of to a slow start, chiefly because doctors are discovering old habits die hard.

"Our big problem is that doctors all have their standard, routine, well-bred methods of prescribing—on the advice, investigation of pharmacists, salesmen, manufacturers and others," says Dr. Raymond A. LaForest, chief of pediatrics at Scarborough General Hospital.

Dr. LaForest's comments followed the report of a recent survey by the Ontario Pharmacists Association, which found that only about 30 per cent of doctors are prescribing chemical-name drugs for their patients. Patients are still being saddled with the more expensive brand name drugs, despite Parcost—the government's low-cost drug plan—which was introduced Oct. 7.

Parcost is an attempt to persuade doctors to prescribe inexpensive drugs—those sold by their chemical or generic names—rather than the higher-priced drugs sold under brand names.

For example, tolbutamide, an anti-diabetic drug, is sold under the brand name of Mobenol for 8.8 cents per tablet. Under its chemical or generic name, it sells for only 1.6 cents.

To help Ontario's 9,000 doctors prescribing generic drugs, Parcost distributed a 80-page index of 445 drugs in four broad categories showing the prices of comparable drugs. The index was compiled by an advisory committee of professionals not connected with the government.

Dr. LaForest, a member of a committee which tested and investigated all brands of drugs listed in the index, also blamed apathy on the part of doctors for the slow start, and the fact that many see Parcost as a form of government encroachment on medical freedom.

Some doctors believe that brand-name drugs are of better quality and others say they don't have the time to look up the correct drug on the index.

To counteract this, a proposal, now being considered, would permit doctors to prescribe a drug but add "no CDI substitution", which would put the onus on the pharmacist to look up a cheaper drug in the index. CDI stands for comparative drug index.

Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells claims drug prices already have gone down 10 per cent since last March. He said when the index was introduced some companies dropped their drug prices in the wake of competition.

But to speed up the process, the medical association will launch a fresh campaign in January to promote Parcost, which will include speaking tours of medical societies.

Meanwhile, A. N. Palmer, who compiled and distributed the index for the government, says 25 per cent of the province's 1,650 pharmacists have joined the plan.

New Brunswickers Sign Up For Medical Insurance

FREDERICTON (CP) — More than 550,000 New Brunswickers, nearly 90 per cent of the province's population, have registered for medical care insurance which starts Jan. 1, Deputy Health Minister Dr. J. C. Clarkson said during the weekend.

With the implementation date nearing, Dr. Clarkson said there has been a late surge in registration but there will still be a few who will not bother to participate.

"We feel the few will be essentially single, young adults who really don't think much about illness."

Registration facilities will be available at hospitals and doctors' offices even after Jan. 1, he added.

The over-all cost of setting up the scheme was estimated at $700,000.

Registration, carried out through the mails, had cost about $300,000, considerably less than first anticipated.

The annual cost of medical care had been estimated at about $25 million, with about $15 million in financing from the federal government.

The program will be implemented without premiums paid by the public, and doctors will be reimbursed at the rate of 87 per cent of the New Brunswick Medical Society's fee schedule.

Doctors have been given the choice of "opting in" or "opting out" of the program but Dr. Clarkson said he expects the vast majority of physicians to participate.

Arnold Heeney Dead at 68

OTTAWA (CP) — Arnold Heeney, 68, Canadian diplomat and influential architect of Canada's relations with the United States for 20 years, died Sunday.

Mr. Heeney was ambassador to Washington from 1953 to 1962, when he became chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission which deals with U.S.-Canadian border problems. He held the latter post with one interruption, until his death.

In those two roles he was a leading practitioner of "quiet diplomacy" whose chief exponent after Mackenzie King was former prime minister Lester Pearson.

"Canada has lost one of her most talented citizens—one who in a single lifetime contributed the equivalent of several full careers."

Funeral services for Mr. Heeney, who was to have retired from the IJC Dec. 31 after 32 years in the public service, will be held Wednesday at the Anglican Christ Church Cathedral in Ottawa.

Mr. Heeney presided in Washington at a period in Canada's relations with the United States that included the maturing of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the foundation-laying of NORAD—the North American Air Defence Command.

His views on Canada's proper relationship with the U.S. were enunciated in a 1965 report commissioned by then prime minister Pearson and President Johnson.

Mr. Heeney was born in Montreal in 1902, the son of Anglican minister Rev. Canon William Heeney.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, a son and a daughter.

Arson Is Investigated In Fatal Hotel Fire

TUCSON, Ariz. (CP) — Police said today they are investigating possible criminal involvement in a hotel fire which left 28 dead and 27 injured.

Several survivors of the flames which raced through the upper half of the three-story, 75-room International Hotel early Sunday said they had smelled a volatile substance in the corridors.

"I hadn't heard of that," was the only comment by Police Capt. Francis Keasler, heading the investigation.

The fire in the 41-year-old building broke out on the sixth floor and flared through hallways and staircases, penning about 60 persons in their rooms with no way out except through the windows.

One woman plunged to her death from the seventh floor.

"I'm still here—I'm still here!" witnesses said she shouted shortly before making the fatal leap.

The dead in the dawn blaze were mostly wealthy Mexicans and their families who came to Tucson for Christmas shopping.

They were all from Sonora which lies across the border from Arizona 60 miles south of here.

They included the wife and five children of Maj. Francisco Laken, chief of Sonora's state judicial police.

Also killed was Dr. Jose Jesus Antillon, one of Mexico's most prominent oncologists, his wife and their three children.

Five grandchildren of the former governor of Sonora, Ignacio Soto, died in the fire. Their parents survived.

Many of the survivors said they awoke with smoke pouring into their rooms.

Dr. Lewis Back of Rochester, N.Y., said the heat forced him out his sixth floor window and on to a ledge.

"I began to think I was going to die," he said.

"I figured a leap would kill me quickly. I wasn't going to be able to hold on much longer."

Then he saw a Casa Grande, Ariz., physician, William Forbis—shoeless and blanched with smoke, inching down a drainpipe to safety.

Forbis and Back would have been trapped by the rising heat which just got more intense the higher up in the building it went, he said.

People jumped from windows to the ground as temperatures inside reached 2,000 degrees, hot enough to chip the concrete walls.

Fire officials said the blaze probably would have continued to the original fire. The stairways acted like a chimney and the heat went right on up it and into the hallways.

Slagel said that "if there had been a sprinkler system, no one would have died." However, city fire safety laws do not require such systems.

"Anyone on the top floors would have been trapped by the rising heat which just got more intense the higher up in the building it went," he said.

U.S. Troop Withdrawal From Japan Announced

TOKYO (Reuter) — The United States announced today the withdrawal of about 12,000 troops from Japan, along with virtually all American combat aircraft.

Following a top-level U.S.-Japan meeting here, a communique said that a number of U.S. bases would be closed or shared with Japanese forces.

By the time withdrawals are completed by mid-1971, the U.S. will have only 39,000 military personnel in Japan, none of them engaged in combat duties.

The majority of the U.S. Air Force Phantom jet fighter-bombers are being switched to South Korea and to the U.S.-held island of Okinawa, scheduled to be returned to Japan in 1972.

Official U.S. sources said the cut was being made in line with a need for reducing military expenditure, as well as shifting the greater burden for Japanese defence on to the Japanese military.

The cut, involving about one-third of the 35,000 to 40,000 American military personnel in Japan, marks the end of months of hard negotiations.

They are in line with the Nixon doctrine of military self-help, under which the U.S. removes American combat units from this Asian mainland and encourages Asian countries to do more to defend themselves, while the U.S. maintains a nuclear umbrella over the area.

Japan already handles almost all its own defence, with American reinforcement virtually limited to the nuclear deterrent under a U.S.-Japan security treaty.

There are at present seven U.S. Phantom squadrons based in Japan, each containing 18 to 20 aircraft.

The reduction will result in the discharge of about 10,000 Japanese employees at U.S. bases by the end of June.

At the bases from about 3,000 U.S. military and civilian personnel are being withdrawn from Okinawa.

The only combat aircraft remaining in Japan will be marine Phantoms at Iwakuni, in southern Japan, which will continue their role of supporting marine amphibious forces.

The 7th fleet will remain based in Japan, but its present two major repair bases will be cut in one.

Yokosuka, near Tokyo, is being handed over to the Japanese, and 7th fleet activities will be grouped at Sasebo, in southern Japan.

Two air squadrons, which will be moved to South Korea by June 30, are part of an American attempt to soften the impact of the planned withdrawal of up to 20,000 ground troops from South Korea.

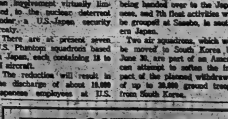
Light Shed On Hughes' Operations

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A judge ruled Saturday that the directors of Hughes Tool Co. had the right to control Howard R. Hughes' $300 million Nevada empire and to fire Robert Maheu, who had run the billionaire's properties in the state for four years.

The two-week power struggle that led to this decision made clearer some facets of the operation of the empire controlled by Hughes, who has cloistered himself in seclusion for two decades.

It was revealed, for example, that Hughes has five assistants and that Maheu had never met his boss face to face.

Since moving here four years ago, Hughes had remained isolated in a penthouse apartment above the Las Vegas Strip while Robert Maheu spent $300 million of Hughes' money acquiring casinos, hotels and land.



During this time, Maheu said in court, he communicated with Hughes solely by telephone and written messages ferried back and forth by the five male assistants. Hughes' messages, scrawled on yellow, legal-size paper, always went back with the messengers.

Like many other top people in the Hughes organization, the five aides are all Mormons and have been with Hughes from six to 30 years. They neither drink nor smoke and lead conservative, serene existences in nondescript homes throughout the city, qualities that apparently appeal to Hughes.

The five assistants work in eight-hour shifts, with each on more than one off duty at a time. While Hughes—now believed to be in the Bahamas after a secret departure Thanksgiving Eve—was in Las Vegas, many people could get to the other rooms of Hughes' ninth-floor retreat in the Desert Inn Hotel, but only the assistants could enter the three-room inner sanctum—two bedrooms and a living room—where Hughes lived.

Following Hughes' departure, the 10-man board of directors of Hughes Tool Co. flew in from Texas and fired Maheu.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Christian church is alive and doing relatively well in most of Eastern Europe at Christmas, 1970, although there is no evidence Communist regimes have abandoned their efforts to make atheism replace it.

Religion appears to be holding its own in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Rumania. It is worse off in Bulgaria and in bad shape in Albania, Communist China's only European ally.

Students of East European affairs say the Communist regimes apparently have decided to tolerate religion among middle-aged and elderly peoples.

The Austrian cardinal, Most Rev. Franz Koenig, archbishop of Vienna, has visited Czechoslovakia, Russia and Hungary.

"The problem of atheism in Communist states is the smallest difficulty for the church," he says.

Cardinal Koenig is head of the Vatican's secretariat for non-believers. He believes that a much bigger problem is the Communist governments' efforts to place difficulties in the way of religious instruction of children.

Czechoslovakia and Poland are the two East European countries in which people traditionally are overwhelmingly Roman Catholic.

Poland has 13,280 churches. Warsaw alone has 87.

Churches are expected to be jammed, with the faithful filling the streets outside. There will be no loudspeakers for those who cannot get in. "Authorities do not allow this," one source said.

For some time now the Polish church and state have been enjoying not to step on each other's toes.

But there is no sign that the church—which has promised to stay out of politics—is losing its flock.

In Czechoslovakia, Roman Catholic and Protestant churches are tolerated as places of worship but prohibited from active proselytizing and political activities.

Immediately after taking power in 1948, the Communists broke the churches' political strength. Like other non-party organizations, churches in Czechoslovakia are subject to cautious policy of watching and waiting out the return to Communist orthodoxy in the wake of the Soviet-led invasion in 1968.

An anti-church campaign some people expected has not developed on a large scale despite the fact that almost the same officials are in the state religious affairs office now as during the era of Stalinist party chief Antonin Novotny.

Hungary's government has proclaimed religious freedom for the country's Roman Catholics, about two million. An agreement with the Vatican was signed in 1964. Talk of establishing diplomatic relations has not materialized, however.

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty refuses to leave his exile in the U.S. embassy in Budapest unless the government lifts a life sentence imposed in a 1949 show trial.

The Hungarian government pays subsidies to the churches —apparently 22.3 million a year. Since this sum is used for the salaries of 7,600 churches as well as to pay priests, the millions dwindle to small amounts for each church and each priest.

In Bulgaria, the Soviet Union's most loyal follower in the East Bloc, religion seems restricted despite government claims to the contrary.

The Communist party chief, Todor Zhivkov, said last year that Bulgaria "has not exterminated the priests as was claimed but on the contrary contributes to their support."

Most of Bulgaria's faithful are Eastern Orthodox, with some 750,000 Moslems and a smaller number of Roman Catholics. Most monasteries have been turned into sightseeing attractions.

In Albania, all places of worship were officially closed several years ago. The Austrian Roman Catholic news agency Kathpress said, however, some terrorists are reported they are completely destroyed or badly damaged churches and mosques.

Several places of worship are reported to have been converted into ball rooms, youth clubs, factory halls and indoor tennis courts. Mr. Hebaton, a former mosque was used as a public lavatory.

U.S. Utilities Cut Back Ads in Face of Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The threats of fuel and power shortages this winter has prompted several states to call for a moratorium on utility company advertising campaigns for new customers, but some companies have declined to go along.

An Associated Press survey indicates that while some electric and gas utilities have voluntarily cut or changed the thrust of their advertising, others continue to court new customers despite the possibility of not being able to service them.

Earlier this year, the Federal Power Commission reported that 17 states had taken action to restrict or prohibit utility promotional practices and that 36 states had investigated the promotional practices of utilities in their jurisdiction.

The Oregon Public Utility Commission warned electric and natural gas utilities as early as 1964 against imprudent claims for their products. Two years later, presidents of Northwest Natural Gas Co., Portland General Eslectric Co. and Pacific Power and Light were told in person to stop making excessive claims.

Homer Scott, Public Utility Commissioner Sam Haley says extensive promotional advertising by Oregon gas and electric utilities continues.

Haley criticized the electric utilities for being over-eager to sell their product. Reasoning that promotion could lead to greater demand, he said, "The existing customers may be ill-served by the promotion of additional loads at higher costs."

The chairman of Michigan's Public Service Commission, Willis Ward, has asked gas and electric utilities to discontinue promotion aimed at new business "to avoid the solicitation of business which could not be served because of the gas shortage."

But two of Michigan's largest utility companies have taken diametrically-opposite positions on the issue.

Consumers Power Co., which serves one million electric customers and 800,000 gas customers in the state, says it has dropped nearly $1 million in gas and electric promotional advertising this year. Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. says it has no intention of cutting back.

In Chicago, the situation is more acute. Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co. spokesmen say they believe they can serve all existing customers this winter if supply and weather conditions are normal. But Peoples has quit accepting new gas customers of any kind, and all types of advertising are down.

At last count, Peoples had 11,749 applications for gas service which could not be filled — the equivalent of 188,000 private, single-family homes.

In New Jersey, the State Public Utilities Commission has advocated an advertising moratorium by utility companies because of expected fuel shortages. Major utilities have consented.

Heavy utility advertising, both print and broadcast, continues in California.

Nationwide's largest power supplier, Northern States Power Co., has not cut its advertising but has considerably changed its focus—from one of lures for new customers to an emphasis on the costs involved in building new generating systems and protecting the environment.

The 1971 officers for the Hastings County Riders are: president, Wayne Shaw; vice-president, Richard Hatch; secretary, Mrs. Glen Flood and treasurer, Jean de Jong. At their annual Christmas banquet 17 trophies were presented and eight of them were awarded to Wayne Shaw.

Mrs. William McAdam entertained several relatives on Saturday evening to a miscellaneous shower in honor of her niece Miss Nancy Pollock a December bride-to-be.

Mount Pleasant Sunday School under the direction of the teachers sponsored a Christmas program in the church on Sunday evening. The group in costume presented a suitable play entitled "The Answer is Christmas". The Junior choir sang carols throughout the program which closed with the Nativity Story.

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — Karl Cordin of Austria shattered the course record Sunday and dominated an elite field of 97 racers from 15 countries in win the second World Cup downhill event of the Alpine ski season.

Cordin, 22, was clocked at two minutes, 9.08 seconds for the lightning-fast 3,268-as e t r e course, more than four seconds better than last year's record of 2:13.79 set by Malcolm Milne of Australia.

French star, Bernard Orcel, 25, was just over a half-second behind in 2:09.62, closely followed by Australia's veteran champion Karl Schranz with 2:09.82.

Henri Duvillard of France, fifth in 2:10.19, maintained his men's World Cup standings lead with 40 points after three events. But the gap is closing rapidly with Orcel, 40 points, and Schranz, 36, hard on his heels.

Canada's best effort was by Keith Shepherd of Lake Louse, Alta., whose 2:12.54 was worth 20th place. In 34th place was Dan Irwin of Thunder Bay in 2:12.78.

Leafs Make Imlach Eat Words While Running Win String to Six

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Punch Imlach, the sage of Buffalo Sabres, was rapped recently on the ground that his writing in a syndicated column might cause embarrassment to Toronto Maple Leafs.

But after the weekend, Imlach might even consider re-editing the script he had penned earlier. His Buffalo club was stopped-before by the Leafs, 3-0 at Toronto Saturday and 4-2 in Buffalo Sunday.

The victories extended Toronto's winning streak to six, three at the expense of the punchless Sabres, and moved them to within two points of fourth-place Vancouver Canucks in the National Hockey League's East Division.

The Bruins throttled West Division opponents, winning 7-1 over St. Louis Blues Saturday and 7-2 against Minnesota North Stars Sunday as John McKenzie went on a five-goal scoring spree. The Bruins' eight-game win streak is their longest in at least 20 years.

A Bruins spokesman said Sunday night the NHL records office will have to let Boston know when it last won eight consecutive games.

He said no official club records are available prior to the 1951-52 season although the team lists its consecutive-game winning streak as 14, set by the championship team of 1929-30.

"We had an unbeaten string of 18 games last season, but we didn't even win seven straight. . . . The club record may go all the way back some 40 years."

The Rangers dumped Vancouver 5-1 Sunday at home after a 5-3 win against the North Stars Saturday in Bloomington, Minn.

Expansion teams took the measure of Detroit Red Wings at the expense of rookie goaltenders Don McLeod and Jim Rutherford. McLeod was in goal Saturday as Pittsburgh Penguins hung a 9-1 shellacking on the Wings, then shared duty with Rutherford Sunday during a 7-3 loss to California Golden Seals.

Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 2-1 on third-period goals by Pit Martin and Bobby Hull to extend their winning streak on home ice to 13 games and move nine points ahead of St. Louis Los Angeles Kings drubbed Montreal Canadiens 7-1 to snap their winless streak at 11-in another Sunday game.

The Kings were held to a 2-2 tie by Philadelphia Saturday.

NHL president Clarence Campbell took Imlach, Buffalo's general manager and coach, to task recently for his journalistic efforts. Leaf president Stafford Smythe, who fired Imlach 1½ years ago, had complained that the Sabres' leader had undermined Toronto players with his writings which appear in a Toronto newspaper. . . .

Earlier in the season, Imlach, noted during his 10 seasons with the Leafs as a great prophet, prompted that his club would finish ahead of Toronto in the standings. . . .

The Leafs were making his forecast look good. They floundered with Buffalo near or in the division cellar until their current six-game spree carried them to within two points of Vancouver who, like Buffalo, are in the first NHL season.

Dave Keon, the Leafs' veteran centre and captain, scored the winner Saturday and the goal ahead goal Sunday as the Sabres, as they often do, floundered in the latter stages. Jacques Plante registered his 75th career shutout in Saturday's game, turning aside 34 shots.

McKenzie, the one-time cowboy from Nanton, Alta., scored three Sunday while team-mate Phil Esposito added two, making him the league's first 30-goal scorer this year. The North Stars opened the scoring and held a 2-1 lead before the Bruins stormed into the lead with Esposito and McKenzie leading the blitz.

At St. Louis Saturday, McKenzie and Wayne Cashman each notched two goals in a rough encounter in which the Bruins opened a 5-0 lead before ex-Bruin Jim Lorenz put the Blues on the scoreboard.

The Rangers, who ran their unbeaten string on home ice to 16, tallied three times in a 3½-minute stretch in the second period Sunday to break their game open. Pete Stemkowski, Ron Stewart and Bob Nevin were the Ranger marksmen.

The Rangers, with 47 points and two behind Boston in the East Division race, were nursing only a 4-3 lead against Minnesota Saturday night until Jean Ratelle, who scored two earlier goals, fed Nevin in the slot for the insurance score.

The Hicke brothers, Bill and Ernie, scored two each in California's barrage against Detroit's rookie goaltenders who have been pushed into the breach since a head injury to Roy Edwards placed him on the sidelines for at least two weeks.

Both McLeod and Rutherford got into Sunday's game, but McLeod absorbed Saturday night's Penguin barrage as Glen Sather and rookie Greg Polis scored two each.

It was the most goals ever scored by a Pittsburgh club and the biggest margin of victory since the team joined the NHL in 1967.

The Kings' win over Montreal was sparked by Doug Robinson, Ross Lonsberry and Bob Pulford and ended a win drought that began Nov. 25. Robinson and Lonsberry scored two each while Pulford had four assists.

Los Angeles had not beaten the Canadiens since Dec. 2, 1967, their first year in the league.

In 13 games against their East Division rivals since that time, the Kings had managed only two ties.

Gord Labossiere's goal with 2:45 remaining in the game Saturday pulled the Kings, sixth in the West Division, into a tie with Philadelphia but enabled the Flyers to move into a third-place tie with Minnesota.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Esposito Already Scored 30

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito collected seven points during weekend play to increase his lead in the NHL's individual scoring race to 64 points—14 more than team-mate Bobby Orr.

Esposito scored his 29th and 30th goals of the season and added two assists as Boston Bruins downed Minnesota North Stars 7-2 Sunday night.

The lanky Bruin collected three assists Saturday night in Boston's 7-1 sweep over St. Louis Blues.

Bobby Orr, who managed only two assists in the two week-end games, remains in second place with 50 points.

WINNIPEG (CP) — In an all-Saskatchewan final, Doug Wankel from Elbow defeated Bob Pickering of Milestone 7-5 Sunday night to win $6,000 in the Manitoba Sphere Tournament of Champions bonspiel. In a see-saw game, marked by great takeout shots from both Saskatchewan rinks, the turning point was in the seventh end. Wankel stole two big points in that end. The Pickering rink will take $2,500 home to Milestone. In the other game Sunday night, to decide the third-place finish in the 16-rink event, Winnipeg's Bob Lemecha defeated Ron Northcott of Calgary 10-8. Both Lemeca and Northcott were semi-finalists. Earlier in the day, Pickering dumped Lemecha in a game that went only eight ends and Wankel defeated Northcott 7-5 in a tight game.

BANGKOK (AP) — The Asian Games ended Sunday with most of the gold medals in Japanese hands, 49 records on the books and Burma, the defending soccer champion, in an overtime scoreless tie with South Korea. Each received a gold medal. That gave Korea 38 golds and second place after the powerful Japanese contingent. Japan's final tally was 74 of the 127 golds. Thailand placed third in the medals race with nine golds.

SABAUDIA, Italy (Reuter) — Giamarco Cigbelli, 33, was killed Saturday as he tried to set a new world speed record of 1,500 c.c. inboard motor launches on Lake Sabaudia. Witnesses said the Italian's launch hit a wave and reared up, flinging him into the water as at raced across the lake at 125 m.p.h.

As a result, both of those teams—along with San Francisco 49ers, Detroit Lions and Miami Dolphins—advanced to the National Football League playoffs with impressive victories Sunday. Joining Minnesota Vikings, Baltimore Colts and Oakland Raiders, who made it earlier.

Among the disappointed were the Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs, Los Angeles Rams, New York Giants, Cleveland Browns and St. Louis Cardinals. Even winning didn't help the Rams and Browns, while the other three pretenders all lost.

The road to the Jan. 17 Super Bowl in Miami begins next Saturday with Cincinnati at Baltimore and Detroit at Dallas. On Sunday, it's San Francisco at Minnesota and Miami at Oakland, with the winners meeting for the National and American Conference titles Jan. 3.

The Bengals clinched their playoff berth with a 45-7 rout of Boston Patriots that gave them the AFC Central Division championship, at the same time ensuring that the Patriots would get first pick in next month's college draft thanks to their 2-12 record, the worst in pro football.

Brown, who beat out the Cleveland team he once coached by one game, called it a "personal dream come true."

Running back Essex Johnson said when the expansion Bengals were born in 1968, Brown told the players it would take five years to mould a winning team.

The Bengals scored the first seven times they had the ball Sunday. Virgil Carter passed for one touchdown before an injury forced him to give way to Sam Wyche, who threw for two more and scored one himself. It was Cincinnati's seventh consecutive victory following a six-game losing streak.

Dallas smashed Houston 32-10 and captured the NFC East title as the Giants bowed to Los Angeles 31-3. Craig Morton of the Cowboys passed for 340 yards and five touchdowns, with Bob Hayes grabbing four of them.

"Five weeks really makes a difference," said coach Tom Landry. "It's hard to turn a season around that well. But we did it and I think we played the best we have in two years."

John Brodie's three scoring passes paced the 49ers to the first championship in their 25-year history with a 38-7 romp over Oakland.

Detroit and Miami wound up with 10-4 records and made the playoffs with the best second-place records in their respective conferences.

The Lions blanked Green Bay 20-0 behind return specialist Lem Barney, who ran 60 yards to score with an interception, raced 65 yards with a punt to set up another touchdown and put the ball in field goal position with a 76-yard kickoff return.

The Dolphins blasted Buffalo 45-7 for their sixth straight win and the highest point total and most one-sided victory in their five-year existence. Jim Kiick barrelled into the end zone three times and Larry Csonka set up two scores with a 54-yard run and a 34-yard pass reception.

Kansas City bowed to San Diego 31-13 as Mike Garrett scored twice, including a 44-yard run.

Playoff Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — The lineup for the National Football League's division playoffs (all times EST):

Saturday, Dec. 26—AFC, Cincinnati at Baltimore, 1 p.m.; NFC, Detroit at Dallas, 4 p.m.

Sunday, Dec. 27—NFC, San Francisco at Minnesota, 1 p.m. AFC, Miami at Oakland, 4 p.m.

Vikings Pick Up Another Fan

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mighty Minnesota, Seeking a second straight journey to the Super Bowl, picked up a battered admirer Sunday—the Vikings' former coach, Norm Van Brocklin.

The Vikings, posting their 10th victory in 11 games, flogged Van Brocklin's Atlanta Falcons in the regular-season finale 27-7, avenging a 10-3 loss to the Falcons here one year ago, one that snapped Minnesota's 12-game winning streak.

Asked to compare the 1969 and 1970 Vikings, Van Brocklin recited the scores of last year and this year.

"That is the difference in this year and last. They're a big, strong football team," he said.

"Gary Cuozzo is a better passer than Joe Kapp and he showed that this afternoon," Van Brocklin said. "He threw very well and their receivers got position on us. They beat us . . . and good."

Cuozzo who missed the two previous Viking games with a sprained right ankle, completed 13 of 20 passes for 175 yards, one an eight-yard touchdown strike to John Beasley.

His passing set up two other scores in a 21-point second period that put the Vikings in command.

The Vikings face San Francisco, West Division champs, next Sunday in the playoffs. The 49ers won the division Sunday with a 38-7 conquest of Oakland.

Neither Cuozzo nor coach Bud Grant was ready to express preferences on playoff foes, since San Francisco didn't clinch its title until Minnesota was well under way on its trip back home.

"You got to beat somebody," Grant said. "You can't play Boston or New Orleans."

Fergy Counts Five In Big Mo-Hawk Win

OWEN SOUND (Special) — Scoring five goals in Saturday night's 8-4 senior hockey win by Belleville Mo-Hawks was mostly for Al Ferguson.

By not scoring them at home the burly Trenton winger missed out on at least one chicken dinner offered by a Belleville talent establishment for Mo-Hawk players scoring twice in Memorial Arena games.

Chances are club management would buy "Fergy" a whole turkey for his scoring outburst, the first time last year's team goal-leader has managed more than one goal in any of his 32 games this season.

Ferguson, who last year led the Mo-Hawks with 25 goals in 46 games, had nine goals this season before the Mo-Hawks travelled to Owen Sound for a vital Saturday night game with the Crescents.

His first goal, on a Mo-Hawk powerplay, tied the score 3-3 at 7.15 of the last period however, the Crescents had emerged 3-2 leaders after the opening 20 minutes.

Only 34 seconds later, the hunkering right winger beat Owen Sound goalie Bryan Cayley again, with another three goals coming on Ferguson's banana-blade stick in the final period.

Dave Jones, playing on the blueline for the defence-shy Mo-Hawks, scored a pair of first-period goals, giving him four in the last four games. The other Belleville goal was a middle-period tally by Wayne McConnell, who has been getting a handful of scoring opportunities of late.

Dale Watson's early powerplay goal helped the Mo-Hawk towners off to a 1-0 lead. Dave McComb made it 2-1 after Jones tapped, and Bill Abbott made it 3-1 before Jones narrowed the gap again in the period's final minute.

The scrappy Kingston winger served a roughing minor and fighting major for a 6.45 bout with Watson, but got embroiled with Gallagher with only 30 seconds remaining in the period after the Owen Sound player poke-aced him with his stick when Colligan was on the ice.

Gallagher drew a major penalty for the deliberate attempt at injury, while Colligan was fingered with an elbowing minor, but both received misconducts and game misconducts when they continued their differences of opinion in the penalty box.

Oshawa Heavy Artillery Buries Junior B's 9-0

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Oshawa Crushmen got full mileage from their big guns Tuesday night, while the Belleville Fairways' artillery was more of the pop gun variety as the Crushmen strolled away with a 9-0 Eastern Ontario Junior B win.

The Fairways started out looking like a million dollars and finished up looking like two cents as the visitors scored four times in the second period and added another four in the final frame.

Dennis Higgins added to the Belleville woes with an outstanding effort in the Oshawa net turning aside 33 shots to earn the shutout.

Steve West, currently leading the league in scoring broke up a scoreless duel at 19.24 of the first period. The Oshawa pivot unleashed a blistering drive from the blue line that caught the top corner, with the Crushmen enjoying a man advantage.

Play had been evenly divided in the opening 20 minutes with Ron Jary making key saves on West and John Grant, while Higgins made a good stop of Dave Smith's quick wrist shot.

The Fairways narrowly missed tying the game with five seconds left in the period. Higgins slid out to lock Cliff Janitsch after the winger had been pat to the clear by Danny Lapenette on a two-on-one break.

West gave the visitors a 2-0 lead early in the second period, driving a hard 30-footer past Jary. Large striker John Grant and last year's scoring champion Jim Robson counted goals 30 seconds apart to virtually pull the game out of reach.

Higgins played particularly well in the middle period as Belleville tested him 15 times without success.

The winners dominated play in the third period coming up with four more tallies as the Fairway backchecking broke down completely.

West and Grant did most of the scoring damage for

The incident will cost each player $25.

Lou Kasowski also drew a misconduct in the melee.

The Fracas seemed to clear the air, with Garrie Vaughan's three second-period minors the only infractions for the remainder of the game.

After Ferguson's first two goals in the middle period the Mo-Hawks never looked back. They led 5-4 going into the final period and Ferguson's hat trick in the final 20 minutes made it 8-4.

The only shot to shake Steve Rexe after the first period was Dave McComb's second goal of the night near the end of the second period.

"Steve stopped a couple of breakaways to keep us in the game in the first two periods," praised Jones, who also had good words for the play of winger Lorne O'Donnell.

O'Donnell, last year's most valuable Mo-Hawk, had been somewhat less valuable as a penalty-killer this season and added like goalhigh as a 30-goal scorer, which he was last winter.

"Lornie played his best game of the year Saturday," said Jones, who had O'Donnell playing left wing with Doug Senior and bigger-man Terry Gunn. Senior picked up four assists on the night, and O'Donnell two.

Jones, who conscripted himself as the Mo-Hawks' fourth defenceman after Mike Rexe and Lionel Bolly were unable to make the trip, was pleased about the club's rare offensive outburst.

"We had 43 shots on goal, and we don't do that very often. But I still think we can be more aggressive."

The win put the Mo-Hawks three points ahead of Oakville in the OHA Senior A loop's fifth spot.

Now respectably close to .500 hockey with a 10-12 record, the Mo-Hawks hope to make it four wins in five starts Tuesday night when Kingston Aces are in Belleville for an 8.45 game.

Rosebush, Brown Still Scourge Of Northern Goalies

Scoring leaders Rick Rosebush and Wayne Brown Jr. continued to harrass opposing netminders as each led his club to Sunday Northern Electric Hockey wins.

Rosebush counted five times as the Dukes downed the No Stars 9-2, giving him a total of 23 goals for the season. Tom Pierce picked up two goals and three assists to help the cause with Ted Soule and Don Detlor each scoring once.

Broom Benders

John Dickson and Bruce Parsons display some fancy broom work at the Quinte Curling Club. The club, which has maintained a charter since 1887 has a membership of over 300 and holds over 20 bonspiels throughout the winter months.

Despite the advanced age of 103 years the Quinte Curling Club is still kicking up its heels.

Over 300 members are enrolled in the club which will hold a total of 23 bonspiels throughout the winter months.

In addition, the members compete in house league play throughout the week.

Men have the ice from Monday to Thursday nights with mixed competitions Friday night and Sundays and women's curling in the afternoon throughout the week.

Although the club has held a charter for over 103 years, curlers were often forced to travel to centres such as Kingston to compete. The current building, located at the corner of Bridge and Dundas streets, was constructed in 1968.

The major men's tournament for local curlers is the Bay of Quinte with members of the three local clubs (Quinte, Trenton, CFB Trenton), competing in the three-day event Feb. 12-14.

Other major spiels include the Sportsman's Bonspiel (Feb. 19), the Victoria and Grey Trust all night bonspiel, held in conjunction with the Winter Carnival on Feb. 6.

For women curlers, the major events are the Ladies' Intelligencer Bonspiel (Feb. 5-6) and the Molson's Ladies Spiel (Jan. 30).

Black Panthers In Britain

LONDON (AP) — A new Black Panther party is raising a shuddered head in Britain. Police expect a crunch from second-generation non-white immigrants who want action against poverty and prejudice in contrast to the "passive fatalism" when ascribed to their parents.

The Black Panthers are belli-bent on revolution, one of their followers says. In the conviction that power codes nothing without demand. But revolution, they say, takes time.

Many of the immigrants are blacks of West Indian ancestry. The Panthers have attracted other non-whites, including Asians.

"We see ourselves less as African or Indians in English society, and more as blacks in a white society," said one Panther, saying he spoke for Asian members as well as blacks.

The movement has begun to organize nationally and is linked to other militant groups in the Black People's Alliance. Foremost among these are the Black Unity and Freedom party, a youth-oriented Marxist group, and the Black Eagles, a grass-roots "commando" group.

The Panthers drew their strongest support from Notting Hill and Brixton, Hackney and New Cross where large immigrant populations complacent already severe social problems.

Police deny racial tension is increasing significantly in these areas. But a Panther newssheet says the situation has been "charged with explosive" since Aug. 8, when 14 Panthers were arrested and charged with riotous assembly.

Police admit isolated instances of harassment, but deny any concerted campaign is afoot to wipe out Panther leadership.

Immigrants are deeply concerned by the hostility of many non-white youths toward their parents.

"We are fighting a losing battle," cryy West Indian journalist Vince Hines. "We're telling the kids, no time for hate, but at the same time the environment is working against us."

Press Group Set Up

QUEBEC (CP) — A special 11-man legislature committee on freedom of the press has been set up and will be ready to hold hearings early in 1971, the Quebec national assembly was told Saturday.

Gerard D. Levesque, government house leader, made the announcement on the last day of sitting before the holiday recess.

Quebec Federation of Professional Journalists insisted that the whole issue of press freedom be discussed at a provincial level.

At this happy holiday season, we merrily send warmest greetings and good wishes. We thank you for your many kind favors.

Economic Expert

New Polish Leader Is A 'No Nonsense' Type

WARSAW (AP) — Edward Gierek, named chief of the Polish Communist party Sunday in the shakeup that followed bloody rioting, is an industrialist who went to work in a French coal mine at the age of 13 and was a strike-toughened Communist five years later.

Gierek, 57, headed the efficient party organization in the industrial province of Silesia and had been mentioned previously as a possible successor to Wladyslaw Gomulka, the man who stepped out after being party boss for 14 years.

He is considered to be a pragmatic politician who did not identify himself with either the liberal or nationalistic wing of the party.

In his first television speech, he served notice that he and other new leaders would maintain Poland's close bonds with the Soviet Union.

Gierek has a reputation as the party's top economic expert.

He apparently is popular among the Polish people. He has travelled to half a dozen countries with official delegations and is considered to be more cosmopolitan than many of his high-ranking colleagues.

Gierek was born Jan. 5, 1913, the son of an Upper Silesian coal miner who later was killed in a mine accident. At the age of 16, he emigrated to France with his mother and went into the mines three years later.

He became active in labor union activities and joined the French Communist party when he was 18. At the age of 21 he took a leading role in a miners' strike and France expelled him as an undesirable alien.

He returned to Poland, served time in the army and then went to Belgium, in 1939, working again in the coal mines and serving as a party functionary.

When the Germans occupied Belgium in the opening months of the Second World War, Gierek joined the Belgian underground.

He helped establish the Polish worker's party in Belgium when the war ended and then returned to Poland, taking a Communist party post in Katowice and studying engineering at the Krakow Mining Academy.

He rose rapidly in the party hierarchy after graduating in 1954. In March, 1956, he was named secretary of the party's central committee. Four months later he was named to the ruling politburo.Then the Poznan rioting erupted in July, leaving 44 persons dead. Gomulka took power in October, 1956, and Gierek was forced to resign.

He made a timely adjustment to Gomulka's "thaw," however, aligning himself with the party wing that pushed through cautious reforms and sought greater independence from Moscow.

Gierek returned to his post as provincial party secretary in Silesia and gained respect as an able administrator. He again was named to the party's politburo and central committee and became increasingly active in the direction of national affairs.

He keyed his administration on industry in Silesia, which has Poland's biggest steel mills and coal mines.

As an industrial pilot, he now will be challenged to cure Poland's chronic economic problems and heal the rift in the party apparatus.

Stirling Personals

Rawdon AOTS Men's Club held its annual ladies' night banquet in Mount Pleasant Church hall. Hoard's UCW catered at the event.

Nineteen people from Mount Pleasant spent Tuesday evening at a house warming for Mr. and Mrs. Norman McConnell in their new home in Stirling. During the evening they were presented with gifts on behalf of the Mount Pleasant community.

Egyptian Delegation in Russia Seeking Military, Economic Aid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another high-level Egyptian delegation began talks in Moscow today and was expected to get most of what it asks for.

Vice-President Ali Sabry and three other cabinet ministers arrived Sunday to request more military and economic aid. Sources in Moscow said the Egyptians feel they will need more arms if the ceasefire along the Suez canal is not extended beyond Feb. 5.

Tass, reporting the arrival of the Egyptians for an eight-day visit, said the Soviet government had pledged "to give all-round support to the U.A.R. in its struggle against Israeli imperialist aggression."

The Soviet news agency also reported that a senior Communist party emissary in Cairo had "reaffirmed the Soviet Union's steady resolve" to back the Egyptians. This tended to confirm predictions by diplomatic sources in Moscow that Sabry and his delegation will get pretty much what they want.

Informants in the Soviet capital said the Egyptians and the Russians also would discuss joint diplomatic action to cope with the possibility of Israel's returning to the UN peace talks that have been dormant since September. UN mediator Gunnar V. Jarring is to report to the Security Council Jan. 5 on the prospects for his mission to negotiate a Middle East peace settlement. Arab diplomats in Moscow say they expect Israel to rejoin the talks before the end of January.

The Israeli cabinet met in Jerusalem Sunday and once again postponed its decision to return to the talks. An announcement said only that " a political discussion commenced and will continue at the next cabinet session."

Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan met in Jerusalem with the Chief UN truce observer, Maj.-Gen. Emile Silvasrua of Finland. Sources said they discussed the possibility of a ceasefire extension and an Israeli request that the United Nations press Egypt for the release of seriously wounded Israeli prisoners.

Arab saboteurs fired two rockets into a residential section of Jerusalem Sunday, and one exploded harmlessly in a vacant lot near an unfinished building that will become the residence of President Zalman Shazar.

Delegations from the Vatican and the Supreme Council of Islamic Affairs of Cairo met at Vatican City and issued a communique calling for "the re-establishment of a just and honorable peace in the Middle East."

NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of The Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes, at its first meeting in January, 1971, to pass a by-law to provide for the annual or other payment of the amount required to be raised for the purposes of the Public Hospitals Act, being Chapter 378 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960, and amendments thereto.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the said Council proposes at its first meeting in January, 1971, to pass a by-law to authorize the issue and conveyance of the said real allowance to the purchaser thereof at a price to be fixed by it, or if the aforesaid by-law is not passed, to convey the said real allowance to the purchaser at a price to be fixed by it, or if the aforesaid by-law is not passed, to convey the said real allowance to the purchaser at the same price as paid by him.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the Council has been in receipt of a petition signed by the owner or owners, or agent, any person who claims his or her lands will be prejudicially affected by the by-law and who may petition against the same.

The said petition bearing date the 7th day of December, 1970, may be inspected at the Office of the Clerk of the City of Belleville at any time.

DATED at Belleville, Ontario, this 11th day of December, 1970.

Picton Snowmobile Races Draw 700 to Fairground Site

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Snowmobile races sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Prince Edward Snowmobile Racing Committee drew a crowd of more than 700 to Picton fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. Drivers competed in nine classes over a half-mile track described as "excellent" by race officials and contestants alike.

Chairman for yesterday's race program, Archie Kingma, reported that entrants methodically mented officials on the outstanding condition of the track and affirmed that it was "a hundred per cent better than anywhere else." Mr. Kingma observed that the weekend race meet attracted 95 entries, most of them from this area.

Although snow machines travelled at speeds up to and over the 70 m.p.h. during the races the event was accident-free. Pilot driver Lyle Lalonde was catapulted from his machine in his race but unhurt applied for ambulance bills to complete the course. Similarly, Harrowsmith contestant J. Wasson's machine's hydro pole with his machine when it veered off the track in the first heat of his race but he regained control of it winning the lap.

The majority of spectators, bundled in snowmobile suits, stood on the grandstand to watch each race from the starting line. A large number of children were present, however, lined the track to get a closer and slightly more dangerous glimpse of the action. The track was policed by race officials throughout Sunday's meet.

Winner of the Powder Puff Derby, a featured event of the afternoon, was Linda Weese, Belleville. The A stock division race was won by George Pyke, Wolfe Island. Second was Weese, Carrying Place. Pyke took the trophy in the B stock division. First man to cross the finish line in the C stock class was Sydenham driver Mel Hughson. The D stock division was won by Stan Woodman.

First place in the A modified class was Douglas Thompson, Wellington. The B stock modified class was won by Dave Thomas, Wesner of the C modified class was G. Rollins. In the D modified class Robert MacKenzie, Picton, was first across the finish line, Mel Hughson, Sydenham, was first man under the flag in the E modified division.

Trophies were presented to all first place winners in the County Centre following the race meet. Each class winner received a cash prize of $30 while prizes of $20, $10 and $5 were awarded to runners up in each race.

Mr. Kingma remarked that yesterday's crowd of approximately 700 spectators was "not as good as expected" but could offer no certain explanation for the attendance figure. He suggested that a short advertising deadline for the event could have been responsible for the smaller than expected crowd. A similar weekend meet held last year in Picton attracted 1,700 persons to the fairgrounds. The success of last weekend's races are planning an identical program of events for Sunday, Jan. 3 with hopes for a larger crowd. Snowmobile enthusiasts from Toronto are expected to compete in next month's races.

Starting Line Instructions

Race chairman Archie Kingma gives drivers their instructions prior to one of the events in Sunday's snowmobile racing program at Picton Fairgrounds. The event, which attracted some 700 spectators, offered prizes of $30 to the winner of each class.

Win First Three

Rollins Peewees Start Fast

Belleville's Rollins' Construction peewees are using a fast start to good result in the Chinguacousy Peewee Tournament held in Bramalea.

The Belleville all-stars built up early leads and then held on to win three consecutive games against some of the toughest competition in the province.

Their first win came Saturday morning against Riverside, which also won the competition last season, when it was a novice tournament.

Rollins built up a 3-0 lead on two goals by Bobby Crawford and one by Andy Lapenette before a rash of third-period penalties allowed Riverside to tie things up.

Raymond Skelly counted with less than five minutes to play, giving Belleville the 4-3 victory.

In a Saturday afternoon contest, the Rollins all-stars again built up a 3-0 lead, this time over Richmond Hill. Despite a third-period lag, they managed to hold onto a 3-2 decision. Goal scorers were Skelly, Tony Meagher and Lapenette.

Bobby Crawford counted a hat trick to lead Belleville to their third consecutive win, a 4-3 decision over the host Chinguacousy team. Andy Lapenette counted the other goal for the winners, who have received standout goaltending from Bruce Hamilton and Terry Thompson.

Tonight, Rollins meet Bowmanville, the only other unbeaten team in the double knockout competition. A win would put them into the final game to be played Wednesday night.

Betsy Finishes Fifth In Women's Giant Slalom

Barbara Cochran of the United States finished second.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, who was fifth with a time of clocked in 1:28.03. Third was Sandra Poulsen of the U.S. in 1:28.75 and Britt Lafforgue of France was fourth in 1:28.77.

Miss Jacot had a time of 1:27.75 and Miss Cochran was

Feagan Big Winner

Feagan's $945.224 won is a circuit record. He also had the most wins: 186 over Bill Wellwood's 155.

Horseshoe circuit as the season ended Saturday at Greenwood Raceway.

Feagan's $945,224 won is a circuit record. He also had the most wins: 186 over Bill Wellwood's 155.

Aces Help Out Hornets

Galt Hornets have taken over first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings on the strength of an 11-1 triumph Saturday over Barrie Flyers—and the inability of the Orillia Terriers to hold off the determined Kingston foes.

The Terriers lost the first-place position they have held all season when the Aces scored a come-from-behind 4-3 victory Sunday night in Orillia. In other weekend action, Belleville Monarchs bombed Owen Sound Crescents 8-4 Saturday and Oakville Oaks clobbered Woodstock 9-4 in 11-3 Sunday.

The four games left Galt in the lead with 34 points, followed by Orillia at 33, Barrie with 29 and Kingston with 23. Belleville had 28 points, Oakville 17, Owen Sound 14 and Newly Woodstock four.

At Galt, right-winger Howie Dietrich led the Hornets with three goals. John Beechey, Peter Bennett and Peter Bethell had two each and single goals went to Vance Millar and Mike Doerksen.

George Ford was the only Flyer forward to score as the Hornets outshot Barrie 42-26. In one respect, the game was a rarity—referee Ross Nagus didn't call a single penalty.

At Orillia, the Terriers went into the weekend tied with Galt, but were assisted by a perfectly alert Kingston club. The Terriers took a 2-0 first-period lead as the Aces waited until the last two minutes of the second frame to unleash their scoring power.

John Ford got a pair for the winners while Aces' goals were notched by Tom Thurlby and Bob Collins.

At Owen Sound, Al Ferguson blasted in five goals in leading the Mo-Hawks to victory. Davey Jones added two more and the single goal went to Wayne McConnell.

In Oakville, the Oaks racked up a 4-0 lead in the first 11 minutes of play before the smallest crowd of the season, 75 fans.

Merry Christmas From Mushmouth

By GEORGE CARVER

Dear Ex-boss: The seven yanks are here for the holidays and Unk. McGeal from Bitten Bay, Alaska took the spelling session. Said as how on his way down he had a dream in which Ole Santa Claus was talkin to a bunch of sports fame heroes. Here's how he put it:

And Santa said to Bobby Orr, "that's all there is — there ain't no more (trophies, that is).

He whispered to the ducks and gulls, "You bet that's goals in them thar Hulls."

And then he spied Gordie Howe — "How much longer as from now"

"Oh Boy", said Gordie, eyes agee, "I only had one cavity."

Then Santa eyed some skate-shod Clays, "You guys who gang up in forays, remember Campbell, loop dictator — "Fight tonight, and pay up later".

He chuckled to an Argo fan, "Next year another alas ran. The Tigers, Riders and Lions will vie for the best west of their best. That Grey Cup doesn't care a whoop, 'bout a second dose of Sam's pet goose.

Then Santa smiled Joe Fraser's way, "You Canucs may have feet of Clay."

Said Joe: "When All starts to spiel, his toothpaste gives me socks appeal."

Said All, deeply gloom in eye, "this butterfly will sting, not fly, and when the sleek round brings on the cheers, that's when he'll hear the birdies sing."

Then Santa winked, "Good night to all — but keep your eyes on Montreal. Don't be surprised some year to see the Larks, Habs, Expos grab all three."

Then he gurgled a beaker — and went on his way "Merry Christmas to sports" — and to all Bon Santa."

Peterborough Minor Rivals Deal City Two Setbacks

Peterborough accounted for the only blots on Belleville's weekend OMHA record as city teams took three of the five games contested.

In novice action, Towers Ford Chiz blanked Napanee 5-0 Saturday but were turned back 5-3 by Peterborough the following day.

Duffy and Pat Willman were the goalgetters in Sunday's loss to Peterborough.

The Sunoco Novice Minors edged Port Hope 4-3 in a Saturday contest. Mark Crawford, Billy Rowe and Wayne Deighton tallied a goal and an assist apiece for Mulroney's with Steve Molina picking up the other score as Belleville outshot the losers 27-15.

The Kinsmen bantams disposed of their Oshawa opposition 5-3 in a Saturday afternoon contest. Steve Kirby paced the winners with two goals, while Peter Crawford, Rick Barbeau and John Murphy scored the others. Bruce Sutherland picked up three assists.

In midget action, the Blake Kerr imperials shocked a 9-1 pasting from Peterborough, who outshot the losers 62-20. Mark Coates notched Belleville's only goal.

Goalie Eldon Matthews was a standout for the Imperials, turning aside 40 of the 61 shots he faced in the final period.

May this most blessed season herald a time of peace and good will to all men. And for you, a joyous Christmas.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Bicarb Is Not The Only Answer

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What do you think about bicarb? I feel like I'm telling tales on a dear friend of mine, but she's always taking bicarbonate of soda. She claims it helps her stomach acidity.

But what I can't understand is this. If it helps, why does she have to keep on taking it She's only 32. She doesn't believe in doctors, therefore she really doesn't know the reason for her "hyperacidity." — Mrs. E.

Comment: And what many people don't know is that the opposite condition of "hyperacidity" (acid deficiency) also may cause heartburn, gas, pain and other symptoms of indigestion usually attributed to "hyperacidity." (too much acid in the stomach). People with no acid in the stomach at all (anacidity) may also have similar symptoms.

Although your friend may be having too much acid, which is temporarily neutralized by taking bicarb, she does not know that repeated doses may cause "rebound" effects. In other words, cause more acidity. This would result in her continuously taking it in ever-increasing acidity.

I suppose you'll have a difficult time convincing her that diagnosis at this time is the most important part of her management. She's shooting at a target blindfolded. She doesn't really know where it is, or what weapons to use in hitting the bulls-eye.

Some her this column. I suggest that she go to a doctor to discover the reason for her indigestion. There are many possibilities. Is it due to gall bladder trouble? To an ulcer? To hiatal hernia To spasm To chronic pancreatitis or some liver trouble?

Finding the true cause and removing it will be reason enough for discarding her bicarbonate of soda, or other medications.

For Mrs. J.: It is true. We have no specific anti-virus drugs. Doctors use antibiotics like penicillin only when there is danger of complications when other children in the family have already developed strep throats or sore infections). Or when complications are already present.

It's all in the doctor's judgment. The days are long past when all patients with "colds" were given shots of penicillin. Now we don't "shoot" until we see the whites of their eyes.

For Mrs. Y.: I can't understand it. How is it possible for an emotional upset to cause an umbilical hernia Perhaps you have misunderstood your doctor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am overweight. I am 36. A friend has told me about a coffee and tea diet. This worries my mother so I am writing to you I average a half-dozen cups of coffee a day and twice as many cups of tea. Please let us know. — Miss L.

Comment: Too much coffee. Too much tea. But you haven't told me how many restrictions you have built into your diet. What's even more important — if you want to feel well and look well — is that you have a sufficient amount of proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and vitamins in your diet.

Don't you think you'd better leave it up to your mother (or a doctor) rather than to a friend? I congratulate you on your interest in losing weight, but you are going about it the wrong way.

Fast Jets Frightening

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My opposition to the supersonic transport planes is not just based on the economics or politics (or even the "sonic boom") of these vehicles; it is based even more on the human factor of adjusting to such speeds.

Even today, on the ordinary jets, a daytime flight between the U.S. and Europe or any other part of the globe is fatiguing enough in a climate way we still don't fully grasp. Traveling last through several time-zones imposes a severe strain on the body and the mind.

In his recent interesting book, The Pathology of Leadership, Dr. Hugh L'Etang, a British physician who for years has studied the medical history of world leaders warns that "even the statesman in full possession of his faculties may be exposed, to unprecedented hazards as a result of the capacity of modern aircraft to cross oceans and continents in hours instead of days."

Our vital processes, he points out — sleep, brain activity, temperature control, hormone formation, gut activity, mineral metabolism, and many others — are geared to a carefully adjusted schedule; and if the body is rapidly transferred to a different time system, "its own carefully synchronised activities will be out of step with the new local time."

The book also quotes Dr. Hubertus Strughold, chief scientist of the American aerospace medical division, as suggesting that these sudden changes "may have some significance in international conferences during the first few days . . . which are not the proper times for important negotiations or vital decisions."

And U.S. Aerospace studies indicate that no only middle-aged businessmen and government officials are affected this way, but also that "actors, chess players, students, and last but not least, race horses were not at their intellectual or physical best the first few days after arriving from a region four or more time zones away."

Recent work had confirmed these findings. The results of varying tests after a daylight flight of 14 hours from Oklahoma City to Tokyo were described as showing "a marked and quite significant deterioration in psychological performance on the first full day in Tokyo as judged by both reaction time and decision time. And, while younger students had a rapid return to normal, "in contrast, the older men showed impairment of reaction time and decision-making for as long as five days."

It used to be thought that, in travelling at high speeds, the mind could not keep up with the body; now it is known that even the body cannot keep up with the body. Flying beyond the speed of sound without the "packaged environment" of astronauts, is an insult to the organism.

For December 22

Your birthday today: Those born before 1:36 a.m. EST today are Sagittarian, those born later are Capricornians. The time of the change is different in different years and, over a long period of time, can even be on the 21st or the 23rd. Both Sagittarians and Capricornians born today face a year of increased power, responsibility, plus much to learn in how to deal with frustrating situations. Today's Sagittarians are authority-oriented; these particular Capricornians are more selfless in their ambitions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Expect unscheduled incidents. Let others handle the chores while you organize activities. Romantic interests are hindered for the moment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): By keeping your inner serenity amid today's turmoil, you serve your own interests and those of your group. Present a calm surface, in any case.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Reasonable care with mechanical equipment, electrical tools is quite enough. You also need patience and courtesy. Take time for prayer, meditation during the day or evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You wind up doing things in an accustomed sequence, with new details. Social activity gets interrupted out by the rearrangement — it can wait, and don't rush to incur the expense.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Realize that others have problems and questions to research, so don't take their abrupt manner personally or seriously. Let well enough alone among friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You can easily let yourself in for a long-term expense today. Friends have a tall story which is incomplete. Important issues need a night or two of sleeping on them.

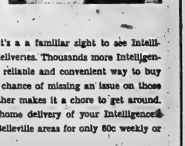
LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): When you take the initiative, you may end up with unwanted responsibility. Check carefully beforehand your judgment about others' problems likewise cause trouble — let them alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be sure of what you've got before asking for more. Travel brings you to unexpected places, with something to learn, temporary inconvenience. Avoid overexertion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You find yourself headed in a somewhat different direction from people you thought were with you. Fresh starts require more planning, better communication.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Nothing goes as planned at work — it's a test of your placement in the job. Make plans to do something constructive about it. Meanwhile grumbling does no good.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Talkative people take up much of your time. You have no idea of the plight you may be protected from by being tied up on the talkers — particularly if they are relatives.



PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Follow the formal amenities according to the rules. Agreements are faulty, need further thought. Any flaw in your luck get shows up at an embarrassing moment.

Council Approves Snowmobile Bylaw

Mufflers Required If DOT Approves

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The voice of an estimated 1,500 Belleville snowmobile owners was recognized by city council yesterday as it passed a bylaw restricting the use of the machines within the city limits.

The bylaw as originally proposed by the city parks board and city traffic committee set a 10 p.m. curfew for operation of snowmobiles.

But in the final draft as approved by council it was amended to allow operation until 11 p.m. from Monday until Thursday and 12 midnight on Friday and Saturday.

The bylaw also sets out the city parks in which snowmobiles may be operated and rules operation of the machines on city sidewalks and boulevards as illegal. The machines must also be fitted with mufflers.

Two amendments — one calling for Sunday hours to be advanced from 1:30 p.m. to 10 a.m. and another calling the evening curfew hours to remain at 10 p.m. were defeated before the final draft was passed by council.

However, the bylaw will not come into force until it is approved by the Ontario department of transport and council members estimated this may not be forthcoming for a month or more.

The case of the local snowmobilers — members of the "SPORT" (Snowmobilers Protecting the Rights of Others Together) Snowmobile Association — was presented by the club chairman Ray Worrell.

Mr. Worrell said it was the desire of his association to work closely with all municipalities in the area to assist in the final draft of legislation required to meet the thoughtlessness of a few people.

Association members agreed that as vehicle of any type should be permitted to travel on sidewalks, while common sense dictated that the speed limit should not be exceeded.

Mr. Davis promised he would continue Premier Robarts' policy of "giving the interests of Canada and Canadians No. 1 priority" if chosen.

Ontario already has the best pollution-control program in North America, he said, but as leader and premier he would give it an even greater emphasis.

He also promised to push ahead with projects such as the Toronto-centred regional development plan.

Mr. Davis said he doesn't want a destructive leadership campaign between now and the February convention. He said he planned to spend most of his time from the New Year until the convention on the road, meeting the delegates.

Asked about platform debates with other Tory hopefuls, Mr. Davis said there were no such meetings when Mr. Robarts ran for the leadership in 1961, and "I don't see any necessity to share the platform."

Mr. Davis, from Brampton, Ont., is married with five children.

Davis Confirms Rumors, Announces Candidacy

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis Monday became the first declared candidate for Ontario's Progressive Conservative leadership and coupled his candidacy with an announcement of formidable cabinet support.

Mr. Davis, 41, whose candidacy was a foregone conclusion after Premier John Robarts announced plans to retire Dec. 8, told a news conference that Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton would act as his campaign manager.

Labor Minister Dalton Bales will head a group responsible for gaining delegate support for Mr. Davis within Metropolitan Toronto for the Feb. 10-12 convention at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Highways Minister George Gomme said the day Mr. Robarts announced his retirement plans that he would support Mr. Davis at the leadership convention.

The education minister was also expected to draw support from several other cabinet ministers. Mr. Davis's present job is the one that Premier Robarts used as a stepping-stone to power nine years ago.

Announcements are expected from several other hopefuls for the premiership in the weeks ahead.

Speculation centred on Allan Lawrence, 43, minister of mines and northern affairs; Bert Lawrence, 47, minister of financial and commercial affairs; Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, 61; Darcy McKeough, 37, municipal affairs minister; Leonard Reilly, former chief party whip; Health Minister Thomas Wells, 49; and George Kerr, minister of energy and resources.

R. Alan Eagleson, 37, Ontario PC Association president, was regarded as a dark horse candidate.

Premier Robarts, who said he wanted to see the reins of power passed to a younger man, has promised to stay neutral in the fight to succeed him.

Mr. Davis, education minister for the past eight years, credits himself with creation of the Ontario Curriculum Institute, the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, the department of educational research, the School of Graduate Studies in Education, and, more recently, educational television across the province.

NTA Ban Stymies Industry

TORONTO (CP) — The decision to eliminate the use of a substitute chemical for phosphates in washing powders represented a serious reversal for the detergent industry in its quest for a suitable replacement, says Alan Rae, president of Lever Detergents Ltd.

Mr. Rae, who is also co-chairman of the Canadian detergent industry's committee for water quality, said Monday that phosphates and their substitute, nitrilotriacetate (NTA), were the only substances that had proved successful as detergent "builders."

"We're kind of back to square one now since we simply don't know of a builder other than phosphorus, NTA or a combination of the two."

Last Friday the United States detergent industry voluntarily agreed to remove NTA from its washiby products. The industry had used it as a partial substitute for phosphates—tagged as a major source of water pollution.

The move followed reports that NTA can aggravate water pollution and has been linked to birth defects in rats and mice.

A ban is to be imposed on phosphates in Canada in 1971, and this year content was limited to 25 per cent.

Two years ago the newly-formed department of university affairs was added to the cabinet portfolio. Mr. Davis is responsible for distribution of more than a billion dollars a year in government funds.

The education minister told the news conference that the Conservative government must take new positions in three main policy areas—economic nationalism, pollution control and regional development.

Mr. Davis promised he would continue Premier Robarts' policy of "giving the interests of Canada and Canadians No. 1 priority" if chosen.

Ontario already has the best pollution-control program in North America, he said, but as leader and premier he would give it an even greater emphasis.

He also promised to push ahead with projects such as the Toronto-centred regional development plan.

Mr. Davis said he doesn't want a destructive leadership campaign between now and the February convention. He said he planned to spend most of his time from the New Year until the convention on the road, meeting the delegates.

Asked about platform debates with other Tory hopefuls, Mr. Davis said there were no such meetings when Mr. Robarts ran for the leadership in 1961, and "I don't see any necessity to share the platform."

Mr. Davis, from Brampton, Ont., is married with five children.

Millions To Quebec

OTTAWA, (CP) — An agreement has been signed with the Quebec government that will pump 2150 million in federal funds into the province for housing, it was announced Monday.

A news release from Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, said the money will be made available in the year starting April 1 "to undertake a number of housing projects of families of low and moderate income, the elderly and handicapped children."

"The agreement also provides for additional funds to be made available to Quebec Housing Corp if supplementary housing programs are required before the end of 1971," the news release said.

The federal funds are not turned over to Quebec in a lump sum. The money is held here and will be doled out to individual loans for housing projects during 1970-71.

Chinese Get Into Polish Situation

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China accused Russia today of sending troops into Poland to help Greek workers' riots and warned the Kremlin that intervention could stir up turmoil in the rest of Eastern Europe.

The Chinese statement published by the official People's Daily was Peking's first comment on the week of trouble in Poland's Baltic ports and Sunday's resignation of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

China's Communist party newspaper described Poland under the Gomulka government and Czechoslovakia and other East European states as "powder kegs that can explode at any time."

The People's Daily attack represented China's strongest blast in recent months in the simmering war of words between Moscow and Peking.

It came at a time when both countries have made moves to normalize their bitter relations — a recent exchange of ambassadors for the first time in four years and an announcement three days ago that both sides had signed a protocol on shipping along the rivers forming their common border, scene of armed clashes last year.

Peking, which branded the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 as a "monstrous crime" committed by a "band of bandits," also has been mending fences with Warsaw pact states. It has sent a number of envoys to East European capitals to fill posts left empty during the Cultural Revolution.

The People's Daily jumped back into the attack by claiming that the Polish authorities were a clear sign of the "crisis of capitalist rule in East Europe."

The article accused Gomulka of being "counter-revolutionary" and denounced his successor, Edward Gierek, for making empty promises.

The new party secretary of Poland in his first televised speech had openly expressed the wish to forge closer together with Soviet revisionism," the People's Daily said.

"He made empty promises in an attempt to cheat people. . . . His statement concealed his intention in slaughter the workers and suppress the people."

CNR Men Shot

MONTREAL (CP) — Two CNR maintenance workers were shot to death today in what police described as an apparent murder-suicide.

The bodies of the men, identified only as a cleaner and a mechanic, were found in a locker room of the downtown CNR Central Station.

One was shot in the heart, the other in the head. A sawed-off .410-calibre rifle lay near one of the bodies.

Witnesses told police the men, both in their 40s, were involved in a bitter dispute about a week ago, but no one knew what the argument was about.

Council Approves Snowmobile Bylaw

Mufflers Required If DOT Approves

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The voice of an estimated 1,500 Belleville snowmobile owners was recognized by city council yesterday as it passed a bylaw restricting the use of the machines within the city limits.

The bylaw as originally proposed by the city parks board and city traffic committee set a 10 p.m. curfew for operation of snowmobiles.

But in the final draft as approved by council it was amended to allow operation until 11 p.m. from Monday until Thursday and 12 midnight on Friday and Saturday.

The bylaw also sets out the city parts in which snowmobiles may be operated, rules operation of the machines on city sidewalks and boulevards is illegal. The machines must also be fitted with mufflers.

Two amendments — one calling for Sunday hours to be advanced from 1:30 p.m. to 10 a.m. and another calling for evening curfew hours to remain at 10 p.m. were defeated before the final draft was passed by council.

However, the bylaw will not come into force until it is approved by the Ontario department of transport and council members estimated this may not be forthcoming for a month or more.

The case of the local snowmobilers, members of the "SPORT" (Snowmobilers Protecting the Rights of Others Together) Snowmobile Association — was presented by the club chairman Ray Worrell.

Mr. Worrell said it was the desire of his association to work closely with all municipalities in the area and to assist in the final draft of legislation required to offset the thoughtlessness of a few people.

Association members agreed that no vehicle of any type should be permitted to travel on sidewalks, while common sense dictated that the speed limit should not be exceeded.

At the same time, Mr. Worrell said that most organized snowmobilers used city parks as a means of access to the open countryside.

The argument was that if the city closed the parks to snowmobilers at 10 p.m. the result would be to force the machines into the streets as operators would not be able to return from an evening ride in time to meet the curfew.

"Instead," the brief said, "we should encourage them to take the machines off the street and in order to do this it would be necessary to extend this hour in some parks and remove restrictions in others."

The delegation asked that the bylaw be amended to allow for the operation of snowmobiles in park areas to 11 p.m. each evening; that Stanley Park, exhibition park and Memorial School park site have no restriction and that the deadline for snowmobiles on city streets be extended to 12.01 a.m.

Lionel Boily, Stanley Park area resident said that the proposed 10 p.m. curfew for snowmobiles was not reasonable. He asked that this be extended to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and to 12 midnight on Friday and Saturday.

He said noise was not a problem for most residents in his area.

In later discussion on the bylaw, Ald. Paul Russell as chairman of the city parks board, said the basic concern of his board was a matter of protec-

Davis Confirms Rumors, Announces Candidacy

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis Monday became the first declared candidate for Ontario's Progressive Conservative leadership and coupled his candidacy with an announcement of formidable cabinet support.

Mr. Davis, 41, whose candidacy was a foregone conclusion after Premier John Robarts announced plans to retire Dec. 3, told a news conference that Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton would act as his campaign manager.

Labor Minister Dalton Bales will head a group responsible for gaining delegate support for Mr. Davis within Metropolitan Toronto for the Feb. 10-12 convention at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Highways Minister George Gomme said the day Mr. Robarts announced his retirement plans that he would support Mr. Davis at the leadership convention.

The education minister was also expected to draw support from several other cabinet ministers. Mr. Davis's present job is the one that Premier Robarts used as a stepping-stone to power nine years ago.

Announcements are expected from several other hopefuls for the premiership in the weeks ahead.

Speculation centred on Allan Lawrence, 45, minister of mines and northern affairs; Bert Lawrence, 47, minister of financial and commercial affairs; Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, 49; Darcy McKeough, 37, municipal affairs minister; Leonard Reilly, former chief party whip; Health Minister Thomas Wells, 49; and George Kerr, minister of energy and resources.

R. Alan Eagleson, 37, Ontario PC Association president, was regarded as a dark horse candidate.

Premier Robarts, who said he wanted to see the reins of power passed to a younger man, has promised to stay neutral in the fight to succeed him.

Mr. Davis, education minister for the past eight years, credits himself with creation of the Ontario Curriculum Institute, the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, the department of educational research, the School of Graduate Studies in Education and, more recently, educational television across the province.

NTA Ban Stymies Industry

TORONTO (CP) — The decision to eliminate the use of a substitute chemical for phosphates in washing powders represented a serious reversal for the detergent industry in its quest for a suitable replacement, says Alan Rae, president of Lever Detergents Ltd.

Mr. Rae, who is also co-chairman of the Canadian detergent industry's committee for water quality, said Monday that phosphates and their substitute, nitrilotriacetate (NTA), were the only substances that had proved successful as detergent "builders."

"We're kind of back to square one now since we simply don't know of a builder other than phosphorus, NTA or a combination of the two."

Last Friday the United States detergent industry voluntarily agreed to remove NTA from its washiny products. The industry had used it as a partial substitute for phosphates—tagged as a major source of water pollution.

The move followed reports that NTA can aggravate water pollution and has been linked to birth defects in rats and mice.

A ban is to be imposed on phosphates in Canada in 1971, and this year context was limited to 25 per cent.

Two years ago the newly-formed department of university affairs was added to his cabinet portfolio. Mr. Davis is responsible for distribution of more than a billion dollars a year is government funds.

The education minister told the news conference that the Conservative government must take new positions in three main policy areas—economic nationalism, pollution control and regional development.

Mr. Davis promised he would continue Premier Robarts' policy of "giving the interests of Canada and Canadians No. 1 priority" if chosen.

Ontario already has the best pollution-control program in North America, he said, but as leader and premier he would give it an even greater emphasis.

He also promised to push ahead with projects such as the Toronto-centred regional development plan.

Mr. Davis said he doesn't want a destructive leadership campaign between now and the February convention. He said he planned to spend most of his time from the New Year until the convention on the road, meeting the delegates.

Asked about platform debates with other Tory hopefuls, Mr. Davis said there were no such meetings when Mr. Robarts ran for the leadership in 1961, and "I don't see any necessity to share the platform."

Mr. Davis—from Brampton, Ont., is married with five children.

Millions To Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement has been signed with the Quebec government that will pump $150 million in federal funds into the province for housing, it was announced Monday.

A news release from Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, said the money will be made available in the year starting April 1 "to undertake a number of housing projects of families of low and moderate income, the elderly and handicapped children."

The agreement also provides for additional funds to be made available to Quebec Housing Corp. if supplementary housing programs are required before the end of 1971," the news release said.

The federal funds are not turned over to Quebec in a lump sum. The money is held here and will be doled out in individual loans for housing projects during 1970-71.

Chinese Get Into Polish Situation

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China accused Russia today of sending troops into Poland to help Gomulka's workers' riots and warned the Kremlin that intervention could stir up turmoil in the rest of Eastern Europe.

The Chinese statement published by the official People's Daily was Peking's first comment on the week of trouble in Poland's Baltic ports and Sunday's resignation of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

China's Communist party newspaper described Poland under the Gomulka government and Czechoslovakia and other East European states as "powder kegs that can explode at any time."

The People's Daily attack represented China's strongest blast in recent months in the simmering war of words between Moscow and Peking.

It came at a time when both countries have made moves to normalize their bitter relations — a recent exchange of ambassadors for the first time in four years and an announcement three days ago that both sides had signed a protocol on shipping along the rivers forming their common border, scene of armed clashes last year.

What a Welcome!

The First Day of Winter Threatens Freezing Rain

The first day of winter slammed into the Quinte district, today leaving these joyless, Christmas-week calling cards:

—A foreboding forecast of a four-inch, day-long snow squall, possibly ending in freezing rain tonight.

—A provincial police warning to avoid local highway travel if possible, as 35-mile-an-hour wind gusts threatened dangerous drifting.

—A pre-storm cold spell that sent temperatures tumbling to 27 degrees below zero in the northern Quinte townships.

It was a bleak weather pattern shared by most of Southern Ontario where, by early morning, poor driving conditions were a common highway hazard.

The CFB Trenton duty forecaster this morning predicted snow would continue through to tonight, to a total of about four inches. After that, freezing rain was possible.

Winds were gusting up to 35 miles an hour in the area this morning, posing the threat of heavy drifting, he said.

In Belleville, a provincial police spokesman said Quinte residents should stay off local highways unless "absolutely necessary" until the weather scene clears.

Heavy Christmas traffic only complicated the poor driving conditions, said the officer.

Storm conditions set in immediately after a raw cold spell that created early-morning car problems for many workers after winter officially arrived at 1.36 a.m.

By that time, temperatures had declined to three degrees below zero in Belleville and six below at the Trenton airbase.

At Tweed, the mercury slipped to 12 below and had only made it back to five below by 8 a.m.

Coldest spot in the district was Bancroft, where the lands and forests department recorded an overnight low of 27 below.

One city cab company was reported running 30 minutes late in attempting to cope with a spate of calls during the early-morning rush hour.

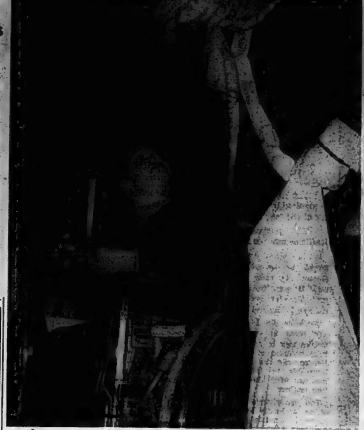
A major city garage operator also reported a steady stream of calls for help from motorists whose cars were stalled by zero temperatures.

People Retain Faults Even Though Christmas

TRENTON (Staff) —Christmas is a season that is particularly susceptible to cynicism, Rev. Michael Caswell of St. George's Anglican Church told the Rotary Club here last night.

Throughout modern history, he indicated, the accent has been on the light-hearted side of Christmas.

Sir Walter Scott summed up the yuletide season of his day by saying "England was merry England when Christmas brought her own good cheer" and Rudyard Kipling spoke of Christmas as a time for "toasting and forgetting", the minister noted.



However, he stressed that people do not lose their faults at Christmas.

Mr. Caswell noted incidents in Belleville in the past in which individuals "had plonked as many spoons as they could for Christmas boxes" and hampers.

Additionally, he recalled taking a Christmas turkey to a needy family in Sharbot Lake. Once inside the house, he said, a child accidently opened the refrigerator to reveal another turkey already on hand.

The minister contended that "the cynicism that fills us as we mature" is overcome at Christmas by images of Christ as an infant. "Nobody can be offended by a tiny infant" he said.

In conclusion, Mr. Caswell referred to the work of the Rotary Club and said that "within your organization (Rotary) one can find the proof that God has come among us".

PE Council Has New Faces

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County council held its final meeting of 1970 yesterday in Shire Hall, Three reeves, Allan Ralley, South Marysburg, Bernard Hepburn, Picton and Gordon Lloyd, Hillier will not return to their seats next year. Both Reeve Ralley and Reeve Hepburn were defeated in their bids for re-election earlier this month. County warden and reeve of Hillier, Gordon Lloyd, is retiring from municipal politics.

Deputy reeve of Hallowell, Fred Stafford, defeated in a race for township reeve, also lost his seat in council for the upcoming term.

Newcomers at council's January meeting will include South Marysburg's newly elected reeve, Clifford Walker, and Picton's Reeve - elect Albert Piroth. Hillier reeve by acclamation, Rosa Benway, will succeed Mr. Lloyd.

Three new deputy reeves also will attend next month's council meeting. Hillier township's first deputy reeve, Lewis Wight will fill an additional seat on council. Fred Stafford, deputy reeve of Hallowell, will be replaced by Keith MacDonald who came into office by acclamation. Picton deputy reeve, Donald Thompson, who did not stand for re-election this month owing to ill health, will be succeeded by former town councillor James Bird. Councillors will elect a county warden for 1971 during a caucus meeting in early January.

Flowers for Yule

Ever since the Druids made mistletoe and holly symbols of Christmas, fresh flowers and plants have been favorites for holiday giving and decorating. Catering to the popular demand, Mr. and Mrs. Jan VanNordi have set up a temporary flower shop on Picton's Main Street to handle the Christmas rush. Mrs. VanNordi readies a plant for purchase during the holiday season.

Last Meeting For Board

The last public meeting of Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board for 1969-70 will be held at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

As their last major business, the trustees will open and award tenders for construction of an addition at St. Carthagh's School in Tweed.

No further open meetings of the board are anticipated this year.

When the new board, elected for a two-year term Dec. 7, convenes after the new year there will be five new faces on the board — four from Belleville and one from Tweed.

Parks Board Seeking Funds to Replace Trees

The city parks board is still asking city council to underwrite the cost of replacing trees along Bay Bridge Road which in the fall were felled or pruned out to allow for street widening.

In estimates for the street widening, provision was made for the cost of relocating the trees, but quotations for the job came in considerably higher than was estimated and council voted against the expenditure.

Then the parks board learned that the trees could be moved after all at a cost only slightly higher than the original estimate.

But the road contractor had already commenced work and the trees were down before action could be taken.

The parks board took the view that the trees were destroyed as part of the road widening program and therefore should be replaced by the city.

This suggestion, however, was voted down by council.

Yesterday the parks board, through parks superintendent, submitted an estimate of $1,875 for planting of about 45 trees along Bay Bridge Road, which it was decided would produce an attractive entrance avenue to the city.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said of how the matter had come back to council after it had already been discussed and voted on.

He suggested that council take no action, claiming that if this was allowed it would open the door for all kinds of requests.

But council took a slightly different view and directed the matter be referred to next year's budget committee.

Members To Raise $4,000

COLBORNE (Staff) — Members of the curling club here have launched a campaign to raise $4,000 so that the job of rebuilding their indoor rink may begin soon.

The roof of the curling club on Durham St. collapsed last Thursday under the pressure of a heavy layer of snow, causing an estimated $14,000 worth of damage.

Local curlers gathered last night to decide upon a course of action and the fund raising program was initiated.

"We want to raise the $4,000 through pledges and donations," club secretary Charles Philp told the Intelligencer last night. Loans will be contracted for the rest of the money needed to restore the structure.

The club's insurance on the building will not compensate it for the damage, Mr. Philp said. However, he added that members are optimistic.

"I think we can raise the money within a couple of days . . . There are a lot of enthusiastic curlers here," he concluded.

Two Hold Sweepstake Tickets

Two Quinte residents today are recipients of one of the world's most exciting Christmas gifts — a chance at winning an Irish Hospitals Sweepstake.

Yesterday's ticket draw on horses in the latest sweepstake race, produced one ticket holder each in Picton and Trenton.

Identified by horse, number and race-to-be-known they are: Hillhead VJ—WQT61608 Owen Jewell, Trenton; Sword Dollar—WPG54157, Andy, Picton.

The race will be run Dec. 26. The jackpot normally runs around $121,500 for a ticket on the winning horse.

Picton Toy Distribution Is Planned

PICTON (Staff) — Santa's workshop has been established at members of the Picton fire department in a drive to supply used toys for Christmas distribution. Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp said today that firefighters have spent the past three months mending and painting toyland residents preparing for a trip in Santa's bag.

The toys, donated by residents of Picton and Prince Edward are distributed by the Salvation Army. Mr. Tripp commented that this year's volume of toys was down somewhat from the number collected last Christmas. He observed that plastic toys, which have become increasingly popular, are not easily mended and are frequently unsuitable subjects for "face lifting." The fire chief was well pleased with local response to the toy campaign, however, and remarked that all boxes containing rejvenated Raggedy Anns have been delivered to Picton's Salvation Army headquarters.

He said he would support the bylaw as it stood on the understanding that it could be later amended.

Ald. Donald Soutter felt the proposed bylaw was too restrictive. He moved an amendment calling for the curfew hour for city streets to be extended to Thursday and to 12 midnight on Friday and Saturday.

The alderman's amendment also called for these hours to be extended to Victoria and Stanley Park, the Centennial Skate Park site and Exhibition Park.

Ald. Jean Smith asked that snowmobilers be allowed to commence operation at 10 a.m. on Sunday instead of the proposed 1.30 as an accommodation to parents with young families.

However, the amendment was defeated as was a later one by Mayor J. Russell Scott which asked that the 10 p.m. curfew for street operation remain but that the parks curfew be extended to 11 p.m.

Council directed that its snowmobile bylaw be advertised in the local newspaper before it was put into force.

City OKs Road Bylaws For Plaza, Hospital Areas

Bylaws authorizing the construction of Bell Boulevard west from North Front Street, and for the reconstruction of Dundas Street East from Bleecker Ave., were passed yesterday by city council.

Estimated cost of the Bell Boulevard construction for a distance of 1,177 feet west of North Front Street, including roadwork and storm sewers is given as $115,000, part of which will be paid through local improvement charges to abutting owners.

The four-lane hard-surfaced roadway with concrete curbs and gutters is being constructed to serve the new $7 million Quinte Mall being constructed by Cambridge Leaseholds.

Of the total cost $30,821 will be assessed against the owners as local improvements. This represents 60 per cent of the equivalent cost of a 28-foot roadway.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell has estimated the cost of the Dundas Street East reconstruction at $295,000. Including $150,000 for roadwork, $40,000 for storm sewers and $14,000 for traffic lights.

The proposed construction calls for a 52 foot width asphalt pavement complete with concrete curbs and gutters.

Traffic lights would be installed at both Dufferin and MacDonald Avenues to provide easier access to and from the hospital.

But as the street forms part of provincial highway (No. 2) the proposed work is subsidized, under a connecting link agreement on the basis of 75 per cent of the cost of eligible items.

The department of highways subsidy is estimated at $183,625, leaving $111,575 as the city's share of the reconstruction cost.

Highway Route Change

City public works employees removed Highway 2 route sign from Pinnacle Street preparatory to the new Dundas Street bridge going into operation. The new bridge and reconstructed Dundas Street roadway went into use at 11 this morning.

Sorting Bats for Museum Job You Just Get Used To

TORONTO (CP) — Sorting bats isn't every volunteer's idea of how to contribute to society. It is one of the jobs done by members of the curatorial committee of the Royal Ontario Museum Membership Committee.

The membership committee was organized to promote public interest in the ROM and in lend a hand to its staff when they can.

Mrs. Douglas Campbell, its placement chairman, says the curator of mammalogy is a world authority on bats who sometimes needs help.

"People send bats in all the time for all over the world. They have thousands of bats that have to be sorted.

"It's a field that doesn't immediately appeal, but after a while you get used to it.

"He's mounting the bats, and four of our people help sort them. The little brown bats that might come from the cottage they just put in the waste basket because they have so many of them."

Volunteers also catalogue samples, label slides, do line labelling for items such as mice teeth. They sort rocks, wash bones with toothbrushes and on occasion tell a curator what his museum department contains.

"Two people are cataloguing everything that is on display in a department, because a new curator has taken over. His predecessor had been at the museum for years and had everything catalogued in his head.

"There is staff in the storage the curators have never seen that was collected years ago."

The committee has about 90 members now. Chairman Mrs. Robert Hill says it was about one-third that size when it was formed in 1958 to do service projects. She says persuading some of the staff the committee could be useful has been uphill work in spots.

"The museum was part of the University of Toronto then, an academic institution, and the idea of volunteers hadn't occurred to anyone.

"For the first few years the group was small. Every time there was a special exhibition the members pleaded to be allowed to help. We were allowed to work with a silver show, and began to do routine chores. The museum was under-staffed, so volunteers were doing things the curators couldn't get around in."

Volunteers are assigned to a curator and do whatever is "most preying on his mind."

"The curator just gives the volunteer something she can cope with. If she's sorting rocks he may tell her, 'If it doesn't have a red vein, forget it.' It's very basic work—although one of the volunteers at the Canadiana became knowledgeable enough to buy Canadian coins for them."

The most active members work 60 hours a year or more. In addition to the curatorial committee, there is a touring committee that puts on daily free tours, convention and group tours, and do special studies so they can handle exhibition tours.

Mrs. William Wigle, touring committee chairman, says they are given a lecture and information by the museum's relevant expert, they study on their own and write a tour script that is approved by the curator.

Mrs. Hill says the membership committee remains small because it is a working committee that has just so many jobs to provide for volunteers, but it has expanded its services by calling on the museum's larger membership.

"People pay $5 per year," Mrs. Hill explains, "so be museum members. We have developed a group known as museum volunteers. From time to time they have an opportunity to help the museum by staffing a membership desk, stuffing and stamping envelopes, helping at night with lectures or selling tickets. They are people who may not have time to do more, but we seem to enjoy helping on special occasions."

The smaller Membership Committee has also put on two "Rummages" — open houses intended to introduce people to the museum and encourage them to visit it. They have provided special events such as a recent bound's bus trip to the Niagara escarpment.

"If any money is raised in the projects, they go to the department concerned. We hope to do that kind of thing more. We want to promote public interest in the museum."

Clerk Suspended

TRENTON (Staff) — The clerk of the Trenton Division Court, Peter Hastings, has been suspended under the division court act Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson has confirmed.

The act gives a judge authority to suspend any court clerk if there is a possibility the court has been improperly or unfairly investigated is made.

With the suspension, records of the Trenton court will be transferred to the control of County Attorney John A. Pringle in Belleville.

Annexation Motion Withdrawn

Ald. Arthur Keegan has withdrawn a notice of motion calling for annexation by the city of Belleville of parts of ships.

Two weeks ago the alderman presented the motion asking that the city apply to the department of municipal affairs requesting that certain lands in the two townships be annexed to the city with the areas to be determined by a planning committee set up by the mayor.

At yesterday's council meeting however, the alderman said he was withdrawing his motion for reasons which he did not state.

But Alderman Keegan said he would re-introduce the motion to next year's council with different wording.

Cigarettes Are Stolen

COLBORNE (Staff) — Before the IGA store on King St. here opened for business yesterday morning, thieves had entered the store and made off with $1,300 in merchandise.

The bulk of the haul was comprised of 300 cartons of cigarettes. The Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigating the robbery.

Life Expectancy

We were talking the other day about retirement and about the increase in life expectancy. Now it seems that a reverse trend is under way, according to a report by the World Health Organization.

And when we learn that heart disease, lung cancer and chronic respiratory illnesses are the culprits we wonder if a great many people are not heeding the warnings about the effects of tobacco in all three categories. Could it be that many elderly smokers in particular have enjoyed their smokes for so long that abstinence is more than they can bear? And, if some have survived that long without damage, why stop now?

In any event, here is the evidence from the Geneva-based WHO. Sixteen of 22 countries mentioned in the report showed an increase in death rates in the categories mentioned between 1960 and 1966, cancelling out the decline brought about by virtual elimination of infectious diseases.

The increased death rate significantly tends to affect men only, while female mortality rates continue to drop. And this presumably by reason of the greater pressures on men in the world of business and in the overall affairs of life. Again, do men tend to burn the candle at both ends to an extent more than women? There lies an interesting subject for study by medical or university researchers, but the fact remains women are living longer on average — by two or three years.

One wonders what qualities of life or environment determine these things. Again this could be a subject for an interesting research paper. What has crowded Japan got that places it as the country with the lowest death rate of the 22 industrialized nations, with 6.8 deaths per thousand population, and the Soviet Union second with 7.7 per thousand.

And why should modern Austria with its glorious countryside, mountain slopes where men and women can escape, refresh themselves spiritually in a manner denied many of us, have the highest rate of 13.3 deaths per 1,000 population? The report does not say. Thus, we are left only with the statistics, and the questions.

West Germany, Belgium, England and Wales, were also rather higher than average. How often we tend to ignore the benefits of good health, yet it is the one great blessing of this life.

Is Public Alert

Even if it is not as bad as in other areas it is no comfort to learn that vandalism is on the increase in Quinte area schools. For that matter it seems that lately there has been a rash also of break-ins involving city establishments, as well as cases of bag snatching.

Citizens should be alert to this sort of thing and assist the police by reporting any suspicious circumstances coming to their attention. It is a far cry in Belleville from the recent events in Montreal, but we have gained the impression that if some citizens had acted on suspicions regarding the house where the late Pierre Laporte was being held, events might have turned out more happily.

But that is all in the tragic past. Meanwhile, we are merely suggesting that we could all be more observant in matters involving law and order generally, with a view to assisting the police to maintain the integrity of the community.

Foreign Competition

The Canadian textile industry for some years now has had to contend with competition from low-cost clothing from Japan, Taiwan and Korea. From the Communist world too we have seen items from Poland and now we can add Romania. At least one Belleville store has women's apparel manufactured in the latter country and the outside label also bears the information: Printed in Hong Kong. A strange diversification of effort, but there it is, and we are only left to wonder just what there is in all this for Canadians and for the ailing textile industry here.

P.M. Outlines Potential Measures to Curb Insurrection

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — Only since he used the enormous power of the War Measures Act in replacing it since with the temporary Public Order Bill, have Canadians begun to realize what a tough, pragmatic hard-as-nails Prime Minister they have in Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Now, in his own words, comes direct confirmation that circumstances could compel him and other national leaders to get much tougher.

In a recent dialogue with the Columbia Broadcasting System, CBS Canadian expert of which was confined pretty well to his warning that revolutionaries at the moment may favour a restriction — even to the point of Security and Intelligence surveillance — of confederation freedom, the Prime Minister speaks of the present as a "more permanent form" of counter-violence, hints of strengthened federal police authority and, by implication in perhaps something of the style of the FBI or the CIA in the U.S., and gives a firm guarantee that no government of his will be so "weak-kneed" as to bow before the forces of terror.

Since this is as clear and hard as the Prime Minister has ever got, his question and answer text, most of which follows, should make considerably useful reading:

Q: It was not long ago, Prime Minister, that you were worrying about the importation of American violence. You said then that Canada had a peaceful society, no violent revolution here, and yet it turned out that yours was homegrown.

A: Well, perhaps that was a bit too strong, but I think the phenomenon of violence is one which is known by most industrial societies. The reverse side of alienation and copping out, people decide things, most things faster than they are changing. They decide that they know better than the vast majority of the people what is good for them so they will impose it upon them by firemails and bombs and selected kidnappings and so on. It is something which I do not think anyone imported; it is a creation of modern day alienation, dissatisfaction. It has a contemporary expression of something that goes back to primitive times when one man hit another one over the head because he did not agree with him.

Q: In order to meet all of this, are we going to have to have war measures acts that we know or something only slightly less stringent as this new bill that has come down?

A: No, I would think not. I would think that as the anti-democratic forces develop in any given society, that this society will profit from the stage where it will use exceptional measures as we did to meet this particular case, to a stage where there is a more permanent checking on people who are violent and who believe in the destruction of the society to pursue their means.

Q: . . . more permanent checking?

A: Well, what I mean is that we in Canada have had very loose immigration laws, tradicital laws. We have had nothing equivalent to the CIA in the U.S., or for that matter, even the FBI.

We have had a national police force, whose action was restricted to the application of certain aspects of the criminal code. It is possible that if the challenge of violence and of urban guerillas increases, that we will have to use more sophisticated police methods which is a regrettable thing. But they will have to be set up. For instance, in 1951, a policy was affirmed and that reaffirmed I believe in '62 or '63, that there should be no police surveillance of university campuses and so on in the name of freedom of thought and the freedom of teaching and so on. And it was at this time a good decision.

But it is apparent that if the revolutionaries are overt, if are going to begin on campuses, it is apparent that if the instigators of violent events are going to find their natural milieu there that there can be no more exception for the inviolability part of the community in the name of academic freedom, then there can for riot and so on in the name of any other freedom.

Q: Under the new bill — for get war measures now — police may enter premises without warrant, and a list prepared which can be held indefinitely. People can be arrested on suspicion and detained by order of the Attorney General for up to a week before even being charged. Suspects can be held for up to 90 days without bail before the Attorney General is obliged to give them a chance to seek a trial date in court.

A: What is so shocking and new in this? It is just a matter of degree. People could be arrested on suspicion before the invocation of these special measures act. They would have to be brought before a court within 24 hours. Why not within two hours? Why this shrinkage of civil liberties of 24 hours?

Q: What would happen if President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell were to come out for a bill like this in the United States? You know our country very well.

A: Well, I can only say, I would say that if they had to come out for that kind of a bill the situation in the United States would have, I suppose, degenerated much more seriously then it has in Canada. I would mean that with all your CIA and your FBI you have not been able to prevent this kind of terrorist and assaulting out. I would think that the U.S. ever perhaps less liable to insurrection than Canada because they are more used to living with violence.

Q: Is the clear and present danger in Canada that severe right now? Because of what happened in Quebec it is necessary to have this bill, this law for the entire country?

A: No, you are mistaken. The law exists of course on the Canadian statute books. It is the regulations under that law we restricted it only to the FLQ and a phenomenon which was dedicated to the separation of Quebec from Canada and which were dedicated to the use of violence to do so. And it is the same thing in the Temporary Measures Act. It does not apply to all of Canada. It applies to a very specific situation.

Q: Prime Minister, are we going to have to sacrifice some of our civil liberties in order to protect our democratic states in the 20th century?

A: Well, we have always done that. You know there are close decisions in every country that some civil liberties must be sacrificed at some time. Justice Holmes says you are not free to speak in a crowded theatre. You can not yell fire in a crowded theatre. I mean this is such a basic doctrine in the United States political thought — that you must prevent damage that in exceptional times and times of panic or emergency you have to use language and measures and they are that, as our regulations term, as our act is to be over-come a temporary attempt to sabotage the basic freedoms of all the citizens. It would be a weak-kneed state indeed if it did not want to protect itself from those who were attempting overtly to destroy it. Those who are holding the government to blackmail, those who say openly that we will kidnap or we will shoot people unless you do what we say. This is a possible attempt up in a country not by anyone's mandate but their own saying that we will govern this country. You have been elected by 38 or 39 per cent of the population, you have the majority in the House of Commons, you are responsible to the people but we will tell you what to do, not the people. And if you do not do what we say we will kidnap and shoot and blackmail and bomb and so on. You know, just to speak like this is to bring the common sense answer. No state nowhere has not a provision for meeting this kind of temporary threat.

Vancouver Election

'Tom Terrific' Triumphs Over Motley Group of Rivals

Vancouver Sun

Mayor Tom (Terrific) Campbell continues to live up to the nickname conferred upon him years ago by The Sun's columnist Ron Peterson. Mr. Campbell did, indeed, win a terrific victory against the strong and well financed opposition of two attractive rivals and a mixed bag of aldermen.

Official returns . . . are expected to show that only the presence of another candidate of the same name robbed the real Campbell of a clear majority over the rest of the unwieldy field combined. If not, then close to it. This took political skill and flair of a high order. Mr. Campbell rolled with the punches and often slapped the issues. In effect, he simplified the contest down to a vote of confidence upon his handling of the hippies.

It wouldn't be stretching the truth very far to say that the mayor rode back into office on a red stick, which is no mean feat in itself. Students of campaigning may find it fascinating to study the techniques by which he deflected attacks on his relatively ineffective record and kept the spotlight focused on law - and - order, as if Vancouver were in danger of insurrection and he were the only savior. Now that he has his mandate, upon which he is to be congratulated, it is to be hoped that he will exercise it with discretion. If, ultimately, fear, artificially created, is hard to live with on a sustained basis.

Dr. Bill Gibson did his impressive best to present a constructive platform but the voters were clearly in no mood to listen to talk about rapid transit, parks, low-cost housing or False City developments. These problems are urged and they won't go away. Leadership toward their solution will now devolve upon the aldermen who ran on The Electors Action Movement ticket that Dr. Gibson headed. Their task should be somewhat eased by the hasty and hopeless manner in which the mayoralty running, is to be thanked for his energetic presentation.

As was to be expected, Tony Gargrave had an impossible job in trying to persuade the citizens that they should have party politics at city hall. Even those who support his New Democratic Party in provincial and federal elections voted against the idea, as the results will demonstrate.

Mr. Gargrave ran a sincere and reasonable campaign. His defeat is no reflection upon his personality: it was the party label that did it.

For more than 30 years the Civic Non-Partisan Association has capitalized successfully on the public's aversion to politics in municipal government. The NPA did it again yesterday with renewed vigor. One consequence of the election may be that the NDP will now conserve its resources for use in the senior government contests, rather than get a loser's image in civic elections held every two years.

Because of the ridiculous multiplicity of candidates it is impossible at press writing to learn who won the marginal seats on the city council or the school and park boards. In general, however it appears that almost all the sitting members were returned. One of the surprises were the changes in their order of ranking since the 1968 election.

After congratulating the winners, the remains to thank the earnest and responsible losers, some of whom came bearing gracefully their defeat in the course of time, many of them will eventually be accepted if they continue to show the same commitment to public service.

It remains also to hope that next time the ballot will not be cluttered up with nuisance candidates who made a farce of campaign meetings this time and turned the tallying of results into a nightmare for the returning officer and his staff.

Stratford Festival Controversy

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

There are more positive and hopeful aspects of the administrative controversy within the Stratford Festival organization than negative ones, it would seem.

Controversy within great cultural institutions is not by any means unknown. Two of the most famous examples are the Vienna State Opera and the Comedie Francaise. The internal politics of these most successful state - supported organizations is frequently at the boil.

Now that most of the relevant facts about administrative changes in Stratford are known, it appears that, to some extent the controversy is a natural product of the pressures of ferment and change.

What many in Stratford and this part of the province may sometimes forget is the extent to which the festival is no longer just a regional product, but a national institution. The fact that it has come this far in its relatively brief existence without serious internal conflict is surely a miracle of sorts.

The facts of the controversy were largely clarified by the annual meeting of the festival foundation. It is unfortunate that administrative director Victor Feldy found it necessary to leave the festival, and unfortunate that this came about partly because of friction with general manager William Wylie.

But since there seems to have been some overlapping of responsibilities, this was perhaps inevitable. It is to be hoped that the survivor will appreciate the need for a little more diplomacy in an organization where mere efficiency is not good enough.

The selection of festival founder Tom Patterson to the annual meeting was in keeping with his contribution since it began: dedicated, consistent and fatally committed to the festival's well-being.

His call for the resignation of Mr. Wylie and board president Dr. Ian Bongard may have been somewhat too displace for the practical demands of the moment, but otherwise what Mr. Patterson said made obvious sense.

The real tragedy among recent developments there is that it left no active place for Mr. Patterson, an essentially modest man. It would be some guarantee of future good intentions on all sides if this proved capable of rectification.

State Calls Manson Girls Robots Who Killed on Order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three young women on trial in the Sharon Tate murder case, but ousted from court for bad behavior, have been described by state as robots who killed the actress and six others "to satisfy their master, Charles Manson," who controlled them.

As the prosecutor began his closing arguments Monday, the women—Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel, both 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 21—listened by loudspeaker from an adjoining room.

Manson, who was briefly ousted with them, returned and stayed through the session, frequently interrupting comment on the arguments.

The women were removed from court after a scuffle with bailiffs. They had shouted at the judge and audience as Miss Van Houten protested appointment of a substitute for her lawyer, Ronald Hughes, missing and believed lost on a camping trip. Her new court-appointed lawyer is Maxwell Keith, a veteran criminal lawyer.

"I have nothing to do with Mr. Ronald Hughes disappearing!" Miss Van Houten shouted at the judge. "In fact, I'm wondering what did you do with him."

Ignoring the judge's orders to be seated, the slim brunette tussled with deputies, slapped one bailiff on the hand and told the judge, "I'd strike you if I could."

She was ushered out with the others.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi called the slayings in August, 1969, "a classic textbook example of premeditated murder."

Although there was no evidence that Manson, 36, killed any victims, Bugliosi argued he was equally guilty under state laws making any party to a conspiracy guilty of its results.

Much of the argument was a recap of prosecution witness Linda Kasabian's testimony in which she told of being sent on murder missions with other members of Manson's "family."

"The killers, armed with deadly weapons, went into the victims' homes in the dead of night and mercilessly stabbed them to death," said Bugliosi. Then, he said, they went back to tell Manson what they had done.

Bugliosi said "his (Manson's) robots had viciously slaughtered the victims" and that the blood probably was "still trickling out of the bodies when they reported back."

Allied Chiefs at Odds Over Invasion Priorities

LONDON (CP) — Disagreements between British and American military chiefs in 1944 about priorities in the final assault on Hitler's Europe were revealed Monday when the records of the Combined Chiefs of Staff were made public.

The wrangle grew over the importance of Operation Anvil — landing in southern France — which was originally to have been carried out simultaneously with Operation Overlord, the Normandy landings.

The 109 volumes of documents and photostats which have been declassified and opened simultaneously in London and Washington, contain few references to matters about the war which still remain controversial.

On the Normandy dispute, the records show that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Allied commander, made it clear he wanted a five-division assault in Normandy and not the two divisions promised to Stalin earlier and at least two divisions for Anvil, instead of the original one.

British generals then said the best way to help the Normandy landing would be to intensify the drive in Italy. By choosing to stand and fight in Italy instead of withdrawing north of Rome, the Germans, they said, were "playing our game."

The Americans disagreed, apparently concerned about the slowness with which the bridgehead was proceeding.

At this point, on March 26, 1944, with only a month to go to the original date for the Normandy landing, the Americans told the British "the U.S. cannot afford to provide resources sufficient to support Overlord and, at the same time, to reinforce the Mediterranean, when these exists no firm decision and clear-cut plan for operations in the Mediterranean."

Eventually after the Mediterranean commander, Gen. Maitland Wilson, had been head hunted and both across Ike Adards, the date of July 10 was settled for Anvil, though there still was disagreement.

In the end the southern France landings took place on Aug. 15, almost 10 weeks after the Normandy landings.

Their value in the war still is a matter of dispute.

Bunty Lawless Jockey Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Tommy Almery, 61, the Scottish-born jockey who rode Bunty Lawless to some of his greatest victories, died early Monday after a lengthy illness.

Almery, whose riding career extended from the mid-1920s to the 1940s, rode Bunty to victory as a two-year-old in the Clarendon Stakes in 1937, captured the first running of the Canadian Championship with him the following year and won the same race again in 1941 when Bunty was six.

College Graduate Says Job 'Stultifying'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie graduated from a prominent women's college last year and set out for Washington to work for a well-known congressman. "Valuable experience," she thought.

Now, with a year of answering mail and cranking a mimeograph machine for $119 a week behind her, Julie is quitting.

Every year Julies by the hundred flock to Washington — bright, serious young girls with new college degrees in hand and visions of glamor and excitement in their eyes.

But, like Julie, many find themselves working at dull tasks in drab, crowded offices for little money — frustration.

"These girls come to me with political science degrees and they think they have the world by the tail," says Hazel Bergstrom, chief of the Capitol Hill Employment Centre.

"But the colleges don't prepare them to do anything. They come here thinking they're going to change policy decisions and find Prince Charming. Soon they're disenchanted and discouraged."

The problem, says Mrs. Bergstrom, is that congressmen and senators need food soldiers, not staff officers.

Another single working girl said: "The government brochures paint a pretty picture, but when many girls get here, they find they're not paid enough to live or their jobs are not satisfying."

Still, says 25-year-old Hortence Mena, whose nickname is Henk, "Sometimes the only way to get a job is to start as a clerk or a secretary."

That's just what she did in 1977, going to work for Texas Democratic Congressman Henry B. Gonzalez, who represented her hometown district of San Antonio. Since then Miss Mena has started law school and has been promoted to Representative Gonzalez's legislative assistant.

Still, her story is rare in a town where more dreams are broken than realized.

Not even Mrs. Bergstrom, whose job is finding work for these eager young women, thinks the possible rewards are worth the chance.

"Definitely not," she said when asked if she would recommend a Washington job to her daughter.

Life apart from the working conditions of Capitol Hill doesn't always make a girl's existence in Washington easier. Salaries often barely climb above $8,000 a year, apartments are hard to find and are costly and, as in major cities everywhere, crime is of concern.

They say they do so many of the girls stay?

Not all find their work and life distasteful. "I'm here for the fun, fling-type experience you could never find in another city," says a secretary to a state department official.

"Life here is pleasant," she says. "I can ride my bike to work. I live in a house in Georgetown with some other girls and right up from my bedroom window. Life here isn't a hassle."

Then Julie, whose pretty face is framed by long dark hair, smiled. "I suppose you ought to mention my social life. It's the best I ever had."

But as typical as Julie's frustration over her work is, her pleasure with her social life seems out of the mainstream of many more girls' Washington existence.

For many, the long, hectic days in front of a typewriter are followed by long, lonely nights in front of a television set.

HIS AND HERS, JUNIOR EDITION — For well-dressed young men, Canadian Children's Wear of Montreal offers the wet-look coat at left, featuring a military cut and Sherpa collar. It comes with a matching cap. For the girls, Junior Wear of Winnipeg has a wet-look coat, crisply tailored and outlined with stitching on the curves and pocket edges. Both fashions are featured in the Fashion/Canada program. (CP Photo)

Ontario Eastern Star Chapter 55 Holds Annual Christmas Party

On Friday evening December 1 Belleville Chapter 55, Order of the Eastern Star, held their annual Christmas party in the Masonic Temple.

At the close of the Chapter meeting the many members and guests assembled in the banquet hall for a bountiful potluck dinner. The hall and tables were gaily decorated in the Christmas theme, while lighted candles on the tables, Santa Claus favors, and Christmas crackers at each place, added to the decor.

The officers sat head table guests were led in by the Chapter choir, singing a Christmas carol and carrying lighted candles.

The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Dorothy Jones and Worthy Patron, Mr. Rex Chaplin welcomed all, and wished everyone a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. The toast to the Queen was proposed by the Worthy Patron. The head table guests were introduced by the Associate Patron, Keith Elliott.

After dinner the Chapter choir entertained with several selections, under the direction of Sister Beverley Shaw, and accompanied on the piano by Sister Bernice Griffis.

The guest speaker, the Reverend Peter Tett of St. Thomas church, Belleville, was introduced by Harold Chalker. The theme of his address was "Winter Without Christmas", and he stated that in many countries and many homes there is winter without Christmas. He told a story of a large dinner party that was given, and when the guests had assembled, someone said "where is the guest of honor?" It was then realized by the host and hostess that they had been so busy preparing for the party, that they had forgotten to invite the guest of honor; and he said that this is so in many parties in halls and homes at Christmas time, the guest of honor, whose birthday we are celebrating is forgotten. He was presented with a gift from the officers and members of the Chapter, by the Worthy Patron, Rex Chaplin, and thanked for his interesting address.

Robert Jones, P.P. and Harold Bankier, assistant, led the carol singing, accompanied on the piano by Marjory Grey, P.M.

The special lunch committee convened by Dorothy Ellis, P.M. was thanked by the Worthy Matron, for serving the sumptuous dinner.

A draw was held for a large, beautifully dressed doll and wardrobe, which was won by Mrs. Pearl Arnott, also for a half bushel of apples and a basket of apples, won by Mrs. Thelma Liddle, and Mrs Florence Moon.

Santa Claus arrived, and together with his helpers distributed gifts from a beautifully decorated Christmas tree.

LOBA Holds Euchre Party

The social committees of the LOBA 350 and LOL 274 held their regular euchre party on Saturday evening in the Orange hall with seven tables in play. Favors went to Mrs. Keiba Ferguson, Mrs. Betty Fairbrother, Mrs. Clara Hoskins, Mrs. Lillian Wright, Roy Cook, Mrs. D. Macfarlane as hostesses.

The card committee will be responsible for sending gifts to the sick and shutins at Christmas time.

The entertainment committee took over the program and carols were sung; several contests conducted, including a Christmas bingo. Mrs. Goedinger read "The Christmas Donkey," (a story once given by B. Crosby).

The distribution of attractively wrapped gifts from beneath a beautifully decorated tree concluded the program. Mrs. A. English, on behalf of the organization, extended a special "Thank You" to the hostesses and all others who contributed to the enjoyable Christmas party.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Grandmother: "How's my darling little grandson today?"

Child: "What was that cute thing I said this morning, Mommy?".

Grandmother: "I'll have to remember that remark to tell Grandpa."

Mother: "Jimmy is at the showoff stage and it doesn't help any if we discuss him where he can hear. He thinks he has to be the centre of attention all the time."

Children who are too conscious of the impression they are making on adults lose much of their natural charm and appeal.

Heavy Petting Not Recommended

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old girl who needs an answer right away. Please hurry because I have a date with this guy Saturday night. Is it true that heavy petting leads to breast cancer? Like-I said, please hurry. — TERRI H., Hurley, New Mexico.

DEAR TERRI: Heavy petting does not lead to breast cancer but it can lead to other things. Cool it. Kiddo.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You're probably sick and tired of letters about that psychology ANN LANDERS professor who claims sex in marriage is not important. I'm enclosing a clipping from a newspaper out of London that should settle the controversy.

Two British scientists wrote in their book "Sixty Plus" that it is a grave mistake to allow their sexual love making to die away as couples get older. "If they continue to enjoy sex as long as they live," wrote the scientists, "they will be happier, more relaxed and healthier."

One of the authors, Dr. John Maddison is the founder of The Clinic For Preventive Medicine at Teddington. He wrote, "The wise men of India and China believed that regular sex activity was the key to eternal youth." Dr. Maddison went on to prove his thesis by citing laboratory studies which showed that regularly mated rats remained in far better health than rats who were isolated from the opposite sex. Extensive interviews with patients revealed that married couples lost the ability to function sexually when they abstained for reasons of separation, illness or the notion that sex might be injurious to their health. So chalk one up for the old motto, "Use-it or lose it."

I hope you'll print this, Ann. It might encourage some of the old gaffers who write to you. — STILL ENJOYING IT AT 76 IN KITCHENER, ONTARIO.

DEAR KITCH: The old gaffers who write to me don't need encouragement. It's their wives who are writing to me — and this is what they're writing about. Thanks for your letter. I'm with those scientists from Old Blighty.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote to you last month saying I thought my 16-year-old daughter was getting too friendly with a girl I was sure was a lesbian. You said unless I had more than a hunch to forget it because it is not unnatural for girls to be chummy at this age.

I have not had one confession letters from the other girl to my daughter which leave no room for doubt.

Should I confront my daughter with the evidence? Should I have a talk with the girl's parents? Would therapy help my daughter? She seems happy and perfectly normal in every way. To look at her you'd never suspect a thing. Please advise at once. TEXAS TENDERHOOKS.

DEAR T.T.: Do not contact the girl's parents. It would serve no useful purpose and it might create serious trouble between you and your daughter.

You should, however, let her know you are aware of relationship and that you are willing to provide her with professional help if she wants it. Show no anger or disgust and don't try to break up her friendship with the girl. It won't work. Moreover, it might build a wall which later might prove unsurmountable.

One's Own Preference in Wearing Toupee

By SOREN CLARK

Dear Doris: You tell the girls in disputes their bad points. If they have skin beginner you recommend a cover-up cream; and for failing hair a wig.

What do you have to say to a man who goes bald? Buy 6 toupes? Sorry, I can't cotton to the idea. That shiny pate I see in the mirror appals me. — Balding

Dear Balding: With the access cost on hair, not a small percentage do wear hairpieces. Especially the boys in the performing arts.

But going bald, with a male, is quite respectable. One fortyish gent told me he had a great fondle with his vanity to resist the toupee idea, when all the hair restorers failed.

Eventually he found he was not losing friends, or appetite, or brain power because of his shiny top. Just a little sleep worrying about it. So he stopped worrying.

In the final hand, people like you for what you are, not how you look.

Dear Doris: It was with keen interest I read the letter of the wife of an alcoholic and your advice. (Which I greatly respect) in today's paper. I have been the wife of an alcoholic for 38 years.

Far be it from me, Doris, to influence any young marriage to break up, but if I could relive my life I would take my three children and raise them alone. As it is now they have no respect for their father. I am sure they will always remember the arguments — harsh words that get louder and harsher as years go by. Love that slowly dies.

I feel if I had separated many years ago, the felt might have affected him enough to change, a reconciliation might have occurred and my children enjoyed their home.

Al-Anon will tell you that children remember Mama's arguing more than Dad's drinking even though Mama was the best natured young wife that ever embarked full of hope on her marriage. —Old Timer

Dear OldTimer: Separation is a drastic action but alcoholism does call for heroic measures; and a wife cannot cover up for a drinking husband — to any good effect. Maybe you would fit many instances being borne to him what his disease is doing to his life and to those he loves.

Dear Doris: Could you give us some pointers on tipping on a train? The meals are scheduled in the price, and we will have about six meals each.

If one porter looks after you all the way do you give him an amount at the end of the trip? If one makes up your bed for you what is the customary amount?

I have heard that it is just as easy and enjoyable to over-tip as to undertip and the porters would think more fondly of you. We don't want to be laughed at for being — Dumb Dunnies

Dear D.D.: Tips on a train ought to be about the same as any place else. Accepted custom is about like this:

For meals one tips at every meal, between 10 and 15 percent of the bill, and on a train the meal prices are right on the menu.

For the sleeping car porter figure on a dollar a night for both of you; and pay him before reaching the junction at which he orders and waiters change. To the redcap for carrying bags, allow 25 cents per bag; as a general rule, in Canada.

No porter or waiter I ever heard of ever scorned a too-large tip. Just be your own generous and grateful selves and you won't be any dumber bunnies than anybody else.

Confidential to Dead: Sharing the fate of an alcoholic by trying to keep pace with his drinking is no answer to the problem. Right now I'd say he is successfully eating his cake and having it too.

You say not married to him, yet you live with him and put up with his liquor and his frivolities. You will have to decide whether you value your own integrity and health enough to walk out on a man who is obviously drinking himself into maybe you into an early grave.

Which is worse: one derelict or two?

A Fancy Bread for Christmas Breakfast

By MARY MOORE

Fourteen happy people — all of my family — are to gather at Margaret's and Peter's in Toronto to stay from Christmas Eve until Boxing Day. This will be a big first and has been planned since last July when we heard we would all be within 300 miles of one another.

Margaret asked me to make one of your fancy Christmas breads for Christmas breakfast". So on Nov. 25 I made a test loaf in Kingston and four young eager beavers demolished it in one day.

CHRISTMAS BRAID BREAD (Robert's)

Dough:
2 pkges. granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup scalded milk
½ cup sugar (second amount)
1 tsp. salt
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
6 cups sifted all - purpose flour (divided)
1 cup light Sultana raisins
½ tsp. mace (or nutmeg)
1 tsp. grated lemon rind

TOPPING:
1 cup unsifted icing sugar
1 level tsp. warm water
1 level tsp. lemon juice
6 red maraschino cherries halved
6 green maraschino cherries halved
About 36 whole medium pecans

Into large mixing bowl put yeast, sugar (first amount) and lukewarm water and let stand 10 min. To scalded milk add sugar (second amount), salt and shortening and cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid along with eggs and 3½ cups of the flour and beat 100 strokes. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1¼ hrs.). Punch down dough and let rise a second time.

Sprinkle kneading board with remaining flour, turn risen dough out on it, cover with raisins, mace and lemon rind and knead until all are evenly distributed through dough and flour is used up. If you need more flour sprinkle it on board.

To shape braid cut dough into two pieces: one piece should be two-thirds of dough; the other one-third. Cut larger piece evenly into three and shape each into 18" long strips on cookie sheet under your palms. Place about 1" apart on large buttered cookie sheet and braid loosely, broadening braid at centre and pinching ends together. Repeat, making slightly shorter braid about half the size of the first with remaining dough and place on centre top, stretching and pinching its ends to end of first braid. Glaze by brushing with mixture of 2 tbsps. each water and sugar. Let rise in warm place until doubled and puffy. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 50 min. until it has a deep gold crust.

While warm drizzle with icing made of mixture of icing sugar, water and lemon juice, then decorate artistically with halved cherries and whole pecans.

This should be served warm and reheats satisfactorily at 275 deg. Fahr. wrapped in foil in about 30 to 25 min.

A thing of beauty and worthy of Christmas morning (if anything is).

Second Time Easier

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Jacob and Agnes Verwoerd of Lone Beach, Calif., say it's always easier to climb a mountain like 9,078 - foot Mount Eisenhower on the British Columbia - Alberta border the second time around. "It's nothing going up," said Verwoerd. "Coming down is the hardest.

It's the after - effects that bother you." When the Verwoerds, natives of Vancouver, first scaled Mount Eisenhower in 1957, they left a time capsule containing microfilmed historical documents at its summit. They made the return trip in late August.

The Mulberry Bush

LEEDS, England (CP) — John Hamilton was surprised when he was sued for divorce by his first wife Nancy — he had forgotten he married her. They parted in 1950 and he changed his name from Hurrel a year later. A doctor testified Hamilton lost his memory eight to 10 years ago. His plea against a bigamy charge was accepted.

SEPTIC TANK PUMPING

Gord's septic tank service would like to take this opportunity to remind all his many customers and friends that if you had your septic tank installed or cleaned more than 3 years ago it is time to have it cleaned again.

Here are just a few of the many reasons your septic system clogs.

Did You Know . . .

That grease and soap from your dishes are trapped in your septic tank to prevent pollution but this also is one of the biggest contributors in plugging your septic system.

Did You Know . . .

That soap and hair from your bath and shower stay with your septic system the longest and will surely plug it if left to long.

WITH ALL THIS PUNISHMENT

YOUR SEPTIC TANK SHOULD BE PUMPED AT LEAST EVERY 3 YEARS

Did You Know . . .

That sewage from your toilet; although it disolves into the soil over a period of time; will gather because of the quantity and should be cleaned out at 3 year intervals at least.

Did You Know . . .

That soap from your sink will contribute to the plugging of your septic system also.

WE ALSO RENT TOILETS FOR CONSTRUCTION & SPORTING EVENTS

GREETINGS TO ALL MY FRIENDS & CUSTOMERS

These happy holidays come but once a year with a flurry of fun and good cheer. It is our sincere hope that this will continue throughout the year!

Bermuda Triangle Claims Six in Reoccurence of December Hex

MIAMI (Reuter) — The Bermuda Triangle, a mysterious zone in which boats and planes have disappeared over the years, may have claimed six more victims.

The U.S. Coast Guard reported that six planes, two cutters and three smaller boats have been combing 39,000 square miles of ocean, mostly along the Bahamas chain, for a light plane and a cabin cruiser.

The Bermuda Triangle, the triangular area contained with Miami, Bermuda and Puerto Rico, has already claimed more than 120 victims.

The mysterious forces in the zone that baffle navigators and weathermen first received notice when, on Dec. 5, 1945, six U.S. Navy planes with 27 men flew out of Fort Lauderdale and vanished without trace.

An unusual number of disappearances have occurred in the weeks before Christmas.

In December, 1948, a DC-3 with 33 passengers disappeared in the area. A year later, a plane with 36 aboard vanished between Bermuda and Jamaica.

In December, 1957, a racing yawl carrying a publisher and his family vanished between Key West and Miami.

All no case was wreckage ever found and no emergency radio signals were sent out. Veteran aviators say there is a dead spot in the area where radio communication is virtually impossible.

One of the few messages received from a navigator on one of the navy planes that vanished in 1945 said merely: "We don't know our position . . . we don't know where we are."

Many theories have been advanced. Most blame freakish weather conditions.

Bill Verity, a Fort Lauderdale builder, was caught in the Bermuda Triangle just over a year ago while crossing the Atlantic in a 30-foot wooden boat.

He reported later that "I was peppered all the time by huge bolts of lightning."

"Never seen anything like it. You could smell the ozone as they hit the water, I was scared to death."

Concerts Are School Fun

It's a time for tradition and thankfulness, for turkey, for tinselled trees, for parties and pageantry.

In fact, Christmas anymore seems a time for almost everything, the peak consumption period of human energy for people big and small.

Not at least of its activities is the school concert — a Christmas event that's perhaps one of the season's oldest traditions.

It had its heritage once upon a long time ago, doubtless in the re-enactment of the Nativity story as part of medieval religious celebrations.

It's changed with the years, in content and surroundings.

One things remains unaltered — the enthusiasm of its young participants — as demonstrated at Holy Rosary school last night.

For the young players — in common with school children all over — such presentations are still an integral part of the color and excitement that makes up the happiest time of the year.

Maybe, in that respect, the local Christmas school concert proves things don't basically change that much.

Watch That Wing!

Michael Loudon, 9, receives helpful inspection of his angel's wings from 7-year-old Stephen Donovan, before venturing on stage at Holy Rosary school last night. Youngsters were among cast playing out one of season's oldest traditions — the Christmas pageant.

Counterfeit $10 Bills Circulating in Area

TRENTON (Staff) — One man, at least, made a round of pre-Christmas shopping here yesterday with a fist full of counterfeit banknotes.

During the morning and afternoon the bogus, $10 bills turned up at various businesses including Woolworth's, Zeller's, Canada Tire and the Royal Bank.

About 11 a.m. a man ordered the Dixie Lee fried chicken outlet and ordered a set-ser, paying for it with a phoney bill. "He must have been shaking" one police spokesman said, adding that the man's description fits those given by other recipients of the bogus cash.

Town police received nine of the notes yesterday and detective sergeant Sid Vickers said last night that he expects more of them will turn up in bank receipts today.

The counterfeit notes circumnumber B-E 3811078. Front plates of the bills are somewhat lighter than real ones, lasing here have the serial but back plates are near-perfect reproductions, Sgt. Vickers said.

New Challenge For Yacht Cup

LONDON (AP) — British yachtsmen have issued a new challenge to the United States for the America's Cup, the trophy Britain has been trying to win for 128 years.

The challenge was sent by the Royal Thames Yacht Club during the weekend to the New York Yacht Club, which holds the cup.

A spokesman for the British club said a syndicate had agreed to put up $850,000 to build a 12-metre yacht for a bid in 1973. He declined to give the members' names.

Can't Cancel Ali Bout Claims Texas Governor

AUSTIN, Tex (AP) — Governor Preston Smith says he has his "personal feelings" in the granting of a boxing licence to Muhammad Ali but that he is powerless to cancel it.

Smith replied Monday to a letter from R. B. Hester, commander of the Texas department of the American Legion. Hester asked Smith last week to do all he could to prevent Ali from fighting in Texas.

Smith said Ali, formerly known as Cassius Clay, was denied a boxing licence for a year under a law similar to a New York law that Ali successfully attacked in the courts.

The New York decision gave "no other choice under the law" Governor Smith, state commissioner of labor statistics, but to issue the licence.

Council Orders House To Be Razed at Once

Residents of the Great St. James Street area are hopefully to have a Christmas present that will help tidy up their street.

Some months ago a vacant house on the street was damaged by fire and with no move on the part of the absentee owner to clear up the mess the city directed it be razed.

But Ald. Robin Jeffrey at yesterday's council meeting said the old house was still there and asked how soon the city could step in and raze the structure.

Council was told that the necessary waiting period had elapsed and the city could now legally demolish the house. Council accordingly directed that a warrant be retained to demolish the structure with costs to be charged against the land.

But it seems the owner already has demolition under way.

A local fire department official said he passed the house a week or so ago and noted that it was then under demolition. Lumber and two-by-fours were piled outside and the house was slowly coming down.

Convention Bureau Endorsed

City council yesterday at its final meeting of the year gave approval in principle to establishing a convention bureau. Council earlier this year asked the Belleville Chamber of Commerce if it would be willing to investigate setting up such a bureau.

Purpose of the "convention bureau would be to advertise the facilities available for accommodation of conventions in the Belleville area.

The chamber proposal is that a survey be made of the hotel and motel operations to establish the degree of interest in supporting such a program and also an accurate assessment of present facilities available.

The survey would also determine the "potential of conventions held in Belleville and establish whether operators would be agreeable to having their facilities published in the solicitation of convention business.

City Council Approves Fire Pumper Purchase

City council yesterday approved tenders for the purchase of a new fire pumper. Total cost of the equipment will be $34,863.

The chassis for the new pumper will be purchased from Motorland Chrysler Plymouth Ltd., their price of $11,633 being the lowest of three tenders submitted.

The pumper equipment and other apparatus, will be purchased from King Seagrave Ltd. at a cost of $23,810. The King Seagrave tender was the highest of four tenders received.

City fire chief Leo Culhane said that the King Seagrave pumper equipment tender was the only one which met required specifications.

"The King Seagrave equipment is 100 per cent," the chief told council. "It is the only one which met all specifications."

Leadership 'Gets Things Done'

Western Observers Predict More Pragmatic Polish Regime

WARSAW (CP) — Western observers in Warsaw expect Edward Gierek's new Polish regime to be more pragmatic than that of Wladyslaw Gomulka and his decision making to be less of a one-man operation.

The new leadership is composed of "people who get things done," said one Western source, "although the leadership will probably be more collective until Gierek finds his feet. Gomulka was patriarchal. He didn't like to consult anybody and would make his decisions alone."

Gierek replaced Gomulka Sunday as first secretary of the Communist party and five new members were named to the 13-man politburo, replacing Gomulka and four others purged with him.

Although Gierek promised an overhaul of the economy and revision of the new five-year plan, Warsaw radio said Monday there will be no retreat from the 17-to-28-per-cent price increases which last week set off the riots that brought Gomulka down.

"We must be aware of the fact that there is no possibility to return to the previous anomalous state of the price system," the government radio said. It added that the new regime will carry out central committee orders to alleviate the economic problems of poor families with several children, and this heightened expectations of wage increases to offset the price rises.

Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, sent congratulations to Gierek and expressed the hope that the Polish party "will successfully overcome the difficulties which recently occurred." The message praised the new first secretary as a "sincere friend of the Soviet Union."

Westerners speculated that Brezhnev or one of his Kremlin subordinates engineered the changes during a weekend trip to Warsaw. One diplomat said: "It's highly likely in view of what happened."

The other Communist giant, China, said the events in Poland show that Russian rule in Eastern Europe has "fallen into a crisis." The official Peking People's Daily congratulated the Polish workers for rioting and warned that the struggle against "revisionism" in Poland is not ended. The paper said Gierek is a member of Gomulka's "revisionist ruling clique."

The Communist party organization in Gdansk ordered an official investigation into bloody street clashes there last week which set off a wave of disorders along the Baltic coast.

The Gdansk Voivodship (provincial) party committee ordered a fundamental analysis of the causes and circumstances of two days of battles between striking shipyard workers and militiamen.

It also called for a study of similar disturbances in the neighboring port of Gdynia and in Elblag, an important manufacturing town 38 miles inland, which tested until Friday, the officials news agency PAP reported.

A Radio Warsaw report said four of every five workers in two shipyards in Gdansk and Gdynia were back at their jobs Monday. Observers said this report was the first outward sign of workers satisfaction at the appointment of Gierek.

Although Gdansk and Gdynia were reported returning to normal, there was no word of any easing of tension in Szczecin, another riot-torn Baltic port at the mouth of the Oder River near the East German border.

Violence in Szczecin Thursday was believed to have been bloodier than in Gdansk and Gdynia, with reports reaching Warsaw that tanks were used against demonstrators hurling gas bombs.

NY Times Says Purge Hits Intellectuals

NEW YORK (AP) — A vast purge that has deprived Czechoslovakia of the services of many of its leading scientists, academicians, journalists, government functionaries and other intellectuals is under way throughout the country, the New York Times reports.

Basing its account on information from Prague, The Times says the widespread dismissals from their positions of intellectuals not deemed "reliable" had demoralized the country.

The account says some intellectuals have been unable to find work. Some are digging a subway in Prague. Others have been forced to rely on their wives to take sweeping jobs in factories. Alexander Dubcek, ousted Communist party leader, is said to be waiting for a job as a forester.

Universities have been stripped of many of their leading faculty members; the press, radio and television have lost many of their top journalists; the upper levels of government have lost civil servants.

Even Communist party membership has fallen to 890,000 from 1.6 million, the story says. A mood of despair has settled over the country, the account adds, with Gustav Husak, the current Communist leader, pressing the purge to meet the demands of the Soviet Union.

The purge has added to the drain on talent experienced by Czechoslovakia after the Russian invasion in 1968, which sent many Czechoslovaks into exile.

President Launches Campaign to Curb Junior A Violence

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz, president of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, is on a one-man mission to reform some of the more-unruly characters in his league.

Schmalz, a Walkerton, Ont., taskmaster, is trying his powers of peaceful persuasion on four players, each of whom has acquired four misconduct penalties this season, in an effort to get them to mend their ways.

The others due for a presidential interview are Jim Schoenfeld of Hamilton Red Wings, Doug Hutchinson of London Knights and Steve Durbano of Toronto Marlboros.

At Monday's meeting of the OHA Junior Council, coach Roger Neilson of Peterborough Petes tried to convince Schmalz that actions should speak louder than words as "he" ex-Durbano was concerned.

The coach noted that Durbano drove his fifth misconduct and a game misconduct in Sunday's Toronto-Peterborough game.

The sentences came on top of three major penalties to Durbano for offences that left two Peterborough players on the injured list.

Neilson said Ken Richardson was nursing a bruised shoulder and neck as a result of Durbano cross-check, and Craig Ramsay would have his ankle in a cast for two weeks as a result of being clubbed by the Toronto defenceman.

Schmalz said he has not yet received the referee's report of the game but would consider it before he meets with Durbano.

Meanwhile, he plans to catch both Schoenfeld and Hutchinson next Sunday when the Knights and Red Wings meet in Hamilton.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Baltimore, Oakland, Detroit and Minnesota are favored to win this weekend's National Football League playoff games, Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder says.

Baltimore is a six-point choice over Cincinnati in their American Conference semi-final Saturday while Detroit is picked by three points over Dallas in a National Conference semi-final.

Oakland gets the nod by seven points Sunday over Miami in the other AFC semi while Minnesota is seven points over San Francisco in the other NFC semi-final.

MONTREAL (CP) — Left-hander Dan McGinn has signed a 1971 contract with Montreal Expos of baseball's National League, general manager Jim Fanning announced Monday. McGinn, 26, who worked both as a starting pitcher and as a reliever last season, is the second member of the club to come to terms. Right fielder Rusty Staub signed his contract several weeks ago.

Hawley has ridden 454 winners this year, most of them on Canadian tracks, and came to Florida two weeks ago with a chance at Willie Shoemaker's record of 485, set in 1953. He started off with a winner Dec. 7, then rode 35 consecutive losers before booting home two more last Friday.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Prize money at next year's All-England tennis tournament will be boosted to $120,000, an increase of $19,200, the All-England Club announced today. But David Mills, secretary of the All-English Club, said no financial guarantee has yet been made to the professionals of the World Championship Tennis group.

Esposito a Traditional Bruin

MONTREAL (CP) — Phil Esposito and the Boston Bruins traditions are moving hand in hand.

Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading scorer, is averaging exactly two points a game after 32 games this season.

No player in NHL history has recorded that high an average this late in a season, and the ones closest to that mark in the past were all Boston players.

When Esposito, the Bruins' lanky centre, set the current record of 126 points in 1968-69, he averaged 1.79 points a game. In 1943-44, Herbie Cain of Boston won the scoring title with 82 points in 48 games, an average of 1.70.

Cooney Weiland, another Bruin, was the titlist in 1929-30 with 73 points in 43 contests, for an average of 1.56 points a game.

Esposito's total now is 36 goals and 36 assists for 64 points. He leads team-mate and all-star defenceman Bobby Orr by 14 points. Orr leads the league in assists with 38.

Another Bruin, right winger Ken Hodge, is third in the scoring race with 44 points, three more than another Boston right winger, John McKenzie.

Never in NHL history has a team had four players at the top of the scoring list, and the way the Bruins are scoring goals, they could be the first club to accomplish that feat.

Last week the Bruins stretched their winning streak to eight games, the longest by a Boston team since the 1938-39 season when that club won the last eight games of the regular schedule.

The Boston club record, which is also an NHL record, is 14 games, set from Dec. 3 through Jan. 8, 1929-30. Later that same season the Bruins won 11 straight.

While the Bruins, with 147 goals in 32 games, are almost half-way to their record 303 goals set in 1929-30, they are having difficulty opening a big lead over second-place New York Rangers in the East Division race.

The Bruins have 49 points, two more than the Rangers.

There are six Bruins among the leaders, the other being Wayne Cashman, who has 34 points.

Esposito, Hodge and Cashman are the league's top scoring line with 143 points and 87 goals. McKenzie, Bucyk and centre Fred Stanfield are the second-highest trio with 108 points and 61 goals.

Vikings Dispel Doubts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the National Football League season opened last September, there was some suspicion that the Purple People were ready to be eaten.

Minnesota Vikings, 22-7 victims of Kansas City Chiefs in the preceding Super Bowl game, had to meet them again without Joe Kapp at quarterback and with Carl Eller, their all-pro defensive end, out of eight other reporting late to training camp.

The morning of the game, coach Bud Grant showed the Vikings the film of the Super Bowl rout, just to refresh their memory. In the afternoon, Minnesota thrashed the Chiefs 27-16.

That started the ale-chib off to its second consecutive 13-2 season, the best in the NFL, and a ticket to a home date with San Francisco 49ers Sunday in the first round of the playoffs.

Dallas Cowboys entertain Detroit Lions Saturday in the other National Conference semi-final. In the American Conference, Cincinnati Bengals visit Baltimore Colts Saturday and Miami Dolphins tackle the Raiders at Oakland Sunday.

"When we started off the season beating the Chiefs it put us off to a good start," said Minnesota centre Mick Tingelhoff.

"We just went to work from there on."

The Viking defence held the opposition to an NFL low of 143 points, intercepting 28 passes along the way and the offence started its critics by scoring 335 points, the third-highest in the league. Place-kicker Fred Cox accounted for 125 of them, a league scoring record.

Kapp, who came to the Vikings after a contract dispute with British Columbia Lions of the Canadian League, left them under similar circumstances and suffered with the lowly Boston Patriots while Gary Cuozzo took over as No. 1 quarterback at Minnesota.

The 49ers, who had to go down to the wire to edge Los Angeles Rams for the West Division title were too happy about gaining their first playoff berth in history to worry about the frigid midwestern weather. They played the Vikings in a snowstorm a year ago and lost 10-7.

"We'll just forget about the weather and play ball," said coach Dick Nolan, whose club compiled a 10-3-1 record.

Like Kansas City, which failed to make the playoffs, the Cowboys have reason to be wary of an opponent intent on retribution.

The last time Detroit quarterback Greg Landry came to Dallas he was starting his first NFL game and the Lions were trampled 59-13.

That was in 1968 and the Cowboys have no illusions that things will be the same Saturday.

"He has that experience now and can recognize defences," said Jerry Tubb, their linebacker coach. "He knows what to do when his receiver is covered. He's the best running quarterback in the league."

Both clubs have 10-4 records. Dallas finished with five consecutive victories for the East Division title while Detroit made the playoffs as the runner-up with the best won-lost mark.

Aces Here Tonight

Kingston Rivalry More Than Meets Eye

Belleville - Kingston senior hockey meetings have more often an Eastern Ontario rivalry behind their high-spirited nature.

The OHA Senior A league's only test-of-Trenton entries meet each other ten times, comprising a quarter of each team's 40-game schedule. Not getting a fair share of those 20 points could make or break playoff chances.

As the Aces come to town for tonight's 8:45 Memorial Arena game, the Mo-Hawks enjoy an unusually successful year against their arch rivals.

In four meetings to date, the Mo-Hawks have recorded three wins, including two in Kingston ice.

The only Kingston success came two weeks ago tonight when they tripped a slumping Belleville lineup 3-2 on their own ice.

Last Tuesday the Mo-Hawks avenged that loss by whitewashing the Aces 5-0 in Kingston in their most impressive showing of two-way hockey in several seasons.

Tonight's game pits two teams on the move in senior hockey circles.

After a dismal start, the Aces won six in a row. A pair of wins last weekend over Orillia knocked the Terriers out of first place and kept the Aces in fourth, three points up on Belleville.

Meanwhile the Mo-Hawks haven't been letting any grass grow under their glades, scrounging from a five-out-of-six losing slump to win three of their last four outings.

A win tonight would put the locals only one point behind the Aces and increase their margin over sixth-place Oakville to five.

After tonight the Mo Hawks see their next action next Sunday in a road trip to Woodstock.

Armed Forces Cut Continues

OTTAWA (CP) — A 16,000-man reduction in the strength of the armed forces is proceeding on schedule despite a decision by Defence Minister Donald Macdonald to re-examine manpower levels.

Col. David Carr, director of personnel requirements at defence headquarters, says the program is "right on target" and by exactly the 85,000-man level will be reached April 1, 1973, as planned.

The retrenchment period officially dates from April 1, 1969, when service strength was 98,000. Present strength is about 90,000.

Former defence minister Leo Cadieux ordered the big reduction but years ago also ordered his department to live within its means. The decision followed a government directive. Trimming the department's budget for four years at the existing level of $1.8 billion.

Following the outbreak of the kidnap crisis in Quebec in October, Mr. Macdonald announced that he and his officials were taking a new look at manpower.

The emergency, which involved large numbers of troops in guard duty at Montreal, Quebec City and Ottawa—an operation still going on—posed questions about proceeding with the forces reduction.

Doubts were expressed that the planned new force structure would be adequate to meet Canada's commitments abroad and at the same time provide backup for the police in cases of civil disorder.

The review is continuing. Indications are that the original plan will remain substantially unchanged, with possibly some increase in the strength of the fighting arm — 1 n f a n t r y, armor and artillery.

By next April, under present estimates, the forces will be down to 88,000 and by April 1, 1973, to 85,500. The figures in all cases include about 1,200 men on retirement leave.

OPEN TONIGHT & TOMORROW NIGHT 'TIL 9 — CLOSED CHRISTMAS EVE.

Cabinet Puts on Burst of Activity Before Four-day Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet has gone into a pre-holiday burst of activity.

The cabinet itself or most of its committees will be meeting until Christmas Eve to tidy up a lot of routine work so that ministers as well as the public service can enjoy a four-day week—Friday to Monday inclusive.

Prime Minister Trudeau is having an extra load of work possible to limit because he will be leaving Jan. 7 for a 24-day Far Eastern tour taking in six countries.

He plans to go to Montreal Thursday to spend Christmas with his family.

The regular Thursday cabinet meeting has been moved to Wednesday. Cabinet committees met Monday and will meet again today.

Meanwhile, in a burst of Christmas goodwill, Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, had a lot of nice things to say about the opposition.

In an interview, he praised the co-operation received from the Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes so that the government could get through all stages of two major bills Friday.

One was the old-age pension bill and the other legislation to widen areas entitled to receive industrial incentive grants. Both became law after Senate passage and royal assent Friday night.

"For its part, the government temporarily held off a CNR financing bill which the NDP is using to try to force the railway to grant bigger pensions to retired employees and Mr. Trudeau's government reorganization bill creating an environment department and ministries of state, including one for housing and another for science.

Mr. Trudeau had hoped to get his bill through at least preliminary stages before leaving for the Far East.

This row will not be possible. The Commons reconvenes Jan. 19 and the prime minister may ask a cabinet colleague to pilot the bill.

Mr. MacEachen said the Commons made up all the time lost by the three-weeks debate on the public order bill, now law.

Such unexpected bills can throw out an entire timetable for a parliamentary session.

McIlraith Resignation Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith is soon expected to resign from the cabinet, sources said Monday. It is believed he will be appointed to the Senate.

Mr. McIlraith, who entered the Commons in 1946, has recently undergone two eye operations, and friends say that resuming his become a slow and difficult process for him. He is 61.

Sources say that no definite date has been selected for his announcement but that it likely will come sometime during the Christmas parliamentary recess.

Mr. McIlraith, M.P. for Ottawa Centre, became minister of transport in 1963 and subsequently served as Privy Council president, government House leader and minister of public works before becoming solicitor-general in the Trudeau government.

Foreign Investment Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $138 million in foreign investment in Canadian industry came into Canada in the third quarter of this year, bringing the total for the first nine months of 1969 to $985 million.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reporting Monday on the country's balance of international payments, said that about half the inflow of funds for direct long-term investment came from the United States.

About 35 per cent came from continental Europe, and most of the remainder from the United Kingdom.

If the flow of investment money into Canada in the last three months of 1970 holds to about the same level as the previous two years, total foreign investment for the year is likely to amount to about $3 billion.

This would be down slightly from last year's $855 million, but higher than $580 million in 1968.

DBS said that in the latest three-month period, as in the previous quarter of the year, most of the foreign investment went into Canadian petroleum and manufacturing plants.

No accurate figure can be put on the total worth of foreign investment in Canada, since it is an accumulation of many years of investment and carried on the books of parent organizations in accounting terms at "book value," far below actual value in most cases.

The foreign investment in Canadian branch plants, affiliates and subsidiaries was part of a total inflow of $153 million in long-term funds, net of any Canadian investment abroad. There was a net outflow of $255 million in short-term funds as Canadians built up foreign deposits abroad.

Canada had a remarkable $731 million surplus in commodity trade with other countries in July, August, and September, bringing the nine-months total for the year to a record $2,037 million, compared with $827 million for the whole of 1968, and $1,375 million for the whole of 1968.

This resulted from only moderate growth of imports set against a phenomenal expansion of Canadian exports, mainly to Europe, Japan, and countries which have not figured large Canadian exports in the past.

Set against this commodity trade surplus, Canada had its usual deficit on non-merchandise transactions, including travel and tourism, insurance, freight service and other such payments.

This deficit ran to $383 million in the third quarter of 1970 and $1,578—million in nine months. The comparable deficit for all 1969 was $1,671 million, and for 1968 it was $1,482 million.

Canada was thus left with a current account surplus in its balance of international payments amounting to $468 million in the third quarter of 1970, bringing the year's total to $755 million. This is a massive shift from a deficit of $731 million last year and a modest loss of $187 million in 1968.

Canada Not Convinced Arms Sales Necessary

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has examined data on the Soviet naval buildup in the Indian Ocean and concluded it does not justify the risk to Commonwealth unity involved in any British decision to sell arms to South Africa.

That, say authoritative sources, is a fair inference to be drawn from continuing differences between Prime Minister Trudeau and British Prime Minister Edward Heath on the arms issue.

Before his meeting with Mr. Heath here last week, Mr. Trudeau was given an intelligence appraisal of the Indian Ocean situation prepared in the Canadian defence department.

Mr. Heath's government has cited the Soviet naval threat in the ocean and on the Cape of Good Hope shipping route around the tip of South Africa as a valid reason for lifting Britain's six-year-old embargo on arms shipments to the white-supremacist republic.

It has not yet taken a final decision, however.

In a lengthy discussion the British leader and Mr. Trudeau failed to resolve their differences. Some sources said they didn't even "dent" them.

Canadian officials refuse even to hint at what was in the intelligence report. But it is believed in line with published accounts, which tell of a Soviet force of eight to 14 fighting and support ships, and growing.

The British government itself has spoken of a Soviet Indian Ocean fleet consisting of a cruiser, two destroyers, two submarines and associated vessels. At least one of the warships is believed to carry guided missiles.

The fleet is assumed to be augmented by Soviet fishing trawlers with intelligence-gathering equipment.

Britain sees the Soviet presence as a direct threat to its lifeline to the Persian Gulf and the Far East. As Mr. Heath told his Ottawa press conference, the Cape route around the tip of South Africa handles more than one-quarter by value of all Britain's seaborne trade, and a large part of this volume is oil.

The British see the buildup as part of a worldwide maritime surge by the Soviet Union, challenging Western domination in many areas, most notably the Mediterranean.

Mr. Heath maintains that South Africa's co-operation is necessary to help counter the threat on the Cape route. He says Britain has an obligation to supply South Africa with naval armaments under the 1955 agreement permitting Britain to use the base at Simonstown, South Africa.

Canadian officials concede that a big point of difference between Ottawa and London may be founded in distance. The Canadian government might view the situation differently if it sat where Mr. Heath and his ministers sit.

But the view here is that Britain's so-called "obligation" under the Simonstown agreement to sell South Africa arms is strictly inferential. The original agreement, as published, made no such provision beyond a commitment by South Africa to expand its navy over a eight-year period between 1955 and 1963 and to buy the requisite frigates, minesweepers and seaward defence boats from Britain.

The Heath government's position is best summed up in a House of Commons statement last July which noted that "two years previously the Labor government re-negotiated the Simonstown agreement to transfer major responsibility for security in the South Atlantic region from Britain to South Africa.

Then, said the statement, that government refused to allow South Africa to buy the equipment it needed to carry out its added responsibilities. Mr. Heath's Conservative regime now proposes to correct this policy.

Canada's approach has been to keep pushing with British leaders the question of whether fulfilment of the Simonstown design is worth endangering the future of the Commonwealth, since some non-white members say they may pull out if Britain goes through with the arms plan.

Would Free Prisoners

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — The Brazilian government announced Monday night that it is ready to free 81 of the 70 political prisoners demanded by the abductors of Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Bucher in exchange for his release.

It gave various reasons why the other 19 could not be freed. Some were serving life sentences, some were out in prison at all and one did not want to go, a government statement said.

There was no word today on whether the kidnappers would accept the government's offer.

The kidnappers have said that Bucher, seized in downtown Rio Dec. 7, will be set free after the prisoners on their list have been flown to Chile, Algeria or Mexico and their safe arrival has been reported by international news agencies.

Observers noted that the kidnappers put the highest value on some of the prisoners who, mainly because of the lengthy sentences they are serving, the government has refused to release.

The government said one man and three women on the kidnappers' list were not in prison, while another could not be identified because he was listed only under an alias.

Among the others excluded were prisoners serving sentences for kidnapping and murder and those serving long terms ranging up to life imprisonment.

May we drive home a point?

Winter driving, especially at holiday time, can be tricky. You keep your car in shape. You check your battery, tires, headlights and seat belts.

But how about yourself?

If toasting the holidays is part of the way you celebrate, enjoy your celebration, but enjoy it wisely. It's a good idea not to overeat. And the same goes for drinking.

At The House of Seagram, we've been driving home that point since our first Moderation message in 1934.

Coast Guardsmen Retire To Avoid Court Martial

But the officers, Rear Admiral William Ellis, 58, and Capt. Fletcher Brown, 50, face a congressional committee next Tuesday in the case of would-be defector Simas J. Kudirka.

Russian seamen forcibly pulled Kudirka aboard their ad jacent vessel after he jumped to the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant in U.S. territorial waters off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., last month.

Representative Wayne L. Hays called outrageous a decision Monday by Transportation Secretary John Volpe to let the officers retire and thus evade court martial proceedings.

The Ohio Democrat said he wants Ellis and Brown to appear before his House of Representatives foreign operations subcommittee to "find out what makes them think like this." Brown was the commander of the 1st Coast Guard District in Boston and Ellis, the commander, was on sick leave when Kudirka attempted defection.

A report of a formal coast guard investigation sharply criticizes the two officers and also declares the state department "did not furnish adequate, helpful or timely advice to deal properly with this defection."

Admiral C. R. Bender, the coast guard commandant, issued findings based on the report that called for court martial proceedings and the resignation.

But Bender said he would drop the charges if the pair retired immediately.

Volpe noted the officers submitted retirement requests, told Bender not to press charges and agreed with Bender they should receive punitive letters of reprimand.

Brown and Ellis now "appreciate fully their serious error of judgment..." have been subjected to extreme castigation from many quarters in this nation," and, with their families, have suffered, Volpe said.

Volpe said he regretted "very deeply that a young man had to lose his chance for freedom in order to bring to light deficiencies in government procedures for welcoming victims of oppression to American soil." He added that new procedures would prevent the incident of Nov. 23 from happening again.

A spokesman for the transportation department, which runs the coast guard, said the careers of Ellis and Brown will end by Jan. 31.

Volpe kept with Bender's finding that Pendo Pendo Eustis, the commander of the Vigilant, should get an administrative letter of reprimand and be reassigned.

Eustis was being made the goat in this whole thing," Hays said. "His career is shot. And they're letting the other two retire with pensions."

The coast guard's report on the incident and Bender's conclusions state, in part:

Kudirka clearly indicated three times the Vigilant officers he wanted to defect.

—The state department told the coast guard that in rushing to notice the defector and "until the man was actually on board the Vigilant, and a representative would offer no advice, but that once the man was on board, state department should be notified."

—Eustis erred in allowing Russian crew members "to exercise any control of the defector while on board the Vigilant," Bender said.

—The master of the Soviet vessel, the Sovietskaya Litva, told Eustis that Kudirka stole 3,000 rubles before he defected. In a wild melee to avoid capture, Kudirka appeared to jump overboard from the Vigilant. When the Russians finally captured him, "one Soviet repeatedly struck Kudirka's head against the steel rail of the ladder" of the Vigilant. Coast guardsmen intervened to stop the beating.

Communists Are Blamed For Spanish Problems

MADRID (AP) — Vice-President Luis Carrero Blanco blamed the Communists Monday night for current anti-government activity in Spain and said the armed forces would be strengthened to combat it.

Carrero Blanco told the Cortes, Spain's parliament, that Basque terrorist organization ETA uses "the apparent political affiliation of Basque separatism to cover the reality of its true function—terrorism in the service of communism."

He said the Spanish economy now is strong enough to permit reorganization and reinforcement of the armed forces, and that the chiefs of staff of the army, the air force and the navy are studying plans to perfect their armament and training. He did not elaborate.

The vice-president's speech was part of a government campaign to deal with the crisis resulting from the trial in the northern city of Burgos of 16 Basque separatists charged with terrorism and murder. The prosecution has asked the death penalty for six of the defendants accused of killing a political police chief and prison terms totalling 724 years for all 16.

In hopes that the holiday season will take the steam out of the protests, the military court is delaying its verdict until after Christmas.

Demonstrations on behalf of the defendants have broken out in Madrid and other cities, and the government decreed an emergency measure last week permitting detention of persons for up to six months without charges being filed.

In addition to hundreds of persons arrested under the decree, police announced the arrest Monday night of 45 young people on charges of belonging to the outlawed Communist party or working for it. Spokesmen said 34 were seized in the southern city of Seville and that 21 non-agents were arrested at El Ferrol de Caudillo, the northwestern city in which Generalissimo Francisco Franco was born.

The government also has organized several mass meetings supporting it in an attempt to counter the effect of the demonstrations supporting the Basque defendants.

Carrero Blanco, a 67-year old admiral who is expected to become head of the government when Franco limits his own activities to those of chief of state, suggested that both Soviet and Chinese Communist influences were behind the Basque separatist movement and the wave of unrest that has swept Spain.

Court Approves 18-year-old Vote

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Supreme Court has approved the lowering of the voting age to 18 from 21 in all U.S. national elections.

But it said Monday that Congress had no legal right to order states to reduce the voting age for their elections.

The court was ruling on the 1970 Federal voting Rights Law.

It also said that literacy tests required in connection with elections must be suspended for five years.

The law had lowered the voting age to 18 for all elections — national, state and local — beginning Jan. 1.

Oregon and Texas had sued in the court against enforcement of the 18-year-old provision. Arizona had fought the literacy test ban.

The states maintain the law takes away from them powers reserved to the states by the constitution to control their own elections.

The law lowered the voting age to 18 from 21 in 48 states and the District of Columbia and to 19 from 20 in Hawaii. Georgia, Kentucky and Alaska had already permitted 18-year-olds to vote.

The Nixon administration estimated about 10 million voters would be added to the electorate under the law.

The literacy test suspension covered 12 states and part of a 10th, North Carolina. The government estimated more than 1.9 million people in those states have been unable to qualify to vote because of their illiteracy.

Gambling Graduates Clean Up at Track

The York University professor has conducted an evening course on gambling for the last four months. When he took 39 of his 12 students to the racetrack on a field trip recently, all who placed bets won money. One man made $240, the professor won more than $200 himself and total winnings were more than $700.

"I think this course has made us really realize the importance of self-discipline in successful gambling," one student, who plays blackjack exclusively, said at the course ended last week.

The students were all men, the majority middle-aged.

Political Groups Move To Grab Young Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youth-oriented political groups moved quickly today to grab a share of the potential 11 million new voters in the United States enfranchised by the Supreme Court decision allowing 18-year-olds to vote for president and congressmen.

The Young Republican national chairman, Ron Romans, said his organization has a national registration program on paper and a pilot program under way in two states to computerize the names of the 18 to 21 year-olds for a sign-up drive.

The National Young Democrats said it was joining with other youth groups in a campaign "to register those millions whose vote can bring about social change, re-ordering of national priorities and increased support for their point of view."

State elections officials complained, meanwhile, that Monday's action will result in expense and confusion because the court refused to lower the voting age to 18 in state and local elections.

"This will be administratively difficult and will result in considerable cost to the taxpayers," said Attorney-General Lee Johnson of Oregon who had argued before the court against lowering the voting age.

Shortly after the court's 5-to-4 decision on federal elections was announced, Senator Edward M. Kennedy, a potential Democratic presidential candidate in 1972, said he will move quickly for Senate approval of a constitutional amendment applying it to state and local elections.

"Once the law goes into effect for federal elections, it is extremely likely that the states will lower the voting age to 18 for state elections," the Massachusetts Democrat said. But, he added, he would introduce an amendment to "speed up this result."

Provisions of the 1970 Federal Voting Rights Act upheld by the court action, take effect Jan. 1.

Many state officials said the court's decision will require separate registration lists for voters under age 21 and over the age of 21. Some foresaw the expensive possibility of two sets of voting machines or paper ballots.

Some state officials said they will ask their legislatures for a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 for all elections.

Georgia, Kentucky and Alaska already have the 18-year-old vote provision, and Hawaii allows 20-year-olds to vote.

This year, Nebraska and Maine voters approved amendments lowering the voting age to 20. Minnesota and Massachusetts lowered the eligible age to 19.

Bills Jammed in Senate

The danger, replied assistant Washington Post, involved something more than just "looking" foolish.

The exchange went to the heart of the undignified scramble that has reached near-scandal proportions in the dying days of the 91st congress.

On Capitol Hill, the House of Representatives is creaking along in low gear while the Senate engages in a series of maneuvers that have even involved a sort of filibuster of a filibuster.

President Nixon, fuming in the White House over the delay of a series of vital legislative programs, has threatened to call the so-called "lame duck" Congress back into session a day or two after Christmas to handle the log-jam of bills.

But there is little confusion, in the view of most observers, that Congress then will be more businesslike than it has been in the unusual session called following the congressional elections Nov. 3.

It is considered doubtful, for instance, that members who either did not run in the elections or were defeated then, would have much appetite for the trip back to Washington for yet another extraordinary session.

Part of the cause of the pileup of business is that Congress adjourned Oct. 14 to give members time to campaign. The post-election session was the first in about 20 years.

Whatever happens, the present Congress—by law—cannot meet beyond noon Jan. 3. The new 92nd Congress was scheduled to be seated as usual in mid-January, but Nixon has threatened to call it on the earlier legal date—Jan. 3.

Among those stranded in the present situation are bills providing money for Cambodia, the supersonic transport plane, the big trade bill and a broad social welfare bill.

If no action is taken, the bills will die with the 91st Congress and the new Congress will have to start work on them from scratch.

Because of the Senate rule allowing unlimited debate, which can be shut off only by two-thirds vote, the less time there is left the easier it is for one senator or a handful to hold the floor and block final action on measures.

But even in such a desperate situation as the current one, the Senate rarely changes its rules because the right to filibuster is designed to protect the minority against a tyrannical majority.

With each of the 50 states having two senators, this is a body of 99 ostensibly independent-minded men—and one woman Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine—who are not easily moved to over-all cooperation.

We are disturbed at the image the Senate is showing to the American people," Mansfield said last week, "but we are more disturbed at the image this body is showing to ourselves.

"We must end this charade."

Despite the apparent disorder, observers feel it is unlikely that firm criticism of the SST, for instance, or those who charge aid to Cambodia will imply endorsement of Nixon war policies will back down just for the appearance of things.

More likely, perhaps, is that in the new Congress ideas will again be put forward for revising the workings of the Congress that has again proved it cannot—or will not—handle the work load in the time alloted.

Reruns While Ratings Rest

NEW YORK (AP) — Yep, fa-vorite television programs from Gomerside and Laugh-In Monday night through Family Affair and Ironside on Christmas Eve, should seem familiar.

The television networks are in a seven-day period of carnage more than a score are scheduled. The obvious explanation is that many viewers are too busy trimming trees, wrapping gifts or doing last-minute shopping to pay much attention to television.

The truth is there is no authoritative count of audiences this week. Since the A. C. Nielsen research organization skips its annual sampling of viewing habits.

Variety shows cost $150,000 to $250,000 a show and a half-hour comedy-drama can run $200,000 a tab of more than $300,000, so it seems a logical time to slip in an economical rerun. After all, a lot of people really are ickies-mixing trees, wrapping gifts and making last-minute purchases.

Ironside reached back to 1967 for its rerun. Laugh-In retrieved an hour from the days when Goldie Hawn and Jo Anne Worley—sorely missed this season—were among the merry mindless.

Red Skelton, now an NBC star, tried to crowd a Christmas theme's lot of sentiment and some Freddie the Freeloader comedy into a half-hour. It didn't work.

Here's Lucy used its time not for the dreariest show of Lucille Ball's season. Lucy tried unsatisfactorily to pull together an unfunny story about counterfeiters and missing mink coat.

The Doris Day Show, along hour, had a pleasant show that built logically to a point where the cast regulars could gather around for some Christmas songs at a party. Billy de Wolfe was funny as a Scrooge-type neighbor.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — The euchre party sponsored by the Women's Institute on Friday evening was well attended with eight tables in play. Winners were Mr. and Mrs. Art Robinson, Mrs. William Hogaboom and Harold Yakley. Harry Dolair won the door prize. Lunch was served by the W.I. members.

Unit one of the United Church Women held the December meeting at the home of Mrs. William Cassidy with Mrs. Harry Love unit leader conducting the meeting. The program was on the theme of Christmas and unit members taking part. Unit two held a meeting on Tuesday evening with a potluck supper followed by a social evening.

The annual Sunday School party was held in the Union Church here on Sunday evening. The evening was spent in the singing of carols and readings were given. Gifts were given to all the Sunday School children.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was mixed to fractionally lower in light and moderately trading today.

On index, industrials were down .31 to 172.63, golds 1.18 to 168.42 and base metals .20 to 68.47. Western oils rose .17 to 192.31.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 423,000 shares, down 242,600 at the same time Monday.

Losers outnumbered gains 98 to 77 with 161 issues unchanged.

Weakest sectors were beverages and pipelines.

The decline interrupted three consecutive gaining sessions.

Among declining issues, Falconbridge was down 1¼ to $13¾, Moore ¼ to $34¼, Walker-Goederham ½ to $40¾, Patino ¼ to $20¼, Lake Dufault ¼ to $12, Canadian Superior Oil ¼ to $36¾ and Canadian Export Gas 39 cents to $3.80.

Thomson Newspapers rose ¼ to $30¾, Dow Yellow ¼ to $39¾, Union Gas ¼ to $24, Seagram ¼ to $39¼, Investors Group ¼ to $74, Banff ¼ to $13 and Syncrude 10 cents to $3.60.

On index, industrials rose .88 to 172.04 and base metals .25 to 68.67. Golds were down .13 to 167.52 and western oils .56 to 192.14.

Volume was 1.44 million shares, lightest since Nov. 3 and down from 1.64 million Friday.

Losers edged out gains 227 to 221 with 259 issues unchanged.

It was the third successive advancing session.

Strongest sectors were beverages, general manufacturing, industrial mining and merchandising.

Eleven of the exchange's 17 sub-groups moved higher.

Gulf Oil was up ¼ to $20. The company said it has increased its wholesale gasoline prices by $-10 of a cent a gallon and diesel and home heating fuel by one cent a gallon in Ontario west of the Ottawa Valley.

Among other gaining issues, Falconbridge was up 1¼ to $13¾, TransCanada Pipelines 1¼ to $34¾, Texaco 1 to $29¼, Inco ¾ to $40¾ and Bell ¼ to $46.

Alberta Gas Trunk was down ¼ to 24¾. Dom Investments fell to 10. Consolidated Bathurst ¾ to $20, Home A ¼ to $28, Dome Petroleum 25 cents to $5.80, Hudson Bay Mining ¼ to $29¾ and Banff ¼ to $12¾.

DUMMY BRIDE

ALDERSHOT, England (CP) — Policeman Jerry Spicklove saw a man and a bride-like figure embracing on a street corner here and decided to investigate. He found that the male partner had made off with a dummy bride from a shop window. "It was Saturday night," explained the culprit to a court which fined him for his adventure. "I got a bit fabricated," he added.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"

Doctors Dodge Direct Queries

If you ask your doctor for a direct answer about a condition, chances are his will equivocate. For example, if you inquire, "Will my husband get well?" the likely reply is, "We hope so." Or, if you want to know, "Is the operation serious?" he will reply, "No, but —"

There is a good reason for this apparent tendency to dodge his direct question: medicine is not an exact science. The doctor can't add it all up and say Yes or No without making reservations.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband was the sickest man you ever saw. Our doctor seemed concerned that he might not pull through. When I asked him to tell me the truth about his chances, he said, "He's quite sick. But you never can tell." He did recover who didn't seem to have a chance.

Well, he was right. My husband is back at work and looking and feeling better than he ever did. — Mrs. D.

Comment: It's trite but I still put much stock in the frayed old saying: "Where there's life there's hope." In my own experience I recall evidence of many hopeless patients who were one small step from extinction, yet recovered.

Of course, there were others who seemed a good bet to make it safely, who didn't. Nevertheless, there are many who recover in spite of the odds being against them.

Some years ago, on my medical service at McCook Memorial Hospital, Hartford, Conn., we treated four patients with pneumonia who were over the age of 80. Just about a week earlier, I had been given a supply of sulfa drug to use on patients before the drug was officially released. I was in study its action and send in a report of its effects and results.

Although all four of these aged patients were critically ill, I was happy to report later in the Connecticut State Medical Journal that the sulfa drug had saved the lives of three out of four. Without this newly discovered medicine it is likely all would have died.

Yet, when the family members of these patients had asked me what were their chances of recovery, all I could say was: "He is quite ill. But —"

Whatever the patient's ills, I think the best doctor is the one who still believes in the old saying: "While There's Life There's Hope" and acts accordingly, trying everything possible to overcome the patient's illness. But, I must add, not just heaping an absolutely hopeless patient alive with transfusions, etc., and to prolong the agony for patient and family. As usual, there are exceptions to every rule.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like some information about diuretic pills, the ones doctors prescribe to take the water out of your system. I find that I have a great deal of water retention.

I would like to use these pills as I understand you can buy them without a prescription. Before I take them I'd like to know if they have any bad side effects. — Mrs. A.

Comment: First, I'll say don't go experimenting with your valuable machine. That's the doctor's job. For example, do you know what is causing the water retention? Is it your heart? Kidneys? Liver? Or something else not too serious? First comes diagnosis.

Now, as for the diuretics themselves. They should only be taken under a doctor's surveillance. Over a long period of time, diuretics can upset the potassium content in the blood causing extreme fatigue and other symptoms.

Talks Resumed By Ford, Union

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Main table bargaining talks resumed Monday between Ford of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers as General Motors of Canada workers returned to work in two Windsor plants following a 94-day strike.

A Ford spokesman said recently the outcome of the GM Canada talks would have more effect on the outcome of the Ford Canada talks than the U.S. Ford talks with the UAW.

The key issue which stalemated the GM Canada talks after the U.S. settlement was wage parity with American workers. The parity issue bogged down over the difference between a higher cost of living rise in the U.S. than in Canada.

Chrysler talks with the UAW, which cover both Canadian and American workers, have been recessed to Jan 4.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Political Polarity Is Bad

My dinner partner a few weeks ago asked me what I thought of the unprecedented defeat of a third party senator in New York State, where James Buckley, the Conservative Party candidate, beat both regulars.

I replied that it was a healthy thing, even though I disagree with about 90 per cent of what Sen. Buckley stands for; and that it was high time the conservatives in New York began to get some representation.

This considerable group had been frustrated for more than 30 years, as the state continually voted "liberals" into national offices. And 49 per cent of the voters — which is what Buckley got — even though not a majority is still an awful lot of people. They needed a voice.

Politics becomes too "polarized," to use the fashionable phrase, when a majority controls an area over a long period, and the minority has no legitimate outlet for its frustrations. This situation brings out the politics of extremism, and many voters turned "conservative" in New York simply because they felt there was little choice between the two established political parties.

What is needed, it seems to me, is a system of "proportional representation," so that a senator who may get in with only 51 per cent of the vote doesn't have the power wholly to obliterate the wishes of 49 per cent.

Under such a system, a senator's vote in Congress might be "weighted" in accordance with the percentage of his victory. For instance, Henry Jackson of the state of Washington, who won last month with 94 per cent of the vote, certainly represents all the people of Washington more adequately than Buckley, who represents only a minority in his state.

The voting power of a representative ought to be directly proportional to the percentage of people who voted for or against him. A candidate who squeaks in by a few hundred votes obviously should not have the same voting influence as one who is a massive favorite in his district. When he does, the attitudes and interests of a large number of his constituents are being ignored or flouted.

Proportional representation — which is not hard to work out technically — would be fairer to the democratic concept, but would also act as a social and psychological brake on disaffected minorities, who would have some say in the legislative process, rather than feeling totally shut out as long as they remain a numerical minority in their area.

The full spectrum of political beliefs needs to be reflected in our legislative bodies, from the far right to the far left, in proportion to their public support, so that even the smallest group might have a platform for its policies. Monopoly in government is no less distasteful than monopoly anywhere else.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 23

Your birthday today: You now begin a reorganization period in which nearly everything that is past becomes can be turned to good account. Your healthy self-interest comes to the fore, sometimes forcing issues as you must find a variety of solutions. Romantic ventures thrive. Today's natives are versatile, able to find impressive answers for local problems, very serious in their attitude toward themselves and life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): There's much to be gained in picking up the pieces from yesterday's haste and confusion. Improved radically by resolutions started now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): A woman associate has a strong height, perhaps doesn't recognize where it fits or what its meaning is. Do your own interpreting and be guided.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pull yourself up by calling on your own buoyancy. Younger people are restless, need something to do to hold their interest. Get them involved in constructive activity.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Stay in a smiling good humor as you plow through this busy day of overnumerous details. Leave nothing to memory — keep copious notes and figures.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Most of yesterday's impractical ideas come back revised far enough so they work. A small bit of luck requires extra movement on your part to take advantage of it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Now you can get people together in earnest and expect things to work out to everybody's satisfaction. Get estimates on long-range programs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Forthright, gracious self-expression who you a possibly significant career break. Explore it promptly. Avocational interests offer added possible benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Confidential work, which does not appear as such, comes your way. Listen attentively to any business proposal you hear. Home challenges are reassuring.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Step up to make a bid for leadership. Your personality becomes appealing — use it. Select your place carefully to catch listeners in the best conditions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Start early with a list of your wants. Handle the most expedient, then proceed to the next without regard to sequence. You'll be pleased with the day's results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Bring negotiations to closure now — you have as good a deal as you can get. People in your group relax, and there are little triumphs to celebrate.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This pleasant day shouldn't be taken up with personal satisfaction; get busy and do business. Arrange financing, long - term contracts and the like.

Solicitor-General Sworn In

OTTAWA (CP) — George McIlraith, one of the old masters of Parliament, resigned Tuesday as solicitor-general of Canada and made room in the cabinet for Jean-Pierre Goyer, a 36-year-old lawyer and MP for Montreal Dollard.

Mr. McIlraith, 62 and a 26-year veteran of the Commons, quit for personal reasons. He has had two operations for eye cataracts this year and his 21-year-old son is recuperating from severe injuries suffered in an automobile accident at London, Ont., last month.

Although leaving the cabinet, he will continue in the Commons as MP for Ottawa Centre.

"A private member can have a great influence on the government," he said shortly after his resignation was announced. "I don't like leaving as a cabinet minister, but it was the right thing to do."

Neither the resignation nor Mr. Goyer's appointment came as a surprise when Prime Minister Trudeau made the announcement Tuesday.

Since he became solicitor-general in 1968, there have been recurring rumors on the departure of Mr. McIlraith, an astute politician who has built his constituency into a seemingly unassailable haven. Since his first victory in 1940, he has breezed through election after election with massive majorities.

And since 1968, whenever there have been cabinet vacancies, the name of Mr. Goyer has been frequently mentioned. He was considered a shoo-in for a portfolio earlier this year when Mr. Trudeau shuffled his cabinet, but the shuffle—smaller than predicted—left the Montreal MP on the back-benches.

In fact he moved farther back. He was one of 14 parliamentary secretaries replaced after their two-year stint in the shadow of cabinet ministers. Mr. Goyer swore in office Tuesday, was parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

But Mr. Trudeau made it clear that the rotation system was not a reflection on any individual MPs being replaced as secretaries.

With Mr. Goyer's appointment, 19 of the 29 cabinet ministers are from Quebec.

Mr. McIlraith served several cabinet ministers as parliamentary secretary until then prime minister Lester Pearson appointed him transport minister in 1963. He later became president of the Privy Council, government House leader and minister of public works before Mr. Trudeau appointed him solicitor-general in 1968.

As House leader, he showed his mastery of Parliament, but often shielded it under the weight of words. His drawling, cumbersome explanations usually appeared to be stalling the proceedings he was trying to speed, but it soon became obvious to observers that he always had the situation in a crisp grasp. Every word, and every frequent pause, was by design.

Further he established a warm cordial relationship with opposition members. Earlier this year, Mr. McIlraith and John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) celebrated the 30th anniversary of their entry into Parliament. They are personal friends.

Asked whether he would run in the next general election, Mr. McIlraith said he will make up his mind when the time comes. "I am not one of those who believes anyone is indispensable."

Troop Pullout Is Demanded

PARIS (Reuter) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong said today they are ready to end the war if the United States pledged now to pull out its troops from South Vietnam by next June 30.

This was the first time the delegates of Hanoi and the Viet Cong had gone so far as to say they would end the war if the Americans agreed in advance to their basic demands.

If the U.S. government acted in this way "the parties would immediately enter into discussions for a total cessation of the cruel war now in progress in Vietnam," Hanoi's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, told the 96th session of the stalled Paris peace talks.

Previously, the Communist side had said it would be ready to discuss only a cessation of U.S. attacks and a promise of total U.S. troop withdrawals.

The United States rejected that offer on the grounds it would not be restricted to peace negotiations by pre-conditions laid down by the other side.

Last week the Communist delegation at the Paris peace talks called on the United States to propose any "reasonable date" for a withdrawal. The United States rejected the proposal, contending that the setting of any deadline for a troop pullout would permit the Communists to "sit on their hands" and refuse to negotiate.

There was no explanation from the Communist side as to why it had gone back to the June 30 date.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, leader of the Viet Cong delegation, quoted the president of the National Liberation Front, Nguyen Huu Tho, as saying that the guerrillas also are ready to end the war.

Earlier in the session, the United States delegation called on North Vietnam to break the deadlock in the peace talks by opening discussions on a cease-fire and the prisoner-of-war issue.

"We urge you to join us in a genuine discussion of these questions as a way to break the impasse at these talks," chief U.S. representative David K.E. Bruce told Hanoi.

Saigon's chief negotiator, Pham Dang Lam, warned Hanoi and the Viet Cong that after the departure of U.S. and allied troops, the South Vietnamese government forces would continue to fight unless a "political settlement was reached with the other side.

"One thing is certain . . . the war will go on," he said.

Pigs, hell are quiet about the next guy Santa makes an entry!

Writer Freed

LA PAZ (AP) — The Bolivian government today released French revolutionist Regis Debray and five other guerrillas who fought with Che Guevara in his abortive attempt to foment a peasants' uprising in 1967.

Interior Minister Jorge Gallardo said the 29-year-old French writer, Argentine painter Roberto Bustos and four Bolivians were taken to Chile by a Bolivian military plane.

OPP Arrest RCMP

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police arrested a Royal Canadian Mounted Police corporal Tuesday and charged him with theft in connection with the disappearance of $18,000 in United States currency—part of an exhibit at a recent trial.

The officer, Elden D. Davie, 29, was taken into custody at the commercial fraud branch of the RCMP in Toronto.

Chief Insp. D. D. Higley of the OPP said last Thursday the RCMP had custody of $36,000 seized at Toronto International Airport in June 1969. The money had been held earlier by the town police in Mississauga site of the airport.

Marie Fontaine and Pierre Beaudoin, a Montreal couple charged with conspiracy to possess money from the sale of bonds stolen in New York state, were acquitted Friday.

Keeping A Weather Eye

Quinte-area schools closed for Christmas holidays yesterday — an event that went almost unnoticed as the district struggled through severe cold and snow. For school crossing guards like Bill Peoples at Queen Alexandra, it meant keeping a safety weather eye in the teeth of a wind chill factor up to 30 degrees below. He'll enjoy the holidays, too. For details on weather see page 2.

Canadian Content 1971 Aim

OTTAWA (CP) — The development of Canadian talent and its exposure on radio and television must be a prime concern of governments, broadcasters and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission in 1971, CRTC Chairman Pierre Juneau says.

Mr. Juneau said in a recent interview no effort should be spared in making certain the Canadian broadcasting system is used to produce and develop Canadian talent. The development of production facilities by cable TV owners was also vitally necessary.

In order that there be room on the Canadian system, broadcasters should not consider importing more programming, Mr. Juneau said.

Mr. Juneau, who has held his position since 1968, said it is too early to measure the effects of new Canadian content rules which took effect earlier this year.

The regulations compelled the publicly-owned CBC to show at least 60-per-cent Canadian content on TV. The private CTV network has until Oct. 1, 1971, to meet the full 60-per-cent rule.

Canadian AM radio stations will be required to play a minimum of 30 per cent Canadian music by next month.

Hockey Cups Recovered

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police said today that a replica of the Stanley Cup and two other stolen National Hockey League trophies have been recovered.

Det.-Sgt. Wallace Harkness said the three trophies stolen Dec. 4 from the NHL's Hall of Fame building on the Canadian National Exhibition grounds were left in his driveway early today.

Det.-Sgt Harkness, who had been working on the case for the last two weeks, said he was awakened at 4 a.m. today by the barking of his dog.

He went outside and discovered the replica of the Stanley Cup and the original Conn Smythe Trophy and Bill Masterton Trophy lying in the snow in his driveway.

Det.-Sgt. Harkness said he had been negotiating with a woman telephone caller for more than a week for the return of the trophies.

He said the woman told him that the persons holding the trophies wanted some "favors" from the police in return for handing over the trophies. He did not elaborate.

The police officer said the woman caller threatened to "throw them in the lake" last Sunday when told police would not agree to any "favors."

When the thefts first became public, it was reported that the real Stanley Cup had been stolen. But NHL president Clarence Campbell said the real cup, presented in 1893 by Lord Stanley of Preston, is locked up safely in a vault.

However, both the Conn Smythe Trophy for outstanding performance in the playoffs and the Bill Masterton Trophy for sportsman-like play are originals.

Campbell said the original Stanley Cup is too old and fragile to be used.

"It's a perfect reproduction." Mr. Campbell said of the replica. "The names of players from winning teams—except in the early days—are on it."

On Dec. 4 theft was not the first involving NHL trophies. In April, 1969, thieves took the Conn Smythe Trophy, the Hart Trophy and the Calder Trophy. All three were returned voluntarily.

The collar of the original Stanley Cup was stolen last January. The collar contained a record of cup winners from the 1920s.

Lights for Dead End Stretch

Station Street from Herchimer Avenue was recently included in a list of streets the Public Utilities Commission had slated for street lighting. The cost of $5,600 for the illumination caused one board member to object. Council makes the final decision.

Commissioner Questions Need for New Lights

Why is the city being asked to consider expenditure of $5,600 for installation of lights along a dead-end road used by residents of a private company, with the exception of one home?

This question was asked by Belleville Public Utilities Commissioner Board member Gerry O'Connor.

"I don't find that $5,600 is a reasonable outlay at this time," he stated following the commission meeting, Dec. 17.

"If it were a hazardous stretch, okay, but until it's proven to me, possibly by a traffic count after daylight, I think we have better things to spend it on."

The stretch of road in question is Station Street from Herchimer Avenue to the Canadian National Railway crossing farmland.

The road, formerly used as a throughway to township roads, was closed off as a throughway not, with the exception of one dwelling, is used primarily for CNR vehicles and workers.

The proposal, contained in an informal street lighting plan for the city of $61,460, calls for installation of lights along both sides of Station Street.

Utilities Commissioner manager Ronald Hamilton said he had the proposal.

Although the street is "mainly used by CNR people working at the express office, it is a city street, and one without proper lights".

He explained that added expenses would be incurred because of the distance of the poles from many of the homes.

New poles would have to be installed.

He cited several cases where lights have been installed for sole use of companies, at taxpayers' expense.

The Industrial Park area was one mentioned.

But, Mr. O'Connor's contention is that this expenditure would be brought about for the benefit of one company.

And why double lights; why not single?

Snow in Driveways Householders' Concern

Snow clearance from private driveways was a topic of discussion at this week's city council meeting but about the only thing resolved was that it isn't a municipal responsibility.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey introduced the question by asking where householders were expected to put the snow cleared from driveways.

Householders, she said, were not supposed to put the snow on the street and to have it carted away could cost anywhere from $25 to $30.

But City Engineer Wilbur Purcell didn't think driveway snow posed much of a problem in the Belleville area.

With rare exceptions there was sufficient room on front lawns or at the side of the driveway to get rid of driveway snow, he said.

The engineer went on to say that his department after each heavy snowfall had complaints about city snowplows plugging up driveway entrances after householders had shovelled them out.

However, he said city policy was to snowplow streets, not to clear driveway entrances.

There are more than 9,000 private driveways in the city and clearing them after streets were plowed would be a big problem, he said.

The engineer said the cost of clearing driveway entrances would be "terrific" and also there would be the added problem of determining the priority of driveways to be cleared first.

Hospital Sets Mandatory Retirement Age

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Effective 1972, the mandatory retirement age for Belleville General Hospital personnel will be 65.

The new work rule — involving all staff echelons from professional to non - skilled employees — was endorsed yesterday by the hospital's board of governors.

BGH's retirement age now is currently 65 years, but consideration is given employees who wish work extensions beyond the limit.

Yesterday's move by the board confirms the work pattern while the one-year delay implementing the decision gives personnel time to adjust to the new rule — introduced by board member Mr. H. Graham.

Mr. Graham, said his decision to introduce the rule was spurred by unemployment which already is making it difficult for younger people to find jobs.

"I think we have to make a cutoff mark (for retirement) somewhere. This is the way it is in industry," he said.

Acting administrator John Kunetsky said there are now six employees on staff who are 64, while about 10 will reach retirement age over the next five years.

Mr. Kunetsky said he believed an "arbitrary" retirement age would have "some real merit." Employees would know what their work prospects were when approaching 65 and would be prepared for retirement.

Mayor Russell Scott agreed such a positive rule would eliminate uncertainty among older employees.

Mr. Kunetsky said any hardship caused by such a rule would be unduly felt by the board which would be denying itself services of people who are completely competent at 65.

Amnesia Victim Costly Patient

A woman without a name, who became one of Belleville General Hospital's costlier statistics.

In a way, her case also is a reminder that the cause of humanity is alive and well amid the impersonal face of modern hospital administration.

Suffering amnesia, the woman was found frozen and near death in a field at Madoc last winter.

She was nursed back to health at BGH while police made repeated — and frustrated attempts to pin down her identity.

Later, she was transferred to the Ontario Hospital at Kingston.

In the interim, her hospital bill at Belleville General had reached almost $3,000 — to be precise, $2,982 Mayor Russell Scott told the BGH board of governors yesterday.

The bill, said the mayor — reporting for the board's finance committee — was part of a total $8,000 in accounts outstanding in the province in priority of driveways to be indigent in - patients which the hospital now must write off.

However, such bad debts can be acknowledged by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission to be included in overall daily patient expenses — as long as a reasonable attempt is made to collect them.

Many such bills are caused by "people who can't be expected to pay," noted board member Douglas Boyle, and the mayor agreed that in many cases collecting such indigent accounts would cost more than they're worth.

Unpaid bills at the hospital's out-patients department totalled $3,236 and outstanding ambulance charges $2,698.

Some 33 per cent of the unpaid in-patient bills came from Belleville, 18 per cent from Hastings County and 5½ per cent from outside the hospital's area.

However, Mayor Scott pointed out, treatment of the veteran amnesiac alone accounted for more than a third of the bad - debt percentage caused by indigents from outside the county area.

Outpatient Demand Still Confronts Board

Demand for outpatient medical services continues to pressure Belleville General Hospital's emergency department — and the problem will continue to confront the hospital's administration in 1971.

For one thing, Magr. J. F. Sullivan, chairman of BGH's board of governors, isn't prepared to accept provincial government regulations that rule out a solution to the issue.

At least, that's what he indicated to the board yesterday.

The situation came to a head late this year when statistics confirmed widespread use of emergency facilities by Belleville-area residents. The demand cost the department the loss of an outpatients clinic. Since it's not classed as a bed - board service, BGH doesn't qualify for Ontario Hospital Service Commission payments to staff such clinic.

But, Magr. Sullivan told his board yesterday, hospitals at Kitchener had banded together to solve a similar problem.

Both Kitchener's civic and Catholic hospitals were combining to hire seven doctors to staff an emergency unit on a round - the - clock shift operation.

Board member Douglas Boyle said Mr. Kunetsky had been asked to write the OHSC to clarify its subsidy policy on such an operation.

"We don't want it verified," countered Magr. Sullivan, "We want it (OHSC policy) changed. If something can be done in Kitchener maybe something can be done in other places."

Mayor Russell Scott said the OHSC already had told the board the hospital was not sufficiently large to qualify for such subsidy.

"I know," insisted the monsignor. "But we don't have to accept that."

Magr. Sullivan noted only about 25 per cent of the cases handled at BGH's emergency department are "real emergencies".

"Anyway," he told the board, "I don't think we can let it (the emergency department issue) drop. We have to keep pushing and see what we can do. It's something that will have to be discussed further after the new year."

Mr. Kunetsky said later he will seek details of the combined emergency program proposed by the two Kitchener hospitals.

Bridge Said Success

Traffic Pattern Changes Downtown

Despite adverse winter weather conditions which to some extent hampered the transition, the city's new Dundas Street bridge and downtown bypass route is already a success.

That is the feeling of city police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie and City Engineer Wilbur Purcell who today said they were quite pleased with the way local motorists took to use of the new traffic artery.

"It will take a little time for motorists to adjust, but on the whole the change-over went fairly well," commented Police Chief Crosbie.

There only one possible trouble spot was at the intersection of Front and Dundas Street where traffic is advised to keep well to the right before making the left turn onto Dundas Street.

The reason for this is to avoid oncoming traffic between Front and Pinnacle Streets which, as result of the bridge opening, now has been returned to two way traffic.

With the opening of the bridge and reconstructed Dundas Street, Highland Ave. has been cut off at Parker Street and a few westbound motorists yesterday found their way blocked.

"They were all local motorists — they won't get caught the bridge opening now," commented the city engineer.

Before the change - over all No. 2 highway traffic signs along Pinnacle and Bridge Street were removed, with through traffic being directed along the new artery.

Results of the traffic change - over to use of the new bridge were immediately noticeable in the downtown area.

The customary long back-up of traffic on Pinnacle Street waiting to make the left turn during rush hour was missing, while traffic volumes east and west along Bridge Street through the downtown area was also reduced.

The new bypass route along Dundas Street West will be but a two lane artery for the winter months.

During the winter the Lightfoot Construction will complete rock excavation at the old Devil's Elbow Hill to allow for widening of the roadway to four lanes.

Construction details will be completed next spring at which time traffic lights at the Dundas Street — Bay Bridge Road intersection will be installed.

Counterfeit $10 Bills Spread to Picton Area

Picton police have joined members of Trenton Police in a search for shoppers passing bogus $10 bills.

The bills were passed in Picton last night and in Trenton earlier this week. So far Belleville police have heard no reports of counterfeit money here.

A spokesman for the Picton Police Department said this morning that three local merchants have reported receiving bogus $10 bills from customers shopping last night.

The three bills were passed in three Main Street pharmacies, Imig's Drug Store, Snipe Discount Store and Wright's Guardian Drug Store.

Police say the counterfeit money was passed in separate incidents by two different persons. Clerks described one customer paying in bogus cash as a man about five feet ten inches tall with dark complexion, full beard and sideburns. He was reported wearing a plaid jacket and jeans.

Other clerks reported accepting counterfeit money from a girl about 19 or 20 years of age, clad in a red patent leather coat and wearing a long blonde wig. Police said she later appeared in another store with short brown hair, apparently concealed under the blonde wig.

The serial number marked on each of the counterfeit bills is B over E 5911078, the same number that was on the bogus bills discovered in Trenton earlier.

A police spokesman observed that more bogus bills may be reported later today as merchants examine their cash.

In Trenton Monday, counterfeit $10 bills turned up at various businesses including Woolworth's, Sellers, Canadian Tire and the Royal Bank. Trenton Town Police recovered nine such bills Monday and are on the lookout for more.

Up Up and Away!

A letter in this page today from Dorothy Martin, executive secretary of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario endorses the premise that there appears to be no way for education costs to go but up, nothing (somewhat plaintively): "I think that is probably true, since teachers expect to share in the general prosperity of the country and there is certainly no sign that prices and other wages are coming down. . ."

Ah yes, there was General Motors — and who will be next? The six per cent guideline the country was asked to honor has gone by the board and next year we can expect more. Just who are we to believe in attempting to forecast the end of the inflationary spiral? Which government spokesman — Finance Minister Benson perhaps, or maybe Prime Minister Trudeau who not so long ago was issuing dire warnings of what Canadians could expect if they did not keep spending and wage requests down to a reasonable level?

The trouble is, government people and economists alike speak with many tongues and so the public just keeps right on spending and coming back, hands out, like Oliver Twist, for more.

The one statement which does stick out dates back to the days of the Diefenbaker government a decade or more ago, when James Coyne was Governor of the Bank of Canada and he was at odds with the fiscal policies of the then Minister of Finance, Donald Fleming.

Canadians, said Mr. Coyne at that time, "are living grandly beyond their means."

Have things changed that much? Certainly there is prosperity, but it is not as uniform as the executive secretary of the women's teachers federation would have us believe. And whatever the salary range, high or low (and there is a wide variation) those words of James Coyne, spoken all those years ago, rise up to haunt us.

Are teachers suffering financially, as Mrs. Martin seems to suggest. We hardly think so, certainly not those who have some years' experience. Her observation runs strangely parallel to one made recently by Leeds and Grenville director of education Lloyd Dennis. Defending his record and that of the Brockville-based board of education in the past two years he said: "No one knows better than I the price you paid and the implications attached to my employment by the board as went on: "I did not come down here to put myself out of th range I could earn elsewhere."

Well, we certainly need to pay our top educators and rank and file teachers in a manner commensurate with their experience and responsibilities. At the same time the concept of "empire building" in the educational system may have substance. The question is, how much is enough? In the case of directors of education, $30,000 is a lot of money and in view of the inflation that continues to plague the country, it must be asked if officials in this range could not get along with less. We seem to recall Mr. Dennis himself admitted as much recently. How many deputies, moreover, are required in the top echelon of administration?

Arena Amenities

Hockey fans in Belleville know that attending a game at the Arena is not like taking part in the scene at some thermal spring. That being so one goes prepared, or rather should go prepared, for another letter on this topic today indicates dissatisfaction with the heating arrangements.

Our information is that, ideally, heat may be available until the end of the second period of a game. After that it is a contributory factor in deterioration of the ice surface. Thus the management is obliged to ration the heat accordingly.

However, if there is an answer to this problem it is the good greater spectator comfort, specifically in the form of warmth, we are sure it will be welcome. The problem is one the arena and recreation committee doubtless will be considering, along with the recent recommendations of the architects for overall improvement of the building.

The point about the building being a potential fire threat, and the need to have a member of the fire department present, is also well taken, and should be heeded.

Lloyd Dennis Looks at the Education Scene

From The Brockville Recorder and Times

Leeds and Grenville director of education Lloyd Dennis defended school trustees on the executive council and the Leeds and Grenville Board of Education in the past two years at the final meeting of the 1959-60 board.

His remarks followed those made by Board chairman Don Price of Gananoque in which Mr. Price labelled as "unjustified" editorial criticism carried in The Recorder and Times over the past two years.

"No one knows better than I the price you paid and the implications attached in my employment by you," Mr. Dennis told the board.

He was referring in his $30,000 annual salary and the fact he is co-author of the Hall-Dennis report "Living and Learning."

Mr. Dennis said the board has suffered attacks for two years because of his reputation. Most of the criticism, he said, has been over the cost of education.

"But the board has not been flamboyant," said Mr. Dennis.

"We know the children in Leeds and Grenville are on the wrong end of the stick and are striving to put them on the right end but we have been constantly told: 'Don't move. It's going to cost money.'

"We know education costs money but your children are not being educated as they should be."

Mr. Dennis said "Living and Learning" has not been completely implemented in Leeds and Grenville "by a long shot."

He said morale is high among the majority of teachers although the general public is led to believe this is not so.

"I hope across America all your staff don't get so whittled down by the criticism that they pack their bags and go some where else," Mr. Dennis told the board.

He did not rule out the possibility that he might be thinking of resigning when questioned by reporters after the meeting.

"The possibility always exists," he admitted.

The Brockville director said the criticism has affected his morale. "It is a frustration born out of not being understood. But I'm optimistic tonight were not a specific have-nothing that I am going to resign."

Defending his salary Mr. Dennis said "I didn't come down here to put myself out of the range I could earn elsewhere. It is not natural to have a director's salary paralyzed before the public as it has been singled out here."

He said: "In this case it is the employee and not the employer who has been the object of attack."

Asked if the attacks had any connection with the fact he is co-author of "Living and Learning," Mr. Dennis said he would not expect to be attacked in all parts of the province.

"Perhaps the attacks reflect the way people have react in church," he added.

He said "the constant criticism" is a "case of editorial writing. "Free coverage has been almost totally objective," he said, "but a gap existed between editorial writing and reports of board meetings."

He would not make specific references.

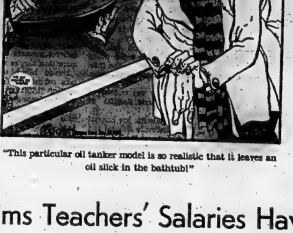
TODAY IN HISTORY



By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 23, 1960 . . .

Duke Henry of Guise and his brother, Cardinal Louis, were murdered 382 years ago today — 1588 — by Henry III of Valois, king of France. This turned the scale in the "War of the three Heroines," a three-cornered free-for-all among the legitimate king, the Roman Catholic-backed Henry of Guise and the Protestant Henry of Navarre. It was the eighth religious war in France in 28 years. Henry III was murdered in 1589 by a Catholic agent and Henry of Navarre took the throne.

Claims Teachers' Salaries Have Remained Constant

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Lenny Williamson's recent series of articles on education has been drawn to our attention. We were very favorably impressed with the amount of research and hard work that must have gone into the preparation of the series. There are one or two comments we would like to make, just as an addition to the article entitled "Teachers Biggest Single Expense in Education".

First, it is absolutely true that teachers' salaries account for most of the current operating expenses of any school board. Naturally, since education is a "service industry," the major cost must be the people who provide the service!

The 62 per cent figure quoted must include all instructional period help at the top, right up to and including the Director of Education. Actually, Hastings County is spending a lower percentage of its budget on people than some other school systems do, since 76 or 77 per cent of a budget spent on salaries is not unusual.

An interesting point about the 62 per cent figure is that it has not changed for years and years. Somehow, a great many people seem to think that teachers' salaries have soared beyond all reason in recent years, not the fact is that teachers' salaries, as a percentage of school board spending, have remained almost constant for many years. In other words, all educational costs have risen, so schools cost more than they used to, but teachers' salaries have not risen any more than other costs.

Mrs. Williamson suggests that "there is a long way to go" but to go but up." I think that is probably true, since teachers expect to share in the general prosperity of the country and there is certainly no sign that prices and other wages are coming down. We would hope that Hastings County citizens would not expect teachers to suffer financially simply because their salaries are held by taxes and nobody likes to pay taxes.

L. DOROTHY MARTIN,
Executive Secretary,

Britain, The Commonwealth and South Africa

Montreal Gazette

The Imperial Conference of 1926 defined the countries of the Commonwealth as "equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs." Shouldn't this definition cover Britain, too?

In Ottawa Prime Minister Heath made clear that he does not intend to see Britain treated as less equal than the others. He takes the quite reasonable position that Britain also has the rights of a self-governing state within the Commonwealth, including the right to define its national interests.

Suppression of national interests in favor of a Commonwealth consensus is not worth considering when Britain is the only country that is expected to do any suppressing. Does Canada put Commonwealth solidarity ahead of its own interest?

There are two issues involved in the proposed sale of British weapons to South Africa. Neither of them concerns the subjugation of the black and colored peoples. Apartheid is a fact of life in South Africa which is beyond Britain's power to moderate or otherwise influence. Nothing is gained if British acts against its own interests simply for the sake of registering official disapproval of apartheid. Racial subjugation will not be ended by trying to exclude South Africa from the ordinary network of international relations and obligations.

One of the issues is the matter of whether Britain can be the final judge of what actions serve its best interests. Tanzania would not care to accept dictation from other Commonwealth members on any aspect of its foreign or domestic policies. Canada does not want to get told by other Commonwealth members how it should deal with the problems that arise from its closeness to the United States.

The other issue involved in the proposed arms sale is the security of Western trade and other interests in southern and eastern Africa. Asia and Australasia. If these interests are taken seriously, the growth of Soviet naval airfreight in the Indian Ocean cannot be ignored. This Soviet presence is facilitating the penetration of Soviet influence in some of the countries bordering the Indian Ocean by countervailing Western force is needed and would be extremely difficult to sustain without South Africa's help.

Peterborough Examiner

Mr. Heath quite clearly explained that due to the appearance of the Soviet Navy in the South Atlantic and the Indian Ocean) and the advances of the Red Chinese on the African continent, strengthening of the Western nations' defence was imperative. Britain has an agreement with South Africa for mutual defence (Simonstown). Also emphasized that the sale of arms sold to South Africa would only be used for defence against outside forces.

Opponents of the plan come from two groups: the white Western nations which oppose the sale because of a principle—South Africa's racial policies—and those arms might be used against them.

The Africans and a number of others use the same principle as a basis, but they go much further. They simply threaten Britain with expulsion from the Commonwealth if it goes ahead with the sale.

The truth is that at least some of the Africans are pushing Chinese and Soviet interests.

First, breaking up the Commonwealth, or what is left of it, is not a threat. Britain would be much better off without an organization which, under present circumstances, is hardly more than a name.

Second, what Britain does is her business, and nobody else's business. What would Tanzania say if Britain opposed its acceptance of Red Chinese arms which could be (and are being) used to maintain President Julius Nyerere's dictatorship.

Third, the presence of the British arms would make no difference to the present situation in South Africa. Apartheid could not exist effectively with locally manufactured arms.

Fourth, it is interesting to see whose interests are the Africans serving? Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika, President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia are both dictators using Red Chinese arms to oppress their own black brothers.

If Red Chinese at the moment are building a railroad from the Indian Ocean to the Zambian copper belt, this means that the Red Chinese will have a perfect supply line from Mozambique already a Red dictatorship, to the borders of Portugal Angola, slicing the lower part of Africa in two.

Principle or not, the ships or planes Britain proposes to sell South Africa are a direct menace for the South African blacks.

Exiled to Bermuda

Revolutionaries of an Earlier Day

Ottawa Journal

In 1838 eight Canadians were exiled to Bermuda by Lord Durham, Governor of British North America, for the part they played as principal instigators along with Louis Joseph Papineau in the rebellion of 1837 in Lower Canada.

Although the exiles were in Bermuda only four months they were granted amnesty on the coronation of Queen Victoria, June 28, 1838) Bermuda never forgot them.

Anecdotes of their stay are recorded in two books: Bermuda Sampler 1815 to 1850 and Bermuda Journey, both by William Zuill.

"The arrival of these interesting characters caused some excitement in Bermuda, because, in the first place, permission had not been asked of the Governor and the question was posed as to whether they should be allowed to land at all. However, it was agreed to accept them on conditions, and they took up residence in the town after giving their parole to keep within certain areas.

The exiles proved themselves charming, interesting men. Hostility and suspicion gave way to curiosity and hospitality. Their boundaries melted.

The small house they occupied in Hamilton, Bermuda, was quickly dubbed "Exile Cottage." Zuill records they entertained with considerable elegant conversation. Like many French Canadians their love of music helped forge friendships.

On their first Sunday several of the exiles went to church. A parishioner, Benjamin Williams, invited them to share his pew. The next Sunday they invited them in too. Friendship blossomed and is recorded thusly:

"Before the Sunday service in this house for they had a mutual bond in their fondness for music, and Mr. Williams' five handsome daughters had clear, sweet voices and played the piano. The exiles all sang and some played the flute, 'tchere the violin."

A member of the government was so taken by them he was moved to observe:

"As a government official I have to close my doors to them but I cannot close my windows to their sweet melodies for their voices are heavenly."

When the exiles departed many of them, Dr. Wolfred Nelson, was sufficiently impressed by the Williams' hospitality so that he wrote a glowing tribute in the newspaper Mirror of one of the Williams' girls. It shows he was a sensitive man. Part of it:

"It is not the smile of a prettier face, nor the tint of the complexion, not the beauty and symmetry of the person that compose thy Beauty. It is thy placid deportment, thy chaste conversation, thy modest dress, thy affable and open disposition, sympathetic with those in distress and adversity and perfect regard for the principles of Christianity."

There is certainly no attempt here to draw an historic parallel between the rebellion of 1838 and those to Cuba of 1976, but merely to name on a forgotten chapter in Canadian history. Besides, the original depature was not tolerated.

UN of Religions Is Baron's Aim

TORONTO (CP) — Baron Fracy von Blomberg, 53, co-president of the World Fellowship organization, wants to form a "United Nations of religions — a permanent structure with permanent delegates from all over the world."

"World religious leaders not only do not know one another, they don't understand what other religions are all about," Mr. Blomberg said in an interview here.

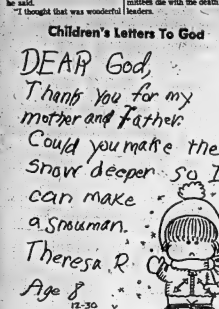
Mr. Blomberg, a native of Boston, said religions, with their "power and influence," should work together on world problems.

He is not happy, however, with the progress of his life-long dream of a United Nations of religions.

The last World Fellowship conference, the fourth to be held, attracted 150,000 people representing about 100 religions, he said.

"I thought that was wonderful until I remembered there are about 2,000 religions."

The World Fellowship, financed mainly by wealthy industrialists and maharajahs in India, hopes to set up a regional conference in Toronto.



Mr. Blomberg is in charge of stirring up interest in this idea and will return to this city next spring to continue preparations.

Some of the Fellowship's members are former Alberta premier E. C. Manning, one-time Nova Scotia premier Henry D. Hicks, Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Philip Gaglardi, B.C. cabinet minister, Mr. Blomberg said.

He would also like to establish a world committee for the organization in Toronto, but said the problem is finding a layman or cleric "with the vision to work for the organization."

He feels most of these committees die with the death of the leaders.

Prior to her wedding Mrs. Terry Casselman (nee Ann Marie Emerson) was honored at two miscellaneous showers. One was held at the home of Mrs. Harry McMullen of Hallowell with Mrs. Paul Reid of Ottawa as hostess and the other was held at the home of Mrs. Roger Emerson of Belleville with Mrs. Geoffrey Gowthorp as co-hostess. A reception for 200 was given by the bridegroom's parents. The bride was entertained at a dinner party given by her employer and a gift was presented by the CIAG office staff. The bridegroom was entertained at a party given by his co-workers at Northern Electric when presented him with a gift. He was also entertained at a party by his teammates on the Central Taxi hockey team.

MR. AND MRS. TERRY CASSELMAN

Casselman – Emerson

Emmanuel United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Ann Marie Emerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Emerson of Hallowayand Terry Michael Casselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Casselman of Belleville. Rev. Carl Parsons officiated at the candlelight service while Mrs. Robert Sills, organist and Mrs. Robert Hough soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full-length gown of white velvet in a slightly A-line style featuring Victorian sleeves with deep buttoned cuffs and a stand-up collar. The bodice was enhanced with pearl beaded trim as was the wedding ring headband which held in place her short layered veil. She carried a single white orchid with a deep yellow centre, encircled with white carnations and ivy.

Mrs. Greg Bowers (nee Faye Robinson) as matron of honor wore a floor-length gown of royal blue velvet with an attached hood outlined with a white band of white fur. The front of the dress featured self-covered buttons to the hemline and the full sleeves were gathered into deep buttoned cuffs. Her corsage of blue tinted 'mums was fastened to her white fur muff.

Miss Kathryn Emerson, the bride's niece who was the flower girl wore an outfit similar to that of the matron of honor and had a petite corsage of miniature 'mums attached to her white fur muff.

The best man was Steven Casselman, the bridegroom's brother while the ushers were Doug Boite and David Casselman another brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the Church parlor, Foxboro. The bride's mother chose a deep mauve polyester dress with a matching jacket. Mink colored accessories and a white camelia corsage completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother wore a green and gold embossed velvet crepe suit with black accessories and a white camelia corsage.

For the wedding trip to Mt. Tremblant Ski Resort, Quebec, the bride left in a three piece wool plaid with a matching turtleneck body sweater and a long suede belt. Knee high tan suede boots and a matching poncho bag completed her costume.

Upon return the newly married couple will reside in Belleville.

Second Job Needed To Buy Clothes

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Looking smart can be a full-time job for any woman. For the woman behind the Iron Curtain, it means a full-time job and moonlighting.

In countries where a milkmaid costs two months' salary, it takes a lot of extra effort to wear the new styles. But where many Western women have dug in their heels and refused to wear the new lengths, East bloc women go to almost any lengths to get them. Many have a second job, some have three or even four.

The fairy godmother is the Budapest dressmaker who copies the new styles from well-thumbed Western fashion magazines passed around among her clients.

In Warsaw, for example, she will make a wool suit for about $80, less than a third the price of a ready-made made model. She must have been trained at top speed this fall because Warsaw has more covered knees than there are in Vienna, where living is lush.

The dressmaker, along with others who can perform private after-hours services — tailors, shoemakers, hairdressers, teachers — has the best chance of solving what has become an even bigger problem than it is in the West: earning enough money.

In Stalinist days, the average citizen had mostly but no joy to use it. Rents and utilities were low and there was little to buy in the stores. Now stores are loaded with consumer goods but prices are astronomical to pay. Monthly salary ranges from $18 in Bulgaria to $172 in Hungary.

Polish women can now buy Dior suit jackets, but at $70 a bottle they don't buy it often. Czech women can buy handsomely hand-blocked silk manteaux, but at $20 most must pass them up for something more practical.

Hungarian women can even buy mink coats, thanks to an exchange agreement with Canada. But with the cost 40,000 to 60,000 forintsan coat—$2,667 to $3,118—it's a rare Magyar who wears one.

In Yugoslavia, where the standard of living most nearly approaches that of the West, stores show a stunning variety of luxury goods. Some of it is locally produced, some of it imported. A famous-brand French sweater will set the cost at less than it would be in Paris, but it still costs a good third of the average monthly wage.

The Yugoslav export enterprise recently opened a branch of Miss Dior in Belgrade on the theory that well women want luxuries, buy them on trips to the West, so they might as well be available on the ground. To date, many women have come to look but few can afford to buy anything.

One girl who bought a long coat for 2,800 dinars, $108, explained that both her parents work; they were giving her the coat as a graduation present. A waitress earns a high professional's salary still found the clothes in the shop too much of a luxury for her.

ST. JAMES CWL

STIRLING — A Christmas atmosphere prevailed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Finnigan when the St. James CWL held their recent meeting. A gaily decorated tree dominated the living room.

Father McGarvey celebrated mass after which a business meeting was held. Mrs. Stan Meeks reported that propositions had been made for giving treats to the children of the parish. The pastor was presented with a cheque for parish expenses as well as a personal gift cheque. Plans were made by the executive to prepare gifts for shut-ins.

Mrs. LaChappelle read an inspiring Christmas message and the meeting ended with the exchange of gifts after which a delicious lunch was served.

New Breed of Latin Lover Now Found in Rome

ROME (CP) — One of Rome's greatest pleasures is to discover the new breed of Latin lover.

He's no longer the brilliantined, moustachioed, handkissing amoebite of legend. Today the great Latin lover has his hair back-combed and sprayed and wears silk suits so tight he has no room for cigarettes and money—so he carries a trizzy brown leather purse. He's dabbed with costly French perfume than you are and goes to the finest manicurist in town.

He's a bit cool at the start —he doesn't say you're the most fascinating thing since Sophia—but every now and then he'll spread a smouldering eye all over you. Without a word.

So naturally it comes as a bit of a surprise when he blows all this cool, after about the second Cinzano, with an impassioned appeal.

Once over that conversational hurdle, he relaxes and becomes charming and witty and you get on with the business of discovering one another. Then you're left wondering whether he means a pass, but anything he says, or if he's following an expected pattern.

However it works out, there is always that unflagging Latin courtesy, the innate gentlemanliness which follows. You'll be sent a rose and a tender note. Or a poetic apology will slide under your door regarding the previous evening when the man was "indelicate and inopportune" and begs you to understand he is not interested in "good times only."

Falling in love in Rome, when everything is golden and the air is soft, obliterates the commonplace. You forget about the gnat-like Fiats screeching around the piazzasi, horns blasting, motor bikes chasing and snorting after them. The city of eternal carbon monoxide and garlic has suddenly become a bougainvillia garden. The language problem, which at best is a nuisance and at worst makes you want to throw yourself into the nearest fountain, now is only an amusing diversion.

"If you are going to enjoy your stay in Rome," a Latin explained over aperitifs for two, "you must allow yourself to forget you are an Anglo-Saxon. Become a Roman."

But if the single Canadian girl in Rome wants to stay Anglo-Saxon, the best tactic is to tell an importunate suitor that she's engaged—to an Italian financee. Then everything is wonderful—the man has been assured that the Italian reputation of knocking North American women dead is still very much intact.

A few days in Rome and your job back home and your Toronto apartment and Africa can violeta might as well be the moon. But inevitably comes the time to leave.

But sometimes, returning by a Canadian airline, the first man you see is the purser—and he looks like an Italian movie star. He flashes those eyes at you and asks, "Did you enjoy Rome" and he's really asking, "Did you fall in love in Rome"

The guy who books those cabin crews definitely does it

Pregnancy Annoys Others in the Family

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were married three months ago. We both graduated from college and are better off financially than most newlyweds. My husband and I wanted a family but not immediately. Well, it seems I became pregnant the month after the wedding. After the initial shock wore off we decided it was great and we are thrilled.

My parents are having a fit. My father says it is disgusting and my mother says she is ashamed to tell her friends because they will think I was pregnant when I got married. She has asked me not to tell anybody one minute earlier than I have to.

In addition to this, my sister is a nut on the population explosion and pollution. She says people like us are ruining her world.

To listen to my family you'd think we have done a terrible thing. Have we? Please tell us how to think about this? — NOT GUILTY AS CHARGED.

DEAR NOT GUILTY: A baby is on the way. Rejoice. Your parents should be ashamed of themselves. Your sister should keep her mouth shut. This isn't your tenth child, it's your first. Even Paul Ehrlich has one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The son of a distant relative got into trouble. His picture appeared in the newspaper last week along with pictures of some others. The boy's last name is the same as ours. We are not close to his parents and haven't seen them in ages.

Several people have called us on the telephone to ask if the boy is a relative. We also get asked this question every time we go anywhere. How can so-called friends be so thoughtless and cruel? If the boy is a relative, what can we do about it? It's almost as if they want us to accept part of the blame, or shame, or responsibility for what the boy did. How does one answer such questions? — BEWILDERED AND RESENTFUL.

DEAR B & R: Instead of answering such questions, look a few, for example: "Why in the world would you be asking such a thing as that? What possible difference could it make to you if the boy is a relative?

Such questions are designed to embarrass, hurt or pry do not deserve an answer and you should feel no obligation to give one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm still burned up about your advice to Mom in Guam whose mother-in-law telephones Sonny Boy every evening — promptly at 6:00 (right in the middle of supper) and keeps him tied up for 30 minutes. Why did you suggest that the family move up their dinner 30 minutes? This is ridiculous. Put the burden where it belongs — on the mother-in-law.

My suggestion is as follows: Promptly at 5:55, Irritated Wife" should neatly lift the receiver off the hook and let it stay off until dinner is over. Easy, isn't it? Sign me — ULCER PREVENTER.

DEAR UL: The only serious flaw in your solution is that you don't know who else you might be blocking out. For those who don't give a hang, your solution is feasible.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Why don't you both go out in the yard and play for a while until I finish making the Christmas cookies. I'll just have to quit trying to bake cookies if you keep getting in the way."

Mother: "Here is some cookie dough all rolled out and there are the cookie cutters. You can each cut out some cookies and after they're baked, I'll show you how to decorate them."

It may take a little longer and the cookies may not be quite as perfect looking — but the work of Christmas will be fun for everyone if the children are allowed to help.

As you rejoice on Christmas, may you gather many blessings and gain deep spiritual contentment.

Plump, golden crisp skin — that describes our twenty-pound turkey for Christmas 1970. Mary Moore gives you a slightly different stuffing and exact temperatures and timing and recipe for making turkey gravy and wishes you a Merry Cooking Christmas.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Dressing for a 20-lb. Turkey

By MARY MOORE

My news sources — you — tell me you have ambitious plans for Christmas dinner this year.

On examining our files I found that I had not given directions for roasting a 20-lb. turkey for some years so because I had an ideal opportunity to serve one to a crowd I asked Marianne to buy one before I arrived in Kingston. Last night I served it after watching it roasting all day long. It was fork tender yet not falling apart, so was in perfect condition for slicing.

Our young cooks and new brides can depend on the time and temperatures given here but may have to enlist help from male members of the family in lifting the bird into and out of the oven, for it is very heavy. I prepared and stuffed the bird the day before roasting and stored it covered in the cold utility room on rack in roaster overnight.

20-LB. ROAST STUFFED TURKEY

One 20-lb. turkey

Stuffing:

- ¼ lb. margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. rosemary
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 1 standard (24-oz.) two-day-old loaf sliced white bread
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

If turkey is frozen it should be thawed in storage part of refrigerator for 48 hrs. in advance. Let bird stand on kitchen counter while you prepare stuffing: (Use roasting pan for this because you need a large container.) Gently melt margarine over med.-low heat and stir in onion and seasonings. With a sharp knife cut sliced bread into small dice (¼") and add to pan mixing well to coat bread. Add walnuts. Let stuffing cool to room temperature. Put stuffing in a very large plastic bag. Tuck open end into cavity of turkey and gently withdraw as you shake it to empty all stuffing into bird without spilling any on counter. Use metal skewers to fasten opening. With heavy string secure wings and legs close to body. By hand spread hard butter over upper skin surfaces. Store in cold place overnight.

At 8 a.m. Christmas morning put turkey in oven, without any water, but covered with a tent of foil, then turn on heat to 300 deg. Fahr. for 4 hrs. At noon reduce heat to 250 deg. Fahr. for 8 more hrs. which comes out to 9 hrs. roasting time in all. Remove from oven and with help remove to preheated platter and keep warm.

To make gravy tip all juices from pan into small bowl and carefully skim off fat. (I had 1 cup.) To make 4½ cups gravy measure ¼ cup fat into roasting pan; add ¼ cup flour to blend. To fat-free pan juices add enough hot water (or bland vegetable liquids) to make 4 cups. Stir into fat-flour mixture until thick. Taste - test gravy for salt. Serve in preheated gravy boat.

Be sure that carving knife is razor sharp to help your carver show off his skill.

NOTE: I am particularly proud of the above stuffing, and hope you share my enthusiasm. Clip this column for reference on Christmas Eve.

Poster Dramatizes the Dangers of Smoking

By DORIS CLARK

I am looking at a cartoon of a rather long and large fetus, clipped recently from a leaflet of instructions on two sets of cigarettes. A section of the fetus' body, from its head to its navel is face with eyes closed, and in gross position. Presumably it is the mother's body is stretched out within the cigarette, which serves as a coffin.

This poster is one of the graphic ways in which Canada's Department of Health and Welfare dramatizes the threat which smoking poses to Canadians.

Dear Doris: I am 37 years old, with four children, and the best husband in the world. I work with two women. One has four children also and a good husband. The other is married 11 years with no children.

They have been having a heated discussion with me and declare they would like to have a romantic, beautiful affair with another man. They have been trying to get me to admit that I would like this too. They say that all women feel this way and that there is something wrong with me if I don't.

Do you think I am wrong for shocked, in saying and feeling that I am satisfied with the man I have? — Hopefully — Normal.

Dear Hopefully: This business of "everybody's doing it" has been the downfall of many a trusting soul. Think of the girls who get talked into giving the fruit because some wise guy persuaded them that all the girls do it.

Then there's the socialite salesman who is talked into taking a drink with the boys because all the fellows do — and ends up an alcoholic or gets fired for drinking on the job or drives himself into an accident.

There are wife - swapping parties and mate - sharing arrangements among certain fast crowds, but with mature and loyal married couples, monogamy is still a prized code of behavior. Take it from Dr. Doris — you are normal, or I'm a monkey's aunt.!

Dear Doris: I would like your 16-cent leaflet, "A Salute To Seniors." It may be what my husband and I need to help him find an outlet for his time and energy in retirement, which has begun for us in a way. We are 65 and 67.

My husband has a great need emotionally to be involved with people, helping them. He is very young in spirit. — Second Career.

Dear Second Career: All of us are the same people inside, no matter what age we get to be. We need things to do, people to mix with and a sense of satisfaction in accomplishment.

The Salute to Seniors gives across interesting examples of people who are making their mark in a retirement activity which suits their supply of energy as well as their personalities.

Take a look at your husband's special interests. Often the success story shows a definite connection between the skills and knowledge used in the first career and the second one. Or, he might turn what was a hobby into a part-time job.

(Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

Death Sentence Deadline

Impatient Guerrillas Threaten to Kill Swiss Ambassador

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — The guerrilla kidnappers of Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Bucher produced new terms for his release Tuesday night and said they would kill him if the government did not co-operate.

They warned the government that on reply to their latest proposals, a refusal to accede, or continuation of a police manhunt for them would be considered a break in negotiations and would result in Bucher's death, informed sources said.

"We are firm concerning the carrying out of the death sentence as soon as the negotiations are broken," a note from the guerrillas said.

The new proposals insisted on the release of 13 of the 19 political prisoners the government had refused to include as part of an exchange for Bucher's life.

The release of the 13 along with 31 other prisoners the government already has agreed to release would bring the figure to 44.

They said that as soon as the government agreed to the new terms, the guerrillas would send a new list of six names to bring the number of prisoners back to 19, the number originally included in the kidnappers' list of detainees to be released.

The note was left Tuesday night in the Rio suburb of Tijuca and was found after an anonymous telephone call to the newspaper O Globo.

The government replied Monday that it was prepared to fly 15 of the prisoners out of the country.

The secret police Tuesday night released Francois Pelou, chief correspondent here for Agence France-Presse after questioning him for more than 36 hours about a letter he received from the kidnappers.

Pelou had been held since Monday night after he was given a letter containing the kidnappers' demands at a street corner rendezvous Friday following an anonymous telephone call.

Pelou handed the letter to the French embassy, which passed it on to the government.

His release came after appeals from the foreign press club here and from leading Brazilian editors.

Pelou said after his release that he had been given four days to leave the country.

St. Pierre-Miquelon

Island Coup Off Canada Wartime Concern

LONDON (CP) — A swipe in control of two little islands of the Newfoundland coast sent a shiver of worry through the wartime Anglo-American high command anxious to maintain good relations with the French Vicky regime.

When the Free French seized St. Pierre-Miquelon in a coup d'etat, U.S. State Secretary Cordell Hull let the Combined Chiefs of Staff know in 1942 that he would like to see the British government re-establish the status quo.

The Americans were worried that otherwise the Vicky regime might throw out U.S. "observers" from France and North Africa, turn over French ships and bases to Nazi Germany and collaborate with the Japanese in the south Pacific.

Field Marshal Sir John Dill, heading the British side of the combined chiefs "agreed with the importance of retaining relations with the Vichy French."

He also had in mind "the danger of the French fleet and bases being turned over to Germany as well as losing important information should the ships and observers be elected."

Details of this high-placed concern pop up as the lid is lifted on 100 volumes of hitherto secret and somewhat startling deliberations of this all-powerful wartime body.

The documents, with their careful legalistic pronouncements, convey the impression of a war conducted from an ivory tower or of judgments handed down from a remote supreme court far removed from the emotion and upheaval of the battlefield.

Occasionally, the dominance of American political power emerges even to the point where that oft-quoted personal friendship between the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Franklin Roosevelt is brushed aside.

For example, in 1944 Mackenzie King wanted the allies to acknowledge publicly that the supreme commanders in Europe derived their authority over Canadian troops directly from the Canadian government.

But the combined chiefs recorded in their secret documents that Roosevelt wanted it made clear that the supreme commanders get their authority through the combined chiefs and not directly from the governments.

Then follows a paragraph in which Mackenzie King is described as saying he no longer wanted any public statement. He merely wanted the commanders to be notified that they exercised their command over the Canadian troops "with the full authority of the Canadian government."

This request was repeated as the president who had no further reservations and the British military chiefs recommended that the commanders get a directive along the revised Mackenzie King line.

Metro Winnipeg Restructured

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government today unveiled proposals aimed at both unifying and decentralizing local government for Greater Winnipeg's 476,000 inhabitants.

The proposals call for a single central council to carry out most of the functions now performed by the area's 12 municipalities and one regional authority, while community committees at the borough level would perform minor administrative functions and "provide ready access by the people to the local government system."

The proposed community committees would have no taxing power, nor would they be able to hire or fire staff.

The proposals were prepared by a group of consultants under Finance Minister Saul Cherniack.

A timetable appended to the report says public hearings will be held on the proposals in time for preparation of legislation at the next session of the legislature, expected in late winter or early spring.

Nominations and elections would be held in the fall of 1971, with the new central council to take office Jan. 1, 1972.

The government proposals follow by less than one month a report of the Local Government Boundaries Commission, a 15-member body set up in 1969 to study municipal re-organization.

Only Remaining Injury Looms Large for Skidding Wings

DETROIT (CP) — "Every-body except Ilwy Edwards is back and they're all healthy," says Sid Abel, general manager of Detroit Red Wings.

However, the skidding Wings—now in sixth place in the tough Eastern Division of the National Hockey League—don't is one big exception at the mo-ment.

The Wings play host Wednesday to league-leading Boston Bruins, then take on New York Rangers three times in four.

And Detroit hasn't a seasoned goalie in sight.

"Edwards hasn't even started skating yet," Abel said Tues-day. "And when he does come back, he'll have to wear a hel-met for a long, long time."

Edwards, Wings' only experi-enced netminder since the trade last June that sent Roger Cro-zier to Buffalo Sabres for winger Tom Webster, suffered a ballstics skull fracture during a loss to St. Louis Blues.

The Wings went with Don McLeod, Edwards's back-up goalie, last Saturday and were beaten 8-1 by Pittsburgh Pen-guins. Sunday, McLeod and Jim Rutherford—up from Port Worth—worked in games and lowest 7-3 in California Golden Seals.

"For Boston, we're going with Rutherford to see if we can get something moving," Abel said.

Coach Ned Harkness, since the twin defeats of the previous weekend, "has been performing miles to come up with a work-able combination.

"Gordie Howe came back and played sparingly on Saturday but he took a regular turn for the first time Sunday," Abel said.

"He was one of the few guys who played well. He says he has almost no pain in his injured shoulder anymore."

Dr. John Plasky of the Wings' medical staff said, "I've never seen as many injuries as we've had this year."

"Last year we only had to keep one player overnight in hospital. I guess the law of av-erages is catching up with us."

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Douglas Kinnear, team physi-cian for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, Tuesday gave defenceman Jacques Laperriere permission to return to action.

Laperriere, 29, sat in his club's saloon with the club, has been sidelined by a pinched nerve in his neck. He suffered the injury in a game here against Vancouver Oct. 31, when he crashed heavily into the boards by Canucks' rugged centre Orland Kurtenbach.

The defen' advised Laperriere to scrimmage with the Ameri-can Hockey League Voyageurs and the Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series, until the NHL club returns from an extensive road trip later this week.

After practice with the Cana-diens, it is hoped Laperriere will play either Dec. 20 or Jan.

It when the Pittsburgh Penguins visit the Canadiens.

Dr. Kinnear said right winger Claude Larose, who suffered a broken nose in a game against the Canucks in Vancouver last Friday, will not be fit to play before Dec. 30.

TORONTO (CP) — Defence-man Brad Selwood has received permission to resume skating with Toronto Maple Leafs and team doctors say he may par-ticipate in practice sessions with-in about 10 days.

The 23-year-old Leamington, Ont., native suffered several broken bones in his back when he crashed into a goal post dur-ing a National Hockey League game in Montreal a month ago.

Working his way back into the Leafs' defensive rotation may be difficult unless one of the six other rearguards is injured or the club hits a slump.

The team is carrying a six-game winning streak into their Wednesday night encounter with Vancouver Canucks and coach John McLellan has his blue line manned by Bobby Baun, Jim Dorey, Mike Pelyk, Brian Glen-nie, Jim McKenny and Rick Ley.

Balon, Seals Full Of Tricks

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Dave Balon keeps doing the unexpected, New York Rangers are going to have to take an-other look at his credentials.

And if California Golden Seals continue to do the unexpected, several National Hockey League West-Division clubs are going to have to consider the Seals def-inite threats to their playoff hopes.

Balon, 32, scored three goals Tuesday night as the Rangers romped to a 7-3 win over the hapless Buffalo Sabres in an East-Division meeting while California finally got out of the West-Division cellar, defeating the division-leading Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 for their fourth straight victory.

Balon, who reached a career high of 33 goals with his first three-goal night in the big leagues in the final game of the 1968-69 season against Detroit, has been used almost exclu-sively on New York's checking line with Pete Stemkowski and Bob Nevin.

His three goals and two as-sists against the Sabres, last in the East, gave him 25 points, in-cluding 17 goals, and the Rangers moved into a tie-for-place tie with Boston, each with 40 points.

The Waldsee, Sask.-born left winger spent most of his minor professional career in the Rangers' system before being claimed by Montreal Canadiens prior to the 1963-64 season.

The Canadiens didn't protect him from the 1967 expansion teams and he wound up on the Minnesota North Stars roster when Emile Francis, New York's general-manager and coach, became convinced he should be back in a Ranger uni-form.

Balon scored only 10 goals his first term back but enjoyed his best season ever last year with 76 points, joining linemates Walt Tkaczuk and Bill Fairbairn as the second highest scoring line in the NHL.

The Golden Seals meanwhile may have found the formula to survive in their own division.

Their victory over Chicago, which moved them into sixth place ahead of Los Angeles, was only the second against teams from their own division this sea-son. The other nine victories have been at the expense of the established East Divis ion.the established East Division clubs.

The win gave them their four-game winning streak, which includes two victories over Detroit and one against Philadelphia Flyers, their first over a West Division opponent.

The Black Hawks, who had lost only once in their own divi-sion while building a nine-point lead in the West, took a 1-0 lead on Bobby Hull's 17th of the sea-son at 1:38 of the first period.

Rookie Chicago defenceman Jerry Korab was assigned a game misconduct at 4:14 of the second period when he tussled with a linesman.

Orr Appeals to Younger Set

Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins' hockey star, gets an enthusiastic response from Lori, 5, and Bette Ann McKenzie, 9, as he escorts them around the ice at Boston Garden Monday after-noon at the Bruins' Christmas party. The girls are daughters of his teammate, John McKenzie. Orr sports a puffy black eye from Sunday's match with Minnesota North Stars.

Attention Turning To Coaches

OTTAWA (CP) — A national coaches organization is to be formed in Canada with govern-ment financial help, Health Min-ister John Munro told a news conference Tuesday.

Its aim will be to improve the calibre of coaching and upgrade Canadian competitors in na-tional and international events.

John Hudson of Toronto, one-time national track and field coach, has been named execu-tive-director of the organization.

Among his assistants will be Lloyd Percival, now president of the Fitness Institute of To-ronto.

The organization has been given space in the government-provided sports administration building in Ottawa. The govern-ment picks up the usual office expenses, including stationery, and pays the salary of the exec-utive-director.

Hudson said the planned pro-gram will extend to the roughly 50,000 amateur coaches in Can-ada, including those who volun-teer to coach in the thousands of minor hockey leagues.

Penguin Sale Not Solvent?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Post-Gazette says the sale of Pittsburgh Penguins to Metro-media has fallen through and the National Hockey League will now prepare for bids on the team.

The newspaper quotes presi-dent Clarence Campbell of the NHL as saying Metromedia was reported to have decided not to buy the club because it did not want to enter the sports field at this time.

"We are not panicky," Campbell is quoted as saying. "We had hoped that Metrome-dia would go through with the purchase. For future bids, we will sit down and lay some ground rules. We want to do ev-erything possible to avoid a bidding war."

The Post-Gazette says Camp-bell felt that because hockey crowds in Pittsburgh were in-creasing this would lend assur-ance the club would remain here after it is sold.

The league assumed control of the club Dec. 1 from the owner, Donald Parsons, because of an overdue note of $3.5 million owned the Mel National Bank.

Sale price of the Penguins is re-ported to be $5.5 million.

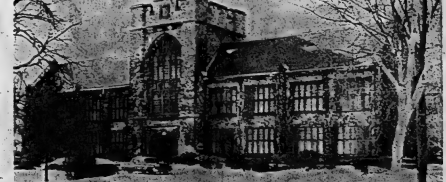
Hull Behind Bruin Gang

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull and Jean Ratelle were the only leaders in the Na-tional Hockey League's scoring race to make any gains after two scheduled games Tuesday night.



Hull scored his 17th goal of the season in a losing effort as Chicago Black Hawks were stopped 3-2 by the lowly Califor-nia Golden Seals. Hull remained in fifth place with 40 points, one point behind Boston Bruins' John McKenzie.

Ratelle contributed an assist as New York 7-3 drubbing of Buffalo Sabres, moving the Ranger centre alone into sev-enth place with 26 points, in-cluding 17 goals.

Boston's Phil Esposito has a healthy lead in the scoring race with 64 points, 34 ahead of team-mate Bobby Hull.

Colts Cautious About Underestimating Playoff Opposition

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Don McCafferty says Baltimore Colts expect to face "a bunch of hornets" Saturday when they entertain Cincinnati Bengals in a National Football League playoff game.

The Colts, whom 11-3-1 record this season was the second best in the NFL, have all the statistics on their side. But the Bengals lost up to 8-8 by finishing the season with seven straight victories, most of them upsets.

Detroit Lions visit Dallas Cowboys in a second playoff clash Saturday. Sunday, San Francisco 49ers come east to face Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins travel to the opposite direction to meet Oakland Raiders.

McCafferty, who took over the Baltimore coaching job this season, knows from personal experience what Cincinnati coach Paul Brown can do for a football team.

"When I played for Brown at Ohio State in 1943 he got us so psyched up that we beat the Iowa Pre-Flight team something like 43-14," he recalled.

The Iowa team, made up of former college stars and professionals, won every other game it played that season. But the triumphant Buckeyes went on to take the national collegiate title.

Two years earlier, a high school team coached by Brown scrimmaged against Kent State University and won 23-0.

"I always thought he was a great organizer and a great teacher," McCafferty said. "And, of course, he was a great psychologist."

Apart from the coaches, the experience is all on the side of the Colts, whose quarterback, Johnny Unitas, is in his 19th year as a pro as against three years for his opposite number, Virgil Carter. The Baltimore starting defensive unit totals 49 years' experience to the Bengals' 20.

McCafferty is not impressed by the statistics although he admits surprise that the Bengals have come this far in their three years of existence.

"After looking at films we can see they are a well-coached and scrappy outfit," he said. "And they have the best over-all team speed we've seen all year."

The role of underdog also pleases Lefty Jordan, the Cowboys' middle linebacker, who has been frowned Dallas teams knocked out of the playoffs five times in a row. He feels these teams peaked too early.

"Everybody is thinking positive," he said. "We have more confidence than anything. Maybe we have lacked this in the past."

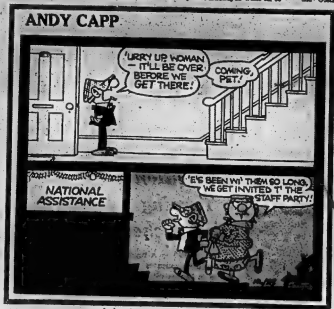
This time, the Cowboys had to win their last five games to make it, playing their last 17 quarters without permitting an enemy touchdown. Jordan said the five weeks have been the greatest of his career.

"Everybody is thinking positive," he said. "We have more confidence than anything. Maybe we have lacked this in the past."

Lions Woo Keys

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver is in the midst of a constitutional crisis involving its British Columbia Lions football club, and Eagle Keys is in town.

This may or may not mean something in the Western Football Conference club's comic-opera search for a so-called "superboss," an executive general manager who would lead the Lions onward and ever-upward from their second-to-last finish last season.



Lions president Ian Barclay has called a news conference for this afternoon which may or may not unfog the situation.

Apparently, the idea was a that coach Jackie Parker would assume the superboss job, but only on condition he could lure Keys away from Saskatchewan Roughriders to take over as Lions' head coach.

The Parker-Keys package was recommended by a special committee and approved by a directors' meeting Dec. 11.

A director who was not present then was Senator Ed Lawson, who launched a counter-attack at a news conference Tuesday.

The crux of the senator's charge was that the committee named to recommend a new executive general manager had exceeded its authority in negotiating also for a head coach.

Ousted Chiefs Top Ballots

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterbacks Bob Griese of Miami Dolphins and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland Raiders were named Tuesday to the 40-man squad that will represent the American Football Conference in the first AFC-NFC Pro Bowl Game in Los Angeles, Jan. 24.

The Kansas City Chiefs, last year's Super Bowl champions who have been eliminated from contention this season, dominated the balloting with 19 players named. The Raiders, who edged the Chiefs for the Western Division title, had seven players selected.

Every team placed at least one man on the squad, although under the rules of selection each club did not have to be represented.

The team was selected by a vote of the 13 AFC head coaches, who could not submit a ballot for any member of their own team. The squad has 26 offensive players, 12 defensive players, a punter, a placekicker and a return specialist.

The 40-man squad:

OFFENCE

Wide receivers—Marlin Briscoe, Buffalo; Gary Garrison, San Diego; Paul Warfield, Miami; Warren Wells, Oakland.

Tight ends—Ray Chester, Oakland; Bob Trumpy, Cincinnati.

Tackles—Winston Hill, New York; Harry Schuh, Oakland; Jim Tyrer, Kansas City.

Centres—Jon Morris, Boston; Jim Otto, Oakland.

Quarterbacks—Bob Griese, Miami; Daryle Lamonica, Oakland.

Running backs—Larry Csonka, Miami; Hewritt Dixon, Oakland; Leroy Kelly, Cleveland; Floyd Little, Denver.

DEFENCE

Tackles—Buck Buchanan, Kansas City; John Elliott, New York; Joe Greene, Pittsburgh.

Outside linebackers—Bobby Bell, Kansas City; Jim Houston, Cleveland; Andy Russell, Pittsburgh.

Cornerbacks—Willie Brown, Oakland; Jim Marshall, Kansas City; Zeke Moore, Houston.

Safeties—Ken Houston, Houston; Jerry Logan, Baltimore; Johnny Robinson, Kansas City.

Packers Looking for Coach Again

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Confidence and camaraderie, two vital ingredients of Green Bay Packers during the Vince Lombardi era, were less prominent this past season on the National Football League team.

Whether the Packers' decline from two-time Super Bowl champions to also—runs in the National Conference's Central Division, and Tuesday's resignation of Phil Bengtson as coach and general manager, can be traced to the apparent cooling is a point of conjecture.

The 57-year-old Bengtson's resignation ended a dismal three-year stretch that saw the Pack win 20 games while losing 21 and tying once. This year's mark of 6-8 was the worst for the Green-and-Gold since 1958 when they posted a 1-10-1 record.

The 1959 season saw Lombardi take over the reins of a chronic loser and elevate the club to the role of champion.

One of Lombardi's first moves as Packer coach-general manager was to hire Bengtson as his defensive coach. Through astute trades and recognizing his players' strong points—and their weak ones—Lombardi was able to mould a good, if not great, team.

He added confidence—his own—and demanded camaraderie. The Packers then were no longer a team, but a close-knit family.

To be fair, Bengtson didn't walk into a powerhouse when he took over.

Retired from those Green Bay teams that rolled over Kansas City and Oakland Raiders in the first two Super Bowls are Kramer, tackle Bob Skoronski, defensive tackle Henry Jordan, defensive end Willie Davis, flanker Carroll Dowler, guard Fuzzy Thurston, quarterback Zeke Bratkowski, receiver Max McGee and kicker Don Chandler.

Gone also, through trades, are linebackers Lee Roy Caffey and Jim Flanigan, defensive backs Herb Adderley and Tom Brown, running backs Elijah Pitts, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung, tight end Marv Fleming and defensive tackle Ron Kostelnik, among others.

Double Exposure?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Gene Washington is the leading receiver for San Francisco 49ers.

Gene Washington is the leading receiver for Minnesota Vikings.

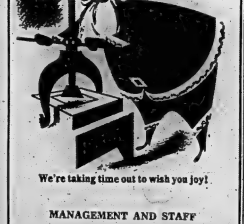
That's correct—there will be Gene Washington on both sides at 1 p.m. Sunday at Metropolitan Stadium when the 49ers and Vikings collide in a National Football Conference semi-final playoff.

The similarities don't stop in the names. Both also starred in track and baseball in high school. Both were first-round draft picks Minnesota's Gene in 1967 and San Francisco's Washington in 1968.

Their trademark is speed.

"I would say their Gene Washington is probably quicker," said Jerry Burns, Vikings' offensive coach, "and he probably catches the ball a little better on the inside."

"But our Washington," said Burns, "has better deep speed and our Washington can go up higher for the ball. They are both outstanding receivers—good soft hands and quick."



Minnesota's Washington stands 6-foot-3 and weighs 204 pounds. He came out of Michigan State and LaPorte, Tex. This year, he caught 44 passes for 705 yards and four touchdowns, while often double and tripled-teamed.

There'll be one big difference when the Washingtons meet Sunday — Washington wears No. 84 in the Viking purple. Washington wears No. 18 for the 49ers.

So Near, Yet So Far!

BRAMALEA (Special) — For 59 minutes and 59½ seconds of play the Rollins Construction peewees appeared to be on their way to a thrilling win over the Bramalea Lions Club Tournament title.

The host Chinguacousy team applied the coup de grace to the road for the Belleville all-stars, however, by scoring with half a second to play in regulation time to tie the score at 3-1.

The home team had pulled their goalie for an extra attacker in the last minute of play and banged it in on a cross pass from a scramble in the corner.

"That goal gave them a lift and they were really flying in the overtime period," noted Rollins' manager Glenn Hamilton. Chinguacousy scored twice in the extra period to record a 3-1 win and advance to the semi - finals against Riverside.

The winner of that game was to meet Bowmanville tonight for the championship.

Bobby Crawford collected his eighth goal in five games for Rollins, converting a pass from Tony Meagher.

Rollins had won three games in the double knockout tournament before taking overtime losses to Bowmanville and Chinguacousy.

Mo-Hawks Had One That Got Away

Bob Wilson Ready to Help

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

A lot of the talk around the Belleville Ma-Hawk dressing room after Tuesday night's 5-3 minor hockey win over Kingston Aces was about the goal that got away.

It could have been more important than the five the Mo-Hawks did get in racking up their fourth win in their last five OHA Senior A starts.

"It was in all the way," said Dave Jones, who propelled the shot early in the third period with the Mo-Hawks enjoying a 3-2 advantage.

Jones' low shot from the left side appeared to enter the net and continue right on through to the backboards.

The south-end red light went on but referee Tom Brown immediately waved his arms to signify no goal.

While the Mo-Hawks started to prepare their arguments, Kingston defenceman Pete Ford bustled the puck up-ice and tied the game 3-3.

"There's no way the puck could go where it did if it hadn't gone through the net," said Jones. "Everyone on the bench saw it in. Kingston was laughing at us."

The WF paid admissions foiled referee Brown's ruling anything but scoring. Two tin cans and even a loose bottle (empty) were thrown onto the ice while the Mo-Hawks both protested the play.

Fortunately for the Mo - Hawks, George Godson had the last word, finishing off a pretty three-way effort from Ray Johnston and Lionel Roby at 7.28 for what proved to be the winning goal.

Wayne McConnell assured the win — the Mo-Hawks' fourth in five meetings with the Aces — when he bounced one from the blueline that skidded Kingston goalie Mike Lowell at 12.38.

McConnell also scored a pretty second - period goal on a perfect George Godson set-up to give him five in the last four games.

Doug Senior and Dave Jones scored for the locals in the opening 20 minutes after Tom Tharby's point shot ricocheted in off a skate to give the Aces the lead in the game's first minute.

The Aces opened the scoring in each period, with Bob Clayton scoring a classy two-on - one goal in the second and Pete Ford cashing in while the Mo-Hawks were arguing their disallowed goal early in the third.

Goalie Mike Lovett, who has been a key figure in the rising Kingston fortunes of recent weeks, did not enjoy one of his better nights. In addition to being outhampered by McConnell's long blaster in the final two minutes, he was the goat on Dave Jones' first - period goal.

With both sides playing four aside after altercations between Mo-Hawks Ray Johnston and Bob Wilson and Aces Pete Ford and Ken Reid, Jones beat Lovett in a loose puck, side-stepped him and slid it into the yawning net.

Meanwhile, Steve Rexe continued to hold a hot hand in the Belleville nets. Rexe, who has allowed only 11 goals in the last five games, preserved a 4-3 lead with ten minutes remaining in the game when he stopped Bob Clayton on a breakaway.

The game had two third - period casualties: Mo-Hawk captain Ralph Place, who lost a tooth and suffered a bad gash to his lower lip from a Kingston player's stick, and referee Brown, whose head was accidentally laid open by a player's stick.

The game was delayed while Brown adjourned to the dressing room for minor repairs.

Now 11-12, and one point behind the fourth - place Aces, the Mo-Hawks have a chance to even their season's record in a Sunday road trip to Woodstock.

A New Year's Day game with the last-place A's in Belleville has been cancelled.

Fairways' Road Trip Enjoys Kingston Success

KINGSTON (Special) — One label you certainly can't pin on the Belleville Fairways is that of "homers".

The Belleville B's bounced back from a 9-6 home ice loss to Oshawa Sunday by stopping the Kingston Frontenacs 7-4 here Tuesday night.

The Fairways now have a win and a tie in their two encounters in the Limestone City, while dropping both home ice games to the Frontenacs.

Goalie Ron Jury was a major factor in the win, turning aside 45 of the 49 shots he faced, while D'Arcy Wallers in the Kingston net was busted 26 times.

"Ron played really well for us", praised coach Floyd Crawford. "Not then he always seems to come up with a good game in Kingston."

Crawford also lauded the work of his defensive corps, particularly in the first two periods when they helped hold the third-place Frontenacs to a pair of goals.

First period goals by Dave Higgins and John Roden had given the home team a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period as they sandwiched a score by Belleville's Brian O'Cole.

O'Cole was shifted from right wing to centre for the contest and responded with a three goal performance, teaming with wingers Tim Yohn and Dave Ferguson as the club's most effective forward combination.

Defenseman John Mulvihill tallied the key goal of the game for Belleville with a drive from the blueline at 2.31 of the final frame following a scoreless second period.

Crawford re-united the line of Denny Lapenotte, Dave Smith and Cliff Jenkins and the move payed of as Lapenotte counted what proved to be the winning goal, potting a 30-footer behind Wallers after O'Cole and Joe Clarke had added to Mulvihill's third period tally.

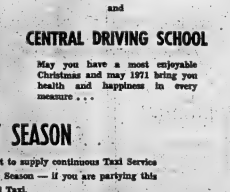
O'Cole's third goal of the game brought the score to 6-3, while Tom Nesmith notched Kingston's final score at 18.07 of the third period.

Dennis "Trudy" McCormack finished off the scoring at 19.41 of the final frame sinking a rebound after Wallers had foiled Joe Clarke on a breakaway.

The hard-working left winger is home on holidays from McMaster University and will be available for the Fairways next few games. McCormack turned in a strong skating performance on a line with Clarke and Rod Palmer.

The losers drew seven of the game's 11 penalties including a rejecondict to Dave Higgins.

The Fairways have a chance to snap their home ice jinx when they meet the last place Trenton Golden Hawks in an 8 p.m. game Sunday.



Hawks Still Hapless

The loss was the 13th in 14 games for the hapless Hawks. Paul Lavoedge scored the only Trenton goal.

FLQ Suspects Subject To Some Mistreatment

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-man committee investigating the detention of persons under the War Measures Act says the prisoners have received adequate medical treatment but reports several instances of inadequate prison facilities and abuse of prisoners by police.

The progress report by a committee of the Civil Liberties Union was prepared for the union's Tuesday night meeting.

The three men, who visited 120 of about 450 persons detained under the emergency measures, blame police influence for much of the mistreatment reported to them by prisoners.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Tuesday that the more than 40 persons still in jail awaiting trial on charges laid under the War Measures Act will not be released on bail for the Christmas holidays.

The report says that when the committee made its first visit to the cells in the Montreal headquarters of the provincial police, prisoners "were being held in conditions unworthy of a civilized country."

Jacques Hebert, Montreal publisher, economist Roland Parenteau and Dominican priest Jacques Tellier say in their report they have "good reason to believe that under detention authorities are not involved" in mistreatment of prisoners and denial of their rights.

The report says that in some detention centres, particularly those outside Montreal, "detention officials were subject to pressure from provincial police authorities, notwithstanding the fact that the latter have no power over the former."

"The pressure was in every instance aimed at the same goal: Keeping the persons arrested under the War Measures Act in total isolation, without the privilege of communication with the outside world."

Until Oct. 30, the committee says, access detained under the War Measures Act were held inconsistencies, although the emergency act does not deny prisoners the right to communicate with a lawyer or next of kin, to receive visits from those persons, to write letters or to read newspapers and listen to radio and television newscasts.

"We suggest that an inquiry should be made into the reasons that led to denying prisoners the rights publicly recognized as theirs by the minister of justice."

In spite of a statement Oct. 29 by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, some prisoners remained incommunicado for several days or weeks, the committee says.

Of the 120 persons interviewed by the committee, "five or six claim to have been struck by police officers or to have received blows during questioning."

Another five or six claimed they were forced to exercise until exhausted, the report says, and others were questioned for up to 19 hours "in an attempt to break down their nerve."

The committee says two women complained of being forced to strip in front of police while a large number of those questioned complained of "verbal threats and invective used by the police during questioning."

Several prisoners told the committee they had filed written complaints about their treatment and the reports say all such cases were submitted in writing to Quebec Ombudsman Louis Marceau.

In relaying the situation as reported by the prisoners, the report emphasizes that "only a small number complained about their treatment during questioning."

"Some even commended the police for their fair and courteous treatment during searches or questioning.

"Even if several complaints are proved true, they would appear to involve only a few individuals in the police force."

The committee began its investigation Oct. 28, 12 days after the War Measures Act was invoked to combat Quebec terrorists, and noticed that its visits to detention centres were accompanied by certain changes:

—Release of prisoners "mostly those in accord" as the committee prepared to visit a centre.

—Improvements in detention facilities were made shortly before or after visits by the committee.

—Lawyers and next of kin were allowed to visit the prisoners.

The committee visited 13 detention centres in Montreal, Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Hull, Roberval, St. Jerome, Baie Comeau, Rimouski and Amos.

As well as criticizing the "ancient character" of some of the prison buildings, the committee referred to certain "useless and unjustified penalties such as a severely restricted diet imposed at Orsainville Prison in Quebec."

Police cells on the fourth floor of provincial police headquarters in Montreal are inadequate for long-term detention, the report says, but were used to hold prisoners for as long as five weeks.

The report is critical of these facilities where ten prisoners were kept in "tiny cells" 24 hours a day, lights were never turned off, there was no regular access to showers, contact service was generally withheld, prisoners were denied books, paper, pencils and games and reported that calls were excessively hot or cold.

The committee says after it reconsulted certain changes "it fails to understand the slowness with which the police introduced changes as well as that turning off the lights at night."

It is difficult to understand, the report says, why persons were kept in jail as long as 15 days before being questioned.

"Often, after some very sketchy questioning, a person failed for as long as a week or a fortnight was immediately set free. . . .

Ford Talks Continue

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Negotiations between Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers union went into the sub-committee level Tuesday in an effort to resolve non-economic issues.

A company spokesman for the negotiating committee said talks Tuesday were mainly concerned with about 100 local problems, including production standards, health programs, security, in-plant working conditions, foremen's duties and overtime.

He said no difficulty was anticipated in solving the economic issues when they come up.

Talks were expected to continue today and then recess until Monday.

Dennis McDermott, UAW regional director, conferred with the union's negotiating committee Tuesday morning but did not take part in the negotiations.

Judge Ousts Defendants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three women defendants in the Sharon Tate murder trial have been banned from court permanently after a melee in which a prosecutor took a swing at one of them.

Judge Charles Older told lawyers Tuesday the three would not be readmitted until the jury reaches a verdict.

Charles Manson, 36, Ivy flyer in the six-month-old trial, also was ejected for speaking out of turn, but it was expected he would be allowed back.

The disruption came as defendant Leslie Van Houten, 21, demanded the firing of a lawyer appointed by the court to replace defense lawyer Ronald Hughes who vanished mysteriously Nov. 3 while on a camping trip in a wilderness area.

The judge refused the long-haired brunette's request, and other defendants joined in leveling taunts at him.

As Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi resumed his closing arguments in the room recess, Miss Van Houten was heard shouted: "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I have a defiance to put on!"

"Wait a while, wait a while, wait a while!" shouted Bugliosi. "Take the stand if you want to do that."

Shouted Miss Van Houten: "I've been trying to do that and you haven't let me. She was ordered out.

The prosecutor then tried to resume his recapitulation of testimony by Barbara Hoyt, a former member of Manson's hippie-style "family." Suddenly, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, arose and shouted: "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, Barbara Hoyt is supposed to have had LSD!"

The judge ordered her out, but she scuffled with deputies, kicking and flailing her arms. As she passed Bugliosi's lectern, she grabbed some of his notes, crumpling them.

Bugliosi reached for her hand, then swung his arm at her, not connecting.

He said: "You bitch."

As the shaken prosecutor resumed for a third time, defendant Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, leaped from her chair and yelled: "You people and your green have tried to make us a product!" As she was dragged out by two bailiffs, she shouted: "You people are going to be rotten up by your own lies!"

The judge called lawyers to a bench conference and told them the women would have to listen from now on through loudspeakers in adjoining rooms.

Labor Negotiators To Be Busy in 1971

TORONTO (CP) — More than 4,000 labor contracts will expire in Ontario in 1971, making it a busier year than 1970 when 3,500 collective agreements were negotiated.

Of the expiring agreements, 1,533 are in the construction industry. The others are in manufacturing, transportation, trade, services and public administration.

The provincial labor department said in a year-end statement that bargaining will be heaviest in the spring and again toward the end of the year.

Construction-industry contracts expire April 30 in Toronto, Windsor, London, Ottawa, Kingston, Hamilton, Kitchener-Waterloo, Oshawa and Sudbury. Another seven contracts cover the whole province and involve bricklayers, sheet-metal workers, carpenters, painters, labourers, operating engineers and plumbers.

Major non-construction bargaining units involved include those at Canada Packers, J. M. Schneider, Firestone Tire and Rubber, Goodyear Tire and Rubber, Uniroyal, Ontario Steel Products, Hayes-Dana, de Havilland Aircraft, National Steel Car, Toronto General Hospital, Douglas Aircraft, Polymer Corp. and Canadian General Electric.

Despite some major strikes in 1970 the number of man-days lost through strikes and lockouts was lower than in 1969.

The department said 2,238,600 man-days were lost in 212 work stoppages involving 71,450 employees in the first 11 months of 1970.

In the whole of 1969 there were 2,422,890 lost man-days in 236 work stoppages involving 130,000 workers.

The strike by General Motors of Canada's employees represents 78 per cent of the man-days lost during the first 11 months of 1970.

That strike, involving 23,500 GM workers, and company subsidiaries, cost 1,292,500 man-days by the end of November. By the time the strike ended Dec. 18, the loss was 1,821,500 man-days.

By the end of November, department of labor conciliation officers had handled 2,066 disputes involving 2,422 employers and 362,620 employees. They settled 898 and referred five to conciliation boards.

Mediators involved in 305 disputes also were busy. Of the 143 disputes in which there was threat of work stoppage, mediators got 96 settlements and six disputes lapsed. At the end of the year, mediators were still engaged in 37 of the 41 disputes in which a work stoppage had occurred.

High Level Shuffle Expected Today in Polish Parliament

WARSAW (Reuter) — Poland's 460 member Sejm parliament will meet today, an official said, and observers believed it would approve a high-level government reshuffle linked with last Sunday's purge of the Communist party leadership.

An official at the Sejm administrative office said the session would begin at 4 p.m., but gave no further details.

The government changes were understood to have been discussed at a meeting Tuesday of the 12-man politburo headed by the new party first secretary, Edward Gierek.

With the rioting ended in Poland's major ports and the state of emergency lifted, informed sources said veteran Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, 58, probably would be kicked upstairs to the presidency.

As president, a figurehead position without power, Cyrankiewicz would replace Marshal Marian Spychalski, 64, who resigned from the party's Politburo last Sunday with party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka and three others. Cyrankiewicz retained his politburo seat, which traditionally has been a requirement for the president since the Communists took over in Poland in 1944.

The new premier probably will be either Piotr Jaroszewicz, a new politburo member, or Stanislaw Kociolek, 57 years old and a new member of the party secretariat, observers said.

Both are vice-premiers. Jaroszewicz, 61, is a veteran of Polish politics and a leading economist. As a member of the party secretariat, Kociolek is one of the country's top executives. Gierek replaced Gomulka as party first secretary Sunday after riots and strikes last week touched off by major price increases.

The last strike, on the docks at Szczecin, was reported ending today after Warsaw radio reported that Gierek's regime had revealed the declaration of emergency the government issued last Thursday. The broadcast said the Szczecin dockyard's director reported no damage to installations and machinery "thanks to the attitude and understanding of our crew."

Plane and telephone service to Szczecin and Gdansk, where the rioting started, also were restored, but the all-night curfew was reported still in force in both ports.

Polish news media today depicted the country as rapidly returning to normal.

The government rescinded authority given the militia and other security forces last week to use guns if necessary to curb rioting and looting.

In Warsaw, diplomatic sources said they had information that Gomulka, whose resignation Sunday was officially attributed to ill health, was in fact seriously ill in a hospital.

A medical communique at the time of his replacement said Gomulka was suffering from a serious circulatory ailment impairing his eyesight.

Warsaw press commentaries lashed out harshly against the policies and methods of the former leader and his associates — but without mentioning names.

Articles implicitly accused them of governing autocratically, ignoring reality, and being out of touch with the workers.

Interpreting the News

Polish Riots Have Had World-wide Repercussions

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Poland's riots in the Baltic ports have splashed off ripples in all directions.

Not only has Polish Communist boss Wladyslaw Gomulka been toppled but there have been these major repercussions:

1. Red China has started picking on Russia again after an interlude of quiet in their long border and propaganda feud.

2. There now are some fears that the Polish crisis may result in the Warsaw pact countries slowing the pace of East-West negotiations leading to relaxation of tensions in Europe.

China was quick to jump in, through a Maoist newspaper, by accusing Russia—apparently truthfully—of sending troops into Poland to help crush the riots. Peking accused Russia of "colonialism" and warned that its action could result in turmoil elsewhere in Europe.

What China hopes to gain from this is problematical, except perhaps a minor propaganda win. In Europe, Albania is its only ally. Certainly Mao can't hope for many converts in Poland. The net result can be only to exacerbate Russo-Chinese relations.

On the diplomatic front with the West, Poland occupies a vital position in Soviet strategic policy. Not only is she a large country but she is a main line of communication between Russian territory and East Germany, where up to 20 Russian divisions are stationed.

Now the Russians undoubtedly will want to wait until the Polish internal situation has simmered down before yielding any progress in talks over the future of Berlin, which is an implacable condition of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization before it moves further toward a rapprochement with the Iron Curtain countries.

There also is some concern on the part of the West that continued turmoil in Poland could cause further delay in the slow-moving strategic arms limitation talks between Russia and the United States, another keystone of improved East-West relations.

A third source of worry is that Gomulka's successor—Edward Gierek—might support East Germany's hard line in foreign affairs and share its extreme caution in any negotiations which could lead to tension-lessening "detente."

However, Western diplomats see Gierek as a far better choice from this standpoint than Gen. Mieczslaw Moczar, the hard-line interior minister and secret police chief who has been reported ambitious to succeed Gomulka as party leader. Moczar went to the Polish politburo in the upheaval.

Diplomatic experts regard Gierek as a tough and independent politician who will not become the puppet of Moczar. He is looked on as a pragmatist who will buckle down to trying to solve Poland's festering economic problem. Whether he can do this and quieten the still-seething protests over living costs, only time will tell.

PE Asks Administrator To Delay Retirement

PICTON (Staf) — County councillors yesterday decided to request retiring county welfare administrator Grant Harvey to continue his duties for another month until his replacement can be appointed. Although a number of applications for the administrator's job have been received council agreed they should be forwarded to next year's finance and personnel committee for screening. For this reason it was suggested that county warden Gordon Lloyd consult with Mr. Harvey concerning a month's postponement of his resignation. The welfare administrator announced last month that he would resign his job, efective Dec. 31.

Tenders Too High

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board concluded its term of office last night by performing its last official act — opening tenders for the addition to St. Carthagh's School in Tweed.

But no contract was awarded. The lowest tenders came in at $25,000 more than the department of education had approved for grants.

The board instructed its business administrator to approach the department in Toronto to determine what further approvals may be obtained.

Five tenders were received, ranging from $214,200 to $21,-642. Second lowest tender was for $214,922. The department of education has given grants approval for $189,516 for construction of the 9,000-square-foot addition.

If approval is received and one of the lower tenders accepted, construction is expected to start in early March and be completed by Aug. 1, 1971.

Some Scientists Say Marijuana Will Be Socially Acceptable

LONDON (Reuter) — Marijuana smoking will become as socially acceptable within 10 years as tobacco or alcohol, a small but growing number of scientists says.

These proponents of "pot" say present laws against soft drugs in most years of the world are as unenforceable as the United States' ban on alcohol during the 1920-33 Prohibition period.

But the great majority of scientists oppose pot. They maintain it is often leads to the use of "killer" hard drugs such as heroin, opium and cocaine.

Soft and hard drugs have been used since ancient times, but not on the growing scale of the modern world. A Reader world survey shows dozens of medical and legal studies are under way to determine whether marijuana can take its place alongside alcohol and tobacco as a socially-acceptable way to relax.

Dr. Dale Cameron, a U.S. member of W.H.O.'s drug dependence committee, reports that 15 per cent of America's heroin addicts admitted starting with marijuana.

Last summer, President Nixon reported a preliminary government study of pot showed it was a greater health hazard than many people suspected. But the National Institute of Mental Health, which is conducting the study, has not drawn any final conclusions.

Secondly, a group appointed by Nixon to investigate the problem of individual violence stated that the use of marijuana was increasing at "a staggering pace." It recommended marijuana be legalized, mainly because present laws against its consumption were ineffective.

The trend in most countries has been to ureas or reduce penalties for soft drug users and increase the punishment for traffickers.

The South American republic of Colombia has ruled out pot smoking as a criminal offence.

In Denmark, too, the personal use or possession of small quantities does not lead to automatic prosecution.

Peter Schluter, a Danish government consultant on drugs, says, "We are convinced that if we criminalize the young people who use cannabis, we shall create bigger social problems than are created by its use."

In many Asian countries, soft drugs are used extensively, often without any legal penalties. Singapore officials pay that gaole, a local form of marijuana, is gaining popularity among the young despite a new government campaign against traffickers.

In Indonesia, the fine for casual pot smokers is only $13 but the government is preparing stiffer penalties after an influx of hippies to beautiful Bali island.

Hong Kong, a centre for opium smokers, is too concerned about its hard drug problem to worry much about marijuana. But in Thailand, Malaysia and South Korea, soft drug laws are tougher than ever.

The Philippines takes a lenient view toard pot. An estimated four out of five students in some colleges use it. In Japan, authorities take a harsh line against drug usage.

A public opinion poll in Australia last month showed 84 per cent of those questioned were against legalizing pot.

The French government makes no distinction between marijuana and hard drugs. A senior ministry spokesman said, "Marijuana is the first step toward heroin. Our attitude will not change."

Spain and Italy adopt equally strong attitudes against drugs.

In West Germany, in five voices in the academic and medical fields support legalization of marijuana. There are no penalties for its use in private, but the government is demanding stiff penalties for drug pushers, especially those selling to juveniles.

In Sweden, a first offender caught with pot rarely suffers more than a fine. Imprisonment is rare.

Dutch officials estimate that about 70 per cent of teen-agers in The Netherlands have tried pot with out serious consequences. Those arrested have received nominal fines. The country has launched its own investigation into the whole problem. Meanwhile, drugs of all kinds remain illegal.

The British government is preparing legislation to provide harsher penalties for trafficking and subtler penalties for possession or use. But there is no official move toward legalizing marijuana.

A Gallup poll found that 75 per cent of Britons between the ages of 15 and 20 oppose any move to legalize marijuana.

A report by two medical experts said there was no school in Britain where pupils did not experiment with drugs.

Nobel Peace Prize Winner Warns of Overpopulation

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The American agronomist awarded the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize says the "green revolution" for which he is being honored can buy only 30 more years for a world faced with overpopulation.

The unrealistic attitudes of the world toward unreasonable population growth is the biggest problem we face now," Dr. Norman E. Borlaug said a news conference Wednesday night.

We must multiply in relation to the increase in the world's production of food."

The 57-year-old Iowan said: "Governments in developing countries must stimulate agriculture while at the same time balancing industrial growth. If agriculture is given its fair share, there may still be hope in this century."

Borlaug, named for the $80,000, prize Wednesday, has made harvests more bountiful in hungry countries through development of a dwarf wheat strain that gives high yields. The term "green revolution" refers to the use of improved grains and farming techniques to produce larger crops.

He said that before he introduced his wheat improvement program in Pakistan, a rumor circulated there that his variety would make the women of the country sterile.

"Oh, if that were only true!" said Borlaug. "Then we would really reach the Nobel Peace Prize. The green revolution cannot cure all the ills, but is a step forward. The problem is simply that too many people are coming on the scene too fast."

Borlaug came to Mexico 26 years ago to work on improved wheat strains with the Mexican agriculture ministry and the Rockefeller Foundation, of which he is a director. He heads a team of scientists from 17 nations experimenting with new types of grains at the Rockefeller Agriculture Institute.

Borlaug is the 15th American to win or share the peace prize since it was first given in 1901 by the foundation established by Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite.

Rare Celestial Event Due Christmas Morning

BOSTON (AP) — Early Christmas morning three "wandering stars", will appear together, to reproduce in the pre-dawn darkness a rare celestial event that may have led the Wise Men to the Bethlehem manger where Christ was born.

The "stars," actually the planets Venus, Jupiter and Mars, will "meet" that morning close by the crescent moon in a phenomenon similar to the one that occurred in 7 BC, the year the Christ child, is believed to have been born.

In that year, the planets Jupiter, Saturn and Mars came together in the heavens, an event that happens once every 800 years, said Walker H. Webb, assistant director of the Charles Hayden Planetarium of the Boston Museum of Science.

The massing of three planets will not be a visually spectacular event this year, said Webb, nor would it have been in the year Jesus was born. But to an astrologer—and the Three Wise Men are thought to have been expert in the occult science of interpreting heavenly signs—the planets' coming together may have seemed fraught with meaning.

The massing of the three planets on that morning, Webb suggested, may have been what the ancients called the Star of Bethlehem.

He said the planets do not come close enough to appear as a single star; even to the naked eye, they remain three distinct points of light in a triangle.

For the Wise Men, the meaning of the massed planets may have been multiplied by another rare heavenly phenomenon that occurred in 7 BC, Webb said.

In that year, Jupiter and Saturn passed next to each other three times, each time in the Constellation Pisces.

But only once in 800 years does a triple conjunction between Jupiter and Saturn take place in a single constellation, as it did just before the birth of Christ.

Goyer's Career Like Trudeau's

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's new solicitor-general, 38-year-old Jean-Pierre Goyer, joins the cabinet with the credentials of a leader of Quebec's quiet revolution of the early 1960s.

Mr. Goyer, MP for Montreal Dollard, was sworn into the post Tuesday after the resignation of George McIlraith. The solicitor-general reports to the Commons for the RCMP and the federal prison system.

Mr. Goyer's political growth echoes the career of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Like Mr. Trudeau, he studied law at the University of Montreal, vigorously protested the policies of the late premier Maurice Duplessis, supported the candidacy of Jean Drapeau for the mayoralty of Montreal and wrote articles for Cite Libre, the reformist intellectual periodical co-founded by Mr. Trudeau that was a voice for political and social change in Quebec in the 1950s and 60s.

Mr. Goyer first came to the Commons in 1965. After the 1968 election he was made parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, a post he held until Mr. Trudeau exchanged 14 parliamentary secretaries for other backbenchers this fall.

Born in the Montreal suburb of St. Laurent, Mr. Goyer earned his law degree at the University of Montreal in 1958.

While at university he and two other students staged a stir in Mr. Duplessis's office to protest inadequacy of government funds to education.

Later, while practising law in Montreal, he was a contributor to Cite Libre, and produced several studies on municipal issues.

He was closely connected with the Drapeau administration, serving for a time as executive assistant to Pierre Des Marais, a member of the city's executive committee and lieutenant to Mayor Drapeau.

Mr. Goyer is married and has two children.

High Quality

REGINA (CP) — The quality of art produced in Saskatchewan is equal to or better than much of the art found in Toronto or Montreal, says T. L. Ter, director of the Norman Mackenzie Art Gallery. However, most Saskatchewan artists work in obscurity and are relatively unknown because the community has not supported local artists, he added.

Hollywood Trends Are Ignored By Maverick Movie Producer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If the major studios are making sitcflicks, then it's only natural that American International should start filming the classics.

That kind of obtuse logic prevails in the movie business nowadays. For 15 years, American International has been the maverick among movie companies, setting its own trends in defiance of long-established patterns. At a time when the major studios are flirting with X-rated pictures, A-I emerges with a classic that is determinedly G —for general audiences.

The film: Wuthering Heights.

Wuthering Heights? From the company that gave you I Was a Teen-Age Werewolf, Beach Blanket Bingo, Motorcycle Gang and Three in the Attic.

"We try to watch the trends," says quiet-spoken James Nicholson, A-I president and former theatre operator. "About a year and a half ago we saw that Romeo and Juliet attracted a vast audience. We decided to look around for romantic classics."

"There were other signs," adds Samuel Arkoff, the reflective chairman of the board. "We were among the first to get into the youth-rebellion market with Wild in the Streets. We began to notice that the vein had been pretty well mined.

"The audiences was still in rebellion, but it was no longer interested in rebellion as a dramatic topic. We felt there was going to be an abrupt shift to love stories. But you couldn't feed them saccharine love stories; they had to be pertinent."

Searching through public domain—classics conveniently don't require story buys—Arkoff and Nicholson happened upon Wuthering Heights. More fainthearted producers would have blanched at the thought of remaking one of the great films of all time.

"We were hesitant," Nicholson admitted. "But we changed our minds after reading the book. We realized that there were many aspects of the Emily Bronte original that could not have been touched upon in the 1939 movie, because of the strictures of the production code."

American International plunged ahead, finding Wuthering Heights in England and Timothy Dalton and Anna Calder-Marshall in the roles played earlier by Laurence Olivier and Merle Oberon. The sexual nuances crept in the new version but not offensively so.

The cases toward the classics is given its first booking in the biggest movie house in the United States, Radio City Music Hall in New York. The film opens there next February.

Arkoff and Nicholson feel emboldened by a couple more classics: A Tale of Two Cities and The Raven of Seven Gables.

How long can the trend last.

"We don't know yet," said Arkoff. "We managed to get 13 pictures out of the Edgar Allen Poe stories. The beach pictures were good for seven. We thought after Wild Angels, the motorcycle trend was good for ten or three movies, but it keeps going on."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'd like some information desperately. It's about multiple sclerosis. For months we all thought my husband was becoming a neurotic — always complaining of being tired, feeling numbness in his hands and having trouble seeing because his vision would become blurred.

Not until he began to have difficulty in walking did we realize it wasn't all his "imagination." Now the diagnosis seems to be multiple sclerosis. I'm anxious to read all I can about it. Where can I write for information?

Meanwhile, I'll appreciate anything you have to tell me about the condition. You can understand why I'm worried. When I ask the doctors, "Will he get better?" all they do is give me evasive answers. — Mrs. M.

Comment: Let me tell you when the practice of medicine becomes hardest, to bear: often, as in your husband's case, we must resort to being equivocal.

Ask an about pneumonia, and we say that chances are excellent that antibiotics will help cure it. Ask us about diabetes mellitus, and we say (with proper diet and insulin) the patient may live a long and useful life. We will also tell you that diagnosed early, we can also stimulate the threat of tuberculosis and cancer.

It is a fulfilling sort of life to practice medicine and be able to tell the patient and his worried family, "Chances are we'll get you well again." But then comes the frustrations we encounter in practice.

One example is an ailment like multiple sclerosis. We don't know! Yes or No with confidence. The truth is that we are not sure of its cause, nor do we have a specific cure.

Whether it's due to a slow acting virus or something else which attacks the covering of nerves (myelin sheath) we don't know. Due to interference with messages along these nerves because of patchy destruction of the protective nerve fibers in certain spots, patients begin to get symptoms: excessive fatigue, transient numbness in an extremity, blurring of vision, instability of gait — and others.

But the patience knows all these symptoms, nor do any two of them have exactly similar symptoms. As in your husband's case, often the diagnosis is not made early because we have no specific tests. It all depends upon the patient's history, symptoms and physical examination (preferably in consultation with a neurologist).

Most multiple sclerosis patients are in their 20s and 30s, but it also appears in those between ages of 30 and 40.

In many cases there are remissions (periods of improvement) for many months or years. Such patients are able to continue with their work and live fairly normal lives. In others there is progressive weakness.

I wish I could bring you more hope at this time, Mrs. M. But the fact is that multiple sclerosis is still an unconquered disease, although we have medicine to alleviate some of the symptoms. The hope lies in the possibility that scientists working on the problem may come up with some specific curative vaccine (if the cause is found to be a virus infection).

When? Who is to say it isn't tomorrow — or the day after? Polio was hopeless at one time. So was pernicious anemia. So was tuberculosis and many other diseases now under control.

In reply to your first question, and for fuller information than I can supply here, I suggest that you write to National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 257 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Meanwhile the rest of us should contribute to the excellent investigative work being done by this society. The fight against multiple sclerosis deserves all-out support.

Cure for MS Eludes Science

Australian Tour Set For Duke of Edinburgh

LONDON (Reuter) — Prince Philip will make a 34,000-mile, two-month tour of Australia and New Zealand next year, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The announcement said that he had accepted an invitation to visit Australia next March to take part in the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Royal Australian Air Force.

Prince Philip, who was last in Australia on a five-week tour with the Queen last April and May, will visit South Australia, West Australia, and the Australian capital, Canberra.

On the way to Australia he will call at the Pacific island members of the Commonwealth, some of which have never seen a member of the Royal Family.

His itinerary will include the Pitcairn Island group, Cook Island, Western Samoa, Fiji, New Hebrides, and the British Solomon Islands and the territory of Papua and New Guinea.

Prince Philip will leave Britain early in February and return in March, flying in the royal yacht Britannia at Panama for the journey across the Pacific.

He will leave the Britannia in New Guinea during the last week in March. The royal yacht will then sail to British Columbia, which the Queen and Prince Philip, are visiting in May, in connection with centenary celebrations.

Protest Launched By Ottawa Jews

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Jewish community Tuesday launched what is to be a continuing protest outside the Soviet embassy against the treason trials of at least seven Soviet Jews in Leningrad.

In pacing snow flurries and below zero temperatures, five Ottawa rabbis, J. Benjamin Friedberg, Dr. Simon L. Eckstein, Reuben F. Bulka, David R. Powell and Nahum Ben Natan, led off the protest carrying signs reading "Let our people live or let our people go."

Rabbi Friedberg, chairman of the continuing committee on Soviet Jewry, said that Ottawa Jews will conduct prayer vigils daily from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until the Leningrad trials are over. There will be an hourly change in shifts.

The five Ottawa rabbis said in a news release also that the protest charges appear to be false and "were made to serve the policies of the Soviet authorities."

The rabbis charged that the arrests were a result of open efforts by many Soviet Jews to "protest the denial of their cultural and religious rights." Many Jews had sought to leave the Soviet Union.

"We urge all people to protest this injustice against basic human rights and we call upon the Russian government to release the defendants and to permit the Soviet Jews who so wish to emigrate to Israel."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 21

Your birthday today: Your path through the coming year's, as one vigorous move after another. You recoup past failures, recover the use of neglected resources, gain access to others' skills. Whatever is rescued produces active results. You attract interesting people with your work, including some of great emotional appeal for you. Today's natives can concentrate on abstruse subjects, carry a natural dignity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Now that the season has come to a near-climax, make it as calm a day as possible. Your normal routine can't be maintained, so seek a sensible compromise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Travel and complicated, particularly during business hours. Off hours, pleasure trips can be fun. The little tasks around the house should be divided among all the people involved.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Take social institutions such as office parties in stride. Keep your wits and watch for a clue to a longstanding puzzle. Your friends need attention, see that you don't.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get up early to stay ahead of today's complexities and the needs of people. Your special skills come to very much the fore. Ration your time according to the relative importance of the chores.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Now everybody listens to hearing the situation lively. Keep your own indulgences moderate — you'll enjoy everything all the more interesting people are not at parties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There's good news today. Take it in stride, plan to make the best use of it. Routines may have to be skipped for more pressing activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): So long as you are not alone, everything works out fine despite the slippage of routines. Extra chores keep everybody distracted. Keep busy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You have to make some decisions while you hear the proposals, with no time for consideration. Go by intuition. Your vitality intrigues people favorably.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Right in the middle of the festive outside rituals you find there's reason for serious thought. Disregard any competition based on personalities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Make sure of the precise terms of your companions' plan before you get started on any junket. Much good news makes this evening a gala occasion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Simple programs are the most feasible. Settle differences of viewpoint. Agree to disagree without malice. Take first things first at home, don't fuss with details.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You find willing ears for your tallest tales. Tell them all over, straight through. Traditional formalities have a peculiar charm between people who are close.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Subconscious Ties Tongue

"I suppose you might call me a member of the Silent Majority," the man said. "What frustrates me is that I have strong convictions, but I lack the ability to express them well. They don't come out sounding the way I mean them, when I run into someone who opposes my views."

This, I suppose, is what many people honestly think about themselves — that they simply lack the adequate tools of communication. In most cases, I don't believe it's true: anybody of average ability who can think a clear thought can also express it clearly.

As he and I talked, I drew him out. There was nothing wrong with the way he put things, but there was an inner contradiction in his thinking which he was unaware of, and which was responsible for muddying up the free flow of his expression.

Let me give you an example of what I mean. This man is extremely active in an organization that is fighting the pot laws: he doesn't want any government impinging on his right to "bear arms". At the same time, as we talked, he expressed disgust at the recent "pornography report" of the President's Commission and insisted that we ought to have "tougher laws" to prevent smut from getting into people's hands.

In his mind, these two subjects exist in separate, airtight compartments. But, in reality, they are related. Why does a person have a right to buy a gun that can kill someone, but not a right to buy a pornographic book or picture that cannot be demonstrated to even injure anyone in a moral or intellectual sense?

How can we maintain a consistent framework of values by asserting that guns do less harm than dirty magazines, or supporting the police in their raids on pornography, while at the same time we oppose the stand of every police department in desiring stricter gun regulation for crime control?

Obviously, such a man is simply picking and choosing among "rights" embracing those that suit his preferences, and rejecting those that are offensive to him. He has no overall philosophy of what "rights" really are; he has not thought out the matter carefully; he has merely crystalized his tastes and prejudices into "principles" without the least consistency.

The result is why he finds it hard to express his "strong convictions." They are a mishmash of confusing and conflicting attitudes that ultimately can be defended only by stubbornness and silencing the voices of his opponents. It is not the man with the finest command of words who makes the most compelling statements, but the man who possesses his ideas more securely than they possess him.

Prince Edward County Councillors Optimistic, Enthusiastic About Future

By MARGARET RAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — County councillors closed their final session of 1970 with brief summaries of the highlights of the past year in council coupled with enthusiastic predictions for Prince Edward's growth in years to come. Douglas Marvin, completing his first term as reeve of Wellington expressed a growing concern with municipal politics and remarked: "My only regret is that I didn't take more interest in village and county matters sooner."

South Marysburg reeve Allan Ralley, defeated in his December bid for re-election by Clifford Wather, termed himself "a dissenter" during his term in council. "I am happy and proud to have played a small part in the history of Prince Edward County as reeve of South Marysburg for the past term. I've been a dissenter more than anything else but there's always room for a dissenter. I hate to give this seat up but you can't deny the will of the people—that's a very important feature of our democratic system," he commented.

Mr. Ralley said one regret is that council has not attracted spectators to its monthly sessions. "We spend thousands of dollars and people are willing to watch us do it." The South Marysburg reeve added that perhaps the ratepayers' absence from the council chambers reflected confidence in county council's decisions.

Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn, leaving council this year following his defeat in the municipal elections by newcomer Albert Frush observed that the next years will be "progressive" ones for Prince Edward. He cautioned incoming councillors to keep abreast of changing times and accept the fact that there will inevitably be changes. He referred to his many debates with fellow councillors during his past 12 years in office and said: "We fought, but mainly we fought for the county of Prince Edward and as long as councillors remember to do this there will be no problem. Reeve Hepburn credited Picton deputy reeve Donald Thompson for his assistance, noting: "Without him I could not have done the job. I've done as reeve. We disagreed but when we left this chamber the arguments were forgotten." Mr. Thompson did not stand for re-election, this month owing to ill health and was unable to attend yesterday's final session of council for 1970.

Mr. Hepburn urged council to remain strong and to delegate good representatives to organization meetings. "I hope this council puts its shoulder to the wheel and helps this county to move along. I hope you take good looks at county government and what it means to Prince Edward. You can't sponge the way you did 50 years ago," emphasized Mr. Hepburn.

He added he plans to take a rest from municipal politics but intends to watch both town and county councils carefully. "I hope you make the right moves in the right time and in the right place and don't let the ratepayers down," he concluded.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster observed that in his opinion the town of Picton has lost "two good men" in Mayor H. J. McFarland, who refused to stand for re-election, and Reeve Hepburn, who was recently defeated at the polls. Mr. Foster added that he felt confident that incoming members of council would "get on with senior members to make "a good council."

Deputy reeve of Hallowell, Fred Stafford, who lost a race for township reeve earlier this month said that he hoped the new council will "hear up" under the pressure it will receive to bring industry into Prince Edward.

A theme of industry for the county was repeated in the remarks of several councillors. Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson remarked, "We do have to have industry in the county." He noted that with industry Prince Edward's young people would no longer need to seek outside work.

Council Endorses City Bid For Health Unit Addition

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors yesterday approved the preparation of a bylaw endorsing the appointment of a third Belleville representative to the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit Board for consideration at county's next session. A motion suggesting this bylaw was forwarded after councillors examined a letter signed by Carl E. Bateman, secretary - treasurer of the board. The letter stated that an agreement between Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton establishing a health unit in 1967 provided for a 16-man board. Two members were to be appointed by the Lieutenant - Governor - in - council, three members by Hastings County, two members by Prince Edward County, two members from Belleville and one from Trenton.

The city of Belleville has requested additional representation claiming that the present arrangement is "inequitable."

County warden Gordon Lloyd opposed the request for an additional representative contending that Prince Edward County with a population of 36,000 persons scattered over a large area has only two members on the board. He commented that Belleville is "quite compact" in size and said that he felt two representatives can "quite easily handle the city's affairs."

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster disagreed with Mr. Lloyd referring to Home Care services offered to Belleville residents. He explained that home care is paid for by the provincial government and provincial government and operates from Belleville General Hospital. Through this program hospitals are relieved of patients who require only limited amounts of special care and can utilize their bed space for the more seriously ill.

Mr. Foster added that if Prince Edward County could organize a registered nurses' association some home care services would be provided by Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. He observed that by having three representatives on the board, Belleville will not obtain the controlling number of votes. "If you go to representation by population when we get two members with 30,000 persons they should get three with 30,000 people," asserted the reeve.

Councillors agreed to have a bylaw proposing a third representative for Belleville prepared for council's next meeting. It will be subject, however, to approval from the provincial government and the participating municipalities.

George Ross To Run Home

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton resident, George Ross, yesterday was appointed administrator for the Prince Edward County Home for the Aged by members of county council. Mr. Ross, one of 35 applicants for this position, will begin his new duties on Jan. 1. He succeeds retiring administrator William (Bill) McWilliam. Six persons were screened for final interviews for the job by members of council's finance and personnel committee. "Each applicant was treated with the greatest scrutiny," observed committee member Allan Ralley.

Trudeau Declares Inflation Finished

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said flatly Wednesday: "Inflation no longer exists in Canada."

He made the categorical statement to reporters after a day-long cabinet meeting, his last until February following his return from a 24-day, six-country tour of Asia.

The cabinet again discussed unemployment which, Mr. Trudeau said, remains an economic evil and which will be his government's chief problem in 1971.

But, he added, unemployment would have been worse than it is if inflation had not been checked.

In an impromptu corridor news conference, Mr. Trudeau made these statements:

—All troops on anti-terrorist duty will be withdrawn by Jan. 4 except for some soldier-bodyguards of political leaders and other prominent persons in Quebec and Ottawa.

—However, the public order act would remain in effect for the time being. It is not scheduled to expire until April except by special decree.

—The projected sale of British arms to South Africa is the most serious threat to the Commonwealth in the history of the organization.

—He will consider appointment of retiring Premier John Roberts to the Senate.

—Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey and his Quebec counterpart, Jean Cournoyer, will have discussions about Quebec's reservations concerning the federal white paper on unemployment insurance.

Mr. Trudeau had a long telephone conversation with Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec Tuesday night during which the group situation was discussed.

The prime minister said it is obvious from the statistics that the fight against inflation has been won.

The government's anti-inflation performances was unequalled in any country in the Western world.

How the government had to deal even more vigorously with the twin economic evil, unemployment.

Mr. Trudeau said the government in the last six months, has announced "many, many" measures to combat unemployment. These measures were taking effect now.

There was little delicate balance between unemployment and inflation and the government had to be careful not to set off another round of inflation.

Mr. Trudeau maintained that in the short term national unity has improved. Support for his own and the Bourassa government had increased enormously.

However, whether this would continue in the long run was anybody's guess.

The prime minister said he hopes recent debate in Parliament accurately reflects the desire of all Canadians to assist Quebec economically and other regions in need of special aid.

He described as a "very grave threat" to the Commonwealth the proposed arms sale by Britain to South Africa.

He said he thinks an accommodation is possible and had been discussing the possibility with other Commonwealth leaders.

Mr. Trudeau will spend Christmas in Montreal with his family. He leaves Jan. 5 for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Singapore.

The Intelligencer will not publish Christmas Day or Saturday, Boxing Day. Happy holidays to all!

Come, Be Joyful: It's Christmas

Once again it's that special time of year with a special meaning for many, of all ages. Perhaps youngsters best express the spirit of the occasion. For moppets, like three-year-old Gene Parkinson, of Belleville, it's the Happy Time, bearing a simple, uncomplicated message: An invitation to come and be joyful. Once again, it's Christmas.

Kidnapped Ambassador Faces Grim Christmas

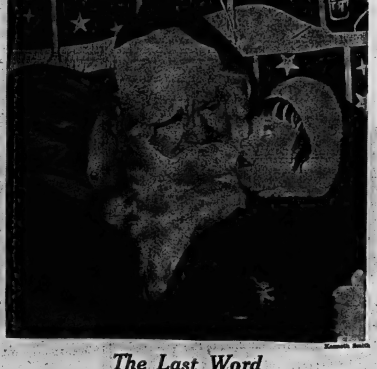
RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — Kidnapped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Bucher faced today the prospect of spending Christmas with a death threat hanging over his head and in ill health.

The latest note from the diplomat, who was snatched by guerrillas Dec. 7 as ransom for 70 political prisoners, said he is slightly ill.

Details of the letter, addressed to the papal nuncio and left at the English church here were, were not released. But some sources said it also named six prisoners who could be substituted for six names on the original list of 70 prisoners the guerrillas wanted released in return for the ambassador's life.

The kidnapers warned Tuesday that government silence on their demands would be construed as a breakdown of negotiations and lead to the ambassador's death.

A brief justice ministry communique, in apparent response to the death threat, said Wednesday night the government is examining the kidnapers' latest proposals.



Observers attributed great importance to the brief communique because without going into the substance of the kidnapers' demands it represented a gesture of acceptance of one demand — that the government refused to free and fly abroad 13 of the 70 prisoners named by the diplomat's captors. It said all 13 had been sentenced for, or charged with, serious offences.

The latest letter with the reported list of six substitutes names indicates the kidnappers will not relax their demands that 70 prisoners be flown to Algeria or Chile.

The Last Word

Just to make sure Santa Claus knew what they wanted for Christmas, two Trenton yo[illegible]sters, Daren McCullough and Kathy Darling both of Patrick Street, had a last minute visit with the jolly old gentleman last night before he headed back to the North Pole to prepare for this evening's deliveries.

Some to Receive Pension Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario teachers and civil servants who retired in 1959 or earlier have been granted a pension increase of 30 per cent, effective Jan. 1.

Smaller increases will be given the rest of the province's 7,400 retired teachers and 4,300 retired civil servants according to a formula announced Wednesday.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton and Education Minister William Davis announced the increases.

Mr. MacNaughton said the increases recognized both the higher cost of living and the low salaries paid to the pensioners "in their earlier years."

Pension plans for both groups are pegged to the pensioner's average annual salary in his last years before retirement, and on his length of service.

J. R. Cossley of the teachers' superannuation commission said teacher pensions now range from a $2,100 minimum to well above $3,000 a year.

The extra money for both groups is based on compounded two per-cent increase in their basic pensions.

Thus a few teachers who retired in the last few years and are receiving $2,100 a year would not qualify for large increases.

Teachers and civil servants who retired many years ago when salaries were much smaller will receive much larger increases in their pensions.

Mr. Cossley estimated about 2,000 retired teachers would qualify for the maximum increase of 50 per cent.

Treasury department officials had no estimate of the number of pensioners in various brackets but said that relatively few would receive a 50-per-cent increase.

A pension supplement for both groups, introduced a year ago, raised the minimum annual pension to $2,100 or $1,050 for widows.

Mr. MacNaughton said the 1971 increases will be based on the original supplement, but the beneficiaries will continue to receive the supplement if their new pension falls below the minimum levels.

He said the increases were the result of a general pension review conducted earlier this year and do not include a future automatic increase pegged to the cost-of-living index.

Clenched Fist Salute

Angela Davis gives a clenched-fist salute as she enters court in San Rafael, Calif. today following yesterday's heavily-guarded airborne extradition from New York. She is charged with murder and kidnapping in connection with the shootout last Aug. 7 in the Marin County Civic Centre. Today's arraignment was continued until Jan. 5.

Prisoner Didn't Graduate

TORONTO (CP) — Cpl. Eldon Davie, 29, of the RCMP, was remanded Wednesday to Jan. 6 when he appeared in court on a charge of theft.

He was arrested Tuesday in connection with the disappearance of $18,900 being held by police as evidence.

Police said none of the missing money has been recovered.

Cpl. Davie lives with his wife and two children in Bay Ridges, Ont., and was three months from completing a chartered accountancy course paid for by the RCMP.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cloudy skies, cold temperatures and snowflurry activity are expected over most of the province Christmas Day but a weak high pressure system crossing the lower Great Lakes will allow the sun to shine for at least part of the day in southern Ontario. Eastern Lake Ontario, Haliburton: Christmas Day, mostly sunny. Low tonight near zero except 10 below in the Haliburton region.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro announced Wednesday that the electrical load of Ontario Hydro at 5:25 p.m. Tuesday set a record. A Hydro spokesman said 11.3 million kilowatts of power was being used across the province for industrial, commercial and residential uses with an added load for Christmas decorations and heating. The previous record of 10.56 million kilowatts was set Dec. 23, 1969.

No Money Left

Snow Removal Costs Eat Up Budget

With more than two feet of snow having fallen so far this month, city public works officials are hoping their fingers crossed for the remainder of the year.

There are two main reasons for not wanting any more snow in 1970.

One is that works employees have been working at snow removal almost exclusively for more than a week.

The other is that the city's snow removal budget for this year is all but wiped out.

"I would say we are getting very close to the line," commented City Engineer Wilbor Purcell this morning when asked how the snow removal budget was faring.

At the end of November there was still $39,000 in the budget but round the clock operation by plows and trucks was expected to have depleted this amount.

However, the city engineer said the exact amount in the budget didn't matter all that much.

"If snow comes we do the work, whether we have the money in the budget or not," he said.

The year's total snow removal budget was $85,920.

The snowfall so far this month has totalled 35.1 inches of which approximately 13 inches still remains on the ground.

That amount of snowfall is considerably above average for December, but according to James Scrivens, manager at the city water filtration plant, it is far from a record and not unusual.

For instance, just two years ago there was 31.5 inches of snow in December.

And back in 1951 34.5 inches of snow fell during the month.

That was the hardest day record snowfall for December, but 1944 and 1927 were far behind, with 26.2 inches and 25.9 inches respectively.

"It's not unusual for December," commented Mr. Scrivens.

Dining Out on Christmas Day May Not Be an Easy Pleasure

Few Belleville dining spots will be open Christmas Day, as families gather around the festive board at home.

For many restaurants Christmas is the only day of the year they close, to give employees time with their families.

But three dining rooms will be open and serving the traditional Christmas fare.

Son Lock Gardens will open at 11 a.m. Christmas Day and serve meals until 9 p.m. Turkey and roast beef will be on the menu, but the staff will also be preparing Chinese food.

At the Son Valley Motor Inn, the dining room will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Dec. 25. The chef will be preparing turkey, ham, beef and roast goose — the latter for those who like to eat in the English tradition at Christmas.

Reservations are already at the Son Valley. A spokesman there said family groups make up the bulk of the Christmas Day diners. Volume of dining room business is better than the average Sunday throughout the year.

At Hotel Quinte, where the dining room will be open from 4 to 8 p.m. Dec. 25, a spokesman said more and more people every year are taking advantage of dining out for Christmas.

"The trend is toward going out for dinner especially among those who have a large number of out of town guests for the holidays," she said.

The Quinte's Christmas dinner will be served buffet style, with roast beef, turkey and cold items on the menu. About 30 or 40 reservations have been received already for the meal, costing $4.50 for adults and $2.25 for children under 12.

Many restaurants that close for Christmas will open with special holiday menus for Boxing Day and Sunday. By picking and choosing carefully, the enthusiast can enjoy three days of Christmas dining this year.

But snackers will be out of luck Christmas Day if they want a dinner from left-over turkey. All restaurants will be closed, including Harvey's and Mc-Donald's, Foster's Chicken Ville, most of the Chinese restaurants that provide take out service, and Mark's Fish House.

Christmas: Cold, Cold!

A Canadian Christmas means cold, cold weather for Eloise Trott, 19. Studying in Belleville she hails from Bermuda, where the holiday is celebrated in pleasantly warm temperatures.

Not Everyone Travels For Holiday Season

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Not everyone goes home for Christmas.

Despite the impression imparted by bustling railroad and bus stations and highways, there are those who are remaining where they are as the Christmas scene swirls around them.

For some — like Eloise Trott — it's a matter of distance. Christmas at home means sunny Bermuda for the 19-year-old student at Albert College and Ontario Business College.

For others — like Tsering Wangkhang and Jampa Dongyaong — the reasons are more absolute. They are Canada's first immigrants from Tibet, in Belleville little more than two months.

Both are Buddhists, but the Christian festival is well-known to them. After fleeing Chinese occupation of their homeland they lived for years in India. One of their tutors was British and introduced them to the Christmas customs.

However, a Canadian Christmas is something else again. It's liveliest impression is its bustle — in the streets and the stores, says Tsering.

Their first Canadian Christmas also sees both of them temporarily jobless. They were among workers involved in a recent layoff at the Bata Shoe plant in Batawa, says Tsering.

However, both now are taking a business course at Loyalist.

Now boarding just outside the city, they nonetheless spend Christmas in traditional Canadian fashion. Both men have been invited out for dinner by a Belleville family.

Christmas weather is not unique to them. Winter snows and cold temperatures in their mountain - locked homeland approximate Canadian conditions.

For Eloise, however, the weather is the big contrast with Christmas at home, where the festival is celebrated in temperatures well in the 60s — despite the fact it is the coolest season of the year.

The spirit of Christmas is the same only "we don't have such cool weather," she says.

Eloise is spending the holiday at a city home where she's temporarily boarding.

The closest contact she'll have with that sunnier Bermuda Christmas will be by long - distance when she hopes to telephone home during the holiday.

One Crash In Area

MADOC (Staff) — A three-car crash near here (DEC sent five people to hospital yesterday may have drastically altered Christmas plans for 11-year-old Daniel Harley, RR1, Bancroft.

The boy suffered a broken leg when the car driven by his mother was involved in the mishap on Highway 62 just south of here.

His sister, Judith, nine, and Beverley, seven, suffered multiple cuts in the same mishap and may be released today.

Their mother, Gladys Rose Harley, was released after treatment for an elbow injury.

Donald Gordon, 21, of Queensboro, another driver in the accident, also was sent home after treatment for a back injury.

The Difference Is the Bustle

Canada's first Tibetan immigrants, Tsering Wangkhang (left) and Jampa Dongyaong, are experiencing their first Western-style Christmas. Its most vivid impression: The busy bustle the holiday causes.

Lights Gone

Vandals Wreck Trenton Trees

TRENTON (Staff) — Vandals have damaged lighting systems on three of the four large Christmas trees erected to adorn the downtown area here for the holiday season, Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson said yesterday.

"It is discouraging . . I cannot see it as a prank, it is sick," Mr. Wilson said.

The four trees placed at various points throughout the core area cost $50 each and bore over $600 worth of colored lights.

Only one tree remains untampered with today and it stands on the Market Square adjacent to the town police station. Nearness to the police department, Mr. Wilson contends, explains the fact that it stood untouched.

Even the shop on Front Street opened by downtown merchants for children to visit Santa Claus was set upon by individuals who covered the building with peace symbols. These have now been scrubbed off, Mr. Wilson reported, and Santa was on the job last night bearing last minute Christmas wishes.

The massive tree in front of the St. West is still immersive by day but in the evening its cloaked in darkness not light.

Winterama

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans are being drawn this week for Winterama, a day of snow-[illegible] for Jan. 17.

An estimated 30 snowmobile races will be held beginning at 1 p.m. with trophies to be presented to winners in each of five classes—each class based on the engine displacement of vehicles.

People have been hanging at the tree from the post office steps, Mr. Wilson said, adding that they have succeeded in breaking at various points the wires that fed electricity to the hundreds of tiny bulbs. Not one bulb is functioning.

Another large illuminated tree at the top of Gilmour Hill on the east side still sheds light. However, by one report about 100 lights on this 40 foot tall tree have either been smashed or pilfered.

The third tree located on the Front Street municipal parking lot was object of a similar incident this week.

One end of a string of lights that girthed the Christmas tree was fastened to an electrician's truck that had pulled into the lot to park.

When the driver headed out of the parking lot, his truck tore the band of bulbs off the lower portion of the tree. Lights remain at the top of this tree.

Christmas Help Still Required

'Tis the season to be jolly and the Christmas Sharing Program has done its share to make the season something special for underprivileged families.

About $3,000 in cheques and vouchers has been distributed to these needy families.

However, a problem exists. Isidore Cooperman, executive director of the United Community Services, this morning announced that the program was short 11,500 of the amount distributed.

"We sent out the advances knowing we could count on the public to help the program," he said.

The Belleville Fire Department, collectors and distributors of toys within the Christmas Sharing Program, known formerly as the Christmas Exchange, have also run into trouble.

A spokesman this morning announced that between $1,200 and $1,400 was received from various service organizations during the year for toy purchases together with approximately $200 from private sources.

From these funds, 225 families have received toys either purchased or donated, but the list still contains between 20 and 25 families who have yet to receive their gifts.

"We'll manage somehow," was the spokesman's comment.

He explained that by the end of the day, the problem would be cleared up.

"It's just a matter of finding toys."

Many local toy stores are showing vacancies on their toy shelves, if not complete emptiness.

A White Christmas - And Cool

Temperatures Christmas Day and Boxing Day will hover around the same mercury marks — highs at 15-20 degrees above and lows 0-5 degrees.

The milder Christmas air contrasts with below zero temperatures and biting windchill factors that hit the district earlier this week.

Low last night in Belleville was six degrees above. Some snowthurries also are forecast for the holiday.

Ski Report Favorable

The Oak Hills Ski Club reports that skiing is good and that three rope tows are in operation. The hills will be operating on Saturday and Sunday from 9.30 a.m. until 4.30 p.m.

Christmas 1970

In 1970 the world moved on another piece . . . another notch has been cut . . . another evening is gone.

In London, as in other parts of this turbulent universe, there have been happenings. Shades of revolution and death have stalked the land, as it still does in Vietnam.

In Canada it is a far cry from the heady glories of 1967. Then, six matchless months in Montreal drew Canadians and the world together, nationhood took on fresh meaning, people discovered their country, humanity, and there was a broad sense of kinship experienced neither before nor since.

Yet even then storm clouds were gathering, in fact they had been forming on the political horizon long before, to break finally and destructively in this very year of 1970.

Youth as ever has been in ferment, and instant communications have appraised us of the activities of a new generation, out of touch with the materialism of our society, alienated from parents and the establishment, unwilling to accept fresh approaches, no alternatives to what they believe is wrong. Instead, we have a cult expecting itself in the lifestyle of the hippies and such political offshoots as the Yippies (Youth International Party), the New Left and the sinister radicalism of the academic world.

But we do not forget the majority of young people who have distinguished themselves in positive, if quieter, ways and who go unsung if not dishonored.

Other phenomena have become part of the folklore of our time: a whole new world of musical expression has arisen and the Beatles, although their ranks are now broken, still belong to contemporary legend while the vast mediocrity of a host of other aspirants hovers, full of sound and fury, in the wings. And there is eternity of still greater timelessness, as in the works of Beethoven whose genius is being commemorated at this time.

Other, more sombre, manifestations of the world of man impinge on the consciousness. Pollution in all its forms threatens the natural beauty of the environment and we know that if not taken seriously, and counter measures are not into effect, there may well be dire consequences for mankind.

And who has not heard of the dangers of overpopulation? And just when the subject seems to become overbearing, like so many themes subjected to constant overhearing scrutiny, and because it envisages the world's entire population in real jeopardy, along comes an event devastating in its consequences and thousands of lives are snuffed out.

Pakistan . . . Peru only months before. Thus nature comes to take on our often defenceless world, to eliminate life, and with it, in the context of space and population, harsh as it may seem, some balance is achieved. At the same time the essential humanity of the peoples of the world is demonstrated in the relief measures taken to aid the survivors.

Spiritually, man still seeks higher realms. God is not dead, as reaction to the travels of the Pope and the crusades of men like Dr. Billy Graham testify. And this despite the malaise of the age which prompts like Bedford and Londonderry. "All changes for the better," Irish playwright St. John Ervine once wrote, "are made, first, in the minds of individuals. A case could, I think, be made for the view that all changes for the worse start in the mind of the 'mob. The mob is a mass of brainless thing, subject to panic and emotion, and easily dominated by empty eloquence."

How close we come to such a condition in Quebec recently.

Over all the world, however, the vision of the Deity remains at this Christmas time. So too does the promise and hope enshrined for all time in an infant in the manger. And how many heard those moving words from the pen of some 17th century writer, presented within the unlikely precincts of the Ed Sullivan Theatre in New York recently, by a compelling young actress called Ali MacGraw. "With all its shams and broken dreams," she recited in part, "the world is still a beautiful place." These words were written in 1692 — they still ring true today.

Merry Christmas

Their Goal: Marxism Beyond the Campus

Stanley Gray Arch Symbol of New Left Academics

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Only twice in 39 years since publishers James Daly Sons and John E. Kent of The Kitchener-Waterloo Record co-operatively gave this column its start has Ottawa Offbeat reprinted a text.

First time was the column which appeared just prior to this one, setting out Prime Minister Trudeau's warning to the academic community that it had persisted in tolerating violent dissent and that urge to revolution on the campus. It could not expect trouble.

It would lose its immunity from surveillance by the Security and Intelligence Division of the RCMP, warned the Prime Minister, and following it up, Quebec Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre has announced a Royal Commission investigation of the university community.

The second time Ottawa Offbeat reproduces a text is now.

And for the reason that it it deals broadly with the same problem hanging up academia as has been troubling the Prime Minister.

It is reproduced here as a text because to intersperse, background, or interpret in any way would be to impair its quality.

It is by Robert Bill beria, MBE, an officer of the famed Toronto Scottish Regiment and a leading member of the Team to financial and investment community.

It appeared some time ago in his firm's Fact and Comment publication — a very professional house organ of his organization in which he does a column Speaking Frankly — and it is as pertinent today as the day it came off the press.

It follows:

"Students of the world unite! You have nothing to lose but your subsidized tuition fees" with no apologies to Karl Marx.

We have been served a surfeit of student violence by the media but little emphasis has been placed upon how revolting some of the faculty are. Here is an excerpt from a speech by Stanley Gray, a lecturer in Political Science at McGill University, to The Couchiching Conference in July, 1968.

"Being socially idealistic, empathizing with the poor and the oppressed and committed to creating a new social order, students see their administrations wielding their universities to the powers-that-be, directly and indirectly serving the interests of capitalism and imperialism.

"Marxism is coming more and more to be the common denominator of all student movements in North America and Western Europe. I think this is inevitable and is a tribute to the growing sophistication and maturity of the international student New Left, inasmuch as Marxism is the most developed refined and coherent revolutionary philosophy of world view today.

"The future of this continent lies not with corrupted politicians, corporate chiefs or bureaucrats who now control the organs of national power, but with the faculty. It could reject trouble.

Tree-Cutting Project

Pay Scale for Welfare Recipients

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to comment on the article in The Intelligencer on Nov. 28, about the pilot project for welfare recipients, namely, the cutting down of the dead elms in the area.

There was no mention of the pay they are to receive for this work.

I stand to be corrected, but according to the information I received these people will be paid $2.50 an hour plus the welfare payments they are already receiving.

This seems a little much when I know men who are working everyday at a normal labor earning less than the minimum wage of $1.85 an hour. These people are not eligible for much of this new scheme. If they were the kind who would rather sit at home and live better off financially on welfare.

Supposing the welfare recipients do condescend to take this job of removing the dead elms and decided afterwards to go into the work force; are they going to be able to get jobs that will pay them an hourly wage rate comparable to the $2.00 an hour plus their welfare money? I would presume that if they were able to earn that kind of money they would not be working now. I would be afraid this false sense of earning power would only leave them more frustrated and end up back on welfare again.

I commend Dr. Foster for his efforts to rehabilitate these people but they have been pampered too long. It would be more beneficial to their physical and moral welfare if they had to work for what they are already receiving — money that is supplied through the efforts of the many who are willing to work to pay the taxes that supply the welfare payments.

I believe that unless one is so handicapped that he or she is unable to work they should be made to do something to earn their keep.

I sincerely hope that the powers that be will give this project some further consideration before they spend more of our tax money on another doubtful scheme.

A LABORER.

Praise For Merchants But Parking Is Problem

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Belleville does not need a municipal aerodrome to provide the thrills and fun of circling round and round awaiting a landing!

We already have the Belleville parking authority which provides us with the same fun, especially at this time of year.

Starting anywhere about December 10 — and other peak periods of the year as well — as one circles endlessly around the parking lot trying to find a place to light — and accosting various persons sitting behind the wheel as to their intentions, "I am just waiting for the old woman to come out of Kresges — if she ever gets out — etc. — one eventually achieves the same feeling no doubt as originally experienced by the captain of the Flying Dutchman.

Having already paid the Belleville Parking Authority for a month's parking doesn't seem to improve one's outlook as one is engaged in this pursuit.

I would like to have it clearly understood however (with apologies to President Nixon) that this is not a beef — this is a letter of commendation to the advertisers of Belleville and the excellence of the service and merchandise purveyed by our local merchants!

One Family's Happy 1970

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

1970 is almost or may not have been a never - to - be - forgotten year for everyone as some of us may have had misfortunes, sickness and unpleasant memories they would want to forget. Others may have cherished memories and happiness and will always remember 1970.

I for one will always remember 1970, for the thoughtfulness of my friends and the kindness of the "Volunteer Christmas Shopping Program" which contributed to making my children's Christmas happier and to the many citizens of Belleville who care . . . We say "Thanks."

The children and I wish each and everyone a very Merry Christmas, but most of all a healthy, happy and prosperous New Year.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 24, 1970 an . .

The Treaty of Ghent, ending the war of 1812 between Britain and the United States was signed 156 years ago today — in 1814 — at Ghent. The American declared war June 18, 1812, declaring British naval ships were violating American neutrality and territorial waters during the First Napoleonic War. After Napoleon's defeat Britain took the offensive in the American campaign but neither country was anxious to continue fighting and peace was signed.

1946—Canada formally recognized the State of Israel.

1950—Full pardons were proclaimed for United States ex-convicts who served one or more years in the armed forces.

1941—The Belgian ship Leopoldville was torpedoed en route to Cherbourg and 764 persons died.

1963—Premier Diefan was assassinated in Algiers.

A New Bridge—But What About the Property On Front and Dundas Corner?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With everyone wishing everyone else a Merry Christmas, I feel this age-old custom should be applied in all sincerity to all the committees, etc. at Belleville City Hall, who have in the past year done so much for the people of Belleville and community.

The beauty of the parks and gardens, Zwick's Island to give so much happiness to children in the recreation area, swimming pool, etc., the different bands that gave so much pleasure to young and old alike, the picnic areas that were a delight under shade trees, these all contribute to the well being of our people. I would like to comment here that more picnic tables could be used along the shore line, as people walk in turn for a table at times, especially visitors from out of town.

Credit is in order for those responsible for extra traffic lights, that make for safer driving. To those past and present for the new bridge but what is going to be done about the eyesore of a dilapidated house on the corner of Front and Dundas? Has anyone got the fire insurance money for the fire there, and no hog has been done by there for the safety of pedestrians walking around the corner with falling clap boards on Dundas St.

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey wanted this house preserved at a tremendous cost at the anniversary. For what? In the 1930s the house was owned by the late William Buckley, who sold it to the Herbert Belsey estate, asking price $7,000. Since that time it deteriorated to its present disgraceful condition. Reason? No interest in the appearance of such a property to the city of Belleville.

A small park on that corner to meet the eyes of those coming over the bridge would be an asset to Belleville, instead of the monstrosity that you see now. I hope whatever committee is responsible for beautifying Belleville can do something to have this corner cleaned up.

Let's be proud of Belleville's appearance.

FOR A BEAUTIFUL BELLEVILLE.

World Is Doing Its Best to Forget Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christians around the world were doing their best today to forget war, politics and economic troubles long enough to enjoy a merry Christmas and follow it up with a happy New Year.

In the Middle East, with a ceasefire keeping the Arab-Israeli conflict in check for the first time since the 1967 war, some 15,000 Christians from all over the world poured into Bethlehem, the town where Christ was born.

As usual, Arab guerrillas threatened terrorist attacks, and Israeli police and troops were out in force. Tourists and pilgrims with special passes were the only outsiders allowed in the picturesque little town in the Judean hills on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan. A bright sun was shining.

North Americans staying home for the holidays planned one last trip to town to complete their Christmas shopping. But sales figures indicated that most won't have as many presents under their trees as usual this year.

A spokesman for one major department store said his Christmas sales "would reflect the type of business we've been doing for the last six months to a year—not go good."

SALES DOWN

Some stores estimated sales would be down as much as 25 per cent.

The only items selling well were inexpensive things. "The trouble is everyone is being so darn practical this year!" one retailer said.

In Washington, President Nixon held a White House reception for the presidential press corps Wednesday night and sang Silent Night and Jingle Bells for the reporters, accompanying himself on the piano.

The Nixons planned a traditional turkey dinner on Christmas Day with as many members of the Eisenhower family as can come.

In South Vietnam a three-day Viet Cong ceasefire began at 1 a.m. Christmas Eve Saigon time, and U.S. and South Vietnamese forces joined in 17 hours later for a 36-hour truce. Minor violations of the annual ceasefires are usual, but this year only two Viet Cong attacks were reported in the first 12 hours of the day.

In another troubled country, Poland, there was a word of cheer today after the new Communist party leader, Edward Gierek, promised the nation, still reeling after last week's riots over increases in the prices of food, that there will be a two-year freeze on food prices —at the higher rates—and that the ragged will receive increased subsidies and pensions.

Spirits were low in West Berlin because for the fifth straight year, the East Germans were not opening the gates of the Berlin Wall to let Christmas visitors through. Some 800,000 East Germans have relatives in West Berlin.

Although the Christmas season seemed as festive as usual in Western Europe, inflation was almost everywhere. In Italy, new price tags were pasted over the old in many stores, and the new tags carried higher prices.

Business in Denmark was reported as brisk as usual, but the Salvation Army and other charitable organizations said contributions were "disastrously down."

Shops in Britain were jammed with Christmas shoppers despite generally higher prices. A glut of turkeys sent the prices of Christmas dinners down.

Rylstone Personals

Sue Spencer is spending the pre-Christmas week with her sister Lynne Spencer in Peterborough.

Mrs. Clarence Thomson and her COIT girls assisted at the candlelight service at Springbrook United Church on Sunday evening.

In Montreal, a group of fathers angry over high prices put on Santa Claus outfits and held a street parade carrying such signs as "Our Christmas—a big bill for everyone" and "I'm tired of playing Santa Claus. I can't even pay for all my gifts." The parade ended at a community centre where gifts donated by merchants and businessmen were distributed to children.

Plants Give Much Pleasure At Christmas

Plants give pleasure at any time of year, but especially so at Christmas. A variety of plants are available at this time of year, nearly all at a modest price. Full instructions for its care comes with each individual plant, but as a rule one must remember to keep the surrounding earth fairly moist and to remove any dying flowers. In this way, a plant gift should live far beyond the Yuletide season.

Hunt for False Teeth Source of Irritation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this for every member of the family. (There are six of us.) Mom has false teeth. There must be something wrong with them because she takes them out the minute she comes home. Those teeth burn up all over the house — by the telephone, on top of the TV, inside a folded newspaper.

Whenever the doorbell rings Mom hollers, "Don't answer it until I find my teeth." She can never remember where she put them, and the hunt begins. Sometimes they're even quite funny looking. Sometimes she offers a small reward.

Please tell us what can and should be done about the annoying problem! — NEW YORK RITE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR N.Y.: Removing dentures is unhygienic, unappetizing and unhealthy. Your mother should take her teeth to a dentist and find out why they are uncomfortable. Obviously they are or she would not be removing them. Once her choppers are adjusted properly (or she gets a new pair she can keep in her head) she'll be much happier.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 38-year-old homosexual. Actually, I think "closet queen" is the name applied to people like me. I play it straight in order to protect my career. No one would guess in a hundred years.

My problem is that I am lonely. I avoid close friendships with girls because I hate to be unfair. I don't feel comfortable enough with most men to be "one of the boys." I have no contact with other homosexuals, in fact I avoid being friendly with the flagrant for fear of being linked with them. I would never hand around a gym or pool bar.

What happens to people like me? Do we just accept the fact that we must go through life lonely? Can you help us? — GAY BUT NOT HAPPY.

DEAR FRIEND: I have been told that perceptive homosexuals have a built-in radar system when it comes to sensing the presence of their own kind. I believe this is true. The signals may be ever so faint, but they are discernable to one who is alert. The attitudes toward homosexuals in our country are changing. They are no longer considered criminals in some states. I say it's high time we emerged from the Dark Ages. Perhaps you would be happier in a larger city where the tendency to consider homosexuals freaks, is not so great.

Confidential to EVERYTHING HAPPENS TO ME: I just finished your 16-page letter in which you are crying over spilled milk. Next time please condense it. My advice is simple: Get off your end zone and prove your ability. Success has a thousand fathers. Failure is an orphan.

WEDDING

HAY — SMITH

Marion Anne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith of Belleville became the bride of Reginald Lewis John Hay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Hay of RR 1, Campbellford at a ceremony held at St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville on Dec. 19 at 2 p.m. Rev. Peter Teel was the officiating clergyman and organ music was provided by Mr. D. Davenport.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white imported brocade trimmed with re-embroidered Marseilles lace. Styled in an A-line, it featured a bateau neckline and full-length bell sleeves. Her elbow length veil was of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

The matron of honor Mrs. Ross Smith, the bride's sister-in-law wore a floor - length dress of green faille taffeta featuring an empire waist trimmed with lace. It had short flared sleeves and her headpiece was a matching bow to her hair. She carried a nosegay of white baby mums.

Mrs. Mac Smith, another Sister-in-law of the bride was the bridesmaid. She wore a red faille taffeta dress identical in style to that of the matron of honor.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother-in-law Mr. Clayton Read. The ushers were Ward Hay the bridegroom's brother and Mac Smith, the bride's brother.

The reception was held in Gilmed Hall. The bride's mother wore a dress of printed silver Italian brocade with a corsage of gold and white sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother was in a dress of purple crinkplene and her corsage was of pink and white sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride left in a forest green crimplene A-line dress with a tie collar and long sleeves gathered at the wrists. Her corsage was of coral sweetheart roses. Upon return the newly married couple will reside at RR1, Campbellford.

SOCIALS

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Reginald Hay (nee Marion Smith) was honored at a shower held at the home of Mrs. Ray Seeney of Campbellford with Mrs. William Goucher as co-hostess. Another shower was given by the women teachers of Hillcrest Public School, Campbellford. She was presented with gifts by the committees at the Campbellford Cl-up and by the staff of Hillcrest School.

Buttered Eggs Go Well with Christmas Bread

By MARY MOORE

Do you know what Buttered Eggs are? These are what old Mrs. Wheatley used to serve at her special Sunday morning breakfasts 40 years ago and have lingered in our memories ever since.

Since Christmas breakfast is a special occasion and since these would be easy to prepare and go deliciously with Christmas Braid Bread (see Tuesday) I want to tell you exactly how to make them for your family.

BUTTERED EGGS

(Serves 4)

¼ cup butter
¼ cup milk
¾ tsp. salt
6 eggs
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. chopped chives or parsley or thyme or dill - (optional)

Now comes Mrs. Wheatley's method.

In double boiler melt the butter. In beater bowl beat eggs with milk, salt and pepper until just foamy. If you choose can add your herb now. Pour into butter in double boiler, stirring, and cook over simmering water stirring constantly until softly set. Do not overcook. It should be of a light custardy consistency — not firm at all. Serve on preheated breakfast plates.

Sentimental Mary is obeying an urge to tell you of our family Christmas. As many of you know my son-in-law is posted to National Defence College in Kingston so that means that Marianne and Herbie and their family are the closest to me that they have ever been in 15 years of marriage. Pete and Margaret have taken advantage of their proximity and invited them from Kingston and me from Hamilton to spend two days at their home in Toronto — it is all for two nights. What a houseful — nine of whom are children. Then for Christmas dinner there will be 17 for my cousin Irene Norman from Ottawa and my two sisters from Hamilton are joining us.

We may need a sergeant major to keep traffic flowing smoothly in the house. We will have a kitchen manager in Margaret for she has had her Christmas pudding and mincemeat tarts and cranberry sauce made for weeks. It is a safe bet that her freezer is bulging.

So that is the Moore-Pitts family Christmas plan and I hope you are having just such lovely anticipatory palpitations. Merry Christmas from fondly yours Mary.

Points for Parents

Mother: (on Christmas eve) "Jump into bed quick now. Stop running around and get ready for bed. What if Santa should leak in the window? It might scare him away."

Mother: "As soon as you have your pajamas on, Daddy will read a Christmas story while I make some hot chocolate. We can drink it while we listen to Christmas carols before bedtime.

A relaxing hour of quiet companionship should be more conducive to sleep than will scolding on that most exciting of all nights of the year.

It's another Christmas season, ringing out with old fashioned joy. Hope you and yours have the merriest Yuletime of all. To our warm wishes, add our sincere "Thank You."

Poem 'Christmas Is Many Things,' by Dorothy Cameron Smith

by DORIS CLARK

CHRISTMAS IS MANY THINGS

It isn't the turkey or mistletoe
That makes every Christmas
so sweet, I know,
Christmas is love and silent night...
Cathedral candles shining
bright;
It isn't just Santa, not just the tree
That makes every Christmas
so dear to me,
Christmas is starlight on the snow,
And joy The Child brought long ago.

Dorothy Cameron Smith.

Dear Doris: I am 16. When-ever a boy speaks to me I get all nervous and choked up. I feel blank. When I read out loud in class I stutter and find it very hard to pro-nounce words.

Before I started high school I went to a small elementary school. I could read well and had no problems with boys. When I first started this high school I was asked out; on dates but my parents wouldn't let me go. I was even elected Frosh Queen. But now my parents want me to go out and no one asks me.

My second problem is worse than my first. It's really crazy. It's my eyes. I cannot seem to look people in the eye when I'm talking to them, especially boys. — Talking to Myself.

Dear Talking: You and a million other teen - agers stutter — or feel like it — when they speak out in class. Slow down. Relax. Believe that other people care about you and want to help.

Any girl who has enough on the ball to be elected Frosh Queen will get the spotlight and the dates just as soon as the boys find out she is no longer grounded.

The eye problem is all part of the picture. Remember that it is bad manners to talk to people while looking some place else. Try occasional brief glances until it comes easier.

Dear Doris: I would like to know how to make a presen-tation to a president when her term of office is finished. — Incumbent.

Dear Incumbent: Offer the gal who takes over the job is the one who presents the part-ing gift. You might say: "Dear Pres (or Mary or Joan-ie):

"Your act is going to be a hard one to follow. You have done a terrific job in the past year and I can tell you I'm more than honored to be ask-ed to follow in your shoes.

"Our whole group says a great big thank-you for all the work you've done to make the club interesting and fun as well, and on everybody's behalf I would like you to accept this gift.

"Good luck when you take over!

Bonanza in Used Cartons

TORONTO (CP) — The president, of a paper-products firm, says the corrugated paper Toronto's two million residents use every year and then throw away could be worth up to $4 million if recycled.

Philip Granovsky of Atlantic Packaging Co. of Toronto, said in an interview Wednesday that Torontonians go through about 200,000 tons of corrugated paper a year.

He said that his company alone could use up to 40,000 tons of waste cardboard annually and a half-dozen other similar firms could easily handle the remainder.

As a potential raw material, second-hand cardboard boxes are better in some respects than raw pulp, said Mr. Granovsky. Current market price for the waste matrial is $23 a ton in large bales for corrugated paper.

British Courts Gird for Divorce Rush

LONDON (AP) — A law allowing easier divorce goes into effect next week. A British Law Society spokesman says: "There simply won't be enough judges or buildings to meet the demand."

The Divorce Reform Act, effective Jan. 1, is the first major change in matrimonial laws since 1857, when cruelty, desertion and insanity were added to adultery as grounds for ending a marriage.

The new law allows unhappy couples to cancel marriages after two years of living apart; if both partners agree. After five years apart divorce will be virtually automatic even if one partner objects.

Opponents of the bill note that it provides for divorce by compulsion if one partner demands it.

"It's just a licence for men to throw you on the scrap heap," protested one housewife in a letter to Parliament. Other opponents argue the act will break up family life, make marriage into an experiment and favor middle-aged husbands who want to run away with younger women.

The government, anticipating a big increase under the new law, is preparing to appoint 26 new county judges...

THE PICK OF Punch

Toronto International Airport Plugged Solid

TORONTO (CP) — Congestion inside and outside Toronto International Airport has aggravated the normal Christmas-to-New Year's rush.

"This terminal was designed to handle 3,200,000 passengers a year," an official of British Overseas Airways Corp., said Wednesday.

"By the end of this year it will have handled 4,100,000 and next year the figure will top seven million."

David Reynolds, BOAC's Ontario manager, added that the problem is expected to continue until some of the major airlines move out in the fall of 1972.

Airport officials said that at times since Dec. 13 airport traffic has been lined up all the way to Highway 401, a mile south of the terminal entrance.

At peak periods Wednesday lineups at airline counters inside stretched from wall to wall and baggage was piled everywhere. All parking levels were filled and cars were parking on the terminal lawn.

Air Canada added 504 flights to its schedule to handle holiday travellers—30 more flights than for the same period last year. Sixty-seven of the extra flights went south to Florida and the Caribbean.

IT IS MY GREAT PLEASURE TO EXTEND TO EVERYONE IN HASTINGS MY MOST SINCERE WISHES FOR Military Spying Curtailed

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Did you know that there was a walnut and a chocolate Santa left in the toe of one of your socks?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird took steps Wednesday to reorganize United States military intelligence activities and strengthen civilian control to "make certain the constitutional rights of all individuals are protected."

Under a policy statement issued by Laird to go into effect no later than Feb. 1, control of the vast Defense Intelligence Agency will be removed from the joint chiefs of staff and placed directly under the secretary of defence.

The action comes in the wake of charges disclosed last week by Senator Sam J. Ervin (Dem. N.C.)- that army intelligence agents had spied on more than 100 Illinois civilians during the past two years, including dozens of high-ranking political officials.

Both the defence department and the army emphatically denied the allegations.

Government Will Buy Denison's Uranium to Settle Tangle

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has agreed to advance $28.5 million buying and stockpiling uranium from Denison Mines Ltd. at Elliot Lake, Ont., under an agreement to settle a long-standing tangle over ownership and production.

Denison Chairman Stephen Roman, who had said at the height of the argument he would sue the government and shut down the mine, cheerfully described the preliminary settlement Wednesday as a Christmas present and "a message of good cheer" for the company employees.

The agreement will assure jobs at the mine which employs 900.

E.J.J. Greene, mines and energy minister, announced the federal assistance from Jan. 1 through 1974 following a cabinet meeting.

Negotiations preceding the agreement in principle had been prolonged. Mr. Roman said in Toronto the talks had been very difficult at times. A government official said they had gone through about two dozen proposals until they came up with one acceptable to Mr. Roman and the federal cabinet.

The agreement will assure provisions" remain to be resolved.

The general agreement calls for the purchase of about 6.5 million pounds of uranium concentrate in four years at a cost to the government of $4.38 a pound, about $7.5 million a year and up to $28.5 million for four years.

Denison will take a financial interest in the joint stockpile valued at $1.38 a pound or about $9.7 million in all—a one-quarter interest.

Any profits on future sales from the stockpile after 1974 will be shared equally between the government and Denison.

Denison will be responsible for the sales, but marketing costs will be shared.

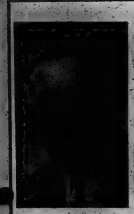
Sales from the new, joint stockpile would start only after the beginning of 1975. If Denison at that time had any uranium left in its own, existing stockpile, one-quarter of any new sales would be drawn from that reserve and the rest from the joint Denison-government supply.

Private sales and those from the joint stockpile will take precedence over any sales from the government's own $180 million stockpile accumulated under a direct-purchase program since 1963 under a program that expires New Year's Eve.

In addition, the government has promised to play a more active role trying to push export sales by the privately-owned uranium mines.

Denison has agreed to maintain "normal levels of employment"—at present between 800 and 900—and minimum operations at its production rate of four million pounds a year in the coming four years. It will stay in production, barring a major upheaval, through 1984.

Denison has sales contracts with Japanese interests that would take only about half of a profitable production rate in the next four years, building up to an economic rate from 1975 through 1984. The government said Denison's present stockpile could fill all present orders until 1975.



The dispute erupted last March when the government forbade the sale of a controlling interest in Denison to U.S.-controlled Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co.

In July, the government said its 1963 programs to buy and stockpile uranium concentrate would end Dec. 31.

Mr. Roman took out writs to sue the government and said he would close down the mine until 1975.

In effect, the government now has agreed to provide funds to keep the mine going in place of the injection of private capital it denied by banning the sale of Denison Shares to Hudson's Bay.

In accepting the deal, Mr. Roman referred to "differences in the area of economic nationalism"—reference to the government's move to prevent control from passing to Hudson's Bay.

TO THE PEOPLE OF HASTINGS RIDING

Over the past 13 years as your representative at Queen's Park, Toronto, I have established close contact with many departments of the government, which enables me to bring the complaints and needs of this constituency to the attention of our ministers, and secure quick action. I have devoted all my time to this end, and have endeavored to strive for the welfare of all to the best of my ability.

This year we have had a definite slacking in the economy of all Canada, which has caused many hardships and high unemployment, but I look ahead to the future with confidence. With government support and by all working together we will see a greatly improved situation in Hastings in 1971.

Now once again I would like to thank you for your confidence in me and extend to one and all my very best wishes for

A MERRY CHRISTMAS and
HEALTH AND HAPPINESS
in the coming year

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1971

You don't need to listen to canned-music Christmas carols, or fight your way through aisles of last-second shoppers to know that Christmas is upon us.

You just have to talk with an exuberant 12-year-old named David Globe if your idea of the Christmas spirit involves getting a lump in the throat.

David is not the easiest chap in the world to track down. He might be off on a snowmobile excursion, or somewhere tinkering around with a pinto or just about any other musical instrument he can get his hands on.

Next summer, David hopes, he will be doing a lot of fishing at the family cottage on Beckstead Lake, since he has inside information that Santa Claus has plans to equip the 27 Highland Avenue Globes with angling outfits.

"I wanted a tape recorder," David confides, but he is very realistic for an 11-year-old. He withdrew that wish when he remembered he was only one in a six-children household.

A big boy for 11, David has tried his hand at other sporting endeavors. Swimming lessons are included on his agenda at Bronkford, where David is a fifth-grader at "OSS" — Ontario School for the Blind.

Sportsman David Globe

"I even put roller skates on once," he laughs. "But I couldn't move an inch."

Snowmobiling is a new love. Often during this Christmas holiday you'll find David seated behind brother Brian, skimming around Erick's Island on the gleaming red and white Alouette the Globes purchased in the fall.

"It's really fun, but I hate the bumps," he says, shoving the grips near the back of the machine to which he clings tightly while Brian does the driving. "It's almost like riding on a motorcycle," he beams. Yes, David's been on one of these, too.

During last year's Christmas vacation, David was introduced to a new sporting experience. He attended his first hockey game.

Oshawa was in town for a game with Belleville's junior B entry, and the Globes had more than a hometown team to root for.

"We knew this player for Oshawa — Doug Whitley — he plays senior hockey now against the Mic-Hawks," brothers Brian and David explained between them. "His cottage is a couple of doors from ours."

David admits that was the first time he thought about "watching" a hockey game, as he puts it.

So with Mom and Dad Globe along as play-by-play commentators David took in his first hockey game.

"We were just cheering for anybody," he recalls.

"Oshawa won 10-2," brother Brian interjected. "Doug got a goal and gave David the puck."

As avid a sports buff as he is, David doesn't like to get his sport second or third-hand. "I'm not really keen on it unless I'm right there on the spot," he says.

Somehow, you hoped David's suspicion about fishing poles under the Christmas tree was correct. Paldoon, the fisherman's victim, would come easy for him.

So Merry Christmas, David. And to all the rest of you, while you're counting your presents and bills tomorrow, how about listing up a few of your blessings?

City Sport Representatives Blend of Strength, Finesse

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville athletes will present a muscular front at the Ontario Winter games, although finesse won't be entirely forgotten.

The bulk of the competitors will come from the Apollo Barbell Club which has qualified 13 members.

Also making the trip to Toronto will be wrestler Herb Uddenberg and skaters Patsy Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon.

The athletes will be part of the more than 1,500 taking part in 16 different sports contested Dec. 27-30. A team of the winners will then represent the province in the Canadian Winter Games in Saskatoon Feb. 11-12.

The team members will leave the Belleville bus terminal at 2.15 p.m. Sunday.

The weightlifting competition will be open to anyone under 22 years of age on Feb. 26, 1971. The age restriction is designed to promote some of the province's younger lifters", said Apollo coach Ken Carr-Braint.

Flyweight members eligible to compete are Ron Hayes, Norm Walt and David Carr - Braint. Rob Allore will compete in bantamweight while Joel Carr-Braint and Jim Travers are in the featherweight section.

Gary Ferguson, Brian Rosebush and Paul Barrett will represent the Apollo club in the middleweight division with Fred Bly and Art Walt lifting as light-heavyweights.

Middle - heavyweight Bob Walt and heavyweight Richie Bly complete the list, although Ken Carr-Braint, Manley Bly and Gary Walt will make the trip as officials.

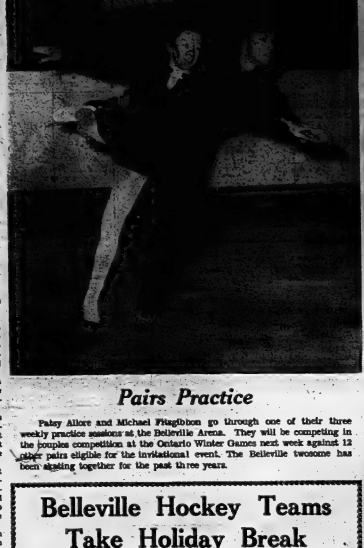
To qualify for the games lifters must be rated in the top 12 of their respective Ontario weight classifications.

Wrestler Herb Uddenburg is faced with a "weight" problem but hopes that he will be "out of his class" against competitors from the nine other districts.

The grade 13 BCI student normally competes in the 125-pound category but in free-style competition was forced to move up to the 145 group despite weighing in nine pounds below the limit.

Uddenburg, who has been wrestling for three years, won the right to represent the Ottawa district in a meet at the national capital in November.

Included in his win total were victories over collegiate competitors from Carleton and Queen's University.



Providing Belleville finesse will be figure skaters competing in the couples competition.

Patsy Allore has been skating for seven years, while Michael Fitzgibbon has been on the blades for nine years. They have skated as a team for the past three winters under the Quinte Figure Skating Club banner.

Figure skaters face particularly tight competition since there will be a total of 13 winners in the various sections and only eight will be allowed to make the trip to Saskatoon.

The Belleville couple is one of three competing from the Ottawa district against nine other pairs from across the province.

Also of interest to local fans will be the program of the Peterborough Lions, who will be representing the Eastern Ontario Junior B league in the hockey tournament, beginning Monday.

Reach, Pardner

Apollo Barbell Club member Jim Travers stretches a point while limbering up for next week's Ontario Winter Games competition in Etobicoke. Travers and 12 other members of the Belleville weightlifting club have qualified to participate in the 16-sport meet, designed to select an Ontario team for February's Canada Winter Games in Saskatchewan from the 1,500 competitors.

Pairs Practice

Patsy Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon go through one of their three weekly practice sessions at the Belleville Arena. They will be competing in the couples competition at the Ontario Winter Games next week against 12 other pairs eligible for the invitational event. The Belleville twosome has been skating together for the past three years.

Belleville Hockey Teams Take Holiday Break

Belleville's senior and junior hockey teams which received early Christmas gifts in the form of Tuesday night wins over their Kingston counterparts, get a holiday break until Sunday.

The Mic-Hawks are breathing down the necks of the four-place Kingston Aces after winning four of their last five games, trailing the Aces by one point.

Belleville's next road game will be Sunday afternoon against the last place Woodstock Athletics, where they could square their season's record at 12 wins, 12 losses.

A scheduled New Years Day game with the Athletics in Belleville has been postponed, so the Mic-Hawks' next home will be a key Jan. 3 meeting in Kingston.

The Junior B Fairways, coming off a 7-4 win over the Kingston Frontenacs meet the last place Trenton Golden Hawks in an 8 p.m. Sunday contest at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Belleville if currently trailing the Cobourg Cougars by four points in a battle for the final play-off spot in the six team Eastern Ontario league. The Fairways hold two games in hand over Cobourg.

Sunday's game will be "Metra Night", with all students holding a Metra Secondary School student council card being admitted for 50 cents.

Push Up

Wrestler Herb Uddenburg gets in some pre-meet conditioning for the Ontario Winter Games which get under way Monday. The grade 13 Belleville Collegiate student won the right to compete in the free style wrestling competition in a November meet in Ottawa.

Finding Seat May Be Toughest Game

TORONTO (CP) — Trying to find a seat to watch any of the 16 sports events of the first Ontario Winter Games next week in the borough of Etobicoke may be tough.

Officials said Monday they have seating facilities at the 16 Games sites—16 school auditoriums, two arenas and Centennial Park—to handle about 10,000 persons a day.

"Any overflow will just have to be turned away," said John Gillies, spokesman for the Ontario government which is staging the competition at a cost of bet- n $2,000 to $75,000.

More than 1,500 athletes from 11 Ontario regions are participating in the four-day event starting Sunday to select the 300-member team to represent the province at the Canada Winter Games Feb. 11-12 in Saskatoon.

Two hockey games will open the Games Sunday afternoon when Toronto Nationals take on St. Catharines Falcons and Owen Sound Greys meet Peterborough Lions. The teams are Junior B calibre.

Etobicoke Mayor Edward Horton will officiate at opening ceremonies Monday night at 6 p.m. at the borough's municipal offices. Syl Apps, former National Hockey League star and Progressive Conservative member for Kingston and The Islands, will represent Premier John Robarts at the ceremonies, to be preceded by a half-mile torchlight parade of athletes.

Gillies said planners had to work with available facilities in the west-end borough and accommodation for fans may be sticky. The Pine Point and Long Branch hockey arenas can seat about 600 each, while 350 would be capacity for the school auditoriums.

Another hitch "may develop with spectators who will have to commute on natural ice on a small pond in Centennial Park. If a thaw makes the pond unsafe, the speedskating will have to be postponed to a later date.

But these were the only problem areas Gillies could see in the planning for the Games that began two years ago.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be presented in each event but team standings will not be kept as the various regions were not able to send athletes to compete in every sport.

The youngest competitor will be Cindy Mein, nine-year-old figure skater from Peterborough. Among the more prominent athletes will be Teresa McDonell, 17, Scarborough Borough gymnast who captured the junior title at the first Canada Winter Games in Quebec City in 1967.

More than 139 competitors are expected from the Ottawa region, 149 from Thunder Bay, Windsor 131, Lambton 112, North Bay 91, Peterborough 97, Kitchener 46 and Kingston 45. The Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines regions are sending a total of 413 athletes.

A full schedule of events begins Monday in volleyball, boxing, speedskating, basketball, gymnastics, curling, badminton, hockey, figure skating, table tennis, weightlifting, fencing, sailing hockey, judo and synchronized swimming.

Colts Run, But Not Far

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's not true that Baltimore Colts seldom run the football. It's just that they don't run it far.

In winning the East Division title of the American Football Conference with an 11-3-1 record, the Colts tried 416 passes and 411 running plays. They gained 3,987 yards through the air and only 1,338 on the ground.

The Baltimore running attack was severely hampered when veteran Tom Matte, who gained 99 yards last year, limped off the field in the opening game with an injured knee and stayed out all season.

That left rookie Norm Bulaich as the club's leading rusher with a modest total of 426 yards.

But Cincinnati Bengals, who meet the Colts Saturday in one of four weekend playoff games in the National Football League, are unlikely to gear their defence for an orthodox passing attack.

Rookie coach Don McCafferty has perked up the Baltimore attack with a few imaginative touches

There have been double reverses, some ending in passes. They have come up with end-around, quick screens, tight-end screens, double and triple swings and man-in-motion plays from a full backfield.

Detroit Lions visit Dallas Cowboys in the other Saturday playoff. On Sunday, Minnesota Vikings entertain San Francisco 49ers and Miami Dolphins play the Raiders at Oakland.

Statistics point to an interesting battle between the Vikings and 49ers.

The Minnesota defence has thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 68 times this year, the second-highest total in the NFL. But San Francisco's offensive line set a league record by permitting quarterback John Brodie to be dumped only eight times.

The 49ers scored the most points, 352, and had the fewest passes intercepted, 18. The Vikings tied with Detroit for the most interceptions, 30, and allowed the fewest points, 163.

The Miami-Oakland game shapes up as a contrast in offensive power. Miami, led by Larry Csonka's 874 yards rushing, had the most effective ground attack in the American Conference while Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica was the AFC's top passer.

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United, formerly the glamor club of English soccer, was humbled 3-1 by Aston Villa Wednesday night as the Third Division side powered through to a Football League Cup final berth against Tottenham Hotspur. A record crowd of 62,500 saw Aston Villa clinch a 3-2 aggregate semi-final triumph while Tottenham needed overtime to beat Bristol City 2-0 in the other semi-final second-leg match. Hotspur won 3-2 on aggregate. Manchester United was worn down by the hard-working Villa side and goals by Andy Lochhead and Pat McMahon cancelled out an early goal by Britain Kidd. Spurs, who face Villa in the final at Wembley Feb. 27, battled long and hard before overcoming Second Division Bristol City on extra-time goals by Martin Chivers and Jimmy Pearce.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Canadian rider Hugo Ditzfach suffered a broken arm Wednesday in an automobile accident en route to Liberty Bell Race Track where he is among the eight leading jockeys. Ditzfach's car was demolished when it was struck by a speeding car that was travelling on the wrong side of the road. He was taken to Nazareth Hospital where X-rays revealed a fracture of the right forearm near the wrist.

Bob Love and Chet Walker combined for 69 points and Matty Guokas scored the decisive basket among his six as Chicago Bulls beat Buffalo Braves 104-102 Wednesday night for their ninth National Basketball Association victory in 19 games. Guokas gave the Bulls a 104-99 lead with his basket with 53 seconds left before Cornell Warner and John Hummer scored for the Braves. Love had 31 points and Walker, 28. Cincinnati Royals beat Baltimore Bullets 120-115 and San Diego Rockets smashed Atlanta Hawks 133-102 in the night's only other games. Don May had 27 points to lead Buffalo, which missed Bob Kauffman the last 20 minutes of the game. Kauffman, the Braves' high scorer and leading rebounder, was ejected at 8:32 of the third quarter after he was hit with two technical fouls. Rookie Nate Archibald and Tom Van Arsdale ignited a fourth-quarter rally as Cincinnati scrambled past Baltimore. Archibald, who hit 19 points in the final period, and Van Arsdale, who wound up with 27, helped the Royals overcome a 100-82 deficit. Earl Monroe had 37 for the Bullets. Elvin Hayes scored 29 points for the red-hot Rockets, who moved to within a game of Los Angeles in the Pacific Division race. Lou Hudson had 30 points for the Hawks.

Team Drops Ski 'Veterans'

TORONTO (CP) — "How long do you go with the veterans?"

Ed Creed, alpine chairman for the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, was pondering the case of Peter Duncan, 26, of Sherbrooke, Que., whom he describes as "the greatest male skier Canada has ever produced."

Duncan was dropped from the national team recently, along with Peter Goodman of Montreal, Mike Culver of Montreal and Bert Irwin of Kamloops, B.C., moved from the international section of the national squad down to the Can-Am team.

Aldyn Ballantyne of Montreal and Rete Barrington of Calgary moved up.

Culver and Irwin are 19 and 23 respectively; Ballantyne and Barrington are 19 and 18.

"Duncan was occupying a spot on the team and, while he has been our best, he wasn't improving," Creed said. "He was holding up someone else."

"He still feels he is good enough to win in international competition, but he just hasn't shown it."

Creed says being dropped from the team after 18 years as a top Canadian competitor is "a lousy way to go."

"He should have had a banquet and a big sendoff. We tried to tell him last year that the handwriting was on the wall, but I guess he felt he could still make it. He should have retired.

"He deserves bouquets for giving many years of his life to the sport."

Creed said he felt "Duncan's future is in skiing—the question of where is up to him."

Creed recalled that the women's team had gone through a weeding-out process just after the 1968 Olympic Games in Grenoble. As a result, the two oldest girls on the squad are 18-year-olds Judy Crawford of Toronto and Diane Culver of Montreal.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa is 17 and ranks 18th in the world in downhill, seventh in slalom and eighth in giant slalom, making her among the best in the sport.

Judy Crawford is 13th in downhill, 6th in slalom and 43rd in giant slalom.

In the tougher world of men's skiing, Duncan is rated 79th in downhill 36th in slalom and 31st in giant slalom.

Duncan was chosen captain by his team-mates last year.

Leafs Get Vancouver Off Their Backs

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A couple of monkeys disappeared from the backs of National Hockey League clubs Wednesday night.

Boston Bruins won a game in Detroit for the first time in nearly two years. And Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Vancouver Canucks for the first time in recorded history.

The Bruins, riding a nine-game winning streak, and the Leafs, with seven straight victories under their belt, were jubilant as Boston edged the Red Wings 3-1 and Toronto thrashed the Canucks 7-2.

New York Rangers also won their seventh in a row, a 6-1 decision over Pittsburgh Penguins, to remain tied with Boston for first place in the NHL's East Division. Chicago Black Hawks, leaders in the West, defeated Los Angeles Kings 6-4 to open up a 18-point margin over St. Louis Blues, who had a 2-2 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

Speaking of jinxes, the Blues have yet to beat Montreal at St. Louis in 15 meetings since they entered the NHL 3½ years ago. Three of the previous games were tied.

The Bruins, whose last victory in Detroit was on Feb. 22, 1953, pumped two goals past goaltender Jim Rutherford in the first six minutes but were balked by the rookie netminder the rest of the way.

The rookie netminder made eight stops on Phil Esposito, Boston's 36-goal shooter, as the Bruins fired 39 shots at him with Ed Westfall and Fred Stanfield the only successful marksmen.

Frank Mahovlich robbed Ed Johnston of his shutout early in the third period when his shot went in off the skate of Boston defenceman Ted Green.

Deflecting also played a part in the early going at Toronto, where Leaf defenceman Mike Pelyk bounced one in off Pat Quinn, a former team-mate, and then co-operated unwillingly as Don Johnson banked home a shot to give Vancouver a 3-1 lead.

The Canucks began to fall apart shortly after their captain, Orland Kurtenbach, limped to the dressing room with a bruised knee after a bodycheck by Leaf defenceman Bobby Baun in the first period. The Leafs scored three times in the second period and three more in the third, two of them by Norm Ullman.

The game-winner by rookie Darryl Sittler drew protests from the Canucks, who contended that Jim Harrison tripped goalie George Gardner in the crease just before the puck went in. They objected again on the next goal, claiming that a shot by Harrison had not crossed the goal line.

The Leafs kept Gardner busy with a barrage of 37 shots while Vancouver fired 29 at Toronto goalie Jacques Plante.

The victory moved Toronto into a fourth-place tie with the expansion club, which had beaten them in a pre-season game and three times since the start of the schedule.

The only consolation for the boosters was the news that Kurtenbach's injury would not keep him out of the lineup for their next game in Vancouver Saturday against Chicago.

The Hawks got two-goal efforts from Pit Martin and Bobby Hull as they overcame a 3-2 deficit at Los Angeles.

Hull's 18th and 19th goals of the season gave them the victory. He beat Denis DeJordy with a blazing 50-footer early in the third period, then found the empty net with 28 seconds remaining after the Los Angeles netminder had been pulled for an extra attacker.

The Rangers, unbeaten in their last 17 home games, permitted only 24 shots as Gilles Villemure and fired 46 at Pittsburgh goalie Al Smith in their romp against the Penguins. They led 3-0 at the end of the first period and had a 6-0 margin before Keith McCreary scored for the losers with barely two minutes left.

Rookie George Morrison salvaged the tie for St. Louis late in the third period after the Blues had failed to capitalize on two power plays. Montreal goalie Rogatien Vachon was partially screened on his 30-foot shot, Montreal had opened up a 2-0 lead against Ernie Wakely before the home team started its comeback.

Hull Gains One Rung

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull scored his 18th and 19th goals of the season Wednesday night as Chicago Black Hawks downed Los Angeles Kings 6-4.

Hull's performance enabled him to slip past Boston Bruins' Johnny McKenzie into fourth place in the NHL's individual scoring race.

Hull now has 42 points—one ahead of McKenzie.

Phil Esposito, the scoring leader with 65 points picked up one assist as Boston Bruins squeaked by Detroit Red Wings 3-1.

BOBBY HULL

Second place Bobby Orr also added one assist to his season total, giving him 51 points.

Parker Unlocks Keys

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Parker hired his own successor as head coach Wednesday and moved up stairs in the hierarchy of British Columbia Lions to give them what Lions president Ian H. Barclay described as "the most dynamic one-two punch in Canadian Football."

Parker, who got the Lions home in fourth place in the five-team Western Football Conference last fall, turned his job over to Eagle Keys, whose Saskatchewan Roughriders finished first.

Barclay, announcing the move at a news conference, said Parker will become executive general manager of the Lions, a title popularly referred to as "superboss."

Creation of the new position was originally recommended by Denny Veitch, last season's general manager and a candidate for the job. Barclay said Veitch has been granted leave of absence until Jan. 1, when Parker takes over.

Keys, who received $23,000 at Regina, was unofficially reported to have signed a five-year contract at $25,000 a year with the Lions. Parker got a two-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

Prior to Wednesday's announcements, Senator Ed Lawson, a club director, had launched an attack charging that the committee named to recommend a new executive general manager had exceeded its authority by negotiating also for a head coach.

But the senator, who was on hand for the news conference, said he is satisfied now that correct procedure had been followed.

The deal bringing Parker and Keys together reunites a winning combination. Keys played centre for Edmonton Eskimos when Parker was in the backfield in 1954 and they won the first of three successive Grey Cups.

Parker became Lions' head coach midway in the 1956 season and has been on the Canadian scene for 16 years as both player and coach. Keys has 22 years of Canadian football experience as player and coach.

Parker said Wednesday night he almost had to apply for the superboss job, "because if I didn't, where was I? Anybody applying for a job like this was going to want to bring in his own people as coaches."

In a telephone interview from Regina, Keys said he regarded his new job as "a heck of a challenge."

Hanoi Rebuked for POW Stand

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — has in the past.

State Secretary William Rogers strongly rebuked Hanoi Wednesday for its stand on prisoners-of-war and warned of a possible resumption of bombing of North Vietnam.

Diplomatic observers noted Secretary Rogers, in a town confab took a harder line on the issue of the war than he Angered by Hanoi's move this week in releasing a list of U.S. prisoners-of-war with no new names, Rogers called it a contemptible and despicable maneuver. Then he accused North Vietnam of barbarism and inhumanity in its attitude toward American captives.

Rogers also backed up President Nixon's warning of Dec. 16 that the United States would bomb military targets in North Vietnam if Hanoi continues to shoot at reconnaissance planes or threatened the safety of U.S. troops during the withdrawal process in South Vietnam.

Nixon and Defence Secretary Melvin Laird have warned Hanoi of possible repetitions of the U.S. air strikes against military and radar complexes carried out last month.

To all our friends and customers we would like to extend sincere wishes for a Holiday Season filled with joy and good will.

Publishing Commission Named

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts Wednesday announced the membership and terms of reference of a royal commission to investigate the publishing industry in Ontario.

Chairman will be Richard Rohmer, a Toronto lawyer. Other members will be Dalton Camp of Toronto, a journalist, author and public relations executive, and Marsh Jeanneret of King City, a publishing executive and author.

Mr. Robarts promised the legislature he would name a commission after criticisms of foreign takeovers of Canadian publishing, particularly the purchase by an American firm of the textbook division of Toronto's Ryerson Press.

The terms of reference: to examine and report on the publishing industry in Ontario and throughout Canada; functions of the publishing industry in contributing to the cultural life and education of the people of Ontario and of Canada; and the economic, cultural, social or other consequences of the substantial ownership or control of publishing firms by foreign or foreign-owned or controlled corporations or by non-Canadians.

Mr. Robarts announced the inquiry Nov. 30, a day before the United Church of Canada sold Ryerson Press to the Americas-controlled McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Roberts said at that time the commission would pay special attention to the publication of textbooks and other printed material used in schools.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
By-Law Number 8980

A BY-LAW TO REGULATE, GOVern the Operation of Motor Vehicles on Property Owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville, Including Any Highway Thereon or Any Part Thereof and to Prohibit the Operation Thereon of Motorized Snow Vehicles.

1. In this by-law
(a) "Motorized Snow Vehicle" means a self-propelled vehicle designed to be driven exclusively on snow and ice;
(b) "Highway" means a highway as defined in The Highway Traffic Act;
(c) "Sidewalk" means that portion of a highway between the curb lines or the lateral lines of a roadway and the adjacent property lines intended for the use of pedestrians.

2. "Boulevard" means the portion of every highway within the limits of the City, not being a sidewalk, and laid down to lawn, garden, shrubs, trees or a roadway shoulder.

3. No person shall operate or allow a motorized snow vehicle to be operated on property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville, including any highway thereon or any part thereof, except as provided in Section 4, 5 and Schedule "A".

4. No person shall operate or allow to be operated or driven a motorized snow vehicle on any highway, except as provided in Section No. 1 of Schedule "A" in, over, upon or across any highway for the purpose of travel to or from a residence or to or from a place where fuel, food, drink, lodging or repairs for the motorized snow vehicle or the driver or otherwise damage or destroy any property of the Corporation of the City of Belleville, or any person, or to endanger the safety of any person, or to cause unnecessary noise or annoyance to any person.

5. No person shall operate or drive a motorized snow vehicle in, over, upon or across any highway or property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville between the hours of 2:00 a.m. and 8:00 a.m. on the following day on Thursday between 2:00 a.m. and 8:00 a.m. on the following day on Friday and between 2:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. on Sunday.

6. No person shall operate or drive a motorized snow vehicle within the limits of the City of Belleville at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper having regard to the traffic and use of the highway or property and the general conditions, having regard to the nature of the motorized snow vehicle and the driver is so as not to endanger the safety of any person or damage any property.

7. Every person who contravenes any provision of this by-law is guilty of an offence and upon conviction is liable to a fine not exceeding One Hundred Dollars for each offence and each day that a breach continues after the conviction of the first offence shall be deemed a separate offence.

A Christmas Message

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story. Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexatious to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter: for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble: it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism. Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass. Take kindly the council of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore be at peace with God whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul. With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

Exchange Leaders Optimistic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Presidents of Canadian stock exchanges see nowhere to go but up after a bleak 1970.

Charles Neapole, president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, says volume on the two markets may increase by about 30 per cent during 1971.

Reduced profits and a reduction in dividends, coupled with tight money, have cut into the securities markets, he said.

"On the Montreal exchanges alone we have seen volume reduced by 11 per cent (during 1970) while the value has been cut by 15 per cent," Mr. Neapole said.

The total value of shares traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange will be about $3,200 million in 1970 compared with $3,800 million last year, a decline of 16 per cent.

J. R. Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said:

"Looking to 1971, inevitable major influences will be expansionary policies of the monetary and fiscal authorities in Canada and the U.S.A.,"

"The ground has been prepared for a more sustainable pattern of economic growth; but the expansionary movement must be tempered with some restraint. However, while fuelling of another inflationary spiral must be avoided; the present rates of unemployment represent a social and political situation which cannot be ignored."

Mr. Kimber said pent-up demand for capital investment projects, promising profit expectations and easier money should increase demand for financing through the capital market.

"It is likely that capital investment by business will grow by at least 15 per cent."

Mr. Neapole said the economy now needs expansionary policies.

"The most effective manner to get the ball rolling would be reduction in taxes."

J. R. Thomson, manager of the Calgary Stock Exchange, says the exchange will likely have its lowest volume since 1965.

Value of shares traded will be about $77.7 million, compared with $76.5 million in 1969. He noted most of the activity on the Calgary exchange is in junior resource companies. These companies have had difficulty getting financing and interest in their stocks has dropped off.

Mr. Thomson said he expects a resurgence to begin after the middle of 1971.

Post Office Presents Problem

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — It takes 2,000 mailing addresses to qualify for house-to-house mail delivery.

This town 50 miles southwest of Ottawa has finally qualified with 2,113 points of call.

Right, said the post office. Perth gets home delivery starting March 15. John for five mailmen and a relief man.

But there's a snag. Perth isn't sure it wants the service.

"I'm trying to find out if the people really want it," says Reeve Art Daines.

Mayor William Warren is more favorable. Home delivery hasn't done any harm in the big cities, is the way he puts it.

The weekly Perth Courier says: "The system has been forced on us without any consultation with the Town Council or the citizens of the town."

—Objectors to home delivery are:

—Service will be once a day, five days a week. At present, townspeople can pick up their mail at the post office any time of day six days a week.

—The post office will be ruined as a daily meeting place for residents, especially the elderly and retired.

—Houses will need a proper mail box or the postman won't come around. A wooden box hung outside the door won't do, says the post office.

—All houses will have to be numbered. A service club plans to sell home numbers to raise some money for good deeds.

—New street signs will cost the town at least $1,000.

"Maybe this is what is called progress," says the Courier sarcastically in an editorial.

Probably the worst blow of all is the proposal to build a new post office. It would be on the outskirts compared to the present building smack in the middle of Gore Street, the main drag.

"We need a new post office like we need a hole in the head," says Norman Turner, managing editor of the Courier.

British Series Debuts Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — A British-made detective series, Strange Report, will step into the NBC shoes soon to be left vacant by the cancelled Brackman's World. Since the success of Laugh-In, Glen Campbell and Batman, mid-season replacements have lost their step-child status.

Anthony Quayle, who will play a retired Scotland Yard inspector involved with special criminal cases, hopes the North American public enjoys his 16 episodes of Strange Report. But, as far as he is concerned, "That's all there is: there isn't any more."

The actor is starring in one of Broadway's smash hits of the season, Sleuth. It has a long run ahead and "there is the film version coming up and all sorts of things. No, I just couldn't go back now to doing more television."

Quayle wound up his Strange Report assignment almost two years ago after an eight-month stint. The episodes were turned out in a complicated business deal that involved NBC, Norman Felton who was under contract to the network to develop shows and Lew Grade, a British TV tycoon.

Although NBC held off using the series, it has been aired in England and elsewhere. Quayle, who has been in the theatre for almost 40 years and was director for 13 years of the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon, is a popular actor-director in England, best known for his Shakespearean roles.

"It was fun, rather, to dream up the character of Adam Strange," he said. "I believe he comes out a sane, humorous, ironic man, resourceful and thoroughly admirable even though constantly surrounded by intrigue and murder."

Quayle, who has a wife and three grown children, is settling down in New York for a lengthy stay.

"Getting a play like Sleuth, a real hit, is what it is all about," he said. "You spend a lifetime in the theatre and you do a lot of things. But something like this comes along, if you are lucky a few times in a life. You just don't walk away from it when it happens."

TRASH TROPHIES

LONDON (CP) — Peter Genchi admits he isn't the world's best angler. In fact, he's never caught a fish. But since he started the hobby he's come home with an old army helmet, a kettle, a bicycle wheel and a boot. Much to his fishing friends' astonishment, Gauchi has put his catches in special display boxes in his home. "At least I haven't left the river with an empty keep net," he said.

Merry Christmas

My Wish for you and yours at Christmas time is simple but then-again so complex that all the world's leaders and scholars have not as yet been able to implement it. It is a wish for peace and unobstructed good will with our fellow man – not just at Christmas but all year round. May you find this peace in 1971. 1970 has been a great year for us and we are extremely pleased to have provided a goodly number of Quinte area families with new homes and apartments. But we must say goodbye to 1970 and look forward to a new year. The festive season is here and all of us at Maurice H. Rollins Construction Limited hope that your Christmas is the merriest and that your New Year brings only the best. Thank you to all our customers and tenants for making our year a successful one.

Well, Why Not?

All I Want...Is an Elephant Ride

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — "My husband asked me what I wanted for Christmas, and I told him I wanted a ride on an elephant," I recalled Mrs. Cecil Pfeiffer.

"I told him he didn't have to buy me a whole elephant, just a ride on one. I never thought he'd do it."

But the day after Christmas, a big truck from King Animal Land pulled up to the Pfeiffer house and out came Queenie, a 28-year-old female pachyderm.

"My wife loves animals," explained Pfeiffer, an executive vice-president of an auto supply firm. "She has been bugging me for a long time about a ride on an elephant. . . . It was supposed to come Friday afternoon so she could ride it on Christmas, but the truck broke down."

The weather was cold and snowy, and Queenie could only stand the 18-degree temperature for about 10 minutes at a time. So the elephant spent most of the afternoon in the Pfeiffer garage.

Mrs. Pfeiffer and the Pfeiffers' four children—Martha, 16; Susan, 15; Lucy, 12; and Mac, 10—took turns riding the elephant. Pfeiffer also tried it.

"The ride was delightful," said Mrs. Pfeiffer. "It's better than I even imagined. It's something I've always wanted to do."

Pfeiffer was reluctant to say how much it cost to rent the elephant for the afternoon, but a spokesman for the animal farm said $300 is the standard price.

Police Arrest 3 At Farm Hideout

Light Gives Trio Away

MONTREAL (CP) — A light in the window of an apparently empty farmhouse led to the arrest early today of three prime suspects in the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte.

Paul Rose, 27, his brother Jacques Rose, 23, and Francis Simard, 23, were picked up along with a fourth unidentified man in the home near St. Luc, 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

First reports located the farmhouse at L'Acadie, in the same general area.

The four men were armed but offered no resistance, a Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said.

The spokesman gave no additional details on the arrests of the suspects, sought on warrants almost since the strangulation-death of Mr. Laporte Oct. 17.

The labor minister, No. 2 man in the Bourassa government at Quebec, had been abducted at gunpoint in front of his suburban St. Lambert home Saturday, Oct. 10.

Earlier that week James (Jasper) Cross, senior British trade commissioner in Montreal, was kidnapped from his home and held captive until located in Montreal North and freed by police Dec. 3. Those found with Mr. Cross were given safe conduct to Cuba, some with members of their families.

The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec claimed responsibility for the two kidnappings. The FLQ, responsible for violent demonstrations and bombings since 1963, wants to gain Quebec's independence through violent means.

First reports said that the Rose brothers and Simard, who at least once eluded police in Montreal by hiding in a false closet, were captured in a house in L'Acadie, 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

The town was the target of police searches during the Christmas weekend. At least a dozen persons were picked up and questioned during the weekend. All but three were released. Their names were not disclosed.

Warrants were issued Oct. 18 for Paul Rose and Marc Carbonneau in connection with the kidnappings of Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte. Carbonneau was among those found with Mr. Cross and later flown to Cuba.

Warrants for Jacques Rose and Simard were issued Oct. 23, saying they were wanted for conspiracy in the Laporte kidnapping.

Quebec To Give Bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Bail applications on behalf of persons detained under the war measures act now will be considered by the courts, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said today.

He made the announcement at a news conference a few hours after the arrest of three prime suspects in the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte.

The minister recalled his Dec. 22 announcement that persons detained under the act would not be released for the Christmas holidays and said "circumstances have changed today".

Quebec would therefore return to "the normal course of justice" in which "bail is the prerogative of the courts to grant."

However, Mr. Choquette said, "I reserve my right to object to bail in certain cases."

He called the news conference to "confirm officially" that police had picked up Paul Rose, 27, his brother Jacques Rose, 23, and Francis Simard, 23. They were arrested at St. Luc, 20 miles southeast of Montreal, in a farmhouse that the justice minister said was rented by Michel Viger.

Mr. Choquette also said that Dr. Jacques Ferron, whom he identified only as "a well-known doctor from the south shore," acted as an intermediary between the suspects and police.

But he did not make clear whether the suspects gave themselves up voluntarily or whether the intermediary was called in after police had tracked them down.

"There are many facts that I cannot reveal," he said. "Many of these things will probably come out at the coroner's inquest."

The First of Christmas

The first child born in Belleville Christmas Day also was the first to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Benson. The Front Street couple became parents of a son — Michael — who arrived at 3:34 a.m. weighing nine pounds, the first of two Christmas babies born at Belleville General Hospital.

Tenant Rebate of $57 Due End of December

If they haven't already received their cheques, tenants across the province will be getting the equivalent of property tax rebates before the end of the year.

At least, according to provincial regulations, owners of residential rental properties are required to pay the tax rebates to their tenants before the end of the year.

The rebate this year amounts to $57.80 for public school supporters and $58.91 for separate school supporters provided the rented accommodation is assessed at $2,000 or more.

If the assessment is less than $2,000 the amount to be received by the tenant is pro-rated with the minimum/amount being one half of the tax bill.

But landlords don't need to feel the taxable money paid to tenants is coming out of their own pockets.

This year's residential property tax has already been reduced by the amount of the rebate which was applied against tax bills earlier in the year.

Four Win Sweeps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 61-year-old computer technician who has just entered retirement was one of four Canadians who won $123,000 today on the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes based on the Sweeps Hurdles at Fairyhouse, Ireland.

Norman H. Chappell of Toronto, who retired this week from IBM Canada Ltd. and who has been buying sweepstakes tickets for 40 years, confirmed he had been unofficially advised of his win on first-place finisher Persian War, then stepped aside to let his wife describe his reaction

"It's so big I have to make an effort to remain cool and in my right mind," said Mrs. Chappell. "We're not used to this kind of money."

Two other Toronto residents, Mrs. Ace Manos and William Sheine, and C. L. Gregson of New Westminster, B.C., also held winning tickets on Persian War.

In New Westminster, 23-year-old Carol Gregson and her husband Gerry, 25, "just shook" when they learned they had won $123,000.

Four Canadians won $49,200 each on second-place Lockyer-sleigh and seven won $25,000 each on third-place Inishman.

George Poslett, 58, of Sarnia, Ont., who has been out of work since suffering a stroke two years ago, was one of he four Canadians who won $49,200.

Red Riding Hood Murder Victim

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard sought a Scots Guards soldier today in the "Little Red Riding Hood" slaying of 15-year-old Janet Stevens.

The guardsman was reported twice seen with the teen-ager in days immediately before her bloody murder.

Janet was strangled Christmas Day when she was on the way to her grandmother's house with gifts. London newspapers called it the "Red Riding Hood murder."

The slaying was one of three killings of women in different parts of England during the holiday weekend.

Leftist Reaction Expected

Six Basque Extremists Sentenced to Die

BURGOS, Spain (AP) — A military court today handed down death sentences for six persons in the Burgos trial of 16 Basque extremists.

The sentences will go to Gen. Francisco Franco to be commuted or confirmed.

Three of the six were sentenced to death by firing squad —twice. The unusual measure indicated the reaction of the court to the last day of trial when the 16 arose in a group and tried to attack court-martial members.

The three receiving two death sentences each were Francisco Javier Izco, 29; Eduardo Uriate, 25, and Joaquin Gorostidi, 26, who led the charge against the court members.

The prosecution had asked for six death sentences and more than 700 years in prison for the 16.

The sentences, if carried out, were expected to inflame leftist and student groups and labor groups across Spain.

The others sentenced to death were Mario Onaindia, 22, a mechanic; Fragisco Javier Larena, 25, student, and Jose Maria Dorronsoro, 39, teacher.

Five of the six testified they were Marxist-Leninists. The sixth, Izco, was silenced by the court before he could state his views.

All six of those sentenced to death said they were members of ETA, the secret Basque guerrilla organization.

The other 10 received prison terms ranging from six to 70 years.

Landing Gear Faulty

TORONTO (CP) — A chartered DC-4 aircraft, carrying the Sault Ste. Marie Canadians hockey team, made an emergency belly landing at Toronto International Airport Sunday night after experiencing difficulties with its landing gear.

None of the 30 hockey players or crew of four was injured.

The landing came an hour and 45 minutes after the plane had tried unsuccessfully to land at Sault Ste. Marie. The aircraft hit the runway there and took off again immediately to try and land in Toronto.

The United States Hockey League team was returning home after losing 8-3 in Thunder Bay, Ont., when the left wheel of the plane chartered from Millardair failed to come down for landing.

Report Suggests Limit To Sprawling Growth

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

The problem of urban sprawl in the city of Belleville, Thurlow and Thurlow Township area has received increasing attention from community planners working in conjunction with the three municipalities involved.

In a report tabled by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board planning director J. J. Kenny, the growth of the city in directly related to the location of industry.

"Belleville is a self-contained community not related to any metropolitan region from which it might receive an overspill of population."

In his report, Mr. Kenny indicated that the community growth has primarily been an expansion of the urban community, but that only the industrial sector has retained urban "form."

Growth in the townships has "not followed any logical pattern but has spread around the fringes of the logical urban area."

Keeping in mind a population projection of 75,000 within the next 30 years, Mr. Kenny has called upon the municipalities to provide some kind of control over land development.

"If this sprawling pattern is permitted to continue, the resultant damage to the future community economically and environmentally, could be irreparable."

Small groupings of houses dotted throughout the township plus hinder the expansion of the Belleville community in such areas as road development costs, future water and sewer services and school busing.

To best illustrate this point, a theoretical subdivision within the limits of a township are offered.

Residents of this subdivision are serviced by wells and septic tanks. Their children are bussed for miles to schools; in winter, their subdivision takes precedence over highway grading and by scattered homes; and power and telephone lines are concentrated away from the regular residential area.

In an over-all picture of subdivisions and subcommunities, the further services are overextended, the more costly they are to the taxpayer and homeowner.

This report, which Mr. Kenny hopes will form a basis for a new Official Plan, replacing that of 1953 and outlines plans to restrict development in the outlying municipalities to sites close to the city.

It would be the ultimate goal of the planners to easily amalgamate the former, subdivisions and their respective services into the city plan.

A recommendation has been made that land bordering the city be designated for urban development. This proposed Urban Development Area, including portions of the city, a section of Thurlow and Sidney Townships adjacent to Belleville, would be zoned for phased, orderly growth.

This area would ultimately become part of the city, with a simple linkup of streets and services.

Mr. Kenny explained that traffic and parking problems would be minimized by a centralized population. If problems arose, "people in the outlying districts on water and sewer lines, might possibly be cut off to relieve the services for one enclosed area."

Mr. Kenny projected that the acceptance of the plan would not be immediate.

"It will have to be accepted by everybody . . . in the end, it will be the taxpayer who decides," he said.

He explained that one of the most difficult problems facing them is explaining to landowners outside the designated area that they can't subdivide their land for other than temporary facilities.

It is his "sincere hope that the Area Services Board will play an important role in this development."

The report reads, "The Area Services Board is the most likely require a commitment that virtually all development in the area will be serviced so that it will use the servicing systems to be created by that Board."

Homeowners using the services will be required to pay for them as long as they remain on the system will not be charged.

"What better way to pay for them but to ensure that the area serviced is densely populated!" tongue-in-cheek.

Within an Urban Development Area, proper sewage treatment and water supply systems could be established and maintained without going to the added expense of extensive trunk mains and a lengthy service route.

The boundaries for this area are outlined in the report.

"The boundaries of the Urban Development Area have been established at Wallbridge-Loyalist Road to the west between the Bay of Quinte and Highway 401; Highway 401 to the north between Wallbridge - Loyalist Road and the Sidney-Thurlow boundary; the Sidney-Thurlow boundary to the west between 401 and the 2nd Concession in Thurlow; the 2nd Concession Road in Thurlow to the north between the Sidney-Thurlow boundary and the former Old North-South Arterial; the proposed North-South Arterial in the east between the Bay of Quinte - Canal Cut diversion in Thurlow and the Bay of Quinte."

The Urban Development Area will contain sufficient land to permit full development of the city and other full development of the Thurlow portion of the development of the Sidney portion to house a target population of 75,000 people by the year 2,000. The total Urban Development Area will have a capacity of approximately 125,000.

Unhappy Christmas

TRENTON (Special) — At Brighton west of here, a family dinner and outing with a snowmobile ended in near disaster on Christmas Day.

Lloyd Scriver took his teenage son Joe to a road allowance for a ride on the machine after the decided that the sled's motor stopped running and flames suddenly enveloped the engine when he tried to restart it. They carried no extinguisher and were compelled to stand by helpless while the vehicle burned, to blackened debris.

The Scriveners, aside from having to return home afoot, were not injured.

On checking his insurance coverage later, however, Mr. Scriver learned there was no provision in the policy for loss by fire which amounts to $450 in his case.

Liberal Delegates Selected

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward Hastings Liberal Association have selected their delegates to the provincial leadership conference in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto on January 23 to 26. Delegates have been: Mrs. Addi Worver, Trenton; Dennis Collins, Campbellford; Joseph Memma, Bridgenorth; Anthony Delzar, Stirling; Narda Jolly, Brighton Township and John Coles, Picton. Riding candidate George Cunningham and Liberal Association president W. B. Maestas also will attend at ex officio delegates.

Two resolutions have been passed for consideration by the convention's organizers. The first states that the municipal act should be amended to allow municipalities to hold their elections on the first Sunday in December on a local option basis. This suggestion was forwarded since members agreed that it could lead to a larger turnout of voters at the polls since Monday often proves a busy day for many housewives. It was also felt that many working persons neglect to go to the polls because they are too tired to make an effort to vote.

A second resolution concerning education stated that "the Liberal party of Ontario should undertake a complete review of all education in Ontario with special emphasis on business administration and curriculum."

A letter will also be forwarded to the Minister of Defence requesting expansion of the youth training program in the militia introduced last year. It would suggest that youths throughout the entire riding could be permitted to join this program.

Officers for town and township Liberal Associations will be elected throughout the riding after the new year.

Welfare Payments Increase

PICTON (Staff) — Welfare payments continued to be the subject of discussion among Prince Edward County councillors at their final meeting of 1968 held last week in Shire Hall. Warden Wesley Gordon Lloyd informed council that as of December 14 a total case load of 186 has been recorded for Prince Edward.

There are 123 continuing cases, nine new ones and 54 renewals. County council last year budgeted $275,000 for welfare costs in 1970. Expenditures to date total $329,154, County clerk Thomas Walter said Wednesday that he estimates a final budget deficit of approximately $18,000.

When the predicted deficit was discussed earlier this week in council, Reeve Bernard Hepburn observed, "It's bad but not as bad as it could be." Walter added, "We raise $130,000 through a tax mill," indicating how the deficit could be expected to relate to ratepayers.

Sophisticated reeve George Foster promptly pointed out that Picton deputy reeve and local welfare committee, Donald Thompson, permitted council for an additional $14,000 before the budget was struck. Council, however, rejected his request for extra funds.

SEX CYLINDERS

LONDON (CP) — Controversy has erupted among car salesmen here about whether garages along with pretty girls at motor exhibitions helps business. A spokesman for a West German auto firm denounced the use of "semi-naked girls" on such occasions. But British sales chiefs thought differently, with one arguing that "elegant young ladies" embellish an automotive display.

KENNEDY, Mrs. Marguerite — Suddenly at her residence, 10 Dundas Street, Belleville, on Dec. 29, 1968, Marguerite Kennedy, beloved wife of Dr. Kenneth Kennedy, Dundas Drive, Orleans, Ont., mother of Mrs. Ann Wilson, Mrs. Mary Ellen Wilson, Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, Mrs. Jean Kennedy, Mrs. Elizabeth Kennedy, Mrs. Barbara Kennedy, Mrs. Sarah Kennedy, Mrs. Joan Kennedy, Mrs. Mary Kennedy, Mrs. Susan

The Snow Was Crisp and Even . . .

Plenty of snow, crisp temperatures and bright sunshine made for ideal outdoors conditions throughout much of the Christmas holiday. One of the busier rendesvous was the Oak Hills Ski Club where scores of skiers — of all ages — took to the slopes on Boxing Day and Sunday.

. . . And Also Hard in Spots

Even the gentle snow that made it a traditional White Christmas in the Quinte district would be pretty tough in spots. That is, if you happened to hit it unexpectedly, like this young sportsman trying out new skis.

Combination of New Snow and Sun Made the Weekend Ideal

Christmas is a time for happy talk and Quinte people did just that Christmas Day.

Supplementing on-the-spot family and friendship reunions was a splurge of long-distance telephone chats.

In fact, the area's telephone system was probably the busiest sector of an otherwise quiet and peaceful Christmas throughout the district.

The central Bell Telephone exchange in Belleville processed 19,202 long-distance calls during the day — up 2,700 from original estimates.

Snow Christmas Day kept travel to a minimum and police throughout the district reported no serious mishaps.

More than ever before drivers seemed to exercise discretion and restraint while celebrating the festival.

In Belleville, only one man was charged with impaired driving throughout the holiday — a record which Police Chief Douglas Crosbie cited as "pretty good."

But the weather also made it an ideal White Christmas. Temperatures showed a wide variance — ranging from a Christmas morning low of six degrees above at Belleville to 19 below at Tweed.

The crisp and even snow sent sportsmen swarming to the outdoors Boxing Day and Sunday.

Snowmobilers buzzed through the countryside while scores of skiers sped down the slopes of the Oak Hills Ski Club.

Two Break-ins On Weekend

Belleville fared well over the Yuletide holiday as far as traffic problems and crime went, but two thefts marred the peace of Christmas.

Chief Douglas Crosbie reported a break and enter in the home of Glenn Brown at 23 Strathcona Drive, discovered yesterday.

Chief Crosbie said that as Mr. Brown was returning home from a trip which had lasted since before Christmas, he saw two youths running in his yard and jumping over a fence.

Thieves gained entry to the home by forcing a window and made off with $100 in dimes and a quantity of personal papers.

Chief Crosbie also reported the theft of a tape deck and 25 tapes valued at $215 from a car owned by David Loft of 9 King George Square. The theft was discovered last night.

Fire Cause Unknown

The cause is still unknown of a fire at the Sidney Inn at 265 Moira St. West Christmas morning that kept firemen at the scene close to an hour.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane told The Intelligencer that firemen received the alarm at 3:15 Christmas morning.

Upon arrival, they fought and kept the fire confined to the left "shed-type" section of the store.

Chief Culhane said that a fair amount of damage to the shed was the result but most of it was due to smoke rather than the actual fire. There was a minor amount of smoke damage in the main section of the store.

He said that the fire was under control in a matter of minutes but...firemen worked to clear out smoke.

Provincial police at Belleville reported "several complaints" over the holiday of snowmobiles being operated late at night.

At Point Anne, a 15 - year - old juvenile and a teenager escaped injury Boxing Day night when their snowmobiles collided.

Damage to the vehicles — owned by the drivers' fathers — totalled $600.

ANAF News

The Bay of Quinte District, again lived up to its reputation when compared to a number of surrounding communities. The kids were happy tryling out their new sleds on the just sufficient new virgin white snow that had gently fallen. This also made the older youngsters happy as it did the same for them as they tried out new skis and snowmobiles. The still older generation are sitting back with sighs of relief that the bustle and bustle of the Christmas season is over again over for another year and the debris of many presents and the visitors are both gone and home life has returned to its peaceful normal routine.

From all reports it was really a great event for most everybody and got everyone in an expectant mood for the start of the New Year.

To all the members and good friends of Unit 201 the sincere wish for a happy healthy and successful year is expressed by the old and the new executives with continued success to the Club in 1971.

It is a pleasure to hear that the niceties of life are not being ignored as the Duke of Edinburgh Unit-sponsored 608 Air Cadets will be getting instructed in the etiquette and protocol of a real mess dinner in the luxurious Tartan Lounge. This is rather a new departure in cadet training but actually a quite important subject and the Unit, as proud sponsors, would like to wish all these splendid youngsters continued success and enjoyment in their training with a short note that there are a few vacancies if any boys between the ages of 13 and 17 are interested. When training resumes after the New Year is over, come to the Armory any Wednesday evening for further particulars. It's a great opportunity.

Thanks to the combined efforts of Cdes. Sam Hewson and Ab Semark, with several other willing helpers, the dance floor is able to claim that no better floor can be found in Belleville for the New Year's Eve festivities. The only thing wrong was the fact that the hall was not large enough to accommodate the numbers who wished to come. The President sympathizes with those who were disappointed as the tickets were picked up quickly this year.

The annual Christmas Eve social hour was well attended with much handshaking and genuine wishes for a happy and carefree holiday.

In this joyous and yet serious time of the year, President Dick Burns wishes to thank the comrades for their faith and co-operation over the past two years in which he has been extremely proud to have had the honor of serving as your president. He wishes to give all members the age-old greetings of peace on earth and goodwill to all mankind. Continued success and health and happiness to all and may all join together in peace and security for many years to come.

On the sick list are Cdes. R. Wood, KGH; J. Lacelade, room 715 BGH; F. Cronin, J. Polan and D. Locke at home.

Sincere wishes to all in the New Year.

Dr. Shulman's Dilemma

Dr. Morton Shulman is at the losing end as a result of the inquiry into alleged irregularities involving the Ontario Provincial Police and Burlington businessman George Clinton Duke.

While the report criticized the actions of several top OPP officials, the force was cleared of any "improper relationship" with known criminals, a reference to the fact that Mr. Duke has a criminal record. Earlier Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart denied any links between the OPP and Mr. Duke, or between Mr. Duke and the Mafia.

Dr. Shulman, the New Democratic Party member for High Park, and former Toronto city coroner, has made a name for himself in provincial politics as a man anxious to probe deeper than most in preserving the rights of individuals.

In this case, at least, it would appear Dr. Shulman has overstepped himself and has been chasing shadows. In fact his probe began to go sour long before the judge's findings. There was that trip to Sicily for example, reportedly to further his investigations into possible Mafia links in this case; and subsequently, on return to Toronto, threats to himself and his family, all of which turned out to be unsubstantiated.

Dr. Shulman is saying "it appears that the only person who was wrong in the whole thing was me." Certainly that is the way the report sums up the inquiry, established following the accusations of Dr. Shulman. Now his political career is on the line and he is giving himself time to think about the situation by flying off to the Galapagos Islands.

Dr. Shulman of course is a millionaire and he has told how he got that way in a book entitled, "Anyone Can Make A Million," by acquiring works of art, for example, and putting one's money into that kind of investment instead of insurances which are vulnerable to the ravages of inflation. But that is by the way. The Galapagos, the colorful NDP member points out, is where Darwin formulated his theories and there may be some lessons for him there on how to tackle his own situation. A year or so ago, we recall, Dr. Shulman collapsed from fatigue occasioned by overwork. He then flew off to Mexico for a week's rest. And indeed, what is the use of being a millionaire if you cannot charge one's batteries in such exotic fashion?

Dance Supervision

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie has stated in this week's of a recent fight incident at a student dance that police may call at a dance periodically and are available to intercede if summoned, but there are no provisions for the police department to have off-duty policemen present throughout.

This may be all right in theory, but what happens if some serious injury is done? Fortunately, nothing of the kind occurred on this occasion, although we understand a youth was roughed up by several others who followed him out of the dance.

This was a county wide dance and the kind of occasion which because of the numbers present, and with young people unknown to each other coming together, there could be trouble.

It is the kind of situation the police could watch more closely, and particularly on occasions when a large number of young people is in attendance.

Cosmopolitan Air

There is an increasingly cosmopolitan air about Belleville these days which goes hand in hand with the city's physical growth. In addition to the many European countries represented in the population we have an increasing number from India, the Philippines, Africa, the Caribbean and South America, some of them students. One notices their handsome features and well-groomed appearance and realizes that Belleville and other communities in Canada have much to gain from the skills and cultures these new residents bring to our society. They are welcome additions to the population in this area, and we hope they find Belleville a congenial place in which to live, unaccustomed climate and all!

'You Have to Expect Retaliation'

P.M. Recalls His Days as A Young Dissenter

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — How does an old demonstrator — making no secret of his active opposition years ago to constituted authority and government policy — view his own about the fashionable art of demonstrating?

Personally, the same way now as he did then, about nearly 30 years ago when he "dissented," as the expression currently goes, against overwhelming majority opinion.

And the way he felt then — and says he still does — is simply that you must take your chances that if you demonstrate you face the risk of anti-demonstration.

And who is the old demonstrator, the one - time activist of dissent?

None other than the not - so-old — a remarkably youngish looking and acting fi, actually — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

The risk a demonstrator must run, stirups the Prime Minister, is that of getting hit back when he hits out.

Or, to put it as the Prime Minister did in an appearance not so long ago at Three Rivers:

"The demonstrator must come down out of the clouds and realize that if they feel they have the right to lash out at the police, the police have every right to lash right back at them."

The Prime Minister never has evaded the accusation that in World War Two he was opposed to conscription.

Thirty years ago he was a youth of 21 living in Montreal's better - than - middle - class Outremont.

And while other French Canadian young men were joining Quebec's famed Van Doos, the Chateauguays and other storied regiments, he was riding his motor bike around Montreal, and subjecting the life of the unattached and uncommitted.

Yes, he says — and has confessed as much publicly on television at one of his press conferences — he objected to service in the armed forces especially under the compulsion of conscription.

So did a lot of others, and not only in Montreal and Quebec.

He concedes, too, that he even "demonstrated" against the imposition of the manpower draft for the reinforcement - starved Services.

But the realist then that he is now, the pragmatist Trudeau did not permit his dissent to carry him to extremes and into the a danger zone of official retaliation.

"I knew, " he has said at Three Rivers recently, "that if I rioted in the streets, I ran the risk of getting a boot in the tail from the police."

Again the Prime Minister got around to the now-famed St. Jean Baptiste Day Parade riot in Montreal, back in 1968 on the very eve of the federal election.

His performance that violent day — his cool deflection under fire to violence — went a very long way — perhaps all the way necessary — to win him the election with a strong majority.

You remember what happened.

The separatists, lying in wait in the crowds, provoked a special parade review platform and marching in a group in the procession, were Hilary.

As the separatist marchers reached the stand, their allies mingling on the sidelines combined their forces and opened fire on the platform with bottles, cans, rocks, bricks and just about anything that could be thrown.

The other officials, the "dignitaries," as they are called on such occasions, left the scene and Pierre Trudeau was left there alone.

He ducked the flying cans and bottles, dodged the rocks and bricks, but he did not run in retreat.

He stuck it out and won the admiration of all Canadians — probably even some of the separatists — for his guts.

Recalling the demonstration that day, and the way the Montreal police — and police in — moved in, he shrugged again:

"If the rioters have the courage to take that, they have to understand that the should have the courage to take it if the police reach back just a little."

In short: If you want to think it out, be prepared to take it.

What about demonstrators being an currently cop accusations photographers taking their pictures and then being called to court to present them as evidence?

"When they are truly protesting they are not hiding," says the Prime Minister, "so why, all of a sudden, should they wish to conceal themselves? How do they rationalize privacy in public protests?"

Good question.

"I see you've already heard the news."

Premier Bennett Rages Against Ottawa

Vancouver Sun

Ontarians were proud to read Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's message of "sincere appreciation" to retiring Premier John Roberts "for the way in which you have spoken, at federal provincial meetings and elsewhere, in support of the interests of all Canada."

In bleak contrast, most British Columbians are ashamed of the way their Premier W. A. C. Bennett continues to leer at the seams of Confederation. Mr. Roberts rises above narrow provincialism while Mr. Bennett sinks into open separatism.

Not long ago Mr. Bennett raged against the new federal budget: "This just shows we no longer have a national government but a government for Quebec — just a regional ex-province government."

At the same time Mr. Roberts was leading a huge delegation of Ontario politicians and businessmen to meet their counterparts in Quebec City, where he said:

"I believe Canadians are drawing together as they have not for many years in a deeply held desire to maintain a distinct Canada identity and to strengthen that which we hold dear in Canada."

This hospitable rendezvous was a huge success in furthering sympathy and understanding at the highest intergovernmental level.

Mr. Bennett succeeded only in promoting resentment and divisiveness.

No feeling of compassion for Quebec's relative poverty and volatile political climate is permitted to interfere with his political vendetta against Ottawa. If he can persuade his "good life" British Columbians that they are being mistreated for the benefit of the habitants, all the better he wants it.

But he wants to have it both ways, as shown by his disgraceful jab at Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau "for the terrible mess he's made in Canada." To hear Mr. Bennett tell it, Mr. Trudeau created the FLQ. "He and his Liberals made an awful mess in Quebec and created Canada's greatest crises." lashed the premier. "The very fact that he created this unemployment, created the conditions in Quebec that led to this difficulty." The upshot is that Mr. Trudeau is vilified both for allegedly causing the crisis and for trying to cope with it.

It is true that Mr. Bennett, from time to time, asserts his "Canadian first" claim. But the record belies it. The empty chair reserved for the premier of B.C. at the Confederation for Tomorrow conference organized by Premier Robarts in 1967 is remembered only too well. So are the numerous occasions, one this week, when he has found it impossible to attend meetings of federal and provincial finance ministers to discuss co-operative approaches to common problems.

Regional disparities of income and opportunity are one such problem which must be solved for the sake of national unity. Mr. Bennett apparently disagrees. He was indignant that the new federal budget allocates industrial incentive funds to Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and three counties in Ontario, but none to B.C.

Gun Control in Canada: Is It Strict Enough?

Montreal Gazette

I wonder: Would The Gazette publish letters advocating the easy availability of potassium cyanide to anyone wishing to use it for whatever purpose? — such as murder, terrorism, holdups, intimidation, "sport", etc.

Not likely. It would look too grotesque. Anyone proposing it would be put down as a dangerous psychopath, a sadist, a menace to civilized society.

Then why does The Gazette publish letters advocating the easy availability of guns to anyone wishing to use them for whatever purpose — such as murder, terrorism, holdups, intimidation, "sport," etc.

As things are now, one can walk into a sporting goods store and come out with a rifle with which one can kill either sparrows or one's neighbor.

Potassium cyanide is a fearsome poison, and its use is strictly governed. Guns are even deadlier because they are easier to use for criminal or psychopathic purposes. Why isn't the use of guns strictly governed?

A letter from R. Hope (Gazette, Nov. 28) claims that "crimes are committed by people, not guns." This mouldy piece of National Rifle Association propaganda is the argument of a booby. One might as well argue that potassium cyanide doesn't kill, either; it's just that people are dumb enough to get in its way.

Hasn't the time come when we should disregard the simple-minded arguments of the National Rifle Association (a U.S. outfit which lobbies for the gun and ammunition manufacturers) and its dupes who by its propaganda and then peddle it second-hand in letters to the press?

We have all the evidence that sane men need to realize that the privately owned gun is a relic of barbarism. It has no use except in the commission of murder and other crimes, and as a plaything of those self-styled "sportsmen" who get their kicks from killing something.

Mille Isle, Que., Resident Seeks A Childhood Friend

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing to ask your readers help in locating a childhood friend.

Her maiden name was Lulu Knox (Louie) who lived with my cousin Liza Stewart and James Morrow in Brinzeville near Morin Heights.

In her teens she moved to Ontario, later marrying a farmer and lived in the Belleville area. They had four children and her husband passed away approximately 23 years ago.

Later she remarried but I do not know the name of either husband.

About 38 years ago she visited me with my cousin William Morrow from Manitoba.

This lady would be in her late sixties now. If anyone knows of her or where I might get further information please let me know.

Thanking you for your trouble.

MRS. DAVE DAWSON,
RR 1,
Mille Isle, Quebec.

Cornwall Moves Toward Waterfront Redevelopment

Cornwall Standard — Freeholder

Formation of a new organization doesn't always mean the world is going to be changed overnight, but there's something particularly exciting about the new Civic Waterfront Redevelopment Committee, created here last week. Because the CWRC was formed basically to fight, to marshal the strength of the people of Cornwall behind a demand that the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority turn back to the city land it no longer needs, land which is the logical heart of a new and revitalized Cornwall and which should be developed by the people of Cornwall in the way which will be best for them.

There's no question Cornwall needs a haven of peace and quiet and beauty as its core, or that creation of such a core would revitalize the whole Pitt - Water St. - Montreal Rd. area. Nor is there anything unreasonable in demanding that land taken from Cornwall 187 years ago which is no longer required for the purpose for which it was expropriated, The Seaway, at St. Lambert, Que., has turned over to the municipality a 90-acre area of surplus land for playground and recreation purposes. The federal government, did the same thing with a 63-acre site in Montreal after its mayor and MPs took up the cudgels on behalf of the city.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 28, 1970 . . .

The last ruling monarch of Italy, Victor Emmanuel III, died 23 years ago today — 1947 — in exile in Egypt. He had divested himself of all powers in 1944, after the Allies entered Rome, and abdicated in favor of his son. Humbert, three weeks before the population voted against the monarchy. In the First World War, Victor Emmanuel proved a sagacious and courageous leader because he did not interfere in the conduct of the war but lived the life of an active soldier. This constitutional policy led him, after 1922, to ratify the Fascist decrees which contravened his own oath to protect the people's freedom.

1943—Canadian troops captured Orsina after nine days of constant fighting.

1915—The United States treasury called in all gold coin and bullion.

Suspects Arrested in Dawn Raid

the suspects offered no resistance.

They were picked up following an investigation by police of the anti-terrorist squad. Mr. St. Pierre said police had visited the L'Acadie area Christmas Day.

He mentioned that a 20-foot tunnel, presumably intended as a hideout, had been dug beneath the basement of the house in which the three men were picked up.

The men were taken to QPP headquarters in Montreal where an inquest into the slaying of Mr. Laporte has been scheduled to resume Monday, Jan. 4.

A session of the coroner's inquest into Mr. Laporte's death was told that the three suspects slipped through the fingers of police during a Montreal raid Nov. 6 in which Bernard Lortie was picked up.

Lortie, a 19-year-old student, testified at the opening session of the inquest the following day that he and the other three abducted the labor minister.

He was arrested in an apartment on west-end Queen Mary Road where, witnesses said, the Rose brothers and Simard eluded police by hiding in a compartment they built in a walk-in clothes closet.

In the Chrétien Day operation, a police spokesman said, members of the anti-terrorist squad raided a farmhouse in the L'Acadie area.

They found nothing, but their suspicions were aroused and they kept the farmhouse under observation.

They raided the place again today when they saw a light inside at about 5 a.m., when no one had entered the building.

The raiding party picked up the Rose brothers, Simard and a fourth unidentified man, the spokesman said.

Beneath the cement floor of the farmhouse basement was a tunnel about 20 feet by four feet, stocked with food and other supplies.

The police spokesman said the men could have remained in the underground hideaway undetected for weeks.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia professor of education has been chosen to preside at a session of a White House conference on children in Washington, D.C., in December. Dr. Edward G. Summers, 37, was one of 24 experts chosen to head sessions of the conference called by President Nixon. An expert in the field of language arts and reading, Dr. Summers will lead the forum on the "right to read" program. He came to UBC from the University of Indiana in August, 1969.

At the recent Casselman — Emerson wedding Hilda Elizabeth Emerson, nephew of the bride was ring-bearer. During the reception a telegram was received from Paul Emerson of Alaska, who was unable to attend his sister's wedding.

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Clyde M. MacDonald (nee Shirley Dafoe) was honored at miscellaneous showers given by Mrs. Norval Reeve jr. Scarborough and by the staff of the R. A. Halbert School there, and at others given by Mrs. Robert Sills in Hallaway and by Mrs. Cecil Arthurs in Foxboro.

A linen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Malcolm Mustard in Don Mills. The bride was also honored at a pantry shower by the Junior Girls' Volleyball team of the Scarborough School.

NAME CHANGE

DURHAM, S o u t h Africa (AP) — Bikini Road has been renamed Helen Drive in honor of former city council member Helen Gibling, who led a campaign to ban bikinis from local beaches. Officials said some residents felt it an indignity to live on a street with such a name.

MR. AND MRS. CLYDE M. MacDONALD

MacDonald – Dafoe

Emmanuel United Church at Foxboro was the scene of the wedding ceremony on Sat. Dec. 19, 1970 when Shirley Marguerite Dafoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Dafoe of Foxboro was united in marriage to Clyde Martin MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacDonald of Toronto. Rev. Abel Parsons officiated at the double-ring ceremony and the organist Miss Heather Grant also accompanied the soloist Miss Dianne Forsyth of Toronto.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original gown of Italian satin in Victorian style featuring a fitted bodice with long full sleeves with tightly fitted cuffs. The bell-shape skirt was enhanced with inverted front pleat and the back of the gown was highlighted with a full length train extending from the shoulder. A shoulder length veil was caught to a seed pearl floret and she carried red roses interningled with white carnations.

Mrs. Robert Sills as matron of honor wore a geranium pink velvet gown in empire style featuring a stand-up collar and puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of multi-colored mums. Bridesmaids Mrs. Malcolm Mustard of Don Mills, Miss Beth Barlow, cousin of the bride and Miss Elaine Dafoe,the bride's only sister were attired similarly to the matron of honor.

Andrew Johnston of Toronto attended the bridegroom, while the fushers were Stanley Reid, Corbyville, Edward Arthurs, cousin of the bride, Belleville, and Bruce Johnston of Barrie.

A reception was held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a jacket dress of embossed silk twist in shades of gray and silver, with pink and gray accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting the bridegroom's mother wore a turquoise crepe dress with mink hat, fancy blue accessories and a corsage of golden yellow sweetheart roses.

Following the reception, the bride donned a turquoise wool suit in muted plaid with matching fedora styled hat, black accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will reside at 720 Kennedy Rd. Apt. 1412, Scarborough.

UCW Meetings

COLLEGE HILL UCW

The Christmas meeting of the College Hill UCW was in the form of a potluck supper. Christmas music was played throughout the meal. The meeting began with a devotional period conducted by Mrs. Nellie Townsend and Mrs. Lorena Byrd. The reading of the Christmas story was interspersed with the singing of appropriate carols. The business period was conducted by Mrs. Marilyn McIntosh. Members voted to give a donation to the church building fund. A motion was carried that Mrs. Catherine MacIntosh be the second vice-president of the UCW. Members were reminded to bring good used clothing for a bale to be packed in January.

Mrs. Leona Bailey was in charge of the program the theme of which was the "Bethlehem Road". Mrs. Annis Dickson assisted with the program which consisted of scripture readings and carols. Mrs. Bailey expressed the thought that if one could not travel to faraway lands as missionaries one could pray, give and show Christmas love. The meeting closed with the singing of a carol.

Wi Plans Meet

Rylstone WI will hold their January meeting in the WI hall on Wednesday afternoon January 6. Coming for historical research Mrs. Hector Arnold will be in charge. Special items on the program will be pictures shown by Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, exhibits of Tweedsmuir histories and an old fashioned dress parade. All local women are welcome.

'Women's Liberation' May Gather Power

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The cry of "women's liberation" is likely to gather power on both sides of the Atlantic in 1971, after a year in which women—particularly in North America—became a dissident force the predominantly male establishment would henceforth have to take into account.

The activities of such women's lib pioneers as Betty Friedan, Germaine Greer and actress Jane Fonda attracted much attention in Britain, although the movement drew its biggest and most vocal following in the United States and Canada.

But the woman who has been tipped as Britain's first female prime minister, former equipment minister Mrs. Barbara Castle, publicly snubbed the whole concept.

Women's causes nearly always "feared and irritated" her, she told an education conference late in the year.

"It has always seemed to me that women can go out and create the same opportunities for themselves that I have," said the Labor politician who was turned out of office with the rest of Harold Wilson's government in the June British election, and whose career has included handling such thing ministerial portfolios as transport.

British women militants made a brief impact in a different area by disrupting the Miss World contest at the London's Royal Albert Hall in November. At the final, Jennifer Hosten of Grenada became the first colored girl to win the international crown, and Pearl Jansen, the black South African entrant, was jeered roundly. The Miss South Africa placed third.

The new female militancy made little impact on the European continent, where in Switzerland women haven't yet even got the right to vote. West Germany a Mannheim mother of three named Gisela Gawlik was inspired to found the "first women's party" Some 18,000 women have applied for membership and branch offices have been set up in eight other West German cities.

Women personalities who made news in 1970 included Irish firebrand Bernadette Devlin, the independent MP for mid-Ulster and civil rights activist jailed for four months for her participation in one of Northern Ireland's chronic riots.

Golda Meir, premier of Israel, survived a political challenge of her cabinet during 1970 and was frequently in the headlines as tension continued in the Middle East.

Indira Gandhi continued to surprise political observers who had doubted she could long maintain leadership of the turbulent Indian parliamentary system.

Two former "first ladies" basked in the literary limelight in 1970. Mary Wilson, wife of the former British prime minister, enjoyed runaway sales of a slim volume of verse composed during walks in London parks and at the Wilsons' island holiday home. Lady Bird Johnson beat her husband to the post with her own memoirs of President Lyndon Johnson's years in office, an 800-page volume entitled A White House Diary.

The British election campaign brought a new woman into prominence in Edward Heath's Conservative cabinet —Margaret Thatcher, a 36-year-old taxation lawyer. She was given the educational portfolio with the hot-potato job of reversing Labor's policy on spreading the "comprehensive" principle across the country's secondary schools.

A number of women's firsts were chalked up in 1970. Simone Servais, former press secretary to President Georges Pompidou, was appointed to a high rank at the French foreign office as co-director of France's cultural aid program abroad. She was the first non-professional woman diplomat to reach the rank of minister plenipotentiary.

Also in France, Claude Arpels was appointed the first woman ballet master of the Paris Opera.

In British, Betty Harvie Anderson, a Scottish Conservative MP, became first woman Speaker of the House of Commons. Dr. Anna MacLeid, a professor in the department of brewing and biochemistry at Edinburgh's Heriot-Watt University, became first woman president of the institute of brewing.

people. I have lavender and lace illusions you've been dishing out may have been O.K. in your day but your day has passed.

Sex is not evil. Sex is normal. Sex is fun. Sex is beautiful. This goes for sex before marriage as well as after. A few words by a priest, minister, rabbi or judge will not suddenly liberate a girl from lifelong restraints against her own normal biological drives.

I realize that a sweetheart or a husband will "throw it up to the girl" later is from the Dark Ages. Husbands who love their wives and men who love their sweethearts will love them regardless. Only idiots think they have the guts. It might help other guilt-ridden females who, like me, were hooked up by your outdated advice. — SOUTHFIELD.

DEAR S: Here's a letter from the Dark Ages. The postal service was very poor in those days. The letter arrived this morning.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I had the nerve I'd take an overdose. Here's my story: Johnny and I were together for three months. I was just plain nuts about him. He felt the same about me. I was 19 — he was 22. We were so perfect together. We laughed at the same things, enjoyed the same movies, art, music, moonlight swims, cookouts.

One night Johnny said he wanted to marry me and since we were both in love it made no sense to withhold anything. He said sex was designed in heaven for people who were in love. It sounded so right. He had a way of putting words together so they made sense. I gave myself to him that night.

For the next few days he was cool and distant. I asked why. He finally told me he had always believed I was a virgin. Now he had some doubts. Then he asked the question outright I told him the truth. There had been someone else — when I was 17. A lifeguard at a summer resort. I was a dumb kid, dying to learn what life was all about. He was experienced and willing to teach me. I knew it was wrong from the beginning. I never even wrote to him after the vacation was over.

I told Johnny he is an honest a very sick I could. His reaction nearly killed me. He called me a tramp — said I had misrepresented myself, acting so pure and virginal. He took back his ring. That was the last time I saw him.

A week has passed and the hurt is no better. Will I ever be able to trust a man again? I can't believe Johnny cared that much about a lifeguard who meant nothing to me. I think he was just using it as an excuse. He got what he wanted and now he'll move on and look for a new challenge.

I hope every girl whose boyfriend is trying to talk her into premarital sex will clip this letter and keep it where she can reread it. I wish I had seen a letter like it a few years ago. — TOO LATE FOR ME.

* * *

DEAR T.L.: You did — in fact you saw many letters like it, but you weren't tuned in. Now you must forget about the past and look to the future. For Lord's sake don't consider yourself "ruined" or unworthy of a fireside guy. It's what you are today that matters. And one thing is certain. You are wiser.

Points for Parents

By MARY BAYSON

Many toddlers outgrow their playpens between 18 months and 3 years of age. They scream with dismay when put in the pens and refuse to be distracted by toys they formerly enjoyed. It's difficult for mothers to get housework done.

As children grow, they need bigger spaces where they move about and use their developing muscles and minds.

Put a baby gate on the nursery door and let the toddler play in his room in safety while you work. Provide some big toys he can carry and pull about and he should be contented there alone for an hour or two at a time.

Successful Living

Is the Family Dwindling? Invite Somebody New

By DORIS CLARK

Today distance separates many family groups that, in an earlier day, would have remained within easy reach for holiday visiting. A phone call takes the place of the family bursting in the front door with exuberant greetings.

If you're long accustomed to the thrill of visitors arriving, you're apt to find a certain emptiness in sending or receiving gifts by parcel post. And then serving dinner to a browser!

If you can't get what you want, want what you can get. Ha there's someone in your neighborhood you'd like to share your New Year's dinner with? No harm in asking! Even if they are booked in for dinner, you can suggest a drop-in visit for tea and Christmas cake.

Humans are by nature gregarious and there are times when we simply must have people around us, to enjoy and be enjoyed by.

Dear Doris: I'm 32, I live away from home and teach school. I go out with a guy 19, but my mother told him not to come to my place any more. She says he is too young and that I don't know what I am doing.

We used to see a priest about this and he said there was nothing wrong with our going out. But mother said that the priest was lovesick. We always fight about this boy. I get so nervous and upset I can't do anything.

Then she told me that is please her and Dad I shouldn't go out with him. Should she control my life? — What's Wrong?

Dear What's: A mother takes too much on herself when she invents such a rule. Lots of girls have married men younger than themselves. Much depends on how quickly a boy has matured.

I suspect your mother would object to any boy who becomes serious with you. What bothers her is that this dependent child of hers is suddenly having ideas of her own.

Perhaps you need to remind her that you are of age; capable of choosing friends, occupation, and all the other things which are part of your life.

And that if you are going to continue to come home weekends, you expect to have some happiness and pleasant times when you get there.

Dear Doris: As a theme for graduation we were thinking of using the song, "The Age of Aquarius". I would like to know if you would have any suggestions on how to decorate the hall. — High School Senior.

Dear Senior: Your topic has plenty of scope in these stargazing times. You can find horoscope posters in stationery shops. The colors of Aquarius are many-hued shades, stripes and plaids, which you can reproduce in streamers and paper decor.

The flowers for Aquarius are the daffodil and the pansy. Work these into wall sketches and bouquets. The actual sign of Aquarius, The water Carrier, should be worked in, too. Have you got an artist handy?

There's good source material in your library's astrology books which will help you tune in with "The Age of Aquarius".

Party Glazed Salmon For New Year's Eve

By MARY MOORE

A glazed whole salmon is a chef's delight and a show-stopper. Guests at the buffet queue never pass up a decorative salmon platter and its luscious appearance carries right on through to the last bite you savor.

I am going to tell you how professionals accomplish this for your New Years buffet.

PARTY GLAZED SALMON
(Serves 12 to 15)

One 4-8 lb. fresh salmon, dressed

POACHING LIQUID

3 qts. water
1 cup white vinegar
2 onions, sliced
2 carrots, sliced
3 stalks celery, sliced
½ cup chopped celery leaves
¾ cup parsley sprigs
3 bay leaves
1 tsp. thyme
2 tsps. white pepper corns
1 Tbsp. salt
3 or 4 thin slices lemon

Combine all ingredients. Simmer 40 to 50 minutes. Cool and strain. Use as poaching liquid for cooking the fish.

GLAZE:

4 tsps. plain gelatin
5 cups cold cooking liquid

Mix gelatin and cold cooking liquid. Boil uncovered until reduced to 3½ cups. Strain. Chill in refrigerator until thick and syrupy. Use as glaze for cooked, chilled salmon (see below).

TO COOK SALMON:

Measure the thickness of the fish. Rinse and dry. Wrap in double thickness of cheesecloth. Place on rack in fish kettle or roasting pan. Pour cooled and strained Poaching Liquid (above) over the fish to half cover. Bring slowly to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer approximately 10 minutes per inch of fish (20 min. per inch if frozen). Cook until fish flakes easily. Cool in liquid. Drain, reserving 5 cups of the cooking liquid. Remove cheesecloth and chill fish on a rack over a tray.

TO GLAZE SALMON:

Remove skin, leaving a collar at neck and a little at the tail end (see picture). Scrape away fat deposits and any grey meat. Spoon cold, syrupy Glaze (above) over the fish. Chill. When first glaze has set repeat. Garnish on top with thin slices of lemon, strips of pimiento and green peppers and capers, dipping each lem in glaze first. Chill. Spoon more glaze over entire fish. Chill. Arrange on platter, garnishing platter with watercress, lemon and cucumber slices, lemon baskets filled with cherry tomatoes and tomato chutney. Serve with tartare sauce.

Maritimes Socked in by 30-Inch Snow Storm on Weekend

HALIFAX (CP) — Snowplow crews were working to clear secondary roads in the Maritimes today in the wake of two storms that gave some areas more than 30 inches of snow during the Christmas holiday.

Highways department officials said most main roads in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were opened Sunday night and efforts were being concentrated on secondary roads.

The weather office said no major snowfall is expected in the next 24 hours.

The southern half of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia's adjacent Cumberland County were the areas hardest hit by the storms.

The first storm hit the region Christmas Eve, bringing up to 20 inches of snow. The second storm Saturday brought only 13 inches at most, but it was whipped into high drifts by 45 mile-a-hour winds with gusts to 60 miles an hour.

Newfoundland and a coastal section of eastern Nova Scotia received a mixture of snow and rain.

There were at least four deaths during the storms, all in New Brunswick. Three persons died in traffic accidents and another of exposure after he left his stranded car on the St. Stephen-Saint John highway.

Deputy Highways Minister Ralph Sweet of New Brunswick said a few back roads might not be plowed until Tuesday "but I would think that by Monday night things will be fairly bright."

In Nova Scotia, a highways department spokesman said it probably would be Wednesday before some of the back roads are opened.

As the second storm moved in Saturday, civic officials in Saint John and Moncton, in New Brunswick and Amherst, N.S., and Nova Scotia's Lunenburg County declared "states of emergency" as they battled to keep roads cleared.

RCMP in Amherst asked Sunday night that motorists keep off the Trans-Canada Highway in the area until snow-clearing operations were completed. Heavy drifting in the area was expected to lessen as winds abated overnight.

For a while early Sunday, RCMP were still using snowmobiles to patrol a six-mile section of highway between Sackville, N.B., and the Nova Scotia-New Brunswick border. They picked up eight stranded motorists, bringing to 24 the number rescued on that section of road since Christmas Eve.

Air Canada flights and Canadian National Railways trains returned to normal scheduling Sunday night after being hampered by the storm. Many flights were cancelled during the storm, and trains were running behind schedule.

The ferry service from Cape Tormentine, N.B., to Borden, P.E.I., also had been cancelled because of high winds, but resumed Sunday afternoon.

Moncton has received 30.4 inches of snow so far this month. Its previous full-month record for December was 28.9 inches in 1964.

Summerside, P.E.I., with 77.5 inches, Fredericton with 72.4 inches, Truro, N.S., with 39.5 inches, Halifax with 41.5 inches, Greenwood, N.S., with 62.2 inches and Charlottetown with 36.9 inches have all surpassed December snowfall records.

MARY TUDOR — by W. C. Richardson

This is the biography of the fifth daughter of Henry VII and sister of Henry VIII. As was usual with Tudor princesses, Mary became a political pawn and after betrothal to Prince Charles of Castile, later regretfully married Louis XII of France and became Queen for a few months. Professor Richardson has brought to life these fascinating characters against their colorful background.

DOGS — MODERN GROOMING TECHNIQUES — by Hilary Harman

A marvellously complete guide to clipping and grooming almost any breed. Copiously illustrated with superb photographs, the book gives detailed instructions on the modern techniques of clipping.

THOSE FABULOUS GREEKS: ONASSIS, NIARCHOS AND LIVANOS — by Doris Lilly

In a spicy and informative saga of three of the world's richest men, shipping billionaires Aristotle Onassis, Stavros Niarchos and Stavros Livanos, it is Onassis who captures the imagination of everyone. Doris Lilly tells of the late Livanos, who built an incredible empire and exercised every ounce of power to avoid publicity. She also tells about the bitter rivalry between Onassis and Niarchos.

THE ARTIST'S GUIDE TO HIS MARKET — by Betty Chamberlain

FIRST CATCH YOUR TIGER — by Oliver Graham-Jones

Mr. Graham-Jones was senior veterinary officer at London Zoo for many years. He had in his care one of the largest collections of living creatures ever assembled in one spot. To have thousands of patients who cannot tell you anything and may be suffering from a bewildering variety of ailments, is a job that makes the running of an average hospital pale into insignificance. You will see from this fascinating book how the author coped with this herculean task.

THE CANADIANA COOKBOOK — by Mme. Jehane Benoit

This new cookbook is based on traditional Canadian recipes, many dating from pioneer days in Canada. Among the frontier favorites were pemmican, a dried venison that the Indians sometimes mixed with wild cherries and fresh suet, and the settler's sourdough bread.

Second Stamp to Honor Victim of Assassins

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

For the second time in Canadian history the Post Office will honor an assassinated public figure with the issue of a special commemorative stamp.

A spokesman for the post office recently announced that a special stamp will honor Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister slain by FLQ terrorists Oct. 18, 1970.

"Several people have suggested the idea and the post office advisory committee is pursuing it," he said.

Regular production of a new stamp takes more than a year and a half, but the proposed Laporte commemorative "will probably come out on the anniversary of his death."

In 1927 the Canada Post Office honored Thomas D'Arcy McGee, minister of agriculture who was assassinated on April 7, 1868.

An interesting comparison comes to light when comparing both men, made famous as victims of terrorist activities.

Both were publishers; both were opposed to terrorist activities; both had roots in the public press.

McGee, a native of Carlingford, Ireland, emigrated first to the U.S. in 1842 and then to Canada 15 years later.

Editor of the New York Nation, he became editor of The New Era in Canada, entering politics that same year, 1857.

President of the council between 1864 and 1867, he became minister of agriculture with the founding of Confederation.

His assassination in 1868, at the age of 43, was the result of opposition to the Fenian terrorist movement. Walking home along Sparks Street in Ottawa after attending Parliament, he was struck down at the door of his rooming house.

Born in Montreal in 1921, Pierre Laporte studied law at the University of Montreal, at the same time writing for a student newspaper and a now-defunct Montreal daily, Le Canada.

Although called to the bar, Laporte joined the staff of Le Devoir, becoming news editor. later moving to Quebec city as a political analyst and correspondent.

It was during this stay in Quebec city that he began to expose the corrupt Duplessis Union Nationale government.

In 1961 he began his active public political career, entering the cabinet as municipal affairs minister.

An early attacker of Quebec separatism, he became cultural affairs minister and house leader in 1963. At one time he sought to become Liberal party leader in Quebec but was unsuccessful.

His kidnapping on Oct. 10 followed that of British Trade Commissioner James Cross five days previous.

His body was found in an abandoned car near St. Hubert airfield after extensive police and military searches for the missing pair.

His abductor - murderers have not yet been apprehended.

James Cross was safely turned over to officials by his kidnappers on Dec. 3.

Warden Honored

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Prince Edward County Council joined in expressing gratitude for the leadership of county warden Gordon Lloyd during last week's closing session of council for 1970. Described as a man who has offered council "hard work, indulgence and leadership" in his term of office, he was presented with a tea wagon by Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn on behalf of council. The presentation was planned as a companion gift for a silver tea service given to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd at the warden's banquet last month by members of Hillier township council.

Warden Lloyd thanked council for its tribute and remarked: "My heart is in Prince Edward County." He told fellow councillors that he was born next door to Hillier township hall and joked that this could explain his interest in municipal affairs. Mr. Lloyd added that he served four years on Hillier township council before making a bid for the municipal reeveship. Although he was defeated at the polls Mr. Lloyd retained his enthusiasm for municipal service and ran a second time two years after his defeat. He won the election and became reeve of Hillier and last year warden of Prince Edward County.

He predicted today that the county will grow "in leaps and bounds" in the years ahead. You can create jobs and a playground area — the future is here in this county."

Comebacks Not Easy For Sabres

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coming from behind may be one of the toughest jobs any team can face, but Buffalo Sabres did it twice during the National Hockey League's weekend schedule.

The Sabres were outshot 46-30 by Detroit Red Wings in Buffalo Sunday and were trailing 3-0 in the second period before they rebounded for a 5-3 victory that pulled them to within six points of the six place Red Wings in the East Division standings. It was much the same story in Montreal Saturday when the Sabres spotted the Canadiens a 3-0 lead before coming back to gain a 4-4 tie.

In two other Sunday contests the Canadiens defeated Philadelphia Flyers 4-3 while St. Louis Blues and New York Rangers played to a 4-4 tie.

Saturday, Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Philadelphia Flyers 9-1, Detroit downed New York 7-4, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Boston Bruins 4-2, Los Angeles Kings walloped California Seals 9-3, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-2 and Minnesota's North Stars gained a 1-1 tie with St. Louis.

The power play netted Detroit goals by Gordie Howe and Tom Webster in the first period but the manpower advantage backfired on the Wings in the second period when Atkinson and then Floyd Smith scored for the short-handed Sabres.

Early in the third period, the Sabres had the power play advantage and used it to gain the go-ahead goal by Donnie Marshall. The Wings had two men in the penalty box when Paul Andrea made it 4-3 and Atkinson scored the final goal on a breakaway.

Joe Daley stopped 44 Detroit shots in the Sabres goal while Don McLeod suffered the loss in the Detroit nets.

Daley had to face only 25 shots in Montreal Saturday but he allowed two goals by Jacques Lemaire and one by Leon Rochefort before rookie Gil Perreault counted one for the Sabres in the final minute of the first period.

Serge Savard made it 6-1 for the Canadiens before Perreault, Ron Anderson and Eddie Shack scored for the Sabres before a crowd of 17,122 in Montreal where Buffalo had suffered an 11-3 defeated in its first visit of the year.

In Philadelphia Sunday, the Canadiens went in front early and stayed there with three goals by left-winger Marc Tardif and one by Billy Collins.

Referee Art Skov called a total of 80 minutes in penalties, including 25 majors and a misconduct, in New York where fights broke out between the Rangers and the Blues throughout the game.

Centre Red Berenson beat goalie Gilles Villemure for the tying goal while the Blues were shorthanded.

The tie extended New York's unbeaten streak on home ice to 15 games, tying the club record set two years ago. The single point also kept the Rangers within one point of Boston, the East-Division leader with 53 points.

Toronto took over sole possession of fourth place with the win Saturday in a game marred by a fight in the last minutes when both teams cleared their benches.

Left-winger Paul Henderson led the Leafs barrage with three goals while Norm Ullman, Ron Ellis and Dave Keon each scored twice.

The fight broke out when the Flyers' Bob Kelly went after Leaf winger Brian Spencer who earlier had thrown Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer to the ice, knocking him unconscious.

Referee John Ashley did not exercise a new rule announced two weeks ago by league president Clarence Campbell which calls for a bench penalty against the team whose players are first to leave the bench to take part in a fight.

In Vancouver, the Canucks mixed a bit of good news with the bad. A team spokesman announced Sunday that winger Wayne Maki apparently suffered no ill effects from a collision with Hawks Keith Magnuson and Jerry Korab in Saturday's game.

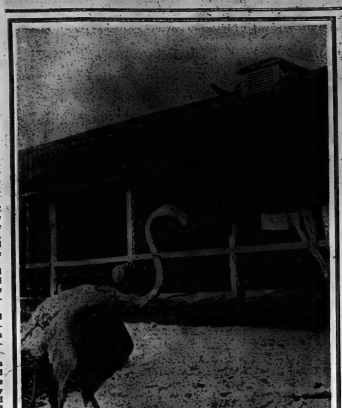
Maki, who has 15 goals for the Canucks this season, was taken to hospital for observation after the game but was released later.

Before the game Saturday, a Vancouver spokesman announced that team captain Orland Kurtenbach will be out of the lineup for six or eight weeks with a knee injury suffered in last Wednesday's game in Toronto.

Kurtenbach's leadership and scoring ability were missed Saturday as the Canucks were outshot 46-12 in the game and 20-3 in the final period alone.

Veteran Gordie Howe, playing in only his fourth game since coming back from a 19-game layoff with a torn rib cartilage, scored twice to lead the Red Wings who broke a five-game losing streak.

Hank Monteith also scored two for the Wings who poured five goals past New York goalie Ed Giacomin in the third period.



Centre Wally Boyer scored twice in the second period before a record crowd of 12,658 in Pittsburgh to start the Penguins' upset over the Bruins.

Phil Esposito, the league's leading goal-getter, was held scoreless by Pittsburgh goalie Al Smith, but team-mate Bobby Orr spoiled Smith's shutout bid late in the third period and Derek Sanderson added one more for the Bruins in the last minute of play.

Los Angeles moved out of the West Division cellar with the win over the Seals who inherit last place.

Minnesota solidified its hold on third spot in the West with the tie in St. Louis, gained when Jean Paul Parise deflected a slapshot by Bill Goldsworthy past goalie Glenn Hall.

Berenson got the St. Louis goal when he was awarded the second penalty shot of the season late in the second period.

Walton Reinstated, But Leafs Don't Care

TORONTO (CP) — Mike Walton has been reinstated with Toronto Maple Leafs after a two-week suspension but the 25-year-old centre might find it tough to crack the National Hockey League club's present lineup.

"We've won eight of our last nine games", Leaf coach John McLellan said, "There's no way Walton could break back into this lineup right now".

Walton was suspended by the Leafs for two weeks but NHL president Clarence Campbell ordered him reinstated with back pay after a Toronto psychiatrist reported that "Walton is not physically able to play or practice and that . . . he would not improve under his present employers."

"We have to pay him for the two week's suspension and keep paying his salary," Leaf general manager Jim Gregory said. "There's no trade talk about him at the moment either. We're not going to take a bath. We're not going to take a loss.

"Everybody knows what Mike's getting, which is $20,000 or $40,000, with bonuses on top of that for personal performance," said Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of the Leafs.

"He has scored three goals for us," Ballard said. "I bet Phil Esposito's not getting much more than that and how many goals has he got for Boston (Bruins)? Thirty-two!."

Six of the eight teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series each won and lost a game on the Christmas weekend with no change in standings resulting.

Oakville Oaks, holding sixth place in the standings, were downed 12-3 by first-place Galt Hornets Saturday but came back for a 6-3 win over second-place Orillia Terriers Sunday.

Orillia scored a 9-4 victory over Owen Sound Crescents Saturday and Galt was beaten 5-4 by Owen Sound Sunday.

Kingston Aces scored three third-period goals to defeat Barrie Flyers 6-4 Saturday but the Flyers defeated the Aces 4-3 Sunday.

Home Weather Backfires On Vikings

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — The underdog San Francisco 49ers beat Minnesota Vikings 17-14 in the Vikings' blustery own backyard Sunday for a berth in the National Football Conference championship game.

Quarterback John Brodie plunged one yard for a touchdown with 80 seconds remaining to assure the 49ers of the upset over the Vikings, who lost only their third game in 15 starts this season.

The Vikings, one-touchdown favorites going into Sunday's game, got a touchdown on a pass from Gary Cuozzo to Gene Washington with one second remaining after the 49er defense had stifled Minnesota's passing game.

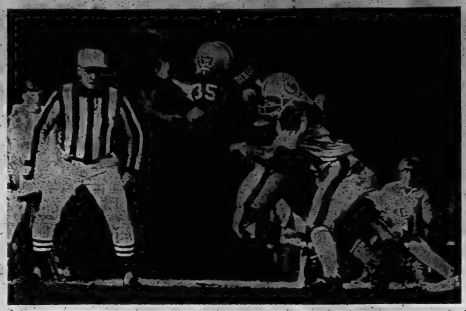
Cuozzo couldn't complete a pass in the second half until San Francisco held a commanding 17-7 edge. He completed five of his last six for 71 yards, the last being the 24-yard touchdown toss to Washington. In all, Cuozzo was good on 139 yards worth of completions.

Meanwhile Brodie was completing 16 of 32 attempts for 301 yards and no interceptions.

Two Cuozzo passes were intercepted by the inspired 49er defence, and one of them stalled a strong Viking offensive threat after the opening kick-off.

Minnesota moved to the 49er five before Jim Snidecki hauled in a Cuozzo pass. The Vikings scored anyway when Paul Krause recovered a Ken Willard fumble and dashed 22 yards to score.

Willard's fumble was one of five by San Francisco, three of which were recovered by the Vikings. The 49ers recovered two of three Minnesota bobbles, one of which led to Bruce Gossett's field goal, the eventual winning margin.



In addition to the fumbles, rookie 49er defensive back Bruce Taylor helped keep the powerful Vikings off stride.

During punt returns by Taylor set up both San Francisco major scores. In the first quarter, he returned one 20 yards to the Vikings 34.

Brodie's game-winning touchdown with 80 seconds to play followed a 13-yard Taylor punt return to the Minnesota 14.

The Vikings, last year's National Conference champions, didn't fare as well on their icy turf in eight-degree temperatures as did the visiting 49ers.

The 49ers will meet Dallas in San Francisco next Sunday to decide the NFC's Super Bowl representative.

The Fumble That Wasn't

The ball bounces out of Hewitt Dixon's hands as the Oakland Raider is tackled by a Miami Dolphin defensive man in the second quarter of the American Conference Football Championship game in Oakland Sunday. However Oakland kept the ball as the official ruled the fumble took place when Dixon was run out of bounds. (AP Wirephoto)

Raiders Earn Title Berth In Mud Bowl

OAKLAND — Oakland Raiders slogged through the mud to a 21-14 victory over the Miami Dolphins and a spot in the American Football Conference title game against the Baltimore Colts.

All Pro cornerback Willie Brown provided the go-ahead touchdown when he sprinted 75 yards with a third quarter interception to give the Raiders a 14-7 lead.

Flanker Rod Sherman hauled in an 85-yard aerial from Daryl Lamonica for the winning touchdown with 9¼ minutes remaining in the game, to put the Raiders in the title game for the fourth consecutive season.

The muddy field helped curtail the powerful Miami ground attack and also bothered soccer style kicker Garo Yepremian, who missed field goal attempts of 25 and 34 yards after kicking 22 of 29 during the regular season.

Miami quarterback Bob Griese pulled his team to within seven yards with a seven yard pass to Willie Richardson with 4.36 remaining in the game.

Miami had opened the scoring with a 16-yard touchdown pass from Griese to Paul Warfield, while Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff hitched on to a 23 - yard toss from Lamonica.

Lamonica completed eight of 16 passes for 187 yards while the Dolphin quarterback hit 13 of 27 for 155.

Former British Columbia Lion Jake Scott provided a key defensive play for Miami, recovering a Charlie Smith fumble on the 15-yard line in the third quarter.

Brown came up with his interception on the next series of downs leaping in front of Warfield at the 50-yard line and returning it all the way for a touchdown.

Sherman hauled in a pass at the Miami 45 yard line and outraced corner back Curtis Johnson for the winning score.

Touchdowns Not Coming At Cowboys

The Cowboys iron-clad defence completed 21 consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown as they held the Conference's second most potent ground attack to 76 yards while blanketing quarterback Greg Landry's receivers.

Mike Clark booted a 26 yard field goal for the first Dallas score, while defensive linemen George Andrie and Jethro Pugh tackled Landry in the end zone for a fourth quarter safety that completed the scoring.

Rookie safety Charlie Waters made two key fumble recoveries early in the game to halt Detroit drives. The first, by Landry, helped set up Clark's field goal, while the second fumble by halfback Altie Taylor halted Detroit at the Dallas 29-yard line.

Duane Thomas led the 29-yard Dallas rushing total by lugging the ball for 135 yards in 30 carries.

The Lions threatened late in the game when Landry completed a fourth down pass to flanker Earl McCullough for a first down at the Dallas 29-yard line.

Defensive back Mel Renfro came up with a key interception in the final minute of play to preserve the Dallas victory.

The Cowboys will meet the San Francisco 49ers for the right to represent the NFC in the Super Bowl.

Colts Steal Cinderalla's Slippers

BALTIMORE — The Cinderella team of the American Football Conference went finally brought back to reality as the Baltimore Colts blasted Paul Brown's Cincinnati Bengals 17-0 to earn the right to play Oakland for the AFC championship.

Veteran quarterback John Unitas completed six of 17 passes for 143 yards, including long touchdown passes to Roy Jefferson and Eddie Hinton.

The Colts defence led by a tremendous pass rush allowed the Bengals to penetrate past mid field only twice in the contest.

First year running back Norm Bulaich gained 118 yards rushing on 25 tries for Baltimore to lead their ground attack.

Unitas passed to Jefferson in a crowd of defenders during the first quarter and hit Hinton for a 30 yard score in the final period for the other touchdown.

The Bengals could pick up only 63 yards rushing against the tough Colt defence.

Cincinnati pivot Virgil Carter completed only seven of 21 passes for an additional 84 yards, while being dumped three times by the Colt rush.

The crowd of 51,127 marked the first time in 51 straight games that Memorial Stadium was not sold out for a Colt game

Fairways Champs of 'Boxing Day' Duel with Golden Hawks

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

"Boxing Day" came 24 hours late for the Belleville Fairways and Golden Hawks as the two Eastern Ontario Junior B clubs pounded each other for 115 minutes in penalties as the Fairways came up with a 4-2 win.

Hockeywise, the action was not nearly as hot and heavy as in previous Golden Jury was tested only 16 times, while the Trenton tandem of Peter Pettigill and Tony Minaker faced 27 shots.

Pettingill was ejected from the game along with Belleville centre Joe Clarke for their part in a 10-minute fracas that saw 57 minutes in penalties handed out.

Clarke and Bim McFall started the fireworks after the Trenton pivot had been fingered for elbowing at 13.29. The Belleville player managed to connect with a number of blows to his opponent's ribs, but no damaging punches were landed.

Red Palmer and Dave Henry squared off in another bottle while Pettingill picked up a game misconduct for leaving his net to join the melee. John Mulvihill and Hugh Holmes also drew majors in the fracas.

Mulvihill gave the home team an early lead with a pair of first period power play goals. Both tallies came on drives from the point when the Fairways held a 5-4 advantage in manpower.

"Those double penalties in the first period really hurt us," noted Trenton coach Norm Cairns, whose team was assessed 18 penalties in the first 20 minutes of play.

"I thought we played pretty well considering we're missing some key men," said the Hawk head man. Winger Mike Hall and rearguards Pete Ditmaier and Ralph Francis all missed the contest.

Danny Lapenotte made it 3-0 in the second period stealing the puck from defenceman Steve Barber and backhanding a shot past Pettingill.

Bim McFall gave Jury his only tough chance on a drive from the point, as the Fairways managed only seven shots on goal in the first two periods.

Clarke picked the corner early in the third period for his team's fourth goal, while Mark Woodward counted two breakaway markers to spoil Jury's bid for a shutout.

Coach Floyd Crawford kept the same Fairways' lineup that played the team's 7-4 win over Kingston last week with the exception of right winger Doug James, who replaced Tim Yohn. Yohn was out of town with the Blake Kerr Imperial midgets.

Defenceman and team captain John Mulvihill was the outstanding player for Belleville, while right winger Rod Palmer turned in a hustling performance on a line with Clarke and Dennis McCormack.

Paul Lavender and Bim McFall posed the biggest threats for the Hawks, who have now lost 16 of 18 regular season games.

The victory moved Belleville to within one point of the fourth - place Cobourg Cougars, with the Fairways holding two games in hand. The Fairways' next action comes Saturday night in Oshawa, with the Crushmen repaying the visit Sunday at the Memorial Arena.

Rollins Peewees Best in Bracket At Kingston

The Maurice Rollins peewees continued their successful tournament showing by capturing their division of the Kingston Rotary - Kiwanis Tournament Sunday.

The Belleville All - stars won three consecutive games in their march to the championship.

Rollins first win was a 10-8 whitewashing of Perth as Bobby Crawford, Bill Whelan and Rob Richardson each counted two goals to pace the attack. Andy Lapenotte, Bob Thompson, Terry Meagher and Ray Skelly rounded out the scoring.

In the second contest they turned on the power once again winning 9-2 over Kingston Lakeshore.

Skelly, Meagher and Peter Coates led the way with two goals each while Lapenotte, Thompson and Paul Hayman added single goals.

In the final game, Rolling took a 5-2 decision from Peterborough's second team. Scoring two goals apiece were Coates and Lapenotte with Crawford adding the final score.

In bantam action, the Kingston Bantams bowed out in straight games as they lost the tournament opener 6-1 to Kingston and then dropped a 7-2 verdict to Gananoque.

Rick Barbeau counted Belleville's only goal in their opening loss to Kingston, with Eric Powell and Bruce Sutherland scoring against Gananoque

The Western Tire Juveniles were eliminated from the consolation round of the tournament absorbing a 7-2 loss to Peterborough. The Belleville juveniles dropped their opener 4-2 to Trenton before coming back with a 5-3 win over Toronto Nationals in their second contest.

Belleville's Blake Kerr midgets won their Sunday opener in the Kingston tournament with a 4-2 verdict over Ottawa Cornstock. Brian Conrad scored twice, and Mark Coates and Peter Sanke once each for the Imperials.

But the host Kingston Rotary-Kiwanis entry ousted the Imperials with a 10-0 trouncing, avenging their only loss of the season so far, a 5-3 defeat at Belleville bench.

Today the Imperials were in Orillia to participate in that city's annual three-day midget hockey tournament.

In regular league play, the Towers Novice "A" team trounced Brockville 8-2, while Mulroneys Novice Minors came up with a 4-2 upset in Peterborough. Gary McInroy, Danny Duffy and Gary Frederich each scored a pair of goals to pace the Towers win over Brockville. Andy Plane and Mike McDonald were the other marksmen.

Mark Crawford led Mulroneys to their win against Peterborough by counting two goals and two assists. Billy Rowe and Wayne Deighton were the other marksmen.

The Rollins peewees showed that they suffered no post-tournament letdown coming up with a 5-2 victory over Napanee Monday.

Bobby Crawford was the big gun firing a hat trick with Rick Sprague and Bill Whelan getting the other goals.

Mo-Hawk Trip Up Blind Alley

The 258-mile senior hockey road trip to Woodstock is not a popular one at the best of times for Belleville Mo-Hawks.

After Sunday, none of the Mo-Hawks could be blamed for being bad advertising for the Western Ontario centre.

Stalled for three hours in Bowmanville by a bus breakdown, the Mo-Hawks arrived in Woodstock at 5 p.m. Sunday to discover their game with the Senior A cellar-dwellers had been cancelled.

"We called them from Bowmanville and told them we were going to be late," explained coach Dave Jones. "They said okay, to come on ahead."

Woodstock management supparently changed their minds when they were reminded that local figure skaters had their ice booked after 5:30 and tried to have the Belleville bus contacted by the Ontario Provincial Police to notify them the game was off.

Somehow the OPP couldn't manage to come across the Mo-Hawk bus between Bowmanville and Woodstock and the Belleville seniors arrived to find they were just in time to go home.

The Mo-Hawks had hoped to even their season's record (now 11-12) with a win against the A's. Their originally scheduled New Year's day game in Belleville has also been cancelled.

Kingston Aces moved three points ahead of Belleville in fourth place in the eight-team senior standings by splitting weekend games with Barrie Flyers. But the Mo-Hawks now enjoy a game in and over the Aces, whom they meet in Kingston next Sunday at 7 p.m.

Next home action for the Mo-Hawks is a Friday, Jan. 8 visit by Barrie.

Finnish Tanker Splits in Two

NEW YORK (AP) — Rescue vessels were riding out a North Atlantic storm today before attempting to save 21 crew members on the stern section of a Finnish tanker that split in two Sunday in heavy seas.

Six other crew members, including the captain and chief engineer, were feared lost, the United States Coast Guard reported. They had been stranded on the bow section when the 540-foot tanker, the Ragny, broke up.

One man from the U.S. tanker Platte—first vessel on the scene—was lost when a small boat capsized during an abortive rescue attempt Sunday night. Six others were injured.

The Platte remained in the area, about 800 miles southeast of New York City, along with another freighter, the Marie Leonardo, and the coast guard cutter Escapabe.

No more rescue attempts were expected until the weather cleared, probably later today, the coast guard said.

The stern section of the Ragny was reported to have engine power and to be making about 9 half knot in reverse—enough to keep the heavy seas from entering its open compartments.

The 31 men aboard "seem to be in good shape," the coast guard said.

"The after section is riding well and there appears to be no danger," a spokesman reported.

The coast guard said the powerless bow section was wallowing and slopping water late Sunday night.

Early today, the coast guard said the second mate aboard the stern section had radioed that the air leak on the bow were "fixed fast."

The 11,366-ton Ragny, en route to Norway from Freeport, Bahamas, sent out a distress call at 1:15 p.m. EST Sunday that it

Israel Returns To Peace Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has decided to return to the Middle East peace talks at the United Nations with Egypt and Jordan, Premier Golda Meir announced today.

Mrs. Meir reported the decision to reporters after a special meeting of the Israeli cabinet.

Israel suspended its participation in the talks of Sept. 8 because, it contended, three had been no Egyptian missile buildup in the Suez canal area in violation of the Middle East ceasefire.

Both—coalition partners had key votes on the issue Sunday. Labor's executive and political committees in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, voted unanimously to resume negotiations after the executive committee of the National Religious party approved 31 to 9.

Informed sources said Mrs. Meir told the Labor party committees she would ask the cabinet to decide in favor of returning.

A Religious party resolution said the decision was necessary to avert a cabinet crisis, but the party regretted the Egyptians had not complied with Israel's demand for withdrawal of Soviet anti-aircraft missiles from the Suez canal zone.

The Religious party committee also said the party would not allow the government to return any territory occupied, during the June 1967, war without first taking up the matter in the Knesset.

Israel withdrew Sept. 8 from the indirect discussions with Egypt and Jordan, claiming Egypt had violated the ceasefire accompanying the talks by moving SAM missiles toward the Suez canal.

Mrs. Meir's government and the United States demanded that Egypt "rectify" the violations, but the Egyptians denied any violation of the truce agreement and said no missile would be moved back.

The New York Times reported Sunday that Mrs. Meir doubted that resumption of the discussions under UN envoy Gunnar V. Jarring would result in a peace agreement. Interviewed Dec. 19 in Tel Aviv by Times vice-president James Reston, she said the outcome "depends entirely on whether the other side is really interested and prepared to come to a peace agreement which will do away with future wars.

"If this desire on the part of the Arab governments exists, then there is hope. If they are coming to the Jarring talks in a mood of serving us ultimatums and timetables, this is the blueprint for the failure of the talks."

Mrs. Meir said the Soviet Union is spurring the Arabs on, but "we will not run even if the Russians attack us." She said, however, she thinks the Russians will avoid direct confrontation with Israel "because I am convinced they do not want to be involved in a major world clash."

Reston went on to Cairo to interview President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and reported today that Sadat vowed never to establish diplomatic relations with Israel even if peace is arranged on his terms.

"Leave it to the coming generations," Sadat said, "not to me."

The journalist said Sadat also defined Egypt's peace terms for the first time as:

—Israel must leave "every inch" of the occupied territory.

—After Israeli withdrawal, Egypt would recognize Israel as an independent state and would welcome an agreement by the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France guaranteeing Middle Eastern borders.

—Egypt and Israel could also begin negotiations on Israel's maritime rights in the Gulf of Aqaba and the Strait of Tiran, currently controlled by Israel due to its occupation of the Sinai peninsula.

Settlement of the Palestinian Arab refugee question must precede an agreement for Israeli ships to use the Suez canal.

The Egyptian president also said the United States "twisted the facts" when it agreed with Israel that Egypt had violated the U.S.-arranged ceasefire. He said Washington had promised him not to give military aid to Israel during the truce, then resumed and gave the Israelis "everything."

"The U.S., believe it or not, I don't know their stand up 'til now," Sadat said. "The U.S. said nothing—nothing about the withdrawal, nothing about the timetable. Nothing about anything at all except just giving Israel everything they want."

An Israeli army unit crossed into southern Lebanon during the night, destroyed four houses and killed several Arab guerrillas, the Israeli military command said today. One Israeli soldier was killed and five wounded.

A spokesman said the raid was to retaliate for a number of guerrilla strikes in Israel during the last week.

Guerrillas based in Lebanon also were blamed by the Israeli spokesman for an explosion today at Yaron, a settlement in Upper Galilee. There were no Israeli casualties.

In the Gaza Strip, one of the areas seized by Israel in 1967, police said Arab terrorists detonated a time bomb in a building of the Israeli interior ministry Sunday, causing extensive damages but no casualties.

A few hours later, an Israeli military court sentenced two convicted terrorists to 22 years in prison each for throwing grenades at buses carrying Arabs to jobs in Israel. The two were convicted of attempted murder and membership in the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a guerrilla organization banned in Israel.

Hunters Proved Correct

The 1970 deer hunting season has now passed into history with local hunters reporting variable degrees of success.

The Ontario department of lands and forests in its December newsletter says that slightly improved hunting was reported in the Tweed, Lindsay, Kemptville and Lake Huron Forest district.

But it remained poor in the Sudbury mainland, in the North Bay area and in the Pembroke forest districts.

And the report bears out what a few Belleville area hunters reported following something less than successful hunting safaris — that the poorest success in the Tweed forest district seemed to be in North Hastings.

Overall hunting success in the Tweed district was reported 17 per cent — up two per cent from last year. This compared with 20 per cent success in the Parry Sound area and 25 per cent in some townships in the Lake Simcoe area.

Farther north, hunter success in the Pembroke area decreased to 13 per cent this year; North Bay had its usual 8 per cent success and the Sudbury mainland a disappointing below 5 per cent success.

Manitoulin Island showed a very slight improvement to 23 per cent from 22 per cent in 1968.

Indochina Outlook

Political Victory Seems Unlikely as U.S. Troops Withdrawn

SAIGON (AP) — This week, the United States starts its second decade of direct involvement in Indochina. Reflecting a course of disengagement, American forces—and battlefield casualties—are at their lowest numerical level in more than four years.

The direct American effort is generally dated from Jan. 1, 1961. That year 11 Americans were killed in action. In 1968, the peak year, the toll was near 15,000. This year's deaths have been less than a third of the 1968 total.

In all, more than 44,000 Americans have been killed in action in 10 years. The total of Americans lost, counting accidents and disease, has reached 53,000 in tabulations of the U.S. command.

The focal point of U.S. involvement in the war has subtly shifted for the time being to a 4,000-mile network of mountain passes, dirt roads and river crossings in the southern panhandle of Laos called the Ho Chi Minh Trail. It is North Vietnam's highway into the South.

Action in South Vietnam has been scaled down to almost entirely small-unit clashes during the last year, but the United States is still uncertain of the Communist side's intentions.

Hopes have been abandoned for a military victory. U.S. officials are pessimistic about a political settlement.

"We will come to a situation where we have neither war nor peace," says President Nguyen Van Thieu, whose Saigon government has U.S. backing.

One of his main adversaries, Tran Nam Trung, commander of the Viet Cong armed forces, says: "The South Vietnam National Front for Liberation has laid down the people's war line which consists in carrying out a nationwide, all-around and protracted war."

The only present solution for the United States appears to be continued withdrawal of its ground forces while filling the void as best it can with its air power, thus cutting casualties to a minimum.

American troop strength reached its peak of 543,000 in April, 1969, and has been pared since to slightly under 340,000. By May 1, 1971, 60,000 more troops are scheduled to be gone.

Some U.S. officers see the next two months as critical.

"A couple of months will tell the story, how much supplies and how many men the North Vietnamese can get down the Ho Chi Minh Trail, what assets they can count on to do anything with," says one American.

The dry season now dominates Laos, the time when the North Vietnamese historically move supplies and reinforcements southward into Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Tons of supplies are beginning to flow southward from mountain passes in North Vietnam. The North Vietnamese have beefed up their air defences to protect the passes.

With heavy North Vietnamese backing, the Communist Pathet Lao now control about two-thirds of Laos, a land-locked country bordered by China, Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand and Burma.

Royal Laotian sources say that although the Pathet Lao hold at least two-thirds of the territory they control less than half the population of about two million.

There are varying estimates of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong strength in Indochina.

U.S. sources in Saigon estimate 240,000 to 254,000 North Vietnamese troops are in South Vietnam and Cambodia, and in sanctuaries just inside Laos and just above the demilitarized zone between the two Vietnams.

Of this number, 60,000 are said to be in Cambodia, including four North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions that had fought against the allies in South Vietnam.

These sources estimate that 50,000 North Vietnamese troops and 50,000 Pathet Lao are operating throughout Laos.

The North Vietnamese have made gains in Cambodia and hold large chunks of the northeastern sector.

Some military experts in Saigon and Phnom Penh feel that the North Vietnamese could put even more pressure on Cambodia if they wanted to.

Death for Hijackers

Soviet Court Ruling Raises Sharp Protest

MOSCOTW (AP) — The Soviet government is reported planning to try nine more Jews in connection with the Leningrad hijacking case, but the worldwide outcry resulting from the first trial is not likely to make things any easier for any of the defendants.

Reliable sources say the next trial will begin Jan. 6 in Leningrad, where a court on Christmas Eve convicted nine Jews and two gentiles of plotting to hijack an airplane to flee the Soviet Union.

Two of the Jews were sentenced to death by firing squad, and the other defendants received labor camp sentences ranging from four to 15 years.

The informants said about a dozen other Jews also face trials in Riga and the Moldavian town of Kishinev, but no dates have been set. The sources said they did not know the charges against these defendants, but presumably they are accused of involvement in the same unsuccessful hijacking attempt in June.

The sources said the defendants in the Leningrad trial next week are charged with violating Articles 70 and 72 of the Soviet criminal code. The former involves "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" and the latter "organizational activity directed to commission of especially dangerous crimes against the state and-or participation in anti-Soviet organizations."

Conviction under Article 72 carries a maximum penalty of death, while Article 70 carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in a labor camp.

The sources said the second group of Leningrad defendants was separated from the first because of the connection between the two was "tenuous at best." The first group was charged with treason.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said the world outcry against the death sentences in Leningrad was "beyond all expectation," and the head of the pro-Moscow Communist party of Israel expressed belief that the sentences would be commuted. But his view was not shared in Moscow.

In Russian eyes, the trial was entirely a matter of domestic law and order and of no concern abroad. The stiff sentences probably were fixed as a deterrent to others.

"Undoubtedly the Soviet Union's image has been damaged by this verdict," one Western diplomat commented, "but they'll never admit it.

"To them this was a question of law enforcement."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, dismissed the Western protests as anti-Soviet hysteria whipped up by Israel and United States Zionists.

But the protests continued abroad.

The Australian government appealed to the Soviet government not to carry out the death sentences. So did the British Communist party.

Crowds of demonstrators massed outside the Soviet embassies in London, Bern and New York Sunday and in front of the Soviet consulate in Montreal Saturday. Twelve persons were arrested in New York in a clash with police.

CBC Presentation

War Must End Say U.S. PoWs in Filmed Interview

NEW YORK (AP) — Two United States prisoners of war in North Vietnam say in an interview with, a CBC correspondent, filmed Christmas Day, that the war should be ended now, the U.S. defence department spokesman called the televised interview program an "enemy propaganda film."

The two prisoners, both of whom appeared physically fit, also talked about their daily routine and mail privileges in the interview, conducted by CBC correspondent Michael Maclear, under the supervision of the North Vietnamese and televised in Canada and the U.S. Sunday night.

Five other PoWs were seen at close range in the film, but only U.S. Navy pilots Walter E. Wilber, 40, and Robert J. Schweitzer, 38, both commanders, were allowed to reply to preadmitted questions.

Wives of the two men confirmed their identification but declined to comment on the anti-war views they expressed. Schweitzer's father, Fred Schweitzer of Oreland, Pa., commented: "If I were over there I'd do anything to get out."

The interviews by Maclear were filmed following a conversation with North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, whom he quoted as saying: "I swear to you these men are well treated."

Maclear said when he questioned the premier about U.S. suspicions that the North Vietnamese hold more than the 339 Americans whose names they released in Paris last week, Dong reacted angrily.

"The Nixon people are scoundrels, scoundrels to talk like this," he quoted Dong as saying. "It's they who have no humanitarian feelings by talking like this."

Maclear said Dong told him the list, which also included 30 PoWs the North Vietnamese said had died and nine who were released, was " a full one and complete."

The location of the camp was not disclosed but the New York Times reported that a U.S. official in Washington said it was the "Hanoi Hilton"—a show place camp where other journalists have been allowed controlled visits.

Jerry Friedheim, a deputy assistant defence secretary, said: "We would of course have no comment on a censored edited enemy propaganda film showing only a handful of known prisoners. It is one more example of the refusal of North Vietnam to conduct itself as a civilized signatory of the Geneva Convention. Were that convention adhered to, there would be impartial inspection and contact direct with the PoWs, rather than censored films.

"In addition, we continue to be concerned for the prisoners and the missing, not just in North Vietnam, but also South Vietnam and Laos."

The interview was broadcast by NBC-TV and CBS-TV in the U.S.

In the interview, Wilber and Schweitzer said they had read a number of books by Americans about the war, had visited visitation museums in Hanoi and had discussed the war with other prisoners.

"I think I've had the deepest discussion I've ever had in my life with my fellow prisoners here," said Wilber, "and we've had to really go to the very core of our feelings on a number of things—loyalty, what is it. Where does it lie."

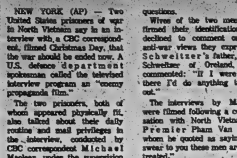
Schweitzer said:

"I think the answer of course is the war must be ended, and it must be stopped now. We've just got to stop this thing. We've got to admit the facts as they lie, find stop the war, and of course we must withdraw our troops to stop the war. That's the position we have to face.

Once we dot that, the Vietnamese can solve their own problems. I'm confident of that. It we'll stop the war and get our troops out. That's what we have to do, and that's what the big job is."

"I of course agree," said Wilber, "and as I say I'm terribly concerned about my country, and I feel that the future of our country as well as Vietnam and Indochina can not be served by the prolongation of this war, whatever the reasons that caused it, and I don't feel that it's necessary even to talk over the old reasons as who was wrong, who was right.

"It's been proven, as far as I'm concerned, that, this war is bad. It's bad. And it isn't going to improve, either our situation or the Vietnamese or the Indochinese people's situation."



"They've got to be left alone to solve their own problems," he concluded. "We've got our own problems we've got to solve."

Wilber said he was shot down over Nghean province in June, 1968, after 39 missions. Schweitzer said he was on his 11th mission just outside Haiphong when he was shot down Jan. 5, 1968.

They said they receive letters about once a month and packages about every two months and use "a regular form letter" in corresponding with their families.

Several times they have visited Hanoi, Wilber said, including Christmas Eve when they attended midnight mass at the Roman Catholic cathedral—"a very enjoyable and moving ceremony."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

I call it pill-popping when people take medicines as nonchalantly as if they were swallowing candy. There's a tendency to make one's own distinctions between what are "strong medicines and "harmless" ones. For example, consider this letter:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband worries me. He takes aspirin every day by the handful. (At least a dozen aspirins a day.) He has headaches. The doctor has found no reason except tension. Once he told him to take an aspirin or two for relief. Now, as I said, he takes too many.

He says, "What's the commotion I get headaches and aspirin helps them. It's a harmless medicine. What's wrong in taking a dozen or two aspirin They give me relief. That's all I care about."

The reason I'm so concerned is that I've heard that even harmless medicines can be dangerous. Is it true that aspirin can sometimes cause bleeding from the stomach I'm afraid that some day he will have a hemorrhage. — Mrs. C.

Comment: Your husband is a pill-popper. In his case, "Harmless" aspirin is the staff he leans on. Other people may use tranquilizers or sedatives or sleeping pills or iron tablets or vitamins, etc. All apparently harmless, yet all potentially dangerous if taken in too large doses and too long.

It is true that aspirin is one of our "wonder" drugs. It brings relief to millions (between 30 and 40 tons are consumed daily in the United States) for their various aches and pains.

But still too many do not realize that some people can get bleeding from the stomach or intestines, that aspirin may be bad for ulcer patients and those suffering from asthma and other allergic conditions.

Mind you, Mrs. C., I am not trying to downgrade aspirin — which I consider to be one of our most useful drugs. Just to warn your husband and others that pill-popping may be dangerous even when apparently "harmless" drugs are swallowed.

For Mrs. U.: German measles vaccine should be given to a grown woman with caution because of the possibility that she may and realize she is pregnant at the time, or will be within a few months. The vaccine may be harmful to the unborn child. Ideally, only children should receive the vaccine, which will in time cut down outbreaks of German measles, a disease that is a threat to pregnant women.

For Mrs. H.: As in your case, women as well as men may be concerned about losing their hair. Just why you are "almost getting bald" is something I can only speculate about. It certainly makes good sense to consult with your doctor about it.

In some instances, a lazy thyroid is the reason, and your doctor will take tests. Sometimes there is thinning and loss of hair after pregnancy. In which case the hair usually regrows within months.

What kind of hair brush do you use? Are the bristles too sharp? Are you pulling your hair up in ponytail style This can put abnormal tension on the hair if worn too tightly. Do rollers pull your hair?

Have you recently been ill with high fever Sometimes discontinuing oral contraceptives causes temporary loss of hair growth.

In many women, of course, the cause is unknown until they seek it. Simply worrying about it and doing nothing is the least likely way to promote luxuriant hair.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Will Rogers' Early Critic

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An actor named James Whitmore is touring the country these days, giving a one-man show called "Will Rogers' USA." Performed along the lines of Hal Holbrook's An Evening With Mark Twain, the new show revives the homespun philosophy of cowboy-actor Will Rogers in the 1920s.

If someone like Spiro Agnew imagines that modern-day critics and commentators are hard on Congress and the political scene, these reminders of Rogers' cracks — both as performed on the stage and in his brief newspaper column — he should listen more attentively to the voice of the past.

Asked where he got his humor, Rogers replied, "I could study all my life and not think up one half the amount of funny things they can think of in one session of Congress."

Attending the Republican national convention of 1932 as a paid commentator, Rogers said: "I'm glad Chicago children didn't come by on their way to school that morning and see how this wonderful system of choosing our country's leaders was conducted. They would never again have asked: 'What's the matter with the country?' "

Rogers often denied he was a humorist: "I don't make jokes: I just watch the government and report the facts."

In referring to stuffed ballot boxes and vote frauds, Rogers got off this nifty aphorism: "More men have been elected between Sundown and Sunup, than ever were elected between Sunup and Sundown."

Observing life in Washington firsthand, he made the succinct comment: "We get what I'm the Senate, where we paid to get wisdom." Adding to that, "With Congress, every time they make a joke, it's a law; and every time they make a law, it's a joke."

Rogers was totally nonpartisan in his views; he spoke with equal unfairness about both parties. Once he remarked, "The more you observe politics, the more you've got to admit that each party is worse than the other."

During one campaign, he said, "If you ever injected truth into politics, you'd have no politics." Asked about the pressure of his work, he remarked, "I never lack material for my humor column when Congress is in session." And of that august body, he wrote: "Congress is really made up of children that never really grew up."

And, some 40 years later, little has changed since Will Rogers summarized our public philosophy: "The business of government is to keep the government out of business—that is, unless business needs government aid."

Too bad Spiro wasn't around in those days.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 29

Your birthday today: You start a year of striving to consolidate when there's still so much movement that you're not sure of your main direction. What you do organize should be announced where it attracts added support. Emotions, despite all the upheaval of career efforts, you settle down this year forming stable relationships. Today's natives are usually very practical and do well in their own research. Their sense of order sometimes brings them to the highest executive levels.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): In money deals, what you do now brings results in about three months. Put in full time, as it's probably the last really good business day of the year.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Reorganize your financial situation to fit your needs and not to be in a mood for unusual spending — avoid getting caught up in it.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Group projects become more important. Consolidate your progress. If you can't find a good party, give one. It turns out better than New Year's Eve rituals.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get busy to close out the year's business activity. Settle accounts collect what is owing you. New contacts are to be followed up at once, both personal and vocational.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Begin early, tidy up your affairs, come to agreement with all concerned. Discussion of plans and progress are favored for the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Set your values high: take your earnings in money or equivalent form. Long - term investments, property deals are highly favored today. In leisure time, prefer physical activity, parties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Put together a deal about your work, financing and the like. Personal calls succeed where other methods fail. Put in overtime if necessary, and settle matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Take friends with you on chores and trips. They'll cheer you up and stimulate ideas. Contacts made now have a high potential. Major purchases, done with care, work out well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Think of the luck and fortune you've enjoyed in getting this far. Act with your usual efficiency, then take a complete change of pace with an evening of celebration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Express yourself with dignity and composure, but make your presence known. You have many things going for you now. Entertain this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Emotional developments in your group or family have engaged your notice for quite a while — they're subtle in the early stages. Meet everybody halfway.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Accept some friendly help in closing matters of permanent nature. Get through with your work as lightly and quickly as you can, then go on a round of fun.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I agree with his views on Vietnam and Red China, but I distinctly disagree with his views on what deodorant to use!"

Risky Move

The Guardian's Move Marks End of Era

LONDON (CP) — Housemoving time at the northern regional offices of a veteran national newspaper has set off a round of nostalgia among British journalists.

For the paper concerned, The Guardian, the shift from one address in Manchester to another barely 600 yards away also means a new milestone in a history which dates back almost 150 years.

Six years ago, The Guardian transferred its central headquarters from Manchester to London as part of an effort to transform itself into a completely national newspaper rather than one identified with a particular part of Britain.

But it retained foreign and regional news-editing services in the old office at 3 Cross Street, Manchester, together with printing facilities for its northern editions.

The switch of central control to London and the disappearance of "Manchester" from the daily paper's nameplate was a risky move which brought mixed reactions from long-time admirers of The Guardian.

The paper's close association with Manchester, as industrial metropolis which spawned many of the basic tenets of British liberalism in the 19th century, had been a source of great strength to The Guardian.

Since the move to London, the paper has had its share of the troubles currently afflicting the national press in general.

Observers of British journalism, usually number it among the economically weaker of the sailboats.

Yet The Guardian has continued to revamp its appearance and broaden its news coverage while carrying on with the quality features for which it always has been well known.

This year, the spruced-up Guardian finally passed what its management terms its, "magic" circulation figure, 300,000.

"Every newspaper has a magic figure," it proudly announced.

Maybe in the (Daily) Mirror it's 5 million, or 500,000 to The Times.

"But to The Guardian it's 300,000. And we've topped it."

The achievement came in the January-June, 1970, period, when The Guardian's daily circulation averaged 303,332.

It all seems a far cry from the days when the Manchester Guardian, as it was then known, operated at Cross Street under the aegis of a figure famous in British journalistic tradition, C. P. Scott.

Scott and Cross Street were for many years almost synonomous terms.

The old editor, who died in 1932, was a friend and adviser of leading statesmen like the late prime minister David Lloyd George, as well as being the man who moulded the 20th century Guardian.

In the paper made his Manchester move from Cross Street to new and bigger premises in Deansgate, Guardian men joined with rival journalists in recalling some of Scott's celebrated precepts about how newspapers should be operated.

A paper's "primary office is the gathering of news," said Scott.

"At the peril of its soul, it must see that the supply is not tainted."

He insisted that "comment is free but facts are sacred."

"Comment also is justly subject to a self-imposed restraint," Scott added.

"It is well to be frank, it is even better to be fair."

The latest milestone in Guardian history elicited an admiring article on the main feature page of a London competitor in the quality newspaper field, The Times.

"The Guardian and Cross Street, like The Times and Printing House Square (London), have contributed powerfully to sustaining the quality, and often the passion, in British life and politics," said a Times article by Brian MacArthur.

The Guardian itself conceded in an editorial that "the loss of our ancestral home in the north is a sad event."

It went on, in a manner reminiscent of Scott:

"Maybe in the (Daily) Mirror it's 5 million, or 500,000 to The Times.

"But to The Guardian it's 300,000. And we've topped it."

The old editor, who died in 1932, was a friend and adviser of leading statesmen like the late prime minister David Lloyd George, as well as being the man who moulded the 20th century Guardian.

In the paper made his Manchester move from Cross Street to new and bigger premises in Deansgate, Guardian men joined with rival journalists in recalling some of Scott's celebrated precepts about how newspapers should be operated.

A paper's "primary office is the gathering of news," said Scott.

"At the peril of its soul, it must see that the supply is not tainted."

He insisted that "comment is free but facts are sacred."

"Comment also is justly subject to a self-imposed restraint," Scott added.

"It is well to be frank, it is even better to be fair."

The latest milestone in Guardian history elicited an admiring article on the main feature page of a London competitor in the quality newspaper field, The Times.

"The Guardian and Cross Street, like The Times and Printing House Square (London), have contributed powerfully to sustaining the quality, and often the passion, in British life and politics," said a Times article by Brian MacArthur.

The Guardian itself conceded in an editorial that "the loss of our ancestral home in the north is a sad event."

cial control of the two papers remain separate.

Only a daring plant and equipment, we feel we can reduce some of the enormous and growing overheads of newspaper production," The Guardian said.

By day, the presses at Deansgate print The Guardian's sister paper, The Manchester Evening News, a highly successful daily specializing in local news about the northern city.

At night, the machines turn to producing copies of The Guardian and The Daily Mail.

On weekends, the presses are contracted to print northern editions of The People, a mass-circulation Sunday paper unconnected with either The Daily Mail or The Guardian.

In London, The Guardian has its main headquarters on Gray's Inn Road.

worked in the business for close to half a century.

When he joined the Review, type in the newspaper plant was still being set by hand.

He recalls that one woman typesetter could set more than three columns of small type per day by hand.

At one time Mr. Watson had hoped that the Review would remain in family ownership but his two sons and daughter decided to go different ways although they did work at the newspaper during holidays while attending college.

The oldest son Alex is now with the magazine division of Southam Press while the second son James L. is a high school teacher at Marmora. A daughter, Mrs. Keith (Moira) Bowley, lives in Toronto.

Mr. Watson is the former owner of the North Hastings Review, is a native of the Tweed district but before going to the Tweed News as foreman worked in the printing business at Oakville, Ont.

For the past two years Mr. Gaskin has been a member of Hungerford township council but with purchase of the Madoc paper pending decided not to run for re-election.

But editor Alastair Hetherington, whose paper is published by a trust with few interests beyond The Guardian and the London Evening News, contends that his weekly can daily still has strong roots in the north that do not exist in any other national paper.

Area Services Board Discusses Water Needs

PICTON (Staff) — County warden Gordon Lloyd recently reported to council on several meetings and discussions in connection with the establishment of an area advisory board for water and sewage service. It was agreed that Mr Lloyd should be authorized to arrange a meeting between representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and members of the 1971 county council in January.

In his report to council, warden Lloyd commented that the townships of Ameliasburg and Hillier and the village of Wellington now are part of the Belleville - Trenton area advisory board and have already conducted two meetings. The first session held in mid-November led to a meeting between Mr. Lloyd, the chairman of the OWRC, Donald Collins, and Murray Wilson, an OWRC representative. The men spoke with county councillors last month, discussing the water needs of Prince Edward and possible solutions.

A second meeting of the area board was held Dec. 8 when Mr. Wilson reported to board members concerning the discussion with county council. It was decided that another meeting with council should be arranged early in the new year to further explore the possibility of the balance of the county coming into the area or forming a separate board.

The January meeting between OWRC officials and county councillors will include the chairman of the public utilities and their managers and the members of the technical committee of Ameliasburg, Hillier and Wellington.

Few Independent Dairies Left In Areas Around Belleville

Big business take - over in the fluid milk distribution field is steadily reducing the number of privately owned dairy operations in the Belleville - Kingston district.

With the sale of two privately owned dairies in Belleville to a Kingston firm a couple of years ago, only one large "local" dairy remains in the Belleville - Trenton area and last week still another area dairy—Wilmot's Dairy Ltd. of Kingston — has been reported sold.

The Kingston dairy, established in the 1930s was sold to Beatrice Foods Ltd., an American firm based in Chicago but with world-wide holdings in the food industry.

Beatrice Food Ltd. also owns Brookside-Prices Dairy of Kingston, the largest single operation in the Kingston - Belleville area which in turn owns both the former Grills and Roblin dairies in Belleville.

The only large locally owned dairy in the Belleville area is Reid's of Belleville and Riverside of Trenton, both owned by the Quickert family.

Sale of Wilmot's Dairy in Kingston to Beatrice Foods Ltd. gives the Chicago firm control over the milk distribution business in the Kingston area. The company's influence extends from Trenton on the west to Brockville on the east.

William Wilmot, Kingston dairy official, said that Wilmot's and Brookside-Prices would operate independently with the company's 55 employees being retained.

West of Trenton there are still small local dairies — Fisher's at Brighton and Downey's at Colborne.

There are also small privately owned dairy operations in six Hastings county villages — Frankford, Stirling, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed and Bancroft — but milk distribution in these centres is not entirely a local operation.

A little over three years ago the village dairies phased out their individual bottling operations and now ship their milk to Kingston for processing.

The bottled or packaged milk is then brought back from Kingston for door to door delivery or for sale by local grocery retail outlets.

Reid's Dairy in Belleville still processes its own milk and in addition to the conventional bottling equipment has also installed the machinery for putting up "packaged" milk which is gaining favor by customers who get their milk at "cash and carry" outlets or from supermarkets and grocery stores.

Review Is Sold

The North Hastings Review, the oldest weekly newspaper in Hastings and with continuous publication since before Madoc was a village, has changed hands — for the second time in its nearly 100 years of operation.

Publisher James L. Watson, whose family has owned the business since 1912, today announced the sale of the newspaper to Maurice Gonlah, currently foreman with the Tweed News.

Mr. Gonlah will take over operation of the North Hastings Review on Jan. 4 with Mr. Watson to remain with the business for a few weeks in an advisory capacity.

"I will also use the time to taper off before retirement," commented Mr. Watson who took over from his father in 1924.

Until the present sale, the Madoc Weekly has been owned by only two families since it was established in 1877.

The original owners of the weekly were John R. Orr and his brother who ran the Review until 1912 when it was purchased by Mr. Watson's father A. H. Watson.

The present owner has

THE 1970 FARM TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

The 1970 Farm Tax Reduction Program is the most recent phase in the Government of Ontario's long-term plan to reform the system of local taxation in this province.

This program will help farm property owners to pay their municipal and education taxes.

Farm property owners will receive $20,000,000 in special assistance from the Government of Ontario. This amounts to 25 percent of the net municipal taxes on eligible farm property.

To be eligible, the property owner must live in Ontario. Also, if the farm property is less than 11 acres, it must have yielded $2,000 or more in gross income during the year.

Cheques and information leaflets are being mailed out by the Department of Municipal Affairs to every eligible farm owner.

Additional information may be obtained from:

Daring Gamble

India to Go to Polls in 1971 in Bid for Working Mandate

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had Parliament dissolved Sunday in a daring gamble that general elections a year earlier than scheduled would give her government a working majority.

The move, not unexpected, comes a year after a split in the ruling Congress party reduced her government's majority in the Lok Sabha (House of the People) to 41, making support from various leftist groups necessary for its survival.

Since then, the government has had trouble passing its socialist measures, but the final spur for Mrs. Gandhi was apparently a Supreme Court decision last week overturning a government decision to scrap the privy purses and privileges of the country's former princely rulers.

The court held that the government order against the princes, issued after legislation failed by one vote to get through Parliament, was unconstitutional.

Mrs. Gandhi did not set a date for the election, saying only that the new Parliament would convene before March 31. Observers believed balloting would be held early in March.

Chief Election Commissioner S. P. Sen Varma said today that polling in the election should begin Feb. 28 or March 1. All India Radio reported.

Sen Varma said the precise election schedule would be announced in about a week. Polling in some states might have to be spread over several days, as in previous elections, because of the distances involved.

Dissolution of Parliament came 14 months before its term was scheduled to end and set the wheels in motion for balloting by 300 million voters in the world's largest democracy.

The elections will be the fifth since independence in August, 1947, and this is the first time the Parliament has not run its full term.

Mrs. Gandhi announced the elections after an emergency meeting of her cabinet and lengthy consultations with her colleagues. She then recommended Parliament's dissolution to President V. V. Giri.

In her broadcast to the country, the 53-year-old prime minister said reactionary forces were obstructing progressive measures such as the nationalization of banks—also set aside by the Supreme Court but then renationalized—the setting up of a monopolies commission and the failed move against the princes.

She said there were many pressing economic and social problems facing the country.

"Time will not wait for us," she said. "The millions, who demand food, shelter and jobs are pressing for action."

Factors believed to have influenced Mrs. Gandhi in going to the polls at this stage were fears of a worsening economic situation, an unsatisfactory harvest next year, the good showing of her Congress party in recent special elections and the failure of the right-wing opposition to forge a grand alliance.

Franco May Ease Penalty

BURGOS, Spain (AP) — The long-awaited verdicts in the trial of 16 Basque nationalists were expected today, and political circles predicted Gen. Francisco Franco would commute any death sentences.

The defence lawyers were summoned to appear in the late afternoon at the Burgos military headquarters, where the five-man military court heard testimony Dec. 3-9.

The lawyers came back to the provincial capital in northern Spain Saturday to sign the trial record amid expectations of verdicts then. They were told the five-man military court was not likely to make known its decision before Tuesday, but their recall today indicated the court was ready.

The failure of the court to announce the verdicts Saturday touched off speculation that the officers were making last-minute changes following the release of the honorary West German consul in San Sebastian, Eugen Beihl.

Beihl was kidnapped Dec. 1 by the Basque guerrilla outfit ETA, of which all the defendants are either members or sympathizers. The kidnappers said Beihl's fate would depend on the outcome of the trial, but they surprised the government by freeing the consul Christmas Day.

The prosecution has asked the death penalty for six of the Basques accused of plotting the death of a political police chief and long prison terms for the rest on charges ranging from banditry to illegal propaganda. The defendants include two Roman Catholic priests and three women.

The trial set off anti-government strikes, clashes with police and protest demonstrations in Spain and abroad. The government accused the left of organizing rallies in support of France and the army and by a wave of arrests.

It is the worst crisis the Franco government has faced since the end of the civil war in 1939, and it has damaged Spain's image abroad at a time when the government is trying to liberalize and increase its ties with other European countries.

The Burgos case and the reaction to it has hardened conservative army leaders against more liberal members of the government and brought on a surge of nationalistic anti-communism. Left-wing and centre groups also have used the case as a platform for their causes. However, most of the heat showed up in Spain by the case is expected to disappear if the 78-year-old chief of state gives clemency.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market edged fractionally higher in light mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials rose .15 to 172.98, base metals .22 to 89.59 and western oils 1.97 to 197.21. Golds lost 1.60 to 161.68.

The exchange was closed Friday, Christmas Day.

Gains outnumbered losses 61 to 49 with 116 issues unchanged.

Among advancing issues, Pacific Pete was up ¼ to 52¢, Acadiana ¼ to 2.85¼, Northern and Central Gas ¼ to $15, Denison ½ to 29½, Roman 15 cents to 27.60, Grandoc five cents to 38.05, Numac 30 cents to 32.35, United Reis three cents to 14.10 and Western Decalta five cents to 36.40.

Violist Complains Women Slighted

OTTAWA (CP) — "She plays like a man" is the ultimate compliment for a woman musician, says viola player Nina Falk who complains her sex is discriminated against in the orchestra world.

Miss Falk, of the National Arts Centre orchestra, says that men are chosen over women where abilities are equal, and that symphony orchestras limit the number of female musicians they hire.

"The woman has to play better in order to be hired, and even then no major orchestra has nearly as many women as men—and this is not due to any lack of qualified women."

As an example, she says the NAC orchestra has 14 women to 44 men, which is considered an unusually high proportion of women.

Miss Falk, who studied the viola at the Juilliard Preparatory School at Oberlin College in Ohio, is Rome on a Fulbright scholarship, and in Boston, says women are pushed toward certain "appropriate" instruments. Men are encouraged to play the wind and brass instruments while women are encouraged to take up stringed instruments.

She says females tend to become music teachers because they are encouraged to go into musical education at the conservatory level, rather than to perform.

Her own college teacher, she says, admitted spending more time with male students because "girls will only get married and have babies."

Women conductors were rare in symphony orchestras because men and women were "too emotional" and the position was, "inappropriate" for a woman.

Miss Jamsey Lytell, business agent for Local 180, American Foundation of Musicians, says there is no discrimination. He claims women show little interest in music activities, although they are encouraged to run for office

Mr. Lytell says more men than women play brass instruments because of the physical requirements. More strength was needed and it required more patience to learn these instruments.

"Parents usually start their daughters out on piano, violin, or guitar.

"It's not discrimination—it just seems more natural to see a girl playing a string instrument."

Welfare Budget Overspent

Welfare costs in Hastings county are beginning to level off after a sharp increase during the autumn months.

But the over-all welfare budget for the year is taking in Hastings county, Belleville and Trenton — is now overspent and if present general welfare costs continue, increased budgets will be necessary next year.

That is the welfare picture in the county with less than a week of 1970 remaining.

As of Nov. 30, both the county of Hastings and the town of Trenton had overspent their 1970 welfare budgets and although Belleville was still in the black, it also could be overspent by the end of the year.

Although the general picture could be determined, the actual figures for welfare expenditures to the end of November are still not available.

Total welfare budget for the year for the county and the two rural municipalities was $1,060,420 of which $1,029,505 or 94.41 per cent, had been expended at the end of Nov.

Broken down into figures for the various municipalities, the county's overall welfare budget for the year was $401,950; that of Belleville $539,670, and Trenton $118,800.

Figures for the end of October showed that the county was $32,230 overspent; Trenton was overspent by $7,474, while Belleville still had a balance of $100,000.

General welfare assistance covering food and shelter, and nursing homes are the two big items in the overall welfare budget.

General welfare costs for 1970 were estimated at $646,000 for Hastings, Belleville and Trenton with another $59,500 for "special" welfare assistance. Nursing home care costs were estimated at $258,920 for the three municipalities but an increase in per diem rates, approved by the Ontario government boosted expenditures for this item.

Other welfare cost items include indigent hospitalization and OHSC premiums. "special" welfare assistance, supplementary aid, homemaker services and non-subsidized assistance.

In addition, Belleville has a day nursery for which a budget of $53,270 was provided at the beginning of the year.

Nearly all welfare items are subsidized 80 per cent by the province.

Actual costs of welfare to the various municipalities to the end of October were: Hastings $113,151; Belleville $132,512, and Trenton $46,125.

Rapido Delayed After Accident

NAPANEE (Staff) — A mother of four children escaped injury last night when she leapt from a stalled station wagon seconds before it was smashed by the high-speed Canadian National Railways Rapido.

Mrs. Irma Bell, of Bath, was following her husband who was driving a snowmobile when the vehicle stalled on a country - road level crossing near Morven, east of here, say police.

The Montreal - bound express crunched into the vehicle, carrying it more than a mile down the track.

The impact derailed the Rapido's lead engine and a railroad crane had to be despatched from Montreal to replace it on the rails.

A diesel also was despatched from Belleville to help shunt the Rapido into a Napanee siding while repairs were being made.

The mishap delayed the train about four and one-half hours here, a CN spokesman said in Belleville.

Do Crows Know Weather Secret?

With more than two feet of snow and the Bay of Quinte now completely frozen over, no one would exactly call this an open winter.

But the crows apparently think differently and are betting on something less than zero weather for the next month or so.

At least a number of crows who didn't think the trip south to warmer climates was worth the effort were seen and heard in the west end of the city during the Christmas holiday.

One of the big black birds was seen determinedly chasing an owl or gull while his confreres were lending vocal assistance from the branches of some nearby trees.

Rush Hour Signs Outrule Meter Plates

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

When do the hours marked for parking meter operation not mean what they say?

The answer, as far as the city traffic committee is concerned, is that directions on parking meters are superceded by "rush hour" no parking regulations.

The fact two sets of signs along Bridge Street indicate different hours for legal parking was brought to the attention of city traffic committee members yesterday by Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie.

The chief said face plates on meters in the Bridge Street downtown area say meters are operational between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., Sundays and holidays excepted.

But signs erected on light standards say Bridge Street is a "rush hour" route between 4 and 6 p.m. with parking prohibited.

Committee members agreed signs on the parking meters and also the rush hour signs should carry the same message.

Accordingly it was voted to have times on all rush hour route meters conform with the city bylaw.

Israel 'Ready For Peace'

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir appealed today to Egypt to open a new page of peace in relations between the two countries.

The premier was addressing the Knesset (parliament) on the government's decision to return to the Middle East peace talks from which Israel withdraw Sept. 6 to protest an alleged Egyptian missile build-up along the Suez canal in violation of the ceasefire agreement.

Mrs Meir said Israel was returning to the talks under UN envoy Gunnar Jarring without any prior conditions and she rejected Egyptian threats of a renewal of hostilities.

"According to the basic principles of the policy of the government, we are going to the negotiations under Jarring without any prior conditions and with the will and readiness not only to present our attitude but also to listen to the proposals of the other side in the negotiations," she told a packed house.

"We at the same time reject any threat of a reopening of fire and we think that the negotiations will have value only if they are conducted out of tolerance and a mutual desire to reach an agreement," she added.

Mrs. Meir said Israel's decision to return to the Jarring talks had been facilitated by military and political support from the United States.

She warned Egypt against reopening fire.

"I emphasize with all simplicity our wish for an unlimited and unconditional ceasefire," she said. "But I have to state that we are ready at all times to face any danger of renewed fire from the Egyptian side.

"I permit myself to say that just as the Egyptians had every reason to be sorry for the 1967 war and for the war of attrition, so they will also have reason to be sorry if they reopen fire," the premier added.

News Briefs

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The Grenville-Dundas Progressive Conservative Association announced today that Fred Cass, Speaker of the Ontario legislature, will not contest the next provincial election. Mr. Cass, 57, has represented the Grenville-Dundas riding since 1955. He was appointed Speaker Feb. 14, 1968, after previously serving as attorney-general, minister of highways and minister of municipal affairs.

Ruling Upsets World

BURGOS, Spain (AP) — Basque nationals swore vengeance today against the military judges who sentenced six Basques to death and nine others to a total of 351 years in prison.

"There will be retaliation," one member of the Basque terrorist organization ETA warned after the court handed down the sentences Monday. He singled out Capt. Antonio Troncoso de Castro, the legal adviser to the courtmartial, and another ETA source said of De Castro: "He better have a bodyguard."

Denunciations of the death sentences and appeals for clemency poured into Madrid from around the world, and Basque sympathizers or foes of the Franco regime held demonstrations in cities throughout Europe.

Some led to violence. In San Sebastian, the Basque capital on Spain's northern coast, youths roamed the streets Monday night overturning cars and smashing windows. A bomb exploded in front of the Spanish consulate in Rome but caused no significant damage. More than 200 demonstrators broke into the Spanish embassy in Brussels and ransacked some of the rooms.

Defence lawyers for the 15 Basques filed appeals to the military commander of Burgos, but it appeared unlikely that he would accept them. If he does not, and signs the death warrants, only clemency from Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish chief of state, can stop the executions before a firing squad.

Franco, facing his worst crisis since the Spanish civil war, scheduled a meeting with his cabinet to discuss what to do.

Announcement of the sentences brought new appeals for clemency from the Vatican and the governments of at least seven countries.

Hideout Discovered

Bourassa Hails Arrests Victory Over Terrorism

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa says the arrests of three kidnap suspects Monday "mark a turning point in the battle with terrorism."

In a statement in Quebec City, he said:

"It is an important victory against those individuals hostile to our society, against those factions ready to use untold violence to achieve their ends."

The premier made his statement following the arrest at an isolated farmhouse of Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard, prime suspects in the Oct. 10 abduction of Pierre Laporte.

The Quebec labor minister was strangled a week after he was kidnapped by terrorists.

The Rose brothers and Simard crawled from a 25-foot tunnel under the cement floor of the farmhouse and surrendered to an 11-man raiding party of Quebec Provincial Police following disclosures between two informers.

Dr. Jacques Ferron, a physician, writer and unsuccessful separatist political candidate, was called in to speak for the three suspects after their presence in the well-concealed tunnel was discovered.

Acting for Justice Minister Jerome Choquette was lawyer Jacques Ducros, who has had the prosecution of terrorist cases since 1963.

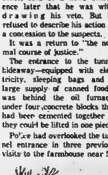
The suspects, armed with a revolver and a 12-gauge shotgun, crawled out and surrendered peacefully after Mr. Ducros undertook to recommend that the courts regain the power to grant bail to persons detained under the War Measures Act.

Mr. Choquette, who had previously opposed bail in such cases, said at a news conference later that he was withdrawing his veto. But he refused to describe his action as a concession to the suspects.

It was a return to "the normal course of justice."

The entrance to the tunnel hideaway—equipped with electricity, sleeping bags and a large supply of canned food—was behind the oil furnace, under four concrete blocks that had been cemented together so they could be lifted in one piece.

Police had overlooked the tunnel entrance in three previous visits to the farmhouse near St. Luc, 20 miles southeast of Montreal.



The first inspection Oct. 23 resulted from a tip from Alain Dufresne, St. Luc police chief. There was a second raid Dec. 23 and a third Christmas Day.

Early Monday, a light came on in the downstairs kitchen and police watchers called in a raiding party. Found asleep upstairs was Michel Viger, a 30-year-old accountant who had rented the farmhouse in October.

Police subsequently discovered the tunnel hideaway and called in the go-betweens to persuade the suspects to come out.

Although Mr. Choquette de-

Lifeboat May Hold Missing 21

NEW YORK (AP) — A missing lifeboat today carried the hopes for rescue of 21 seamen unaccounted for in the sinking of the Panamanian tanker Chrysal, which went down 270 miles southwest of Bermuda.

Seventeen other seamen including the master were picked up by the Norwegian ship Rose Mount after they were spotted Monday in a lifeboat some 60 miles from the last reported position of the Chrysal.

Life in Polish City Typifies Reasons for Recent Revolt

SZCZECIN, Poland (AP) — Impervious to the chill wind blowing in from the Oder River, the girls go around in miniskirts.

Hordes of Swedish men who say their women are boring arrive by the weekend ferry from Ystad, laden with nylon stockings, whisky and women's undies.

A night club advertises "Strip-Tease," an anomaly in a Communist country.

The churches, built by the Lutherans when Szczecin was the German port of Stettin, now are Roman Catholic and are filled with Poles for all four or five Sunday masses.

The port is alive with ships from the West and the people get their news from the Voice of America or Radio Free Europe.

There is an open, flourishing black market for slotys. Officially four to the dollar, the Polish currency goes to the tourist at eight or more.

Max, an auto mechanic in his spare time, hails down Swedish cars from the Baltic ferry in full view of the police to make currency deals. He sells the foreign money to Polish seamen so they can buy in Western ports.

Szczeciners speak frankly of their desire to emigrate to the West, which probably helps to explain why the workers sacked and burned the passport office during the price riots before Christmas.

All these things suggest that Edward Gierek, the new head of Poland's Communist party, and the men around him are not going to have an easy time convincing Szczecin and the other Baltic cities that rebelled to subscribe to the party's formula for prosperity and order.

The fact that Szczecin used to be German and the present inhabitants may feel like tenants in a rented apartment has been mentioned as one reason for the trouble. But it can't entirely explain why the shipyard workers were willing to go up against guns to protest a 20-per-cent rise in food prices ordered by the party and the government.

Depending on who talks to you, between 30 and 200 people were killed Dec. 17 when the workers marched on the party headquarters to protest the price increases.

They burned out the six-storey building, faced down a squadron of armored cars, took further losses when they tried to take the militia headquarters, then retreated to their workshops.

In the aftermath, Gierek said the party must re-establish contact with the working class.

In Szczecin this may be a tall order. Former party members say they have no intention of rejoining, and present members wonder why they should remain so.

Christmas Good for Retailers

Despite rumors of recession, the volume of Christmas business in Belleville streets was higher this year than last.

Although it was too early for most merchants to put a figure on their sales volume, one estimated that last December sales were up 7 to 10 per cent over last year.

Of a sampling of retailers interviewed, only one said he ordered less stock this year for the Christmas trade. The rest ordered the same amount, or more, and, clearly most of it before Christmas Eve.

"It was fantastic! we did an onboard of business," commented a ladies' wear merchandising expert. "I told yourself — there was a recession in the fall, October and November were only fair months, and we were not meeting last year's figures on sales."

But like most local merchants, he grumbled on how sales picking up in December — and he was.

"There was a retail business recession," he continued, "and the period of caution still exists until giving this year."

Customer caution was not ended by another shopping spree, who said people were spending cash for their Christmas shopping and not charging so much.

But a retailer noted that although sales volume was up this year, merchants would not finish 1970 with as high a profit on their year's business as they made in 1969. Overhead and wages rose too, he said, and rose by more than sales.

Quaint district shoppers showed definite preferences in their gift giving this year.

In ladies' wear, pants and pantsuits were the big sellers, continuing the trend noted in the fall.

"Fun furs and outerwear were the last items considered by male buyers," commented a ladies' wear retailer.

Cameras, always a popular gift item, sold at about the same rate as last year. But this year movie cameras regained the popularity they had lost in the last few years.

Musical taste differs in Belleville too. In Toronto and across Canada generally, only 7 per cent of record sales are in the classical department.

But here, the percentage of sales of classical discs is double the Toronto average, and many go higher. The local fondness for the music of the old classical composers has surprised national distributors.

The co - operation of the weather helped Christmas sales, some merchants think. Heavy snowfall and low temperatures in December started people "thinking Christmas" and stimulated the sports equipment and outerwear sales.

"You can say the downtown area managed to maintain another year," commented retailer Stanley Albert. "We can compete with the plazas: we have the merchandise, but the parking situation is critical.

"If present business patterns continue, by this time next year the downtown people had better think of improving parking," he continued.

It is no secret that the parking authority may recommend the inclusion of funds for a multi - level downtown parking garage in the 1972 capital works budget of the city.

More parking, merchants indicate, is essential to prevent the decay of the city's downtown core.

Regulations to Remain Until Evaluation Done

Opening of the new Dundas Street bridge will not result in any immediate relaxation of present traffic regulations in downtown Belleville.

This was indicated at yesterday's city traffic committee meeting when no action was taken on requests for two traffic changes.

One of the requests from a Bridge Street book store owner — asked that the no-parking edict along the rush hour route between Pinnacle and Front Streets be removed.

The book store owner noted that with the opening of the new bridge traffic along Bridge Street was markedly decreased and suggested the rush hour no parking ban was no longer needed.

But Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie suggested it was still too early to evaluate any traffic pattern changes and recommended that no action be taken at least until the Dundas Street reconstruction was completed next spring.

Another traffic change request was also deferred pending a traffic evaluation after completion of the Dundas Street reconstruction.

Plowing Problems Aired at Council

TRENTON (Staff) — Councillor Stan Ketcheson contends that the town should be responsible for cleaning out plowed driveways that municipal plows block up again while clearing the streets of snow.

"There is something wrong somewhere." Mr. Ketcheson told council last night. He said that he did not feel one should have to clean his own driveway if the town plows had blocked it in.

Town engineer Arthur Campbell explained that plows make one trip along each street in Trenton before passing along streets a second time to push snow back to the curbs. The engineer added that those who clean out their driveways between the lines and second passes of the plow end up having a second cleanout job.

Mr. Campbell suggested that the plows complete plowing the snow on each street back to the curbs before moving on to another area. He added that this would add 12 to 15 hours to the time it takes to get streets open after a snowfall.

"I do not know what we can do except hire people to go out and clean driveways" Mayor Duncan McDonald said.

Councillor Ketcheson urged that the small plows used to clean the town's sidewalks be used to follow the larger plows around cleaning out driveways. He said that the small plows do not do an adequate job of cleaning sidewalks.

Councillor Ted Parker held that it is the responsibility of each property owner to clean his own driveway and that to rule otherwise would be unprecedented. No action was taken on the issue.

Shotgun Blast Brings Charge

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Police today are continuing investigation of a shooting incident last night in the Delta Hotel which led to the arrest of William Fraser, 23, of Main Street East.

Investigating Constable Harry Sisty said this morning that apparently a scuffle occurred in the hotel in the early evening. One person, William Fraser, left the hotel, and returned to the ladies' beverage room where a shot was fired from a shotgun.

Time of the incident was about 7.20 p.m.

Constable Sisty said the shot was fired into a wall near an entrance door in the beverage room. No one was injured.

Picton Police arrived shortly after the shooting and Fraser was consequently subdued and placed under arrest.

Constable Sisty observed that he "highly commends" three young men in the hotel at the time of the incident who assisted him in subduing Mr. Fraser.

A relative of Fraser and several friends struggled with police to prevent his arrest. One of the young men aiding Constable Sisty received an elbow cut requiring several stitches.

The police constable said that the reason for last night's shooting remains in doubt and investigation will continue.

Mr. Fraser was taken to Prince Edward County Jail and charged with intent to endanger the lives of others.

Sign to Be Replaced

Bridge Street West has been a through street since the opening of the new Dundas bridge a week ago but it is scheduled to return to its former status.

Members of the city traffic committee were told yesterday that removal of the sign for eastbound traffic on Bridge at Highland Ave. posed a traffic hazard despite the fact that Highland has been made a stop street and the sign will be replaced.

This means that both Bridge Street and Highland Ave. will be stop streets for eastbound motorists.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell recommended that motorists exercise caution at the intersection until the necessary bylaw is passed and the stop sign on Bridge at Highland is replaced.

IN MEMORIAM

MONKSVILLE, Raymond — In loving memory of my husband, who passed away Dec. 23, 1969.
Gone from my home and left my heart,
God took me what he thought best,
Sometimes I wonder why he left me here,
Then whispered "Come and rest."
Sadly missed by his wife Doris.

PETERS — In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, David Peters, who passed away suddenly December 24, 1969.
Memories are treasured by many,
Remembered by few,
Sadly missed by sister, brother-in-law, nephew, Bobby, Penny, Peter and Jeffrey.

PETERS — In our loving memory of my husband, our dad, who passed away suddenly December 24, 1969.
Dad, you left us in the night,
Without a word or sign,
Years in silence often flow,
But memories are ever near mine.
Though you died five years ago,
We still love, miss and never forget you.
Mom, Dad, Dennis, Dorothy, Jeffrey, Penny.

LAUCHFORD, Wilfred — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Dec. 24, 1967.
A silent thought, a secret grief,
Always his memory ever dear,
A heart that loved, a hand that helped,
Is always missed, is always near.

Trenton Ward Hearing Set

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario Municipal Board will conduct a public hearing in the town on February 15 to determine whether a ward system form of election should be instituted here.

Announcement of the OMB decision was made at a short council session last night. It follows a request by former fathers October 13 that such a hearing be held.

Council was compelled to ask the Municipal Board to consider setting up a ward system here because of a 262-name petition received in October advocating such a move.

Under the Municipal Affairs Act, when a petition with more than 198 names is received in support of a matter, the town must file the request with OMB.

In forwarding the petition, council asked that a public hearing be held here so that the Municipal Board may have access to the anti-ward case as well as the views of fathers promoting the system.

Basis for the petition was that 10 councillors live in the same part of town, west of the Trent River and west of Dufferin Street. Politicians contended that by instituting a ward system, councillors may be drawn from a broader area.

Mush You Huskies!

Up to 20 dog teams from Ontario, Quebec and some northern states will arrive in Belleville for the Feb. 4-7 Winter Carnival. Dog teams, such as these huskies that raced in Tweed during their 1966 carnival, always draw large crowds of spectators.

Yesterday Year's Busiest As Shoppers Jam Stores

Quick now — which is the busiest shopping day of the year?

Would you believe, it's the first day stores open after Christmas.

And the people jamming Front St. yesterday weren't downtown to exchange gifts. They were buying goods, and spending hard cash for them.

"This is always the busiest day of the year," said an established Front St. merchant during a second's pause between customers.

He said Christmas present money and gift certificates bring out shoppers and many people have holidays and are in the festive mood that tends to loosen the purse-strings.

Then there's always the lure of a bargain, although most stores schedule post-Christmas sales for January.

A few merchants cut prices on some items, especially clothing, the first shopping day after Christmas, and cards and wrapping are slashed by half in stores with left-over stock.

Many people downtown yesterday were shopping early for Christmas — next year's that is. They were buying their Christmas cards at half price, and stocking up on gift wrap paper, and Yuletide decorations.

With a little extra searching, Christmas paper suitable for year-round use could be found and many canny shoppers were buying wrappings for birthday and anniversary presents through 1971.

The number of people exchanging presents remains consistent year after year, merchants said, except in the toy department. There, exchanges and refunds are down this year because better quality toys are now being sold. Fewer refuse to work or break down on first try than was the case in former years.

Biggest exchange turnover was in sporting goods shops, where the proper fitting of skates and boots and skis is crucial.

At Leslie's Ski Den, management organized a special group of employees to work all day yesterday and last night on adjusting fittings on Christmas gift skis.

"They bring them in today and we have them out on the slopes tomorrow morning," was the store's motto for the sports equipment it sold for holiday giving.

Liquor credit buying was done on Front St. yesterday. Most people were paying cash, another characteristic of the first - day - after - Christmas shopper. Nor were purchases modest. Men's wear stores were doing a good business in selling coats and suits.

But after yesterday's frenzied jingling of cash registers things are expected to lapse into the doldrums.

"We will lose money on our operations every week from now until March," one merchant said.

Only the coming of spring will bring shoppers out again for another onslaught on local stores.

Winter Carnival Plans Events for Everyone

The 1971 Belleville Winter Carnival is going to the dogs!

But there's no reason for worry . . . dogs will play a major role in the weekend events at Zwick's Island.

These husky animals, 20 teams in all, are being brought to Belleville by the Arctic Sled Dog Club of Ontario.

Previously arranging for only eight teams on Saturday, Feb. 6, Jack Tremblay, chairman of the carnival committee, explained that up to 20 teams from Ontario, Quebec and some northern states, would be attracted now that the races are to be held for two days.

A favorite event wherever undertaken, the dog - races will be in complete sight throughout the events. The track at Zwick's will have an extra holiday feature, being marked by discarded Christmas trees.

Symbols of the Winter Carnival will soon be made available by the Chamber of Commerce and the carnival committee.

The symbol of Oolquk, the fluffy Canadian owl of the north, will be featured on buttons and long, blue and white wool stocking toques will adorn spectators' heads as soon as they are put on sale for $2.50.

A contest for next year's design will be started early in the year at all secondary schools.

Since the first meeting of the Winter Carnival Committee in October, numerous service clubs and interested citizens have joined the ranks of carnival participants with a lengthy list of events for the 4-days of fun and frolic.

These are:

THURSDAY, Feb. 4

8:30 p.m.—Carnival Queen contest at Centennial High School, followed by a reception. The event is sponsored by the Kinsette Club of Belleville.

2 p.m.—Air Drops, Zwick's Island.

2:30 p.m.—Skating races, Zwick's Island for youngsters 12 and under; sponsored by the Belleville Veteran's Council.

5 p.m.—Trophy Awards, Belleville Curling Club. A total of six trophies are being sought for Veterans Council awards for the carnival events.

Dusk —Gigantic bonfire as the handshall, Zwick's Island.

On both Saturday and Sunday, sleigh rides and snowmobile rides will be available, sponsored by the Belleville Veterans Council.

On Saturday, the senior citizens will be given rides at Zwick's Island by the Kinsmen Club.

Mr. Tremblay yesterday explained that if there were enough entries, snow sculpturing would be judged in two categories, private individuals and schools.

Going to the dogs . . . you bet!

Station Street Traffic Accidents Cause of Concern

An increased number of traffic accidents along Station Street, mainly at the Cannifton Road intersection, is causing concern of city police department.

In a report to the city traffic committee on the number of accidents along Station Street between Church and Bleecker, Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie said that as many accidents had occurred there during the first seven months of this year as in all of 1969.

He said there had been eight accidents at the Station Street — Cannifton Road intersection most of them resulting from left turns in and out of the Brewers Retail store.

Other accident - prone areas were at Trudeau Motors and also at the entrance to the liquor store parking lot.

The police chief in his report observed there were many things the rash of accidents and suggested that a major reconstruction would be a long-term remedy.

He said there was urgent need for intersection improvement at Cannifton Road and Station Street, and also suggested the Station Street - Church Street and Station Street - Pinnacle Street intersections be given close evaluation with respect to improving accident experience.

However, Chief Crosbie noted the city has retained a consultant to do a north-south arterial road study and suggested that any action be deferred until the consultant's report was received.

The committee referred the police chief's accident report to consultants Totten, Sims and Hubicki.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, however, felt that Brewers' Warehousing Company should be consulted by both Presidents' their accident situation at their parking lot entrance. "Maybe we should do something to fix up their own situation; they created it," he said.

Two Break-ins Are Attempted

Chief Douglas Crosbie explained that thieves entered the establishment through a window after removing a board and got away with $12 in change and $5 worth of gum between one and six this morning.

He said that evidence of a break-in attempt at Audrey's Bakery, adjacent to the pizzeria, was found but thieves failed to gain entrance.

Mailmen Brace For Tax Forms

The mailmen's letter bag is a little lighter this week with the Christmas mail rush at an end.

But not for long.

Starting Monday, Jan. 4, the mailmen's bag will be stacked high with personalized tax forms. During that week some 8,000,000 T1 Short and General income tax forms will be stuffed in mail boxes in every part of Canada.

The annual distribution of tax forms is the first reminder of the April 30 deadline for filing income tax returns. Most people, of course, file much earlier. More than 50 per cent of taxpayers receive refunds, and the earlier returns are filed, the sooner refund cheques are issued, provided there are no mistakes in completing the forms.

The income tax forms being mailed during the week of Jan. 4, were sorted, stuffed in envelopes and prepared for mailing by Canada's largest mailing house, which is operated in Ottawa by the Department of National Revenue, Taxation.

The Department's mailing centre, called the Public Service Mail Distribution Centre, is an assembly - line, automated mailing service, using some of the latest electronic, sealing and addressing equipment available. For instance, the addressing machines can label three-quarters of a million pieces of mail each day.

Because of the degree of efficiency achieved, and the resulting low unit operating costs, other government departments and agencies are also employing the Netion Revenue, Taxation mailing centre to process some of their outgoing mail.

Mailings during 1970 have exceeded 50,000,000 items containing some 400,000,000 pieces of paper. All of this is done with a staff of 30 permanent employees and varying numbers of casual workers. During the busiest season — and right now is about the peak — the output of the department's mailing centre fills a whole train each week.

Man Is Injured By Falling Block

TRENTON (Staff) — A Central Bridge employee is in serious condition at Belleville General Hospital following an industrial accident here yesterday in which he was struck by the block of a crane falling from 30 feet, above him.

Kenneth Whitney of the Wooler Road was working beneath the 25-ton crawler crane at the Central Bridge plant when the 250-pound loading block came off its cable, trailing a length of heavy chain weighing about 100 pounds.

Mr. Whitney had been checking the loading of a truck with steel when the accident occured at 9 a.m.

There was no steel on the crane when the block fell on him.

In striking Mr. Whitney, it smashed down his right side, cutting his face, breaking both his right arm and leg, breaking his backbone and causing other undetermined injuries.

Central Bridge plant superintendent R. W. Ferguson said this morning that he has called an investigation into the accident.

Suspects in Custody

A long night in the history of Quebec is over with the news that the three prime suspects in the kidnap-murder of the province's Labor Minister, Pierre Laporte, are in police custody.

If anything, however, this should be a time for increased vigilance in Quebec, lest the FLQ carries out further kidnappings, in order to regain its sagging fortunes and present the terrorist organization as a continuing threat to the integrity of the province and of Canada.

We doubt if this will happen — but it could if the authorities drop their guard. As it is, while some troops are being pulled out of the province bodyguards are still assigned to cabinet ministers and prominent personalities. For the fact is, if the FLQ has lost the initiative, and been severely limited by police action and the Public Order Bill which succeeded the War Measures Act, there is no evidence that the organization is by its full disarray.

However, that the efforts of the authorities have been crowned with this much success is a matter for congratulation. At the same time the civil rights of persons arrested on suspicion of being connected with the FLQ are at issue. The measures taken have been necessary, but we must be careful to ensure that the country remains well this side of the full trappings of a police state. We must assume that the police act correctly and that those whose innocence is clearly established are quickly released.

Understanding Is Key

The essence of democracy is to speak one's mind, without fear or favor, and there is irony in the manner in which the process is working out in Quebec just now.

When Premier Bourassa was considering the choice of a successor to the late Pierre Laporte he found one in the ranks of the Opposition. Union Nationale member Jean Cournoyer submerged some initial reluctance about taking on the job by putting the interests of the province above party.

Now the new Labor Minister is quoted as saying he is opposed to the adoption of French as the working language of Quebec. The whole world, he said, would not know what Quebec was talking about; instead he favored the raising of French to equal status with English gradually, by amendment of existing legislation.

Mr. Cournoyer's approach makes better sense than Premier Bourassa's headlong rush toward consolidation of the French fact in Quebec. Certainly it is more practical, while still giving the French language its due, English meanwhile is the main language of business communication in Quebec. It is official admission of this fact when Premier Bourassa and his ministers, and American Prime Minister Trudeau, speak in English when making public announcements on provincial and federal affairs. Were they to do otherwise, and speak French, then (as Mr. Cournoyer suggests) most Canadians and the world at large would be at a loss to understand.

Gift to Hospital

It is good to note the continuing public spirituality that seeks to provide additional hospital equipment not covered in the ordinary way by public funds.

Quinte medical secretaries discovered a need and filled it in the shape of a lounge chair which can be put to a variety of uses. The young women raised funds by special projects, including car washing.

It was a fine end-of-the-year gift for the hospital, signifying consideration for patients' continuing needs, and one which may inspire others in the new year.

New Industry

If there have been any lingering doubts about the attractiveness of Belleville as an industrial location, the announcement of Mobil Oil of Canada's new venture here must have dispelled them.

The $1,500,000 plant for the manufacture of plastic packaging film, scheduled for early construction east of the Allied Chemical plant, is an important new acquisition for the city.

With this and other evidence of industrial progress in the city, it is clear that Belleville, after many years of slow growth, is finally realizing its potential. We can be sure that more successes are to follow.

Mexico's New President Eyes Economic Disparity Of Country's Rich and Poor

Christian Science Monitor

In succeeding office, Mexico's new president, Luis Echeverria Alvarez, pledged squarely to his country's greatest disparity and biggest need.

The disparity is the wide gap between the well-to-do and middle-classes, who are sharing in full benefit, from Mexico's economic boom, and the marginal groups — the Indians, peasants and unskilled workers — who live at poverty or near-poverty level.

The new president belongs to the Institutional Revolutionary Party which has ruled Mexico since 1929, and his election was a foregone conclusion. But there is increasing pressure for reform from the intellectuals and particularly university youth, and Mr. Echeverria is fully aware of this.

His inauguration came within days of the 60th anniversary of the Mexican Revolution of November, 1910. While the hostilities today seem stark, the country's achievements since the revolution are enormous.

Its system of nationalist capitalism has operated so effectively that the economy has had an annual growth rate of more than six per cent for the last decade. The peso has been kept stable at 12.5 to the dollar during the same period.

The literacy rate has soared and 34 per cent of children are in daily attendance. Electrification, irrigation and highways are other outward signs of the country's progress.

But industrial expansion has, unhappily, been accompanied by a birth rate which could give it 100,000,000 persons in 35 years, heightening pressure for jobs and increasing hunger among the marginal groups. Dorfesly Mr. Echeverria has rejected an official family-planning program as a means of checking the population growth.

He says he will concentrate on further expanding the economy to spread purchasing power to the lower income groups, and will do so through agricultural modernization, technological improvement of industry and vocational training. Friends of Mexico can but hope he will succeed.

Must Those Plates Be Changed in Winter?

Letter to the Globe and Mail

We are now beginning our three coldest months in Ontario — and I ask why is it necessary to issue all the new car plates during these three months?

Surely a more sensible period would be from March 1 to May 31, or Sept. 1 to Nov. 30, so as not to interfere with the Ontario motor vehicle licence agency's employees' summer holidays?

But Boys Still Ahead!

Girls Take Courses In Driving Seriously

Brockville Recorder and Times

Take it from 1,355 driver education instructors in 660 high schools across the nation: Girls are catching up to boys in being better drivers.

As part of its review of driver education, Chrysler Corporation asked instructors to rate their young male and female pupils. Despite boys having head starts because of earlier interest in cars and things mechanical, girls achieve driver-safety equality by the end of the courses taken by high school students.

The boys still hold a slight lead in the eyes of instructors—52 percent to 48 percent — but instructors report girls accept instruction more seriously and are more eager to learn.

Nationwide, according to high-way safety authorities and others involved in driver safety, youngsters who take driver education courses have fewer violations and fewer accidents, both sexes included.

With 30 per cent of America's drivers in the teen-age bracket, it's good to know the girls are pushing the boys in the right direction — toward safety.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 30, 1970 . . .

Sir William Osler, one of the first great Canadian doctors, died 51 years ago today—in 1919. He left McGill University's staff in 1884 and worked in the United States and England until his death but always flaunted Canadian nationality and remembered McGill in his will. Osler is generally credited with inventing modern hospital procedure and medical training and with the discovery of psychosomatic medicine.

1849—Singapore decreed the nationalization of large trade and industry in private hands or financed by private capital.

1865—The United States decreed a four-per-cent cut in most car prices.

1934—Japan formally repudiated the Washington naval treaty of 1922.

1935—The Jameson Raid by the British on the Boers began.

1949—Gas lights were installed in the White House.

A Rash of Bridge Building

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

There has been a rather remarkable series of new bridges built in the United Counties in the last few years.

There are three new ones for Finch from Dunbar this year on the county road west of Berwick, plus four in Charlottenburgh, two in Lancaster on township roads and one on the county road near Dalhousie, and there are probably others which haven't been given much public attention, being smaller and more or less lumped in with ordinary road improvements.

The burden of road building and maintenance is more or less even throughout the rural townships. They are all of about the same traffic and have similar road networks and traffic patterns, making a sort of rough equality among 11 s.n. But bridge problems are different.

A small stream meandering through the meadows of a rural township puts a problem in the hands of the council. The councillors may choose to ignore the river, more or less, letting the people use whatever provisional or county road bridge which may be available. If that approach is used, then residences are isolated and must travel many miles for quite ordinary journeys.

Or it may meet the situation head - on and bridge the stream at every township road. That's costly, but it has its element of fairness, for all parts of the municipality are have the access to markets and supply centres. It is obvious that some municipalities have severe problems and it is significant that the province subsidizes bridges much higher than roads per mile of construction, probably on the theory that few townships could afford a $50 bridge a mile or so without substantial assistance.

At any rate, bridges which have collapsed or become decrepit are being replaced. It is a good thing, on the whole, that some of the new structures are an improvement on the old steel truss affairs in appearance as well as in traffic carrying capacity.

The vogue for steel truss bridges probably dates back to about 1900 or so, and these are some of the first manifestations of the industrial era to become permanent landmarks in the rural landscape. They were useful in their day but not handsome. They invariably were out or corroded, or traffic overwhelmed them.

Most of the new bridges are low concrete arches, not perhaps especially attractive in themselves but at least blending with the landscape instead of intruding upon it as the old bridges did, especially when they were new, before they had a chance to become a little softened by time and darkened by corrosion. The new bridges should be more durable, although most of the old ones were veterans of road service, and once new growth starts and the grass and shrubbery softens to harsh outlines of new construction along the river banks, they should look well and be an ornament to their municipalities.

Is This Sport?

Polar Bears Killed By Hunters Using Bows and Arrows

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I have just been watching a show that I consider to be the most disgusting program I have seen much for a long time, which hides behind the ridiculous and hypocritical title Our Great Outdoors, has just shown the most callous and inhumane slaughter of one of the most majestic of animals, the polar bear, and with the most brutal of weapons, the bow and arrow.

The "sportsmen" who shot the bear took three or four arrows to bring it down and kill it while pursuing the wounded animal across the snow whereupon it was attacked, the most inhumane way, to provide a rug or trophy for his home. One of the more sickening features of this show was that while this was being performed a beautiful piece of music was being played in the background.

This old "sportsman" on the same program also participated in shooting with a bow and arrow three mountain lions who were trapped in a tree by a pack of dogs. The lion was hit by an arrow in the picture shown and when it hit the ground the dogs jumped on it to finish it off. When asked if it was dead before it hit the ground the "sportsman" replied that if it wasn't it soon would be, following the dogs. Perhaps in their ignorance they don't realize it but this animal, and especially the polar bear, if not protected will soon become extinct.

Surely I and my family are not the only ones who think that this form of programming is completely offensive to any human value. Hunting obviously should be restricted to those who hunt for food to survive or clothe their property from marauding animals. There can be not a sick pleasure out of killing defenceless beasts should be used to Vietnam where they can shoot at something that can shoot back.

A Free Hand to Inflation

Vancouver Sun

The next round of Canadian price increases is now in the works, to emerge on and after the end of this month.

The federal government's attempt to head it off has been defeated by refusal of trade unions to restrain their wage demands, and the consequent refusal of business to keep price increases below cost increases beyond the end of this year.

The government's prices and incomes commission is officially dead for all practical purposes. Its so-called six per cent guideline for permissible wage increases was buried in Ottawa with some choral ceremony. Dr. John Young officiating.

Dr. Young, the commission's chairman, bravely told reporters that current market patterns will have a restraining effect on wage and price boosts. His announcement said that business failures, which are rising, there is slack in the economy, the government is moving toward stimulating higher levels of activity and employment, and substantial price increases cannot now be made by most firms.

If that description were generally true, there would be little reason why business shouldn't have renewed its 1970 price pledges, at least until further notice. The real situation is that business has been the patsy of inflation, getting while wages in demands ran wild. Business has had a helpful of that treatment. Pricing will now return to normal practice in every possible case.

The process will be speeded by the government's own declared to ginger up the economy to curb unemployment. Labor government's borrowing pol... started ahead of the ... ubs, various social benefits are being enhanced, and the budget is being deliberately thrown into deficit. The aim is to stimulate demand. And rising demand will pull up prices while rising costs push them up.

It will be noted that the private sector is not participating in and indeed is not disbanding. Apparently, it will continue to keep an eye on prices and to publicize those that are excessive. Expert advice suggests that it will keep itself moderately busy at this task.

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Richard Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers has issued another "inflation alert." Obviously, here have to Mr. Nixon to change his celebrated "game plan."

The government had insisted that he would not try to talk inflation down. According to his economic advisers, the rate of under control by the end of this year. The plan didn't work. Prices in the United States in October were rising at an annual rate of 6.7 per cent, more than twice the rate in Canada. Now Mr. Nixon, through his economic advisers, is threatening to things as gasoline price increases and the new wage - price pattern in the automobile industry that could cost consumers up to $2.5 billion a year.

Canada tends to inherit the general price level of the United States because of the closeness of the two national economies. If Mr. Nixon is frightened by the inflationary drift in his country — and he is — Canada will certainly share his concern.

Roman Was No. 1

Columbus Just Another 'We Try Harder' Explorer: Author

POINTEWARD, Ont. (CP) — Christopher Columbus, who Thor Heyerdahl says was beaten to America by the ancient Egyptians, may be proven wrong many of a Johnny-come-lately if the theory of a Canadian author holds water.

Rev. Otto Miller believes a Roman landed in Mexico about 136 A.D.

The Anglican priest's numerous books include The Donnellys.

Mont Dic. about Canada's most famous massacre, is Lucan, Ont., in 1880.

In an interview, Mr. Miller said he has been studying the Mayan and Aztec civilizations of Mexico for about 25 years and has visited Mexico several times to confer with archeologists.

In a manuscript titled The Day-Spring, which he hopes to have published by 1972, he sets out to prove that it was Christian and his followers, fleeing the persecution of the Roman Emperor Nerón in the first century A.D., landed in Mexico.

Mr. Miller says the Mexican Indian legend of Quetzalcoatl, a white bearded god, is rooted in fact and that the legendary god appears in the mythology of Indians from Nova Scotia to Bolivia and Peru.

In Nova Scotia, the Indians call him Glooscap, he said, and all the American Indian legends of the white bearded god are startlingly similar.

Mr. Miller said many crosses in Mexico predate the Christian influence of the Spaniards adding that on his last trip to Mexico City he was shown a piece of pre-Christian pottery with the head of a bearded caucasian.

Mr. Miller says evidences of Christian influence in religions of the Mexican Indians are their use of baptism, confession, and absolution.

The route to Mexico used by the persecuted Roman Christians would likely be the same as that Norwegian writer Thor Heyerdahl sailed this year from Africa in the West Indies in his Egyptian-designed papyrus boat Ra, Mr. Miller said.

"The Romans of the first century certainly had the vessels capable of making the Atlantic crossing."

Mr. Miller is rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church in this suburb of Sarnia, and has been a journalist, playwright and screen writer.

Prison Described

PoW List 'Complete One' Says Interviewer

TOKYO (AP) — A Canadian correspondent said Monday that North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong told him unconditionally the list of 368 U.S. prisoners of war held by his country is "a full one and complete."

The list was handed to representatives of Senators Edward Kennedy, and J. W. Fulbright by North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris Dec. 22.

The Pentagon has indicated it believes the North Vietnamese hold more men than those on the list.

Michael Maclear, London-based Canadian head of the CBC, saw Dong after meeting seven U.S. prisoners and three interviewers, two of them on Christmas Day. The interviews were broadcast Sunday by the United States and Canada.

Maclear said Dong told him he regarded release of the list as a "humanitarian gesture." After talks with other North Vietnamese officials, the Canadian reporter said he was convinced they would "stick to it as a final figure" and the truth of their position may not be known until the end of the Vietnam war.

Maclear said he felt release of the list put "far greater responsibility" on the North Vietnamese for the prisoners' final well-being.

Maclear conceded that his visit with the prisoners "was a limited look" and that he rules out of what he could or could not be were laid down in advance.

He said he found the prisoners "not only physically fit, but mentally alert." The two he interviewed—navy Cmdrs. Walter E. Wilber, 45, and Robert J. Schweitzer, 38, both pilots—appeared sanity and articulately, he said.

He had no way of knowing whether there were other prisoners in the camp, Maclear said, but judged 8 might have housed about 30. Subsequent photos taken of Christmas dinner by the Nihon Denpa news service, which works closely with Hanoi, showed 30 men.

Maclear said the interview was arranged through Hanoi's cultural committee for foreign relations, which picked him up and delivered him to the camp within the Hanoi city limits.

"It was in the suburbs, surrounded by bidden by power type houses with sloping straw roofs," Maclear said.

"Inside, it was a very spacious camp, with grass growing in a centrepiece area, and a concrete-lined pond overhung with willow trees. I suppose the whole came to a space of 80 feet by 120 feet. All sides there was a low single-storey building with six to 10 rooms on each side. The rooms appeared to me room about 20 feet by 12 feet.

"On one side of the building was a long verandah with lattice bamboo curtains and behind the curtains bolted doors. The windows had iron bars. But aside from this, there was no suggestion of a cell.

"There were three beds, only two of which were made up, suggesting that there were only two in the room, those interviewed. The furnishings were minimal—a small wooden bench, table, or local basket-ware in which the prisoners kept some family pictures. On the walls there were Yuletide messages.

"There was room behind onto a volleyball-basketball court which the prisoners said they could use all day."

UK's Birth Control Campaign Aimed at Young Unmarried

LONDON (AP) — The Pregnant Bride today joined the Pregnant Man and the Careful Casanova in the British Health Education Council's birth control campaign.

The council's third illustrated pamphlet in its campaign to cut down on unwanted babies features a picture of a pregnant girl in traditional wedding white standing at the altar and telling the vicar, "I did."

The council had second thoughts and decided to slim down the bride. "She's a little too pregnant for a church," said the director-general of the group, Dr. Bill Jones. "We do not want to be offensive to anybody."

But 200,000 of the leaflets already had gone out, and today the tabloid Daily Mirror—which has a circulation of five million—published the picture of the blushing bride in a four-page advertisement paid for by the council.

"Our five brides get married because they have to," said the ad, which gave advice on choosing birth control devices.

In its editorial column, The Mirror termed all-this "brutal realism" and invited its readers to write in if they were shocked.

A spokesman for the Church of England said it wasn't happy about the latest development in the birth control campaign because it "might give the impression that pregnant girls are regularly married in white with the church's blessing."

The council's first syndicator in the controversial campaign was a picture of a young man clutching his distended abdomen with the caption: "Would you be more careful if it was you that got pregnant?"

Last week came a picture of Italian lover Casanova wooing a bare-breasted girl. The caption said Casanova was careful and "never got anyone into trouble."

"This is not sensationalism," says Dr. Jones, "We are just trying to reach the people who matter—the one thousands of couples who are not reached through normal health service channels."

Thieves Take Car -And Baby

EDMONTON (CP) — A six-month-old baby was recovered Monday night about four hours after it was taken by thieves who stole its mother's car from a shopping centre parking lot.

The car was noticed parked in front of a home about two miles from the centre and the homeowners notified police. The baby was found in the car and appeared well, police said.

The car was stolen when the baby's mother, identified as Mrs. D. Will, left it parked for about 10 minutes in a shopping centre with the engine running while she went inside to meet her husband, an employee at the centre.

Body-Stretch Therapy Adds Lung Capacity

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Norbert Sternal, a 58-year-old retired engineer, is undergoing body-stretching therapy that already has added 2½ inches to his body and increased his lung capacity.

Dr. Robert Winter, an orthopedic surgeon, said Mr. Sternal is one of a half-dozen persons with lung problems who have benefited by the body-stretching procedure in Minnesota.

Education Costs Outstrip Quebec's Ability to Pay

MONTREAL (CP) — Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre said Monday that the provincial government will cut back grants to certain Quebec universities which persist in developing without taking into account a provincial development plan.

Mr. Saint-Pierre said in an interview that if certain universities do not consider provincial government financial difficulties in planning their budgets, then they are subject to cuts in grants.

He said the government's future over-all education policies will be to channel savings at all levels and lighten the burden and cost of school boards.

He added that most levels of education institutions in the province are spending far too much and most of these expenses are out of a sensible proportion to the government's ability to pay.

Mr. Saint-Pierre said however, that he foresees few financial problems for universities in 1971 and the situation will be no worse than last year."

The minister added that the problem faced by Quebec where immigrants tend to send their children to English schools is an insoluble one and "I have no solution."

"The dilemma comes with our wanting to preserve our French culture and living within the North American context."

Parking Car A Woman's Lot

MONTREAL (CP)—American capital has launched a women-only parking lot at Montreal's International Airport—the first such operation in Canada.

Located inside the Airport Hilton Hotel, the parking lot is operated by a team of charming chauffeuses who provide a mini-bus shuttle service between the lot and the airport terminal.

Nicole Auger, manager of Parc-Aero, says the moment an air traveller or visitor in the airport steps out of his parked car, he is met by the mini-bus chauffeured without extra charge to the terminal building.

Returning passengers are picked up at the terminal doors and driven immediately to their cars, the engines kept warm with block heater equipment.

The lot is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Male attendants are on duty only between midnight and 8 a.m., with uniformed chauffeuses taking over for the remaining 16 hours.

Ted Dunlap, president of Park 'N Fly Inc. of St. Louis, Mo., said the launching of Parc-Aero, a subsidiary, involved an investment of more than $275,000 and will result in a payroll of $180,000 annually.

He opened his first airport shuttle service parking lot in St. Louis in 1967 to meet the "needs of the professional traveller and businessman" who leave their cars at airports while on trips.

His first lot has passed similar facilities since then at airports in Cleveland, San Francisco, Houston and New Orleans.

Mr. Dunlap said the company currently is negotiating for space at Toronto's airport and is studying the possibility of opening a similar service in Vancouver.

"We grossed 25 cents in revenue on our first day in St. Louis," said Mr. Dunlap, and now the firm is grossing annual revenue of $1.5 million.

The Montreal lot has space for 800 cars but it can be expanded to accommodate 2,000 cars. About 12 or 20 women, average age 25, will make up the Montreal staff.

Layoff Notice Required

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation requiring Ontario employers to give advance notice of mass layoffs takes effect Friday, Labor Minister Dalton Bales announced Monday.

The legislation was passed in June but official proclamation awaited the drafting of detailed regulations.

The regulations state that an employer may not lay off 50 or more employees within a four-week period without giving written notice to the employees and to the minister. Eight weeks' notice is required for groups of 50 to 199 men, 12 weeks for groups of 200 to 499 and 16 weeks for groups of more than 500 persons.

Employers are also required to give notice to employees with more than three months' service before firing them without stated cause.

Mr. Bales said he hopes the legislation "will help ease the tensions created by anxiety over layoffs of indefinite length and also assist discharged workers to find new jobs."

The legislation does not apply to anyone working on the construction, alteration or demolition of buildings, or on the construction of roads, sewers, water mains, pipelines, tunnels, bridges, and canals, or on the site of those projects.

A special notice to Tenants and Landlords

Tenants in apartment buildings should receive a cash payment from their landlords this month under the terms of the Government of Ontario's Residential Property Tax Reduction Program.

The payments are designed to ease the burden of municipal and education taxes on tenants and homeowners. In effect, the Province is paying part of the property taxes for each eligible house and apartment.

If you are a tenant, you should receive your tax rebate from your present landlord on or before December 31, 1970. Tenants who have occupied their present premises for less than a full year should receive a pro-rated rebate equal to one-twelfth of the total reduction for each month's tenancy.

Tenants who moved out of their premises earlier in the year should have also received a pro-rated payment within 30 days of moving. If you have not received this rebate, contact your previous landlord.

Tenants of flats or basement apartments in houses may not qualify because the premises they rent are not separately assessed. For example, roomers are not eligible. If you are unsure of your status or eligibility, contact your municipal tax office.

Elderly people eligible for the Residential Property Tax Reduction payments as tenants of separately assessed dwellings may also have received benefits under the Government of Ontario's 1970 program of Tax Assistance for the Elderly. (Those entitled to the Federal Guaranteed Income Supplement).

The Municipal Subsidies Branch is available to help landlords and tenants with any problems concerning the program, including those pertaining to the payment of the rebate. Telephone Toronto (416) 363-7501 or write:

New Book Provides Food for Thought

WASHINGTON (CP) — America's top businessmen can relax. A new book has arrived to stir up vivid conversation over cocktails and dinner this winter.

It comes with handy categories in which to fit all your friends, some new ideas to provoke argument, and as an uplifting prophecy. All, a sure-fire bet to create conversational vibrations near that Vietnam and race problems, inflation and Marshall McLuhan have been lulled into the limbo of boredom.

The book is The Greening of America, by Charles A. Reich, professor of law at Yale University.

The "quality" press in the U.S. has been increasingly larded with earnest discussion about Reich and his book since a lengthy excerpt first appeared in The New Yorker magazine. The publishers, Random House, were caught short by a frantic demand for copies of the book.

Shortage of Brides In Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese men still like the old marriage bureaus—but in many cases the women aren't there.

Japanese newspapers reported are no longer in a hurry to find husbands. At one major private marriage bureau in Tokyo, director Kunio Matsuda said that "99 per cent of our clients now are men—several years ago the ratio was the exact opposite."

With a current labor shortage, young girls are able to advance into a wider variety of jobs, enabling them to earn good money and keep their independence. In the near-war generation, girls outnumber boys.

But young girls in the prime Japanese marriage age now are more anxious to consider their own enjoyment rather than thinking about marriage, Matsuda believes.

"For example, they want to go on overseas trips before entering married life. And they have the money to do it."

With the breakup of traditional Japanese family patterns in the post-war era and the general movement into the big cities, the old family ways of arranging marriages are no longer practical.

The marriage bureau, with its more impersonal approach, took a long time to find favor with Japanese.

But, says Matsuda, the post-war generation is more willing to accept new ideas and the result has been a rapid growth in the number of marriage bureaus in big cities.

The Tokyo telephone directory lists 65 private marriage bureaus. Local governments also help. The Tokyo metropolitan government has its own bureau as do its 26 district offices.

The key word in The Greening of America is Consciousness.

If you fit into the category Reich calls Consciousness I, you have a basically 19th-century view of the world, support old-style free enterprise and believe in the simple virtues of self-reliance, thrift and hard work.

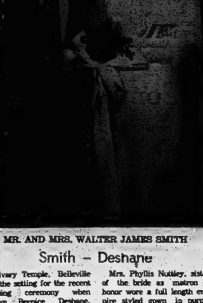
A Consciousness II person is the heir of 1930s liberalism, infused with Roosevelt's New Deal philosophy, convinced that Western democracy needs reform but equally convinced that reform can come through established channels.

The new style is Consciousness III. Reich sees it mainly in the young, especially the beads-and-flowers set. It embodies a hatred for hypocrisy, an emphasis on human values as opposed to material values, a love of personal freedom, creativity and a sense of community.

Reich believes Consciousness III is the wave of the future. He foresees it transforming society without violence, creating a "higher reason, a more human community, and a new kind of individual."

Reich says this peaceful revolution will come when a majority of people realize, as the young have, that the corporate state and the machine will wither away. The benevolent rule of Consciousness III will begin.

The ability of Reich's ideas to provoke and stimulate has been demonstrated by the eminence of both his supporters and his detractors.



John Kenneth Galbraith, economist, author and Democratic adviser, called it an "enormously important book" in a New York Times commentary. Galbraith, of course, is a Consciousness II—Con. II, or even CII, as the smart jargon already has it—because he favors institutional solution to American problems.

Countless other reviews and commentaries have treated the book as a major contribution to political thought.

But its opponents are numerous, including some favorable reviews which also spoke of "muddle-headedness" and unrealistic, particularly in Reich's view of youth and its rock-soul culture.

George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to world capitals, commented about the book that American youth merely produces "romantic, utopian moods, illusions and hysterias of one sort or another" as a challenge to reasonable politics within a reasonable framework.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER JAMES SMITH

Smith — Deshane

Calvary Temple, Belleville was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Evelyn Bernice Deshane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deshane, Belleville was united in marriage to Walter James Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Smith of Mountain View, Ontario. Rev. James McKnight officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Doris Osborne who also accompanied the soloist William Horst.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a portrait gown featuring a high neckline and full sleeves gathered at slender cuffs. Sheer white raganza with delicate scalloped lace outlined a deep V bodice which was also outlined with pale blue ribbon in match to blue satin sash. Scalloped lace also edged the bault in circular train. A four-tier silk illusion veil was caught to a cluster of flowers with matching bow and a touch of blue to match the trim of the gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with fern and ivy.

Mrs. Phyllis Nuttley, sister of the groom was matron of honor wore a full length empire styled gown in purple velvet with floral trim appliqué which was repeated on the jewelled neckline. She wore mauve flowers in her hair and carried a matching bouquet of roses. Bridesmaids Miss Carol Deshane, sister of the bride in peacock blue velvet and Miss Kathy Peet in contrast green velvet wore gowns styled identically to the matron of honor. Both carried colonial bouquets of roses and fern with matching flowers in their hair.

Ronald Nuttley attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Joseph Deshane Jr., brother of the bride and Ronald Chastien.

A reception was held in the lower hall of the Salvation Army Citadel where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a candy pink dress with sleeveless lace coat and a corsage of pink gardenias and white rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a rose wool dress featuring full length sleeves with a corsage of white roses and pink rosebuds.

For the wedding trip to points north-east, the bride donned a red wool suit with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at 304 Bleecker Avenue, Belleville.

Secretaries Ask For Responsibility

MONTREAL (CP) — Michèle Geoffrion, past president of the 27,000-member National Secretaries' Association, says bosses ought to delegate more responsibility and their secretaries should be willing to accept it.

"A girl is no longer satisfied with the delegation of purely mechanical work," she told a men's service club. "Many executives suffer from the fear of delegation, from their vanity presupposes that they can do a particular job better."

The office relationship can be beneficial to both management and clerical staff, said Miss Geoffrion. The secretary can try to understand her boss's policies and he should try to determine her reaction to them.

"The dispassionate response of a secretary is often beneficial feedback, and it is only in encouraging her that the executive can expect optimum results."

In turn, besides having impeccable secretarial skills, the good office assistant should have the ability to carry out instructions pleasantly and reliably.

"In a nutshell," said Miss Geoffrion, "a good secretary is an independent individual who calls for responsibility, takes the initiative and is both loyal and co-operative."

Unfortunately, however, there are still some men who think their secretaries should look like models, work like animals, behave like ladies and think as men do.

Divorce Cost Mrs. Myers Only $25.50

ASSINIBOIA, Sask. (CP) — Only $25.50 was the actual cost to a successful divorce action by Mabel Gail Myers of Assiniboia.

But Mrs. Myers emphasized that there was an absolute minimum of complications and advised that a lawyer is "most definitely necessary" if there are any.

"I first consulted a lawyer regarding the cost of a divorce action," Mrs. Myers said in an interview. She was told the minimum cost would be $800.

"I remembered reading a story in an Edmonton paper about persons filing for divorce themselves, without the aid of a lawyer, and I decided to investigate this."

She went to the Moose Jaw courthouse and read through the Divorce Act. She also visited Regina and sat in on divorce hearings and trials.

"I decided my case was a simple one of separation for five years and that there were no complications in the case."

There were no children, and there was no question of alimony or legal financial settlement since she is self - supporting and owns a beauty parlor in Assiniboia.

"I certainly would not have attempted to file my own petition for a divorce if there were matters, such as child custody, child support or alimony had been involved."

"I also knew my ex-husband would not contest the suit. If there is a possibility that the suit might be contested I think legal aid would be necessary, too."

Mrs. Myers purchased the required legal documents from a stationery store in Moose Jaw. She filled all her own documents, and a relative served the papers on the petition on her ex-husband, who signed the documents.

She began her proceedings in May and filed her petition with the court in August. Since there were no court sessions in July or September her case was not heard until October.

Mrs. Myers was granted her decree nisi Oct. 19 in Court of Queen's Bench.

To date the actual cost has been $25.58. But she still must petition for her decree absolute, and that form and petition will cost $3, she said.

Mrs. Myers said there is a great deal of emotional strain involved in obtaining a divorce without legal aid.

"I think only a particular type of person is emotionally equipped for it. I've been in business myself a long time and I think this had a lot to do with it."

WOMEN OF THE YEAR — In an annual poll conducted by The Canadian Press, women's and family editors across Canada selected these three women as tops in their categories. Canadian Editors Unable to Name Top Female Newsmaker of Year

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Though women en masse were big news in 1970, for the second consecutive year Canadian women's editors have been unable to name an individual as the top feminine news maker for 1970.

In the annual poll conducted by The Canadian Press since 1951, women's and family editors of newspapers and radio and television stations are asked to vote for women who have been the most news in their fields, and for a woman who has been most newsworthy overall in the year.

This year 34 of them named no most newsworthy woman and 41 others scattered votes among nine women.

Three were several votes for Mrs. Pierre La Porte, widow of Quebec's murdered labor minister, and Mrs. Jay Wertheimer, wife of the former British trade commissioner to Montreal. The votes were tributes to the women for the courage they displayed when their husbands were kidnapped by the FLQ.

The winners in the various categories were public affairs, Anne Francis Bird; sports, skier Betsy Clifford; entertainment, singer Anne Murray; literature, Anne Hebert; news story of the year most affecting women, the report of the royal commission on the status of women.

Mrs. Bird was chairman of the royal commission on the status of women. She was appointed in 1967 by then prime minister Lester Pearson. The report was tabled in the House of Commons Dec. 7.

Mrs. Bird works as a freelance writer in Philadelphia under the name Anne Francis. She was born Florence Bayard Bird, in Philadelphia and has lived in Canada since 1931. Her husband is parliamentary correspondent for The Financial Post.

Before her commission appointment, Mrs. Bird did overseas assignments for the CBC. During the Second World War she wrote a column about women's war work in Winnipeg and later worked for one of the Ottawa newspaper on debates in Parliament concerning the rights of women.

Miss Clifford, of Ottawa, recently won her first World Cup ski event at the Criterium de la Premiere Neige competition.

Earlierwin the year she was named to the Sports Hall of Fame for her achievement in becoming the youngest competitor to win a gold medal in world skiing championships. Last January, when she was still 16, she won a giant slalom at the world skiing championship in Val Gardena, Italy.

Miss Hebert, of Montreal, is a novelist and poet who has been living in Paris for several years.

Her most recent book, Kamouraska, is set in 19th century Quebec. It has sold 30,000 copies in France, where it was published, and more in Quebec.

Miss Murray was voted most newsworthy woman in entertainment in 1970 by a large margin.

In a relatively short time the 24-year old singer from Springhill, N.S., has come out of regional television to the big time.

Her recording of Snowbird has sold a million copies. She has a CBC contract, contracts for U.S. network television appearances and dates with a U.S. record firm.

The report of the royal commission on the status of women in Canada was voted top 1970 news story most affecting women.

Its highlights include recommendations for a network of day care centres, abortion on demand, raising minimum marriage age to 18, liberalizing divorce regulations, a guaranteed annual income to heads of one-parent families with dependent children.

The report also urged equal education, pay and opportunity for women and the establishment of human rights commissions with special sections to oversee women's rights.

Christ's Message Given To Children in Bible Clubs

Fewer and fewer children are attending church or Sunday school, causing a threat to the Christian moral fabric of our nation.

Focussing on this alarming trend with its ominous social implications, the local child Evangelism fellowship of Ontario at its recent fall banquet in Belleville stressed the great opportunities it has as a non-denominational group to present the Way of Christ to neighbourhood children in private home Bible clubs. Twenty eight such clubs meet weekly at present in Quinte and Prince Edward County alone for children who might not otherwise ever hear the Christian message.

In his thought - provoking main address, Rev. Eric Penny of Parkdale Baptist Church commended the work of child evangelism fellowship for supplementing and extending on the outreach of the church in its own unique way.

Points for Parents

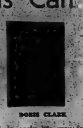
By MARY BEYSON

Mother: "Little Sue got terribly burned when she pulled the percolator down on her. She grabbed the cord before I could stop her. I'm just sick about it."

Friend: "It's not your fault, Little children are so quick you can't prevent all accidents."

Small children have no sense of judgment and are unaware of danger. It's up to adults to keep the surroundings as hazard-free as possible.

If there are toddlers in the house, dangling electric cords are a potential hazard, whether they're attached to percolator, hyrum or table lamp. Keep household appliances pushed to the back of the counter with cords out of reach.



This thing with the subconscious really bothers me, though, because I can't see much hope in living if your past can control what you do now. — What's The Use?

Dear What's: There's lots of use. Your subconscious can be your friend, not your enemy. In it are stored all your past habits, things you have learned at great pains to yourself and which are now part of the way you cope with life. Your hairdressing course, for instance. Much of this skill resided in your subconscious, and can be summoned up to conscious level when you need it.

Successful Living

Your Subconscious Can Be Your Friend Or Enemy

By DORIS CLARKE

DORIS CLARKE

Dear Doris: How much does the subconscious mind determine everything you do? If a person doesn't understand it, and why they feel the way they do, then what hope is there that they can ever change?

I have six children; my husband and son are unemployed; and we live on welfare. I am very discouraged about it all. I am thinking of taking a break-up course in hairdressing and am wondering if it would be a good idea to try to have a shop in my own home.

The skills you have in get out of your present predicament.

Good luck!

Dear Doris: I'm sure I could find a few hours a week to visit someone who is lonely and would like a visitor. If you know of anyone, would you let me know, please? — Willing.

Dear Willing: Look in the nursing home. Elderly residents are often lonely, and would welcome a visitor with open arms.

Take along a small gift if you can — maybe a can of sweet-smelling soap or talc, or a magazine, a bag of hard candies or even one single large orange.

Take some good cheer with you, too — the kind that shows in your face and is expressed in your attitude to life. Don't do all the talking. Be prepared to listen. I'm betting you'll make more than one new and interesting friend.

Dear Doris: Maybe you will be able to help me. I have three little granddaughters and I'd like to make them each a quilt but I can't get the pattern I want. I have written to three companies in the U.S. also in Toronto, but no one has them.

It is the Little Dutch Girl and Little Dutch Boy. If someone would only trace them out for me, I'd be so grateful. The little girls have colonial bedrooms and I think these designs would look lovely.

Your column makes my day. I love poems, too. — Quilter

Dear Quilter: I'm betting dollars to doughnuts that one of our readers will come up with them. Readers?

There's always something to you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Two Ideal Recipes For A Quick Meal

By MARY MOORE

Today I have two simple recipes for you that will make preparing a quick meal easy and good.

One is for Creamed Salmon on Toast and the other is Canned Peaches with Soft Custard — simple dishes that are too easily forgotten by food columnists.

CREAMED SALMON ON TOAST (Serves 3 or 4)

One ½-lb. can salmon
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
3 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard
Shake of pepper
1¼ cups milk
2 sliced hard-cooked eggs
¾ cup fresh frozen green peas

Make a White Sauce by blending butter or margarine with flour, salt, mustard and pepper, then stirring in milk until thick. Break up salmon and add it and most of its liquid and the sliced hard-cooked eggs and frozen peas. Heat through — if desired by transferring to double boiler. Serve over buttered toast or toasted English muffins.

CANNED PEACHES WITH CUSTARD SAUCE (serves 5)

One 28-oz. can peach halves

SAUCE

2 cups hot milk
4 egg yolks (or 2 whole eggs)
¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla

Make the Custard Sauce first: In top of double boiler mix well together the eggs yolks (or eggs), sugar and salt. Place over gently boiling water in bottom of double boiler and slowly add hot milk, stirring constantly until it thickens a little. It will lightly coat a silver spoon. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Pour into serving pitcher and chill.

Spoon the canned peach halves into stemmed glasses. (Reserve the syrup for making up a jelly powder.) When serving time arrives and custard sauce is cold pour some over each dish of peaches.

Ann Landers

Happily Married; Yet Looks for Answers

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a married woman (in my early 30's) who is puzzled, and searching for answers that might not exist. Every now and then (more often lately) I get word that friends of ours — couples who have been married for 25 years and longer — are getting a divorce. I harbor a secret fear in the corner of my heart that one day that "older couple" might be us.

Timmy and I have always gotten along well. We have four lovely kids. I made it a point to teach our children that Daddy comes first. He is King in our house. They love him and respect him. He is a wonderful father.

But there must be more to life than P.T.A., housework, marketing, cooking, cleaning, laundry and sex with your husband. I'm ashamed to feel that special electricity when my eyes meet his across a crowded room. It never happens. I yearn for a man who will make my heart pound a mile a minute. Timmy used to — but the thrill is gone. Things are quiet and calm and — I might as well say it — dull as dishwater.

We have a lot to be thankful for — good health, attractive, well-behaved kids, and a promising financial future. Why isn't this enough? Is something wrong with me? Am I chasing the impossible dream? I will be watching and waiting for your answer. Please don't fail me. — MOONGLOW.

DEAR MOON: Put away your story books, little girl. You've got some growing up to do. Yes, there is more to life than P.T.A., housework, cooking, cleaning, laundry — and sex with your husband. There's illness and emotional breakdowns that make it impossible for some women to do the housework, cooking, cleaning and laundry. As for sex with your husband, don't knock it, honey. There are plenty of husbands who aren't interested. There is also alcoholism, in-law trouble, problems with out-of-control children and money worries. Read the papers. Look around. Case your friends.

No marriage can maintain the honeymoon level of excitement forever. And it's a good thing. We'd all die of exhaustion. Time diminishes the raging fires to a soft glow — present but no longer ferocious and demanding. Count your blessings. Too many people fail to appreciate what they have until they have lost it. Don't let it happen to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have repeatedly displayed your ignorance on animal behavior. I would like to set you straight in regard to that basset hound that barked all night. The beast is signalling desperate loneliness. He needs some sort of companionship — preferably human. To be tied up day after day, night after night, is solitary confinement.

An animal can suffer a nervous breakdown under these conditions, just as some humans do. An animal is not a machine. He is a living, breathing, gregarious creature with a capacity for pain, fear, grief, joy, loneliness, and love — just as you and I. Reporting a dog who barks all night to the animal welfare organization will produce more satisfactory results than reporting it to the police. — LAKE SHORE DRIVE, CHICAGO.

DEAR L.S.D.: Thank you for a better answer. Hear ye all readers who are kept up nights by the neighbor's barking dog: Don't call the cops, call the animal welfare organization. (P.S. My Lake Shore Drive reader didn't suggest an alternative if no one at the animal welfare place answers the phone between 2:00 and 5:00 a.m.)

Colts Have Score To Settle Page 11

City Stand-bys Win Two Golds

ETOBICOKE (Special) — Only six of the Ontario Winter Games' first 13 gold medals were won by competitors from outside the Toronto area, and two will come home to Belleville.

The Apollo Barbell Club — fast becoming Belleville's old sporting stand-by — again was the vehicle bringing athletic honor to the Quinte area.

Ron Hayes, a 15-year-old flyweight member of the Belleville weightlifting club, and Apollo Club light-heavyweight Art Walt won gold medals in their respective divisions and assured themselves of berths on the Ontario team competing in the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon in February.

Hayes pressed 105 pounds, snatched 145, and clean-and-jerked 200 for a winning 450-pound total in the 114-pound class. He then succeeded in hoisting 's Capadlen record 150-pound snatch in a special extra attempt.

ART WALT

Belleville's Jim Travers earned a silver medal for his second - place 660-pound total in the 132 - pound (featherweight) class.

Bantamweight Bob Allore and heavyweight Richie Sly were the members of Belleville's 13-strong weightlifting contingent scheduled to compete today.

Judo Experts Don't Bet On Little Man

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

According to the scores of magazine advertisements on self defence every 98-pound weakling is dreaming of the day when he can pitch that sand-kicking bully on his muscle-bound back.

Charles Atlas, notwithstanding, the shortest route to such a conquest is to take up judo. A few months of scientifically applied training and conditioning supposedly will change Dick the Bruiser to Dick the Bleeder. Right? Wrong.

YMCA judo instructor Jim Driscoll explains that, "In judo, like any other sport, strength and agility are very important. You're not going to take someone who is far stronger than you and throw him around unless you catch him badly off balance. The good big man will beat the good little man every time."

Getting your opponent off-balance is the secret to judo and that is where technique comes in.

"Probably the biggest difference between the "old school" of judo and the "new school" is that we would spend a month learning one throw and practise that throw literally five thousand times, whereas today things are speeded up a great deal more", says Driscoll, who has participated in judo for 18 years.

Besides the 78 different throws involved in the sport, holddowns also play an important role in the competitions which determine whether or not a student is ready to advance to his next degree of efficiency.

"On the average 176 say that holddowns are about 15 per cent of a competition, although when you get two relatively strong people, who aren't likely to throw each other as easily, they become even more important.

The average learner will take about 18 months to advance from one class to the next. Progression is marked by a series of different colored belts starting at white and running through yellow, orange, green, blue, brown and black.

While some people have earned the black belt in as little as five years, the average time to attain the degree is about eight, and most people drop out of competition before they are able to reach this level.

"The step from brown to black belt is about equal to that of moving through all the other stages to brown," notes Driscoll, himself a third degree black belt holder, "they say that one out of every three thousand judo participants reaches that level and that seems about right. I've coached only four in 18 years."

A total of 28,953 people are actively engaged in Canadian Kodokan Black Belt Association judo competitions, of which Driscoll is secretary, while another 22,000 are enrolled purely for the sake of physical fitness.

Trojans Staging Tournament

Three Belleville basketball teams are hoping to keep the Trojan Invitational Tournament Championship in the district when play gets underway tomorrow.

Representing the Quinte area will be the defending champion Quinte Secondary School, along with Nicholson Catholic College and the host Moira Secondary School Trojans.

Also sending teams to the Junior" competition will be Brockville, XCVI and Loyalist of Kingston, St. Peters of Peterborough and Port Hope.

Quinte won the right to enter the tournament by stopping Centennial in a play-off game, while Nicholson downed BCI for the right to compete.

Competition gets under way at 8.30 a.m. with the finals to be played at 7 and 9 p.m. at Moira.

Builders Give Hotelmen Room

Stinson's Construction gave the league-leading Belvedere Hotelmen a boost by holding Central Tail to a 3-3 draw, allowing Belvedere to increase their Quinte Hockey League lead to three points on the strength of a 7-3 win over DCA Transfer.

Rick Denard gave Stinson's an early lead with a pair of goals, but Grant Hagerman countered with a pair of markers less than a minute apart to earn Central the split.

Stinsons drew four penalties against three for Central Taxi.

The Hotelmen fattened up their scoring averages at the expense of the winless DCA squad.

Jack Francis scored one goal and assisted on three more, while Gary Reid was good for three assists.

Doug Hallam clicked for a pair of goals with single tallies going to Larry Potter, Gerry Jones, Gene Francis and Bill Goodfellow.

Merchants Mark Time

A 5-2 win over Marysville by the Merchants wasn't enough to close the gap on the Gas House League leaders as the Mustangs responded with a 6-1 victory against last place Malcovery.

Bob Lloyd fired a pair of goals to lead the Merchants to their win with single markers going to Carl Boonhower, Brian Smith, and Don Putnam. Harold Pascoe and Alec Reich scored for the losers, who drew two of the games six penalties.

Scoring twice for the Mustangs were Fred McAdam and Murray Brydson, while Pat Salmon and Tom Woodley were good for one apiece.

Mike Rathburn scored Malcovery's only goal.

Imperials No Consolation For Second-game Opposition

Blake Kerr Imperials didn't offer much consolation to their first consolation round opponents at the Orillia Midget tournament.

The Imperials, after losing a squeaker to Orillia in their first game, blanked Richmond Hill 4-0 in a Monday afternoon contest.

Brian Cousins scored Belleville's only goal in their Monday morning loss to the host team.

Bowerman After Slice Of Bigger PGA Pie

There is one thing Belleville native Gary Bowerman can be sure of in his second year on the United States professional Golf tour: he can win a lot more money!

Bowerman, who picked up some $13,000 in unofficial earnings in his rookie season as a touring pro in 1970, and his fellow PGA circuit members will be shooting at $7,- 124,861 in prize money in a record 63 tournaments in 1971.

Joseph C. Dey Jr., commissioner of the PGA Tournament Players' Division, said the 1971 prize money represents nearly $400,000 more than was offered in the 50 tournaments staged in 1970.

Bowerman, now representing De Soto Lakes Florida club, will be among the qualifying hopefuls next week when the $110,000 Glen Campbell - Los Angeles Open traditional kicks off the 1971 tour.

The richer circuit concludes with the $130,000 Bahama Island Open invitational next Dec 9 - 12, and is highlighted by the PGA Championship Feb. 25 - 28 at Palm Beach, Fla., the Masters April 8 - 11 at Augusta, Ga., and the U.S. Open June 17 - 20 at Ardmore, Pa.

Bev Boys Still Making Big Waves

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Beverly Boys, who won both diving gold medals at the British Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh last summer, is Canada's woman Athlete of the Year for the second consecutive year.

The 19-year-old from Pickering, Ont., now living and training in Winnipeg, was an easy winner in the poll conducted by The Canadian Press among 165 sports writers and broadcasters across the country.

But it was close for second, with skier Betsy Clifford of Ottawa edging high-jumper Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., who repeated at third.

Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis for first, second and third votes.

Miss Boys drew 48 first-place votes, 43 for second and 30 for third for 304 points.

Miss Clifford, 17, who skis out of Camp Fortune, Que., won the gold medal in the world championships in giant slalom last February. Shortly after this year's balloting was completed, she won the women's special slalom at the Criterium de la Premiere Neige World Cup competition at Val d'Isere, France.

She scored 194 points in the voting on 38 first-place ballots, 27 for second and 26 for third.

Miss Brill, 18, who dives over the bar head-first and backward, jumped six feet more times in 1970 than any other woman in the world, lofanda Balas of Sofia, Bulgaria, holds the world record of six feet, three inches.

Miss Brill won a gold medal at the Commonwealth Games with a leap of five-foot-10 which equalled the Games record.

Voters gave Miss Boys 33 seconds and 21 thirds for 183 points.

Ranger Goaltending Keeps Bruins in Sight

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins were almost the unanimous pre-season favorites to run away with the National Hockey League's East Division title this season.

But the defending Stanley Cup champions are having a difficult time shaking the dogged pursuit of New York Rangers who trail by only one point.

One of the main reasons the Bruins have been unable to open a larger gap is the outstanding work of Gilles Villemure, the Rangers' rookie netminder who has shared goaltending duties with veteran Ed Giacomin.

Giacomin, who leads the league in shutouts with four, had proved the workhorse of the New York netminders in previous years. However, this season he's getting ample support.

Emile Francis, general manager and coach of the Rangers and a former NHL goalie himself, naturally is happy with the work of the five-foot-eight Villemure, a native of Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Villemure, 30, spent most of the last eight seasons in the minors with only 13 1-3 NHL games to his credit. He was the American Hockey League's top goalie with Buffalo Bisons last season.

"He's an excellent stand-up netminder who plays the angles extremely well — a most important factor for a smaller goalie," Francis said recently.

"His style complements Giacomin's style which means our defencemen don't become confused and have to change their styles depending who's in the nets."

Villemure, who has only one

ED GIACOMIN

loss in 15 games, has, at 1.89, the best individual goals-against average in the league. He has 11 wins and three ties to go with one defeat.

Combined with Giacomin's 2.18 goals-against average, Villemure's mark gives the Rangers the best goaltending duo in the league with a combined mark of 2.11, a slight lead over the 2.16 posted by Tony Esposito and Gerry Desjardins of Chicago Black Hawks.

In the individual scoring race, centre Phil Esposito of the Bruins continues his record pace, pushing his league-leading totals to 23 goals and 68 points, a comfortable 14-point lead over runner-up Bobby Orr, the Boston all-star defenceman. Orr's 41 assists are tops in the league.

The greatest advance of the week, was made by centre Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs. Ullman scored six goals and nine assists in three games last week to vault from 14th spot to sixth with 43 points, including 30 goals.

Skrien Filling Big Shoes in Regina

REGINA (CP) — Following in the footsteps of Ray Keys won't be easy for Dave Skrien.

Skrien was named Monday as head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, terrors of the Western Football Conference in 1970 before they were dumped in the playoffs by Calgary Stampeders. Skrien, in following Keys, expects to have some reorganizing to do before he has a Grey Cup world title his hands.

Keys, 51, quit the Riders to take over coaching duties with British Columbia Lions.

"Eagle's record is tremendous and the teams have been great," Skrien said Monday in an interview after his two-year contract was announced.

"The only way we can really improve on it is by going to the Grey Cup. There are a lot of pitfalls along that road, as we found out last year."

Pitfalls are nothing new to the 41-year-old native of Brooten, Minn. He took the Lions to a Grey Cup win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1964 and was fired in 1967 after it was apparent the team had lost its winning ways.

After the firing, he spent a year as assistant coach at Boise State College in Idaho and the next year went to Edmonton Eskimos as assistant coach for a year before joining Keys for the 1970 season.

Married and with three children, Skrien is a University of Minnesota product. He played in Canada in 1953 as a running back with Saskatchewan and Winnipeg Blue Bombers before returning to university for a master's degree in education. He joined the Lions in 1959 as an assistant after holding a similar post for two years at the University of Minnesota. He got the B.C. head coach's job in 1961.

Skrien's win in the 1964 Grey Cup came at the same time Keys was moving to Regina from Edmonton to fill an assistant-coaching spot. Coincidentally, Skrien was on his way to being fired at the same time Keys was priming the Roughriders for their 1966 Grey Cup victory over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Skrien admitted Monday his main problem would be maintaining "a winning tradition."

"We want to bring in just enough new blood to go along with the excellent personnel that we've had here. There's a big job and certainly one of the things we want to do is to try and make it exciting as well as winning."

Ford Sets Sights Early

EDMONTON (CP) — Al Ford wants to have the whole world in his arms by the time he's 21.

Ford, at 20, the Canadian lightweight boxing champion for more than two years, has set his goal—the world title by his 21st birthday, Aug. 13, 1971.

The Edmonton fighter could just do that.

His co-managers, Mitch Kilmove and Albert Superstein, are negotiating for fights for both the British Empire and world titles.

One of Ford's major assets is his 73-inch reach, that of a light-heavyweight. Ford is five feet, five inches tall.

"Buchanan (Ken Buchanan of Scotland, the world champion) has a reach of 72 inches and has never been outjabbed," Kilmove said. "But Ford will do it."

Kilmove said Buchanan's win over Donato Paduano of Montreal, currently the best-known Canadian boxer in the world, didn't necessarily mean Buchanan could beat Ford.

"Ford is faster than Paduano and has a longer reach than Buchanan."

Ford, who has a professional record of 34 successive wins has run out of possible opponents in his own country.

Ford is pointing for the British Empire held by Percy Hayles of Kingston, Jamaica. Ford won a unanimous decision over Hayles in Edmonton.

"We'll go anywhere in the British Empire to fight Hayles and the British Boxing Board has promised me that if Hayles won't fight Ford, it will strip him of the title.

Ford won the vacant Canadian title from Julie Mandell of Toronto, then, like Ford, a leading challenger.

Sports Briefs

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins took notice of pro football's Super Bowl in announcing Monday changes in starting times for two National Hockey League games at Boston Garden. Because of the Super Bowl telecast on Jan. 17, a scheduled game with Toronto Maple Leafs was shifted from afternoon to night. The Toronto game was scheduled for television. It will be replaced on TV by a game with St. Louis Blues Jan. 31, moved from night to afternoon.

He Needs the Rest

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Goalie Roger Crozier of Buffalo Sabres remained in hospital Monday for treatment of pancreatitis and doctors declined to speculate when he would be discharged. Crozier, 36, a star of the National Hockey League team, was admitted to hospital late Saturday. He suffered a similar illness in the 1969-70 season when with Detroit Red Wings.

Schmautz Waived Goodbye

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League acquired right winger Cliff Schmautz on waivers Monday from Buffalo Sabres. Schmautz, 31, scored five goals and had seven assists with the Sabres in 36 games. He averaged 33 goals a season in the previous five years for Portland in the Western Hockey League.

Davis Gets Cub Axe

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Tommy Davis was given his unconditional release Monday by Chicago Cubs. The move trims the Cubs' roster to 36, four under the maximum. Davis, who will be 32 in March, was acquired Sept. 16 from Oakland Athletics. He hit .263 in 11 games with Chicago.

Durbano Back in Fray

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence Schmalz, Ontario Hockey Association president, withdrew a suspension Monday he had imposed on Toronto Marlboros' defenceman Steve Durbano. Durbano will be back in the Marlies' lineup for their game against the Junior Canadiens in Montreal tonight after a lecture from Schmalz. Durbano missed two games while sitting out the suspension imposed following an OHA-Junior A game here against Peterborough Petes in which he drew three major penalties, a misconduct and a game misconduct.

Filion's Turn to Challenge

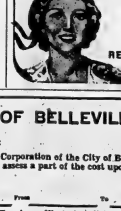
OTTAWA (CP) — World harness - racing champion Herve Filion, who has already beaten his own single-season record for standardbred race wins, drove into position Monday to challenge the record for any kind of horse racing. The 31-year-old driver from Angers, Que., won four races at nearby Connaught Park to run his victories this season to 494. It moves him one behind jockey Willie Shoemaker's single-season record of 485 victories for thoroughbred racing set in 1953.

Vaulting Duel Highlights Saskatchewan Indoor Games

SASKATOON (CP) — A pole-vault battle between Jan Johnson, world indoor record holder, and Bob Seagren, making a comeback after a year's retirement, is expected to highlight the annual Saskatchewan indoor games which begin today.

Johnson, a 20-year-old University of Kansas student, set the world indoor record of 17 feet 7 inches during a United States national college meet in Iowa last June.

Among the record list of 1,171 athletes, including about 70 from the U.S., Johnson and Seagren will face Bruce Simpson of Toronto, Steve Smith of the Pacific Coast Track and Field Club in Long Beach, Calif., and Allan Kane of Simon Fraser University in the invitational men's pole-vault Wednesday night.



Johnson, who enjoys indoor meets because he "likes the crowds close and I respond," started vaulting in Grade 8 on a Kansas farm. However, he says, he developed an intense interest after watching the 1964 Olympic Games on television.

Seagren, making his fifth appearance at the Saskatchewan games—sponsored by the Knights of Columbus—dropped out of pole-vaulting early in 1970.

The University of Southern California star once held the world outdoor record of 17 feet, 8½ inches and won a gold medal at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. In 1969, he was voted the U.S. athlete of the year.

Two other world indoor record holders—Kerry Pearce of the University of Texas and Tom Ruden of the Pacific Coast Club—will be on hand and are expected to compete in two of 47 final events.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following road extension, and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owners' Share	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Annual Cost Per Foot Frontage
Bell Boulevard	North Front Street	Westerly a distance of approximately 1177 lineal feet	$115,000.00	$84,379.00	$30,621.00	$13.59	$2.16

50 ft. x $13.59 — $679.50.
If paid over a period of 10 years at 8½% per annum, the cost would be:
50 ft. x $2.16 — $108.00.

2. The Special Assessment is to be paid in 10 equal annual instalments.

3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may, within 21 days after the first publication of the Notice, file with the clerk of the municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.

4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Ten-year-Old Steals Games' Spotlight from Torontonians

TORONTO (CP) — The girls provided the glamor as well as most of the class Monday at the first Ontario Winter Games, dominated by Toronto-area athletes who won seven of 13 gold medals in six sports.

Patty Black, 10-year-old figure skater from Sarnia, captured the imagination of fans at Central Arena when she swept past a field of seven to win the ladies singles B event, first gold medal of the Games which began Sunday.

"I didn't cry or I didn't laugh," said Patty, whose mother Marjorie was world professional dance champion in 1948. "I just danced around the arena."

Her mother, who watched the little girl, said Patty has her heart set on going to Saskatoon "but only eight skaters will be going."

A team of synchronized swimmers from Toronto's Leaside club took top honors in the duets, winning a first-place gold and second-place silver.

Competitions in the four-day program, which ends Wednesday, resume today with medal winners to be declared in speed skating, boxing, weightlifting, synchronized swimming, figure skating, fencing, judo and gymnastics.

Of the 1,200 athletes from 11 provincial regions taking part in the 16-sport program, more than 700 are billeted in a hotel in Etobicoke Borough, host for the Games.

The 295-member Ontario team for the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon in February will be selected on the basis of performances here.

The eight-member provincial girl gymnast team was selected Monday, headed by Wendy Nichalson, 14, of Toronto, who won a gold Monday as over-all performer.

Out-of-town gold medallists Monday were Belleville weightlifters Art Walt, in the light-heavyweight class, and Ron Hayet, 15, a flyweight, Ottawa gymnast Bruce Mead, the over-all champion, and judo stars Mitch Kawasaki, of Hamilton, a featherweight, and Kitchener lightweight Willie Erisman.

A mixup occurred in the women's gymnastics' events when gold winners were declared in floor exercise, balanced beam, uneven bar and the vault. An official of the Ontario Gymnastics Federation told reporters and the winning gymnasts that the events were finals, but later explained they were only preliminaries leading to medals today.

Four gymnasts from the powerful Toronto Scarborough Winnsonettes including Sharon Tsukamoto who won both of her events, excitedly told reporters about their gold-medal performances before learning of the mistake.

Speedskating, cancelled because of poor ice on the outdoor Centennial Park pond and faulty marking of the course, was to take place today.

Veteran Colt Tackle Plays Oakland 'for Pride'

BALTIMORE (AP) — Offensive tackle Bob Vogel of Baltimore Colts is looking forward to opposing Sam Davidson, Oakland Raiders' defensive end in Sunday's American Football Conference title game.

"Something that stimulates me," Vogel said. "Is that all the three teams switched from the National Football League to the AFC, we're the only one left, in the playoffs.

"I think we have something special to prove. The last time we were in the Super Bowl, we were badly embarrassed. You don't soon forget that kind of thing."

Vogel referred to 1959, when the Colts lost 14-7 to the underdog New York Jets and became the first team from the NFL to lose in the Super Bowl.

"The motivating factor, to me at least," said Vogel, an eight-year pro veteran, "is not solely financial. Pride means an awful lot, and Oakland new is standing in the way of the Colts having another shot at the Super Bowl."

Each player on the winning team in Sunday's title game in Baltimore will receive $2,500, and the Super Bowl will mean another $15,000 each for the winning players.

"Playing against Davidson is a real challenge," Vogel said. "He is stronger and taller than me, and must outweigh me almost 40 pounds. I guess I enjoy playing against him because he works hard at his job."

Asked about Davidson's reputation for taking cheap shots at ball carriers after the play is over, Vogel said:

"I've never witnessed anything like that. Sam doesn't never tried to maim me or said anything derogatory, I'm not too concerned about such charges. If I do my job properly, he shouldn't have a chance to take a shot."

"I know one thing," Vogel said. "I'll never do anything to antagonize an opponent. That's a mistake. It's hard enough to play normally without starting a superbumah effort."

Rozelle on Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting times for Sunday's National Football League conference championship games, as announced Monday by commissioner Pete Rozelle:

—American Football Conference at Baltimore between the Baltimore Colts and Oakland Raiders, 2 p.m., EST.

—National Football Conference at San Francisco between San Francisco 49ers and Dallas Cowboys, 5 p.m., EST.

The winners will meet in the Super Bowl at Miami, Fla., Sunday, Jan. 17, at 2 p.m. EST.

Golden Gaels Good at Home

KINGSTON (CP) — Queen's Golden Gaels, emerged as the only team with two victories in the opening round of the two-day Queen's University hockey tournament Monday.

Today, the Gaels meet Carleton University Ravens, who received a bye into the A division semi-finals after winning their morning encounter. In B division semi-final, the University of Waterloo Warriors meet the University of Windsor Lancers.

Both division finalists meet for the championship tonight.

In second-round play, the Gaels defeated University of Ottawa Gee-Gees 11-1 and Waterloo beat University of Guelph Gryphons 5-1.

Queen's defeated Waterloo 5-4 in the opening round and Windsor turned back Ottawa 7-2. The Ravens scored a 4-1 win over Guelph.

Morris Mott, former member of Canada's national team, led the Gaels' with three goals. Peter Kennedy, Murray Douglas and Stan Galt each added a pair. Single goals went to Dave Field and Frank Coffey. John Holgate scored for Ottawa.

Three goals by Dave Simpson paced Waterloo. Jim Nicholson and Labo Vajteric scored the other goals. Stu Gresham replied for Guelph.

Sharing the goals in the Gaels' opening win were Mott, Bob Kinden, Rick Hall, Smith and Nurel Lester.

Bob Baver shot twice for Waterloo and John Hall and Dave Farrago had one each.

Can Landry Beat Star Pupil?

DALLAS (AP) — How do you go about beating someone you've taught everything you know?

That's the problem of coach Tom Landry in preparing his Dallas Cowboys for Sunday's National Football Conference final with San Francisco 49ers in Kezar Stadium.

The coach of the 49ers is Dick Nolan, Landry's defensive coach in 1956 and 1957 when the Cowboys came close to defeating Green Bay Packers for the National Football League title.

"Tom taught me everything I know," Nolan said Sunday after San Francisco had upset Minnesota Vikings 17-14. "I'll enjoy playing against him."

The Dallas defence has gone 31 consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown, but Landry is making it clear the Cowboys can't live by defence alone against the 49ers.

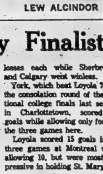
"I know this, we'll have to do some scoring against San Francisco because the 49ers will be scoring with a guy like quarterback John Brodie in there," Landry said.

Dallas rushed for more than 200 yards against Detroit Lions in the 5-0 victory Sunday and came away with only a field goal. Quarterback Eddy Morton could hit but four of 18 passes for 38 yards.

"Cris Burt's been having trouble with his elbow and his hand . . . and I'm hopeful he'll be working more this week," Landry said.

Alcindor Hits Early

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



The Lew Alcindor-led Milwaukee Bucks, sporting the best record in pro basketball, reached another high Monday night.

The Bucks, paced by Alcindor's 37 first-period points, swamped Cincinnati Royals 117-114 and increased their National Basketball Association Midwest Division lead to six games over the idle Detroit Pistons. It was Milwaukee's highest point total of the season.

Alcindor, the NBA's leading scorer, finished with 39 points as the Bucks captured their 29th victory a 34 starts.

In the only other NBA game, San Francisco Warriors trimmed Atlanta Hawks 115-104.

The Bucks' previous high was 134 points in a victory over Cleveland Cavaliers earlier in the season. Greg Smith added 26 while Bob Dandridge had 23 and Oscar Robertson 22 for the winners. Flynn Robinson had 22 points for Cincinnati.

LEW ALCINDOR

Nate Thurmond poured in 30 points, 13 in the first half as San Francisco rolled to a 65-44 halftime edge at Atlanta and easily defeated the Hawks. Pete Maravich led Atlanta with 29 points.

Tourney Finalists Stingy

TORONTO (CP) — Forwards for Loyola College Warriors and York University Yeomen may find it tough collecting goals against proven netminders in tonight's final of the Hockey Canada invitational tournament.

York goalie Bill Holden earned the first shutout of the four-day tournament Monday night as the Yeomen defeated University of Toronto Blues 2-0 in the west division here. The Blues outshot York 28-22.

In the east division at Montreal, meanwhile, Loyola netminder Rocky Marcello made 29 saves against high-scoring St. Mary's Huskies from Halifax to back the Warriors in a 3-2 victory.

Both Loyola and York emerged with three wins and no losses to go into the final game scheduled for 8 p.m. EST at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Blues and the Huskies each wound up with two wins and a loss to gain second place in their respective divisions.

In other games Monday, Laval University beat University of Sherbrooke 4-3 at Montreal and Laurentian University of Sudbury downed University of Calgary Dinosaurs 8-6 here.

Laval and Laurentian thus finished with one win and two losses each while Sherbrooke and Calgary went winless.

York, which beat Loyola 7-3 in the consolation round of the national college finals last season in Charlottetown, scored 15 goals while allowing only four in the three games here.

Loyola scored 15 goals in its three games at Montreal while allowing 10, but were most impressive in holding St. Mary's to only two goals Monday. The Huskies scored 25 times while allowing six against in their three games.

Loyola coach Dave Draper had special praise for his goalie after the Monday victory.

"He did it for us again," Draper said. "He came up with the big saves, especially in the third period."

"I was confident our boys would be ready for tonight. They have never really let me down."

Draper said his team gained revenge for their loss to St. Mary's in the national finals in Charlottetown.

"Not too many of our boys forgot that. They beat us badly in Charlottetown."

The Warriors got the winning goal from team captain Chris Hayes later in the second period on a power play. John Hutton and Pat Mondor beat goalie Chuck Goddard for the other Loyola goals. Richie Bayes scored both Huskies goals.

In Toronto, Murray Stroud scored with less than five minutes remaining to spark York. Stroud banged the puck home after goalie Great Cole failed to smother the rebound on a shot by Steve Latkevich, who got York's second goal less than three minutes later.

May we drive home a point?

Winter driving, especially at holiday time, can be tricky. You keep your car in shape. You check your battery, tires, headlights and seat belts.

But how about yourself?

If toasting the holidays is part of the way you celebrate, enjoy your celebration, but enjoy it wisely. It's a good idea not to overeat. And the same goes for drinking.

At The House of Seagram, we've been driving home that point since our first Moderation message in 1934.

Russians Schedule Appeal for Jewish Hijack Defenders

MOSCOW (CP) — Acting with unusual speed, the Soviet government scheduled a hearing Wednesday on appeals from the 11 defendants in the Jewish hijacking trial. The speedup in the proceedings was seen as an attempt to end the worldwide furore over the severity of the sentences.

It appeared that the death sentences given six Russian nationals in a Spam Monday might help the Kremlin achieve this, such as the British-French intervention of the Suez in 1956 shamed Western condemnation of the Soviet repression of the Hungarian revolt.

Normally an appeal of a conviction takes six to eight weeks in the Soviet Union. But this two [illegible] to end the [illegible] two gentiles in labor camps were [illegible] to appear before the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation only six days after their conviction in Leningrad.

Some sources suggested that the government was speeding up the process because it wants "this uproar in the door" before the Communist party congress in March.

Nine more Jews are scheduled for trial Jan. 6 in Leningrad, and another 12 are to be tried in Riga and Kishinev, informed sources have reported. They are charged with opposition in one degree or another to the Soviet government's ban on emigration to Israel.

The 11 Leningrad defendants admitted plotting to commandeer a small Aeroflot plane in June. The group planned to fly to Sweden, said the Jews were going on to Israel, but they were arrested as they were about to board the plane in Leningrad.

Protests in foreign countries, which began during the trial increased in the wake of the sentencing, and several Western governments joined in with appeals to the Kremlin leaders for clemency.

Jewish groups took to the streets in several European cities Monday, the Soviet embassy in Washington was picketed, and the militant Jewish Defence League demonstrated outside the U.S. Mission to the United Nations in New York.

In Paris, demonstrators briefly occupied the offices of the Soviet Intourist travel agency, and France's most powerful labor union group, the Communist-led Confederation Generale du Travail, deplored the sentences.

In Tel Aviv, the cabinet supported a decision by the Israeli General Federation of Labor to bring work throughout the country to a halt today with two-minutes of silence as an expression of protest.

A number of demonstrators were arrested in Washington last night for a candlelight march to the White House, and 400 to 500 American Jewish leaders plan meetings Wednesday with representatives of several embassies, congressional leaders and possibly President Nixon.

Jews in Moscow circulated four petitions among foreign correspondents demanding that the sentences be softened.

The French Communist party said today that while it thought the death sentences given to two Soviet Jews at the trial were harsh, it disociated itself from any anti-Soviet demonstrations.

Food Sales Climb Again

EDMONTON (CP) — A report by the federal agriculture department says large sales of barley, wheat and rapeseed in 1970 should offset food purchases from other countries.

Although no figures are yet available, the report, by M. N. Gifford of the agriculture department economics branch, says food sales will be higher than 1969, the first year in modern history more food was imported than exported in this country.

Up to 1969, Canada consistently sold more food than it bought and during 1968, a record year, it exported $980 million-worth more than it imported.

"As recently as 1968, the value of our exports was $300 million higher than the value of imports but in 1969 the balance tipped the other way and we showed a $35-million deficit in agricultural trade."

Mr. Gifford, in a report on Canada's agricultural trade during the last decade, said the most striking development during the entire post-war period was the emergence of Russia, China and other centrally-planned economies as major markets, particularly for wheat.

"Exports to these countries in 1969 stood at $20 million while in 1966 their value totalled more than $619 million."

The main reason for poor export in 1969 was "sharply-reduced demand" by these countries for wheat.

"Wheat and flour exports to Russia dropped to $2 million in 1969 from $318 million in 1966."

Mr. Gifford said there are concerns on the agricultural trade horizon because the level of Canadian exports is "overwhelmingly determined by wheat sales."

"In view of the relatively stagnant commercial demand for wheat it will be difficult for Canada to sustain an annual average export level of from 320 to 375 million bushels, including flour equivalent, over the next decade."

Another complication is Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market and a resulting significant drop in farm exports to that market—second only in value to the United States.

Expanding traditional markets and opening new ones would require aggressive measures such as competitive pricing, guarantees of supply, and

Divorce Report Denied

LONDON (AP) — A spokesman for Princess Margaret today denied a report in the Washington Post that the Princess and her husband, Lord Snowdon, have agreed to separation and divorce.

"It is certainly not true at all," said Mal. John Griffin, spokesman for the princess.

The marriage has frequently been reported on the rocks in recent years, but each time the reports have been denied. Much of the gossip results from sharp exchanges in public between the couple.

Quoting close friends and relatives of Lord Snowdon, Post columnist Maxine Cheire reports the decision to break up was made recently and will be announced soon.

The Post reports that Snowdon has been dating a Vogue magazine staffer on recent trips to New York and is the one seeking the separation.

Food Also Destroyed

Vietnam Forests Ruined for Years

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. destruction of forests in South Vietnam with herbicides has produced damage which will last for decades, an investigation by civilian scientists has found.

In addition, great quantities of food have been destroyed and there is a possibility that human health has been damaged by the chemicals, they say.

The study of the ecological effects of the use of herbicides in Vietnam was undertaken by a scientific group headed by Dr. Matthew S. Meselson, professor of biology at Harvard University.

Some of the findings of the study were reported Monday to reporters and scientists were on the program today to be read by participants in the American Association for the Advance of Science's annual meeting.

The scientific organization appropriated $30,000 last year for the study and named Dr. Meselson to develop a plan for conducting it

He appointed Dr. Arthur H. Westing, a professor of Botany at Windham College in Vermont, as director of the herbicide assessment committee.

The major findings in this report involved mangrove and tropical hardwood forests. Other aspects of the report considered contamination of food chains, health effects and crop destruction.

Generally, herbicides have been used on wooded areas in South Vietnam to destroy hideaways for snipers and to open forests for military purposes.

Crops have been sprayed with the aim of destroying Viet Cong food supplies, although those involved with the study maintain that the effect has been to destroy food supplies of civilians.

The White House last week announced that the use of herbicides is being gradually ended in South Vietnam.

Both Meselson and Westing said the study was hampered by refusal of the U.S. defense department to provide detailed information as to where spraying has occurred, although other federal agencies were co-operative in the study.

Mangrove forests make up much of the coastal area of the Mekong Delta region. The committee's estimates that about half of these forests, about 1,400 square kilometres, have been sprayed with herbicides.

The species of this plant are, for unknown reasons, particularly sensitive to herbicides, the commission said, and essentially all vegetation has been killed.

Meselson showed photographs of areas sprayed with herbicides which remain barren nearly six years after having been sprayed, in contrast to thick growth in areas which are not sprayed.

The mangroves were once a major source of fuel wood and charcoal for the Vietnamese.

Westing estimated that it will take decades for the mangroves forests to recover.

About 2,000 square kilometres of land in South Vietnam have been sprayed to destroy food crops, the commission found.

"It has been authoritatively estimated that this entailed the destruction of enough food to feed approximately 600,000 persons for a year," it reported.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Medical Check Beats 'Looks'

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why is it that so many people who look sick live to be 80? Others who are ruled healthy-looking suddenly die.

I was completely shaken up last week when one of my best friends went to the hospital and didn't come out of it alive. He appeared to be an excellent physical specimen. And I've noticed before that, a healthy-looking neighbor went in for a hysterectomy. She died of cancer. Shouldn't "looks" be important in warning a person whether or not he has serious illness? — Mr. F.

Comment: There's an old macabre story that goes something like this. Two men are pasting upon the features of a recently departed friend. One of them says, "He can't be dead. He looks so good."

Of course "looks" may be an important indication of illness, Mr. F. However, in too many cases, appearances of the patient fool you. This is one of the reasons why doctors recommend periodic physical examinations: to recognize disease early — no matter how the patient looks.

In the first instance you mention, Mr. F., it is possible that your friend may have been experiencing recurring bouts of "indigestion", which he treated with bicarb or some other antacid, himself.

He may not have realized that what he was having for months before his hospital admission were attacks of angina. Or, at the worst, he may have "looked healthy."

In the second instance, it's possible that your neighbor never had a Pap test periodically (procrastination is the usual reason) to be sure she did not have cancer of the uterus. "Looking well" is no substitute for really knowing one's state of health.

If there is any moral to be drawn, it is this: "Look" well is no guarantee of being well." Many innocent human beings might still be alive today if they relied upon examinations rather than on looks.

Also, if people have any doubt about whether a seemingly trivial symptom is a sign of trouble, they should consult a doctor immediately. The earlier and possible treatment of any condition is a matter that only the physician can determine.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I had a hysterectomy about a year ago for large fibroids. I also had one ovary removed. Since then I have had only a few hot flashes and they have not been especially nervous. But I have one complaint that troubles me. My mouth is always exceptionally dry. Is this a common symptom of the menopause? Shall I bother my doctor about it? — Mrs. O.

Comment: Not common but annoying when present. In these patients, treatment with hormones has overcome this symptom. Has your doctor prescribed estrogen? If there's no contraindication in taking them, you may find they will help.

Incidentally, have you had any nasal obstruction develop, like polyps, etc., sometimes mouth - breathing will cause dryness.

If no specific cause can be found, doctors sometimes prescribe medicines to increase the secretion of saliva. Whatever the reason for dry mouth, you will not be "bothering" your doctor by consulting him.

From Mrs. W. to Mrs. X.: Take time to spend with the kids. Do it before you start your daily work. They'll always remember the good times you had with you, but not how often you cleaned the oven. Teach your older children to paint, paste, use blocks. Talk to your infants for five to 10 minutes after a feeding before putting them down — so they won't be ignored either.

They'll all be grown and gone before you realize the years have slipped by. Don't live in regret for what might have been.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Muvumizi Not Desirable

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As a language grows more "sophisticated," in the modern sense, it seems to accomplish two opposite things at once: it clarifies expression and confuses it at the same time. In "advanced" societies words are so often used as smoke - screens as they are used as smoke-signals.

This reflection was prompted by a little news item out of Swaziland, the new African state which has established its own national airline. Recently, the airline decided to print tickets in Swazi instead of English, "and ran up against some knotty linguistic problems," the story noted.

Technical and legalistic terms are nonexistent in this tribal tongue, and the official translator of the tickets finally gave up trying to translate such phrases as "unless expressly so provided, nothing herein contained shall waive any limitation of liability of carrier, . . ."

Every passenger has seen this gobbledygook on his ticket, and not one out of a thousand English speaking travellers can understand it. Such language is devised (as it is in household leases) to give the carrier and the landlord all the best of it, while confusing the layman. In our society, millions of people agree to or sign things they haven't read because they couldn't understand them even after reading.

This is not to make the arrogant assumption that tribal languages are childish, as so many of us do. Prof. Mario Pei in his book, "The Story of Language," points out that the two principal African tongues, Hausa and Swahili, are far from crude or simple-minded.

Swahili, indeed, he tells us, has reached such a stage of development that the commercies of Moslem have been successfully translated into it, and presented with an all-African cast. And the Bantu language (of which family this is a member) are termed "infinitely expressive" by this professor of linguistics.

For instance, English has no word like "mumagamagama" which means "one who loses other people's things," or "muwavi", meaning "a good-looking woman who can't cook." Or "mumalodoki" meaning "someone who grows when awakened in the morning", or "mumalaki" meaning "one who is constantly divorcing and remarrying."

Bantu even has a word for a yesman" — "muvumizi".

The terms and phrases we have developed, which are lacking in Swazi and other native languages, are the tools of communication as weapons of obfuscation — means of confounding, intimidating, impressing, frightening or fooling people. When you are lofty-toled that your ailment may be "iatrogenic," what that means is that it's probably something you picked up from the doctor.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 30

Your birthday today: Diversity of action, development of intuitive powers characterize the coming year. Your talent for dynamic order is brought out by the pressures and opportunities of this mixed year. Romantic attachments grow deep and poignant, although your natural comfort may limit the chance to cultivate them. Today's natives seek long-term goals, somewhat way ahead of their times. They are restless, sensitive, and sometimes misjudge important matters by being unwilling to accept less than perfection.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): In an easy-going day, look after routine chores, stay in a good humor, follow up recent social contacts. Line up your plans, budgets if you have no thing livelier to do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put your main situation on the subject of home, property, and any improvements needed. Short-term plans for the upcoming year.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you didn't get such things as long-range adjustments settled yesterday, get them with them today. Your feelings run high. Adventure is heading your way.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The coming weekend needs extra advance preparations. Aside from this, enjoy a rather peaceful program. Clear out your work-year today if you can.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Intuition guides you today, and it may include impulse buying. Make this a gala day of good living, high spirits, but moderation in all things.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Some long-desired object comes within reach. Formulate a definite goal for the coming month, organize your resources to achieve it. Don't fall day, relax.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Home and community interests claim your attention, many distract you from regular work. Review your finances, set budgets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Nothing scores like today's success. You have the ability to make things clearer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Speed up, ask for a raise if you've earned one. Find out how your plans of group funds is being used. Gather support for your projects in your organizations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your idea is sounder than the facts lately presented. Check to make sure, then go ahead trusting your own intuition. Allow for the needs and limitations of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Bring official transactions to completion, where possible. Today's meetings have been long-planned; take nothing for granted. Take home a nice surprise for your loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your mood is just visionary enough to intrigue your friends into working out trials. Ask for help in solving home problems. A small party adds gaiety this evening.

Frazier Not Just Another Bulldozer for Clay

By GEO. R. CARVER

Many heavyweight champions have been classed as "colorful" by the typerati of pundits and ringside quarterbacks who haunt the wings of world title fights.

But for sheer showmanship in and out of the ring, flamboyancy and doggoned egotism, one Muhammad Ali, formerly Cassius Clay — you name it — wins the gold-faceted bathtub.

Ali was and is a masterboner. His ring footwork is symmetry of motion. His "right hand knowed" what his left hand does. They form an excellent combination.

Flamboyancy is prominent in his self-appointed public relations role. He has never lacked for braggadocio. His ego is illustrated in his "I am the Greatest".

And he is the only world champion who ever surrounded himself, and still does, with an uneven borealis of colored courtiers who at times out-brilliance the great man himself.

Did you ever see a boxing diva fight a pas-de-deux with a slow-moving bulldozer, so to speak? I did: I saw the great one vs. the second decision over Toronto's George Chuvalo.

The slugging scene was only the second man to go the 15-round route with Ali.

During the Ali-Chuvalo bout I got it from the mouth of a real expert as to who would win the fight. Seated in the ringside press row two seats from me was the late Rocky Marciano, former heavyweight champion.

CASSIUS CLAY,

After the eighth round I leaned over and asked Rocky the big question. Rocky never looked up. He shook his head and whispered, "Your boy will never win this one. He's not thinking." Rocky proved himself right.

Head down, Chuvalo bull-dozed his attacks from a client frontal position. Once or twice he caught Ali off balance, failed to lower the velocity of his corner and backed away instead of following through.

Clay had the Maple Leaf Gardens audience in gasps during his leisurely walk to the ring. Tall and erect, clad in a shiny silk bathrobe, he strode down the passageway to the ringside flanked by two lines of show - biz attendants, clad in black silk muslin outfits. They took up a position along Ali's sides of the ring — and never moved.

They arrived at the Gardens earlier in the day black - silk suited with beautiful ladies peeking from the dark interiors of black Cadillacs.

After the fight and the announced decision, the conjectures now clad in black leather jackets, lined the ropes, facing outwards and preventing people from climbing in the ring. Their services have been glue on the seats in press row.

There are some who believe Ali is slipping. He failed to K. O. Chuvalo within the 9th round, as he had boasted, and from that point on caused his vocal taunting of his foe. Perhaps he had the foreboding the fight was going to be a 15 - round affair. He fought in silence until the final round, when the knockdowns gave him the victory.

But the Ali court is still around in all its pa-pascalian glory. Expressive fur is the new status symbol. Some profer the proverbial black silk suits and Cadillacs of the movie hue, but the greatest majority favor the dégarted offspring of ermine and mink. And none of this cheap dyed-rabbit stuff, either.

A current magazine carries pictures and a brief story on the new sartorial splendor of the cats of the dark Ali.

One is pictured in an entire mink outfit, suit, midi coat, socks and sombrero. The story says a tall handsome type drove to the Statler-Hilton Hotel the night of the Bonavena fight clad in an all - white ermine ensemble. He stepped from a pure-white Rolls Royce, proffered a doorman a fifty-dollar bill with "Watch the cah, cat, I'll be back after three rounds."

The gals of the entourage are sepia beauties whose gaudy plumage is ruffled by fancy comments of the curious.

But an ominous dark cloud is looming over the Muhammad Ali horizon. It is called Joe Frazier and some sort of a sepia curls his lips when the name Ali is mentioned.

Frazier in most places is recognized as world heavyweight champion but this miserly esteem as fuel for the Muhammad fire of tonsilar tirades.

Frazier is no dark alley ty (no pun intended) battler and has earned an enviable ring reputation. Neither is he a bulldozer type that throws punches without thinking.

All known Joe Blake has him via television the other night with the usual threats and predictions. Quod erat demonstrandum.

Muhammad will have to fight harder than he did against Bonavena if he is to defeat Frazier. I think Frazier will win but don't go blowing the cookie-jar money on that assertion. And study well the collection of the typewriter pundits and ringside quarterbacks before you place that bet.

Remember, all but one of them called the Stampeders to win the Grey Cup — and you know what happened.

Anyway, for a million bucks, I'd let Joe Frazier chase me all over Prince Edward county in my birthday suit.

Chief's Role Praised by Critics

NEW YORK (CP) — Dan George, an Indian chief from North Vancouver who is the longshot selection in the movie Little Big Man, turned in such a memorable performance that the New York film critics group awarded him its prize for best supporting actor.

George, a Salish chief, won critical praise for his part as Old Lodge Skins, a Cheyenne chief. Critics prised his innate dignity, called his performance a joy to watch, and one critic used the term "priceless" to describe the scene where the chief prepares for his own imminent death.

Time magazine referred to Little Big Man, with Dustin Hoffman in the starring role as the 121-year-old last white survivor of Custer's Last Stand, as the "new western to begin all westerns."

Director Arthur Penn tried unsuccessfully to get Sir Laurence Olivier or Paul Scofield for the Indian-chief role. Then Richard Boone was given the part, but Boone pulled out before filming started.

Only then did Penn give the role to Chief George.

He began his making his mark as an actor late in life.

Although not known internationally, he has had a busy acting career for a number of years and is best known in Canada for his portrayal of Ol' Antoine, a character in a CBC television series written by Vancouver author Paul St. Pierre.

A hereditary chief, he was a logger and longshoreman prior to his start as an actor.

This came about accidentally when his son was an extra in a CBC production in which a white actor played the key role of an old Indian.

When the actor became ill, the son asked the producer: "Why not give a real Indian a chance?"

Some parts of Little Big Man were filmed in Alberta. It had its world premiere in New York in mid-December.

Five Easy Pieces, a film about a man who flees from his family and from society, won the award for the best film of 1970.

George C. Scott was best actor of the year for his portrayal of the title character in the movie Patton, about the war. British actress Glenda Jackson was selected best actress of the year for her portrayal of the liberated woman in the film Women in Love

Pound Reports May Be Required

TRENTON (Staff) — The town's clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry told council last night that, if the dogcatcher's counsel is to be reserved, it may be necessary to ask the animal control officer to report the circumstances of each catch.

Mr. Larry made the comment after mentioning that a letter of complaint against the practices of the dogcatcher had been received from D. M. McLean of 97 Spring St.

A similar letter was received by council September 8 but no action was taken on the matter. One of the problems, clerk Larry told council last night is that the reports of Don Tucker, the control officer, do not correspond with those of the pound keepers.

Filing regular catch occurrence reports may be an answer, Mr. Larry indicated, "although we (the town) may have to pay him more money".

Fate of 6 Basques Now with Cabinet

Franco Speaks Tonight

MADRID (CP) — The cabinet will meet tonight to make a final decision on whether to reprieve six Basque Nationalist guerrillas condemned to face the firing squad, government sources announced.

Lt.-Gen. Tomas Garcia Rebull, commander of the Burgos military region, confirmed the nine death sentences—three men received two each—late this morning, they said.

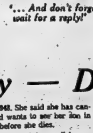
Until he had done so, the cabinet could not be officially notified.

The legal department of Burgos divisional military headquarters earlier today finished its task of studying the sentences, analyzing observations on them submitted by defence lawyers and drawing up an advisory report, officials said.

The sentences then went for confirmation to Garcia Rebull, who signed them immediately.

The confirmed sentences are being delivered to the army minister in Madrid, Lt.-Gen. Juan Castanon, who will officially notify the cabinet of them, the officials said.

It is only then that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, as head of state, can exercise his prerogative of reprieve by commuting death penalties to 30-year prison sentences.



Franco held urgent talks with the cabinet Tuesday and the advisory Council of the Realm. The head of state was expected to make his annual year-end address on television tonight.

Word of a decision on the sentences being possible tonight came amid a new wave of protests overnight in Spain, most of them in a rich ski-ing area, which added weight to a worldwide outcry over the severity of the verdicts announced two days ago by a military court in Burgos. Nine other terrorists received long prison terms.

Informed sources said the family of Francisco Javier Larena, a 25-year-old university student condemned to death, was among those who spent the night inside San Jorge Church in Sandurce.

The 60 protesters left this morning as did 60 others who spent a similar overnight vigil in the Church of Santa Maria in nearby Sestao.

Three hundred doctors and 50 lawyers staged sit-ins in their colleges in Barcelona to protest the verdicts.

Stolen Truck Was Tipoff In Kidnapping

MONTREAL (CP) — A stolen food delivery truck found Oct. 22 in St. Luc 30 miles southeast of Montreal touched off a chain of events that ultimately led to the arrest Monday of Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard.

The three were sought in connection with the kidnapping and slaying of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

"I suspected the Front de Libération de Québec kidnappers might be hiding in my town when we found the truck emptied of its contents," Police Chief Alain Dufresne of St. Luc said in an interview.

The Rose brothers and Simard, picked up in a raid on an isolated farmhouse, appeared Tuesday at a special coroner's inquest and were given formal notice that they are being held as material witnesses in the murder of Mr. Laporte.

In a 36-second appearance—a formality—the three were told they are being held under Canada-wide warrants issued Nov. 5. They are to be brought before the coroner's inquest into the death of Mr. Laporte when it reopens next Monday.

The labor minister was kidnapped from his suburban St. Lambert home Oct. 10 and found in the trunk of a car eight days later near the St. Hubert Canadian Armed Forces base, strangled by a chain he wore around his neck.

"I found it odd that all that was missing in the truck were the groceries," Mr. Dufresne said.

He notified the provincial police and the RCMP and the following day, Oct. 23, they made a search of all the buildings on De Grandpre road where the farmhouse is located.

The search party had to break open the back door when they entered the farmhouse.

Chief Dufresne's suspicions were aroused even more when he and the other members of the raiding party found no one in the house, the kitchen stove on and the refrigerator door left partly open.

Police Returned to Search

"We didn't stay in the house long," he said, "because we had other buildings to search."

When he did get to any complaint from the tenant of the farmhouse that someone had broken into the house, Chief Dufresne suspected something was definitely amiss.

A week later, the RCMP informed him that the farmhouse in question was still being investigated.

"They asked us to keep an eye on the house," he said. "because a number of cars had been seen going there."

Police made another search of the house Dec. 23 and found Michel Vigur there. He was brought in for questioning and later released.

Vigur, a 38-year-old accountant who rented the large white farmhouse in October, was picked up with the three suspects and is in custody until Jan. 6. No charges were laid against him at the inquest Tuesday.

A raiding party of the QPP searched the farmhouse again on Christmas day but found no trace of the men there, or that someone was living in the house, however.

Monday morning, police returned Vigur again and after a brief interrogation he told them the Rose brothers and Simard were hiding—inside a well-concealed 35-foot long box under the cement basement floor of the farmhouse.

Jacques Rose, a 33-year-old credit company manager, who lives about a quarter-mile from the farmhouse, said he saw "a pile of lumber" near the front of the house during the month of October.

Hammering Went On For Days

Another neighbor spoke of hammering coming from the house. "It went on for days," he said.

In other developments, four judges have been assigned to hear a large number of bail applications for people being held in jail under the War Measures Act. Bail applications were presented in court Tuesday on behalf of at least 17 detainees. The applications are to be continued today.

A flurry of applications for bail Tuesday followed the arrests of the three prime suspects.

Justice Minister Jeronne Choquette said after the arrests that he was withdrawing his veto of bail for persons picked up under the act, and bail applications would be handled in the normal way.

In Sherbrooke, bail was granted to two married couples picked up on the University of Sherbrooke campus Oct. 18, two days after the act was invoked.

Real Andelin, and his wife Jeannine, 24, of Longueuil and Maurice Gauthier, 22, and his wife Jacoline, 21, were charged with distributing pamphlets advocating the aims of the outlawed FLQ.

They are to appear for trial Feb. 1.

Appearing with the Rose brothers and Simard in court Tuesday were seven other persons, including Vigur. They are to testify Monday.

Paul Rose was the first to appear in court.

Simard was next to be led to the stand. Sporting a thin beard and dressed in a grey work shirt and blue trousers he shot with arms folded across his chest, his expression somewhere between grimness and anger.

When asked if he had a lawyer, he shot back: "I don't want one."

Then Jacques Rose, dressed in a light blue shirt and blue jeans took the stand and spent most of his time looking around the courtroom. He whisked at someone in the crowd.

Asked whether he had an attorney, he replied:

"I haven't asked for one."

He was then led out of the courtroom.

Paul Rose Swaggers In Court

Led by a QPP constable, Paul Rose swaggered into the courtroom with a smirk that remained on his face throughout the brief appearance. Asked if he had a lawyer, he shot back a "no."

He then asked special coroner Jacques Trahan to reopen an inquest into the Oct. 7, 1969, death of QPP Constable Robert Dumas. The officer was shot at the Murray Hill taxi company's garage at the height of a demonstration during the Montreal police strike.

"I would like to request the resumption of the Murray Hill inquest," Rose told Judge Trahan with a grin.

The judge snapped back saying: "I am in charge of these proceedings. You are being held on a warrant . . ."

"Signed by Choquette," Rose interrupted.

"No, signed by me," replied Judge Trahan. "You will appear Monday to testify before the regular session of the Laporte inquest. As for today, this is all."

As Rose responded with a mocking little bow, the coroner added sharply: "If you're polite with us, we will be polite with you."

CN Train Derailed, 3 Hurt

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian National Railways Super Continental bumped off the tracks near Dunrobin 20 miles north west of here at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday, shaking up holiday passengers but leaving none with serious injuries.

Ottawa Civic Hospital reported today that two persons were admitted with minor injuries. The hospital said eight others were treated for cuts and bruises and released. But a CNR spokesman in Montreal said only four were taken to the hospital from the train by ambulance.

The CNR spokesman said cause of the eight-car derailment is still not known. The Super Continental was bound for Montreal from Vancouver.

He said the cleanup operation will take "considerable" time and until it is completed CNR trains will use Canadian Pacific Railway tracks.

Colleges Retrench Programs

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario department of education spokesman says courses in the province's 20 community colleges will be consolidated in 1971.

J. W. Jackson, director of the department's colleges of applied arts and technology branch, said in an interview Tuesday the province's rutback in education has put college building plans about five years behind original projections.

The college, with a 1970 enrolment of 30,382 full time and 58,000 part-time students and a projected increase of 20 to 25 per cent in 1971, were set up to make shift quarters when the program began in 1966-67.

"After an initial flurry of expanding as rapidly as possible, the next two or three years will be a period of consolidation," said Mr. Jackson.

"The tendency will be for each college to develop a common core program with a greater selection of options."

"The colleges still have to set priorities and limit the number of programs," he said.

Originally, completed campuses were expected in five years but Mr. Jackson said it will take "at least twice that long."

He said the province has no plans to establish new colleges but future growth could come in the form of separate campuses of one college splitting off to become independent colleges.

Treason Appeal Begins

We All Share One Destiny — Death, Says Russian Jew

MOSCOW (CP) — About a dozen Jews stood in the snow outside the Russian Federation Supreme Court today as a closed hearing began on appeals of the nine Jews and two gentiles convicted of plotting to hijack a Soviet airliner to escape from the Soviet Union.

One woman was taken away screaming by two plainclothesmen after she told foreign correspondents "They won't let us into the courtroom or out of the country."

Two of the Jewish defendants were sentenced to death and the other defendants given labor camp terms of from four to 15 years. All were convicted of treason last Thursday at Leningrad.

During the Leningrad trial, the defendants admitted they conspired to commandeer the small Aeroflot plane so the Jews could emigrate to Israel. But they denied their actions constituted treason.

No relatives of the defendants or sympathizers were allowed inside the courthouse.

The defendants themselves were believed to be still in Leningrad.

The woman arrested outside the Supreme Court, Exfir Mostkova of Novosibirsk, told correspondents she has been trying unsuccessfully to go to Israel since 1948. She said she has cancer and wants to see her son in Israel before she dies.

Another spectator, well known Jewish poet Iosif Kerler, said: "The death sentence on them is a death sentence on all of us who want to go to Israel. We all share one destiny."

Like the Leningrad trial, the appeal hearing has been barred to foreign correspondents. A guard said no seats were available.

Several Western governments have appealed for clemency for Mark Dymshits and Edvard Kuznetsov, the two sentenced to death for masterminding the hijack plan. Criticism of the severity of the sentences also has come from the Communist parties of several Western nations and from dissidents inside the Soviet Union.

Andrei Sakharov, the physicist who developed the Soviet Union's hydrogen bomb, circulated a letter among foreign correspondents Tuesday calling for commutation of the death sentences, reduction of the other sentences, and clemency for the black Communist Angela Davis, who is facing murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges in California. The letter was addressed to President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union and President Nixon.

But it still was an open question, in the opinion of most observers here, whether the Supreme Court would commute the sentences as a mercy gesture or uphold them to underline the government's tough stand against hijacking.

If the Supreme Court upholds the death sentences, then the last resort of Dymshits and Kuznetsov against facing a firing squad is a plea of mercy to the presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Federation, its ruling body.

After Twenty Years as Mayor H. J. McFarland Steps Down

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, who will step down from office tomorrow, has predicted that in the next two years members of town council will be forced to watch expenses closely, carefully screening applications for salary increases. He explained that many will need higher wages and noted that this could cause "snowball".

"Town things must be watched and controlled at all times," asserted Mayor McFarland who added that most employees requesting salary increases are deserving workers."

He observed that members of the public works committee will find it necessary to repair streets and sidewalks regularly, avoiding large expenditures to restore neglected property. "If streets are not kept up in the proper manner it can cost a fortune to bring them back," said the mayor.

The construction tycoon, who has headed Picton's administration for two decades, commented yesterday that Prince Edward County industrial commissioner William Duggan could assist the local economy "if everyone works with him." Mayor McFarland remarked that he feels a dinner introducing Mr. Duggan to municipal officials should be held. He referred to a speech made by Mr. Duggan at a Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce meeting during which he mentioned that he had not yet met certain local persons. The mayor praised Mr. Duggan's suggestion in chamber members that it is important for everyone to work together without friction.

Mayor McFarland briefly reviewed an incident last year in which a chamber of commerce member publicly criticized Plaustell Aircraft's failure to establish industrial operations at its Camp Picton buildings. "It took me two days to apologize to a number of people," said the mayor. "That kind of stuff is no good; those are the people who hurt industry," he asserted. Plaustell's Prince Edward County property was sold this month to the Loch Sloy holding company, with which Mayor McFarland is reportedly associated.".

Mayor McFarland said that he was "sorry to know" that the Canadian International Paper Co. now has undecided on the location of its multi-million dollar pulp mill. "They would have decided if there had not been so much friction in the chamber of commerce and so on," he said. Mayor McFarland indicated that the federal government and the provincial government each planned to invest $5.5 million in the proposed mill combined with the CIP's $60-million investment. He argued that the proposed mill would have created employment in this area and further north in the Bancroft area.

The mayor confided that he has been in contact with CIP officials recently and is working to woo them to Prince Edward County. He said that he met with the CIP representatives in Belleville this fall and has "kept in touch" and built friendly relations with them to "show them they are welcome here".

Mayor McFarland remains proud and pleased with the development of a hospital unit for the mentally retarded at the site of the former Camp Picton. "It's one of the finest accomplishments in our town and county in a great many years," he declared. Mayor McFarland stated that he has been told by government officials that approximately 800 to 1,200 employees will be hired at the hospital complex by 1973. It is also expected that the hospital will house in the neighborhood of 1,800 patients by this date.

Mayor McFarland discussed his decision not to stand for re-election this month remarking "I called them right — a bunch of cliques organized behind your back to cost the ratepayers money and they will cost them money under matters are blodled properly."

He was referring to a speech he made in Queen Elizabeth school auditorium during nominations for this month's election at town council. On this occasion the mayor charged, "There are a bunch of double crossers in this town and we all know who they are." Yesterday he stated that he was speaking of certain members of council when he felt had formed "a clique".

Picton councillor Margaret Ackerman became mayor of Picton by acclamation when Mayor McFarland declined to qualify his nomination in November.

Still concerned with the future of Picton and Prince Edward, Mayor McFarland affirmed that he would seek re-election again in 1972 if he was convinced that the town was "going wrong". He explained that he would make a bid for re-election for the good of "my people". Mayor McFarland pledged continuing support to the children of Picton and Prince Edward and to senior citizens here.

In final remarks on the coming term of council Mayor McFarland observed, "There have been a lot of improvements in the village. There efforts must take root and grow. The foundations have been laid for several projects. Now it depends on them if they (the new council) take hold."

Tax Increases Are Inevitable Says Prince Edward Warden

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward Warden Gordon Lloyd Alder predicted that the Canadian International pulp mill proposed for Hillier township eventually will locate at Prince Edward county, ignoring protests from at least one local group.

Mr. Lloyd suggested that Pollution Unwanted (PU), one organization investigating the mill, should be renamed Progress Unwanted. "They just don't want industry," he observed, "but if we don't do something now we'll just sit for another 30 years."

He commented that he expects an announcement from CIP officials in 1971 concerning their decision to locate the mill.

Prince Edward county residents should look forward to a new home for the aged by 1973, according to Mr. Lloyd. He explained that an architect likely will be hired next year to prepare drawings for the new home.

"The timing of it is important," said Mr. Lloyd. "We have to have money to pay the bills and schedule it with the department in Toronto."

He outlined construction of the home as probably a three-year project which will begin with a tax raise of one mill this year to pay the expenses of an architect and sketches. In 1973 a second tax raise of one mill will provide funds for construction to begin while an additional one mill increase in 1973 will enable completion of the project. Mr. Lloyd estimated the total cost of the new home at $1¼ to $1½ million.

The province of Ontario will pay 50 per cent of this cost, leaving Prince Edward county responsible for the estimated balance of $600,000 to $700,000.

Gradual tax increases of one mill over a three-year period will raise about $300,000 toward the new house while the balance can be borrowed by council on debenture issue.

"The taxpayer can't stand a three - mill increase in one year," said Mr. Lloyd.

He added that the provincial government would be incapable of withstanding a matching demand for additional funds.

He predicted that the county mill rate will continue to rise.

"They can't hold it; I can't see how they can do otherwise," commented Mr. Lloyd.

Welfare costs, a much discussed expenditure in council will probably "level off" next year in Mr. Lloyd's opinion.

The retiring warden observed that "when the economy gets rolling again" welfare figures probably will stabilize. He noted that graphs show the number of employables receiving welfare has increased while the number of unemployables is actually down.

"There just isn't work," he remarked.

Mr. Lloyd feels that a position against welfare is the fact that children from households assisted by welfare payments can attend school dressed much like their contemporaries.

Commenting on the anticipated changes in local administration Mr. Lloyd said, "we have to go to Ontario government in this county. It's the answer as far as I'm concerned."

He added that he hopes county councillors in 1971 will continue the study of county government.

"If they don't, we'll be in serious trouble," he asserted.

Mr. Lloyd observed that whether a one-tier system of government or an amalgamation of municipalities is adopted remains undecided.

He said that he personally advocated a one-tier system. The basis of this system is found in representation by population following guidelines established by the department of municipal affairs about four years ago.

Mr. Lloyd remarked, "We have to spread the tax base over the whole county if it is to survive and succeed."

He commented that Picton cannot get a broad tax base, yet it indirectly provides services for the entire county. He referred to the fact that members of the Picton Police Department often are required to deal with offenders visiting Picton area from other parts of the county. He suggested that under a county government system the Ontario Provincial Police possibly would be required to protect the town.

Picton police might become a municipal law force dealing with municipal bylaws.

Tourism in Prince Edward has a future in Mr. Lloyd's opinion, but not under present conditions. He feels there is "lots of room for tourist operation but too many are competing with provincial parks".

He suggested that a general upgrading of tourism here would be beneficial.

Conference Speakers Announced

PICTON (Staff) — "Opportunities for Agriculture" will provide the theme for the opening day of the Quinte Farm Conference scheduled to be held at Club Caesars, Belleville, from Jan. 13-15.

Provincial Police Call for Crackdown on Snowmobilers

By HARRY HULBALL
Staff Reporter

Freewheeling snowmobile operators are riding for a bumpier future in the Quinte district.

Stricter supervision — imposed by authorities and vehemently by serious-minded sports enthusiasts — is seen emerging in pace with the sales boom that continues to swell the record number of machines now in Southern Ontario.

(Last year, 93 snowmobilers were killed in accidents across Canada. This year, the Canada Safety Council gloomily predicts a further 100 be killed).

Today, Supt. D. E. Welles-ley — chief of Belleville-district provincial police — warned that patrols will be watching for violators of snowmobile regulations and the law will be strictly enforced.

The Belleville OPP district includes the Kingston area — scene of one of the province's Christmas-holiday snowmobile deaths.

Closer to Belleville, Boxing Day saw a collision at Point Anne that caused a total $800 damage to two snowmobiles — one driven by a 17-year-old youth, the other by a 15-year old juvenile.

Both youths have now been charged — and so have three fathers, who owned the machines, provincial police reported today.

Much of the problem, believes Supt. Wellesley, is caused by lack of knowledge of provincial regulations governing snowmobiles.

In the first flush of ownership, many operators can't wait to get "out there" and have trailing their machines.

Accidents, police point out, of operation are available at OPP detachment offices.

The enormous potential of snowmobiles is being tapped by a small majority of owners, says Ray Worrell, past president of the Quinte Snowmobile Club and now chairman of a group forming a federation of local clubs.

One of the major objects of the Snowmobile Sport Association is "to protect the image of snowmobiling as a sport from such a minority, he says.

The association aims to emphasize the need for responsibility in operating snowmobiles.

But flagrantly careless operators are another problem.

"These people are going to learn through the strong arm of the law," he admits.

"It's a very small minority — but they couldn't care less about their neighbor or their fellow snowmobiler."

Closer supervision also appears scheduled even in the open spaces of the Quinte district.

Ross Tweed, game wardens have built up a fleet of snowmobiles for their patrols — and are now backed by a new game regulation which specifically prohibits harassment of all forms of wildlife.

"We're going to enforce it and we'll be putting on (snowmobile) patrols in the major game concentration areas," said a lands and forests department spokesman today.

The "sheer number" of vehicles now in use gives cause for concern, he said, although snowmobilers usually displayed responsibility.

"I think most people are quite co-operative," said the official. "But there's always the odd few."

As yet, there was no thought of closing off any wildlife areas.

As long as snowmobilers observe the law "nobody is going to quarrel with them at all."

The vehicle offers a benefit to sportsmen who now can reach lakes — not easily accessible at other seasons — which have been stocked with fish by the department, he said.

Neighbor's Snow Angers Editor

TRENTON (Staff) — A letter from a Water Street man read to council here Monday called for action against those who solve the problem of clearing snow from their driveways by plowing it onto the roadway.

Roy Carnish, editor of The Trentonian, charged that residents of the street were "subjected to one of the most brazenly selfish actions" that he had seen in his lifetime on Dec. 18.

Water Street had just been plowed, he said, and many residents had cleared out their driveways. Then, in the evening, a jeep began the job of plowing out the drive of a neighbor.

Mr. Cornish protested that the jeep's plow "pushed several tons of snow onto the road" forming a pile three feet high on the travelled portion of the roadway.

The journalist added that when the town snow plows made additional passes along Water Street, the heap of snow from his neighbor's driveway blocked those belonging to others, and that these people, had to shovel it out by hand.

Mr. Cornish said that he had registered his grievance with the town police force but concluded that "as usual, they could do nothing as far as the rights of citizens are concerned".

In bringing the matter before town council, he called for protection against the action of "big wheels and big heels".

Town engineer Arthur Campbell indicated that the problem is not new but said that he had been "raised over the coals" for trying to take action under the circumstances in the past.

He said that he believed that the Department of Highways charged those disposing of driveway snow by putting it on the roads under sections of the Highway Traffic Act, and asserted "if they can do it, we can too". The matter was referred to the administrative board for review.

A Trim Away from Retirement

Dan Stewart, proprietor of Dan Stewart's Barber Shop on Victoria Avenue for many years, ends his 44 years of Belleville barbering tomorrow. This haircut is one of the final cuts Mr. Stewart will make.

Barber Snips Last Locks

After 44 years of service in Belleville, city barber, Dan Stewart, hangs up his clippers and razor tomorrow ending a long career for retirement.

Mr. Stewart decided to retire from his art at the end of this year in favor of "just lying around and spending my time."

After barbering for 51 years, Mr. Stewart will sell his shop to barber, Klaas Heldstra who has been working with him in his Victoria Avenue shop for 15 years.

Mr. Stewart began his career in Toronto, moving from there to Bancroft and then to Madoc before coming to Belleville to work with James Sullivan in his Front Street Shop.

Later he purchased the shop himself and worked there until he was replaced by a parking lot several years ago. Since then his center of operations has been at the present Victoria Avenue site.

Mr Stewart is married, to the former Doris Pauley, and has four children, two daughters and two sons.

As he retires, Mr. Stewart observes that the days of the long hair, sideburns and beards are on the way out.

"It's a very small minority — but they couldn't care less about their neighbor or their fellow snowmobiler."

The "sheer number" of vehicles now in use gives cause for concern, he said, although snowmobilers usually displayed responsibility.

"I think most people are quite co-operative," said the official. "But there's always the odd few."

As yet, there was no thought of closing off any wildlife areas.

All Ontario Alert For Bogus Bills

The Belleville Detachment of the OPP has alerted the entire province to be on the lookout for counterfeit $10 bills, the result of the discovery of bogus bills in the Belleville and Quinte district.

Belleville OPP gave the alert yesterday after investigating several incidents and obtaining reports of incidents in Trenton, Napanee, Picton and Deseronto. A Kingston man has been charged with uttering counterfeit currency.

Charged with uttering is Henry Evan David, 22, arrested Dec. 22 at Towers Store on the outskirts of Belleville where three bills were passed and discovered on Dec. 22, 23 and 24.

OPP estimated that approximately 30 bogus $10 bills had been passed before Christmas in Napanee, Deseronto and Picton. The Towers incidents were the only Belleville cases. Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie is on the alert for the bills but none has been reported yet.

Trenton also reported an incident with counterfeit money prior to Christmas.

All the bills have the same serial number — R-8 or R-5 followed by the numbers 1911978. They are described as brighter in color than legal bills and bearing more pronounced embossing of the dots.

Police feel that a number of people may be involved in the passing of the bills as the identity of the passers changes all the time.

Both males and females are suspected of passing the bills and in Picton, police investigating several incidents before Christmas, spoke of female suspects.

Police are also searching for ra 1966 Oldsmobile Tornado described as dark green in color and having the licence number, N 83128.

The public believed to be highly organized, has concentrated most of its efforts in the Quinte area and has hit Napanee and the Deseronto areas harder.

His wife, the former Alice Jackson, predeceased him.

Bearers were Jack Casement, Roy Lockwood, Earl Hewton, Everett Weller, George Belbin and Gerald Smith.

Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

All-time Construction Record Set This Year

With building values nearing the $15-million mark, an all-time record in construction will be achieved in Belleville this year.

With two days still to go in December, building permits taken out at city hall have a total value of $14,856,656.

This total surpasses even the 1965 total when the construction start on the new hospital addition boosted building totals to $14,525,000.

The December total so far amounts to $390,700, made up mainly of new residential construction.

Local builder Maurice H. Rollins has taken out permits for 14 single family residences to be erected in the North Village Drive and Ledgeton Ave. area of West Park Village just west of Sidney Street.

Permit values of the 14 new houses is in the $16,000 range. Also adding to the December total was a permit for a new 13-plex apartment being built by Elmer Woods on Benjamin Street where an old brick single family residence was recently razed to make way for the construction.

The biggest month this year for permit values was May, when the construction start on the new Four Seasons Hotel helped to boost the month's list to nearly $4.5 million.

Other big building months were September — $2,902,765; October $2,249,340; and November, $2,313,900.

Helping to boost the year's building total was a permit for the $1.7-million sewage plant addition being constructed by Ontario Water Resources Commission in Foster Ward, and permits for the new administration wing at Belleville General Hospital and the new Edith Cavell Nursing School.

During the year there was a steady program of apartment construction — several of the structures providing for 24 residential units each.

Two of these are currently under construction — one by Charles W. Lambert on Charlotte Street, and the other by local realtor Gerald Joyce in the North Frank - Union Street area north of the CN double tracks.

In 1969, construction values in the city totalled $9,682,329; in 1968 the total was $8,967,-135; 1967 totalled $4,447,658 and in 1966 building values were $3,494,461.

[illegible] ...rted above the year 1965 was a "boom" year for c[illegible]...tion in the city with the building total amounting to $14,525,000 including the now completed hospital addition.

Urban Growth

A Belleville having a population of 75,000 within the next 30 years, and the need for municipalities to control land development, are focal points of the report presented the other day by planning director B. J. Kenny of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

Envisaged in the report is properly zoned and planned urban development taking in portions of the city, a section of Thurlow and Sidney townships so all to be incorporated ultimately in a city plan which would amalgamate services, and halt uncontrolled sprawl around the fringes of what is seen as the logical urban area.

One aspect of the report which perhaps may require clarification is a reference to the Area Services Board and population density. The board, it is stated, "will likely require a commitment that virtually all development in the area will be located so that it will use the servicing systems to be created by that board."

Homeowners using the services, the report continues, would be required to pay for them so that residents not on the system will not be charged. Then comes this query: "What better way to pay for them but to ensure that the area serviced is density populated?"

What exactly is meant here by population density? Certainly we cannot tolerate the sort that means overpopulation and overcrowding, the evils of which have long since become so evident that they require little elaboration here.

If it means modern, suburban developments of the kind we see being established around Belleville and vicinity, but such development should also have regard to such balancing factors as parks and recreation areas — which incidentally are not always available even in latter-day plans.

It is all very well having a fine home and living among neighbors similarly endowed, but if there is no place to go and get away from it all, no open space, no view; if all you have is that newer, equipped home, then you will have the kind of suburban malaise, restlessness and "generation gap" problems as between parents and children that are so prevalent today.

Particularly is this the case in areas such as our own where the surrounding terrain is relatively uniform and unbroken by the spectacular, mountainous or whatever, that can be such a stimulus and counterbalance to the debilitating monotony occasioned by their absence. Parks then, and recreation, and space are vital ingredients in urban development as we enter another decade. Let us ensure they are not forgotten in the city's long-awaited official plan.

Hanoi Interview

Official United States reaction to the CBC's filmed interviews with captured United States pilots in North Vietnam is that it was Communist propaganda.

That in certain eyes it could appear that way. Correspondent Michael Maclear said two Americans with whom he spoke did so fully and the film bore this out. At the same time it was clear the two men, even if they had not been subjected to any political indoctrination (there was no mention of anything of the kind was so) now are "doves," as distinct from "hawks." The war was "bad," they agreed, and should be ended, and this no matter who was to blame in the beginning. It should be ended, they said, by the U.S. withdrawing from Vietnam.

And that is where one began to suspect they had been told what to say, perhaps on pain of losing whatever privileges they were currently enjoy as prisoners. Some of the sound had been edited out too, but this was by the Hanoi authorities.

Whether other U.S. prisoners are of the same mind as these two is a question which immediately suggests itself. If so then the CBC's (or was it simply Hanoi's?) selection of two "doves" pilots is suspect. One suspects also if the two men had since flown before their captors.

Correspondent Maclear has been to Hanoi before on occasion and we noted that the previous film he brought out showed distinct anti-American bias. This time it was not so obvious, but it did nevertheless present the familiar North Vietnamese line that there can be no solution to the war unless the United States gets out of Vietnam altogether. The only difference was that this time the propaganda line came right out of the mouths of two captured Americans. Which, from Hanoi's standpoint, was very satisfying indeed.

Beaulieu Envisages Economic Link with U.S.

Idealism Rather Than Pragmatism Grips Quebecers

Trade Minister Pierre Paul Beaulieu (Quebec's external affairs minister of sorts, if you will) has added the solution of Marie Bourdeau, chairman of the leadership of the (Opposition) Union Nationale (party), who feels an economic association with the United States would offer Quebec the best protection against the threats of federalism and separatism.

It seems Mr. Beaulieu has just found his prophet in Raoul Duguay, author of a treatise called "Independance et Marche Commun Quebec-Etats-Unis" (Independence and Common Market between Quebec and the United States.

According to this new theorist, French-speaking Quebec must sooner or later break with the Canadian union. . . . But to lessen the shock of this rupture will produce, Quebec will have to form a "common market" with the United States. . . .

Quebec loses $3,000 million a year (within Confederation), Mr. Tremblay explains, especially because the federal government sets up tariff barriers which prevent the cost of American products on the Canadian market. . . .

The retreat of Quebec from this unnatural (Canadian-common market to form a common market with the United States . . . not only would not lower the standard of living of Quebecers, but would enable it to maintain the standard of living of the Americans." . . .

Mr. Tremblay's arguments sometimes raise a smile. "One" (he) says, he says, would greatly benefit from a Quebec-U.S. common market. . . . Then again, he must be important of "our" industries already belong to American interests. . . .

His recognition himself — that French-speaking Quebecers participate in only 12 per cent of Quebec manufacturing — two per cent of mining — and five per cent of exports, in the projected common market would profit English-speaking Canadians and U.S.-owned industries above all.

The supreme objective of the Action Nationale is summed up as follows: An economy totally controlled by French-speaking Quebecers, a praiseworthy but debatable objective.

It must not be forgotten that the United States can do without Quebec, whereas Quebec cannot do without either the United States or the rest of Canada. It would no doubt be desirable for French-speaking Quebec to have closer trade ties with the United States, but more involved and more onerous bargaining in the world of business.

But Mr. Trembley does not . . . that French-speaking Quebec is not involved in that world, and if it is not because it is not the fault of Confederation or its "pseudo-federalism" or "British institutions," but rather because French-Canadians have always preferred to deal with each other than to deal with business.

Like their French cousins, they live on idealism.

Quebec Will Investigate Subversion in the Schools

Trois Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The Quebec education department will take rigorous measures to stop teachers who conduct political propaganda and indoctrination in favor of our teaching institutions.

Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre, participating in the emergency debate on the events of recent weeks, made it known that a certain number of measures will be taken to achieve this.

Thus, in a few days, the government will name an inquiry commissioner whose mandate will be to receive directly teachers and school administrators any complaints about abuses on the part of a teacher. . . .

Mr. Saint-Pierre justified these measures by saying a certain number of teachers had taken advantage of the crisis to give themselves over to propaganda, particularly by commenting on and discussing the manifestos of the Front de Liberation du Quebec. The minister said he had received voluminous mail denouncing such abuses. . . .

Before undertaking such an inquiry, the minister emphasized, there should perhaps have been a discreet and serious inquiry on the behavior of Mr. Saint-Pierre's charges. These people are competent everywhere, McCutcheon is not dead in Quebec.

In principle, we are not opposed to the naming of an inquiry commissioner who would receive complaints from parents and school administrators. However, the commissioner should not play a one-way role. He should also receive complaints from teachers who may be victims of injustices. In sum, the commissioner should fill the role of ombudsman for the schools.

We are exorbitantly fearful of unilateral decisions which too often place those affected before fits accomplis without giving them a chance to present their point of view.

Urban Renewal Report Clears OPP Of Links with Underworld

Ottawa Journal

Ontario Attorney General Wishart is right in saying that the inquiry by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant into allegations by Dr. Morton Shulman against members of the Ontario Provincial Police was "valuable in clearing the air."

There was no evidence produced of any improper relationships between members of the OPP and known criminals. That is the key finding of the inquiry. The complete rejection of such charges removes a cloud from a police force which has a high reputation for professional integrity.

Once Hailed As Next Leader

Fred Cass Quits: Government Not Conditioned for Change

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Fred-erick Cass, appointed Speaker in the Ontario legislature after resigning as attorney - general when the house rejected his proposals to ban Red Police, announced Tuesday he will not contest the next provincial election.

Mr. Cass, 57, gave as formal reason as to what prompted his decision to give up the Grenville-Dundas seat he has held for the Progressive Conservative party since 1959.

He said he is looking forward to paying more attention to his law practice, which he has continued throughout his years in government.

Mr. Cass said he believes the old guard in Ontario politics is on its way out and that after the next election, expected in 1971, the legislature will be filled with younger members more attuned to the demands of the '70s.

"The political parliament was one that got caught in the change of the times, and I'm exchange of the times, and I'm exchanging a generation of all parties," he said.

"It was very noticeable that they were not conditioned for the general change in thinking, in morals.

"I would think there's going to be a new look in the house after the election," he said. He noted that the New Democratic Party has a new leader in the person of Stephen Lewis and that the Conservatives will choose a successor in retiring Premier John Robarts in February.

Mr. Cass was appointed minister of highways in the cabinet of former premier Leslie Frost in 1962. He moved in the municipal affairs portfolio in 1961 and held a year as attorney-general the following year.

As minister of highways, the job he says he enjoyed the most, he had the reputation of lessening the condition of every mile of paved highway in Ontario, and of visiting every section frequently for a personal check.

On his appointment to the post, he immediately slashed 1,000 employees from a department staff of 15,000, saying at the time he was getting "rid of the deadwood."

His training as a lawyer and experience as a magistrate for Grenville-Dundas in 1950 made him a natural for the portfolio to attorney-general.

But his propensity for acting quickly to get things done may have contributed to the controversy which arose over his proposed amendments to the Police Act.

The bill he introduced in March, 1964 would have granted unprecedented powers to the Ontario Police Commission. Any persons subpoenaed would have been required to testify in camera before the commission without benefit of legal counsel.

The day after the bill was introduced, Premier Roberts told the house he would not tolerate any legislation which would infringe the personal rights and freedoms of the individual and said the bill would be re-examined.

A few days later the bill was killed in the house with negative votes registered by members of all parties. Immediately afterwards, the premier announced the resignation of Mr. Cass as attorney-general.

Until that controversy, Mr. Cass had been seen as a future successor to Mr. Roberts. He withdrew from the government front bench until his appointment as speaker in February, 1968.

Asked for his general view of the workings of the house during his years as Speaker, Mr. Cass replied:

"The tone of the house depends almost entirely on the leader of the government.

"It could be anything from bedlam, as it has been at times in the past three years, to a home for retarded members.

"There weren't any sweat pants except having to listen to endless speeches."

Asked whether Mr. Roberts' impending resignation had influenced his own actions, Mr. Cass said:

"I survived the departure of Mr. Frost and I could survive Mr. Roberts' retirement."

He had no prediction to make on the results of the next election—"I've stayed away from politics as much as possible for the past few years"—and described himself as a "fence-sitter" when asked which candidate he would support for the Conservative party leadership.

On his own future, Mr. Cass said he had no plans beyond continuing his law practice and that he would not accept an appointment to the Senate or a judgeship.

Mr. Cass, whose father was a lawyer, was born in Chesterville, Ont., but grew up in nearby Winchester.

He was married in 1950 to Christie Olive Casselman, daughter of W. H. Casselman, former MPP of Chesterville. They have no children.

Entertainment Spots Ready--and So Are Police

"I've heaven's sake, Rupert — bird imitations went out with music hall."

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nightclubs and hotels across Canada are rushing through last-minute preparations for what is usually their most hectic, if not most profitable, night of the year—New Year's Eve.

Meantime, police and transportation officials also are gearing up for the annual year-end bash. Although police in some areas report a tendency by holiday drinkers to stay off the roads this year, police patrols in many areas will be increased.

House parties rank at the top of the popularity polls in the Atlantic provinces with hotel and club dances running a close second.

Prices range from $6-$7 a couple at club parties in Prince Edward Island to $25 a couple for a dinner dance at the Nova Scotian Hotel in Halifax.

A police spokesman said patrols in these provinces will be increased to lend a hand to people but won't act as a "taxi service" for those who feel they shouldn't drive themselves.

In Montreal, the Salle Bonaventure in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel is offering, at $20 a head, a six-course gourmet diner, half bottle of champagne and Spanish dancers and orchestra for entertainment.

Canadian National Railways have reported heavy reservations in the province of Quebec and have added extra cars to their regular runs and extra trains to and from the Maritimes.

Air Canada also has reported an increase, about 15 per cent above last year.

In Ontario, the action planned is much the same—for a small fortune you can dine and dance in elegance or for a more reasonable fee you can sit at home and greet the new year on television.

CFTO television in Toronto is offering a 19-hour telethon with a variety-show format starting at 4 p.m. New Year's Eve. Viewers will be asked to phone in pledges of money for treatment of mental retardation.

Prices at Toronto clubs for dining and dancing range from $20 to $75 a couple.

Police throughout the province plan to strengthen their patrols.

Loblaw Layoffs Due to Discount War

TORONTO (CP) — Leon Webenstein, director of consumer relations for Loblaw Groceterias Ltd., said Tuesday the discount war among supermarkets was a factor in his company's decision to lay off 150 employees Monday.

"Anytime there is a price war you look for places to save money," said Mr. Weinstein. "That's one reason for the layoffs."

Mr. Weinstein said the timing of the layoff was not affected by a new government labor announcement that new restrictions on mass layoffs will become effective Friday.

The regulations provide that an employer may not lay off 50 or more workers within a four-week period without giving written notice to the employees and the minister.

Two Loblaw subsidiaries, Provo and Burg-S stores, laid off 85 full-time employees Monday.

Denis Sexton, business representative of the Amalgamated Meat-Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, accused store owners of deliberately dropping the workers before the new restrictions are effective.

He said the workers were given only two weeks' notice. Under the new regulations, when 50 to 199 employees are laid off within a four-week period, they must be given eight weeks' notice.

Many of the employees were laid off immediately Monday with a week's severance pay. The others will leave at the end of the week.

Both Mr. Weinstein and Ken Warren, secretary of the 4,500-member Union of Canadian Retail Employees, which represents most Loblaw workers, said the laid-off employees were mainly part-service employees.

Mr. Weinstein said 12 of the group were senior employees with about two or three years to go to retirement at age 65. All 13 will be on full pension.

E. C. West, vice-president of personnel for Dominion Stores Ltd., said Dominion has no plans to lay off large numbers of employees.

PC Candidates Quickly Admit Need for New Policies Evident

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 69-member Conservative government entered 1970 with a prediction of a balanced budget and a promise to build a better society based on tax reform and new forms of local government.

The Conservatives end the year in debt, about to lose their leader of nine years and with his potential successor admitting they need new policies to meet the likely issues of a 1971 provincial election.

Premier John Roberts, 53, will retire at a February leadership convention and will not seek re-election to the London North legislature seat he has held since 1955.

Three contenders for his job already have declared they cannot stand on a 37-year record of Conservative spy-ernment and they need "new" policies for the issues of the 1970s—economic nationalism, protection of the Canadian identity, unemployment and an education system that doesn't seem to work despite its soaring costs.

Education Minister William Davis, first officially to seek the Conservative leadership, has said his party lacks a policy on nationalism and Canadian identity, and has mentioned both education and unemployment as areas of major concern. Similar statements have been made by Allan Lawrence, minister of mines and northern affairs, and Bert Lindquist, minister of financial and commercial affairs, both expected to enter the leadership campaign early in the new year.

These are issues certain to be pressed by the Liberal party, which now holds 17 legislature seats, and the New Democratic Party, which holds 21.

The government entered 1970 convinced that the political difficulties that developed in the late 1960s could be overcome. Programs introduced since the election in 1967—regional government, county school boards, regional economic planning and tax reform—had caused some voter resentment, but this had been overcome with the judicious application of money for the relief of persons who had been hurt.

But in the last six months, political conditions changed. The $11 million surplus predicted last February had turned into a $57 million deficit in the government's $3 billion budget. There was increasing concern about the environment in which Ontario residents must live, and about foreign economic control which seemed to add to increasing unemployment.

The legislative record of the third session, with more than 200 bills passed, was a good one. Court and judicial system had been reformed. The public had been given additional protection against the types of commercial malpractice that led to the bankruptcies of Prudential Finance and Atlantic Acceptance in the 1960s. Civil rights protections recommended by a royal commission had been written into legislation.

But the record, as good as it was, seemed to disappear in December than the decisions on what had to be done in 1971.

Problems for the Conservative government were complicated by changes in the two Opposition parties. A disorganized Liberal caucus had finally been moved into an effective official Opposition, and the NDP was confident under the new and vibrant leadership of Stephen Lewis.

The Conservative government, nearing the end of the 28th legislature, had made 1970 a busy year in Ontario politics. Its need for new policies, and the rise of new political leaders, means that 1971 will be an exciting one.

Tenders will be received on quantities only, and must be completed by the last week in April, 1971.
Tendering documents may be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, 620 University Avenue, Toronto 182, Ontario, upon payment of Twenty ($20) Dollars per set, which sum will be refunded to each bona fide tenderer upon receipt of a bona fide tender. Documents must be returned within 30 days from the date of sale for this refund. Telephone enquiries are to be directed to Mr. J. Hall, Telephone 365-5116. The contract documents may be inspected at the office of the Director of Purchases, Toronto Construction Association, 67 Yonge St., Toronto, and Belleville Builders Exchange, Belleville.
Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque or bid bond for a minimum of ten (10) per cent of the tender price. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario does not bind itself to accept any or all tenders and reserves the right to reject any tender or part thereof. The bid bond will be forfeited if the successful tenderer fails to enter into a contract for the supply of concrete from the Lennox Generating Station for a minimum of 100,000 cubic yards of concrete within two years from the date of the contract.
The successful tenderer will be required to furnish a performance bond in the form prescribed by the Commission, and issued by a bonding company licensed to carry on business in Ontario, in the amount of the contract price. Payment for concrete will be made monthly on the basis of the unit prices tendered.
H. B. RASSOR, Secretary.

A VERY SINCERE THANK YOU . . .

Warmest Season's Greetings to Each and Everyone

Our warmest thanks to the people of Belleville and the Quinte area for the very generous share of business accorded to us during 1970. It has been our pleasure to serve you.

Our policy of selling Better Furniture and Carpeting at modest prices has been well received, and we appreciate the many opportunities of assisting with advice on room decor and planning.

Your reception of our large Rug and Broadloom department has been most encouraging. As you know we carry one of the largest displays of Carpeting between Toronto and Montreal and our volume of sales enables us to buy direct from the manufacturer at savings that are passed on to you. Again, our thanks.

Many Criticize Women's Status Report

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Topped off by the report of the royal commission on the status of women, 1970 has been a year when women as a phenomenon have been noticed though few individual women have made headlines.

After three years' wait for the report, it was criticized by many women as being outdated, its recommendations already put in the shade by the current feminist crusade.

Feminists have certainly rattled the bars in 1970, loudly and rudely. Some have scorned the report as middle class, Hilquetoast and meaningless without accompanying sweeping political change.

In fact, if everything it recommends were to be done, Canada's social and economic structures would have to change markedly.

The report generally has made little stir, and the people may be right who say it will be ignored.

Laura Sabia of St. Catharines, Ont., the woman who started the drive to have the commission appointed, said that if it is to have any effect at all, women will have to get behind it and push. She hopes to mobilize women's organizations again to do just that.

The recommendation for abortion on demand, divorce after a year's separation, a network of day care centres, temporary preferential treatment in government appointments got immediate attention. They are important, but the cumulative effect of some of the other recommendations would make or require the deepest changes.

The report recommends true equality in education, beginning with a change in textbooks so that women are not invariably shown in domestic roles. It recommends family-life courses that would raise questions about traditional sex roles by discussing social and psychological attitudes as well as biology.

It recommends the end of the "black assumption that a living wage for women is lower than for men."

It urges the prohibition of occupational "sex-typing" and the opportunity for more women to take occupational training courses.

If housewives were included in government pension plans on the basis of their contribution to the economy, there would be a disproportionate number of elderly women living on starvation income.

On the flip side, the report recommends an end to distinctions in pension and insurance plans. Husbands and children should have a claim on a wife's benefits under such plans. In some cases, wives should be liable for the support of their husbands or children, even to alimony-payments.

When a woman marries, her passport should not be automatically invalid because it is in her maiden name.

The report recommends setting up of human rights boards with temporary special committees on women's rights as a place to start.

In 1970, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics counted 2.2 million women in the work force, one million more than in 1961. A few stirrings of change for them appeared during the year.

In Ontario, the employment standards branch is credited with collecting $600,000 in correct wage under-payments to women.

Ontario also enacted a Women's Equal Opportunity Act to prohibit discrimination in job classifications, recruitment, hiring, training, promotion and dismissal. The act came into effect Dec. 1.

The day after the status report came out, a news report said the federal government plans to introduce legislation for mandatory maternity leave and insurance benefits next year. The report had recommended such legislation.

The Canadian Labor Congress, at its 1970 convention, voted to make equal rights for women a collective bargaining issue. If unions did so, it would be a departure for many of them.

A particular job category, recently opened for women, could have far-reaching results for several churches. The General Commission on Church Union voted Nov. 30 in favor of ordaining women in a proposed new church that would combine the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

The vote represented a concession on the part of the Anglicans that makes the union likelier. The other two churches have ordained women for years.

The debate on abortion that has been going on for more than a year has involved church spokesmen, feminists and doctors. It began Aug. 26, 1969, when a Criminal Code amendment went into effect. It removed a doctor's criminal liability when performing an abortion authorized by a hospital committee.

Many people still oppose abortion totally, and opinion ranges from there through free abortion on demand, as recommended in the commission report.

Already, 6,486 abortions were performed in Canada in 163 hospitals, according to a special DBS report that covered the year from August 1969 to 1970. The report says some hospitals did not reply to the DBS questions.

The Canadian Medical Association has taken a prohibition against abortion out of its code. It is studying the whole question of family planning.

The Canadian Psychiatric Association has favored removal of abortion from the Criminal Code.

Many doctors say they consider there is a lack of clear legal interpretation of the situation.

Their abortion march was the most notable of the Women's Lib efforts of the year. The feminists favor abortion on demand, and their members in several communities will offer advice on where to get legal abortions.

In May the House of Commons was adjourned for half an hour while the galleries were cleared of women who chanted "Free abortion on demand."

They were part of a group of about 200 that arrived on Parliament Hill a few days before, at the end of an "abortion caravan" that travelled from several parts of the country.

Feminists attacked a number of male strongholds during the year. One publicized case was the National Press Club in Ottawa. Members voted to reject women as members in January, which raised a dust that had Stanley Knowles, NDP member for Winnipeg North Centre, suggesting in the House of Commons that the club had violated the bill of rights.

Women had been excluded as members since the club was formed in 1908. The vote was reversed in May. About 21 of Ottawa's 70 eligible women journalists have since joined.

Meanwhile, women as housekeepers have had a good deal to think about.

They have been making decisions that affect the environment, as it is usually women who buy the soap or detergent, who decide whether to buy non-returnable bottles and cans, who decide how much throw-away plastic to use.

If they are the food buyers, they have had to decide what to do about the supermarket discount price war that started in Ontario in November.

They have had cyclamates in savory meat and other food additives, plus possible contamination of food supplies from polluted water.

Then, as the final, frivolous frill around it all, they have had a lot of fun to put up with about how long—or short—their skirts should be.

MR. AND MRS. ANTONIUS MEEKING

Meeking – Shortt

The Church of St. James the Minor, Stirling, was the scene of the December 19 wedding of Eleanor Irene Shortt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Shortt of RR1, Stirling and of Antonius Johannes Meeking, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Meeking of RR4, Colborne. Father Mc-Gervey conducted the ceremony and Mr. Harry Brown provided organ music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of crystal peau featuring a rolled neckline with a natural waistline. The long sleeves were gathered at the cuffs. The gown and the chapel train which fell from her waist were adorned with appliques of guipure lace. Her bouffant veil was caught up by a floral headpiece and she carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and white gardenias.

Mrs. Lorraine Smith, the bride's sister, who was matron of honor, wore a floor-length dress of American beauty silk velvet with long sleeves and featuring a ruffled neckline and train falling from the back of her waistline. She had nosegays of white 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Sandra Shortt, sister-in-law of the bride, Christine Meeking, the bridegroom's sister, and Sharon Bailey. The flower girl Sherry Anne Smith, the bride's niece carried a snowball of white 'mums. The bridesmaids and flower girl were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

The best man was William Gardner of Belleville and the ushers were Mike Bengeyer, Ken Turnliff and William Robson. The ring bearer was John Schlinbach, the bridegroom's nephew.

The reception was held at the Tally - Ho room of the Island Park. The bride's mother in a beige suit embroidered with gold, brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations greeted the guests along with the bridegroom's mother who was in a shrimp silk crepe dress and coat ensemble, black accessories and a corsage of deep pink carnations.

Upon return the newly married couple will live at 81A Hickory St., Gananoque.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mrs. Edward Bedford of Oshawa announces the engagement of her daughter Beatrice Kathleen to Walter Clayton Parks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parks of RR2, Oshawa. The wedding will take place on February 5 at 6 p.m. in Christ Somerset Anglican Church, Oshawa.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Antonius Meeking (nee Eleanor Shortt) was honored at showers held in the home of Mrs. Blake Faulkner and Mrs. John Curtis.

To celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coleman of 47 Geddes St. entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wood and their daughter Wendy of Los Angeles, California, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Coleman and son Bryan of Lebanon, Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Coleman and their daughter Paula of Toronto over the Christmas holidays.

Get Her to See Doctor About Headaches

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My mother had very bad headaches but I just can't get her to go to a doctor. A fortune teller told her she would die young and I think she is afraid to find out what is wrong with her.

Is there anything I can do? — Just Mike

Dear Mike: I know. She thinks if she doesn't look at it, it might go away. This kind of thinking is an insult to our modern medical knowledge, not to mention our own brave power.

If a fortune teller can't tell good things, he has no business delivering terrifying and highly questionable verdicts which can do nobody any good and may do irreparable harm.

Today doctors cure headaches and what causes them, but they do have to be asked for the help they can give.

Show her this column.

Dear Doris: I am presently employed as a stenographer. My husband and I would like to start having a family, thus probably ending my career. I have been thinking that if I could take in typing at home I would retain my speed and continued business experience as well as make some extra money.

The problem here is — how would I get the clientele, how much would I charge for typing or shorthand services, and what other information do I require? — Tillie The Toiler

Dear Tillie: You'll have to hunt, but here are some ideas:

1. Enter your name on the university's bulletin board as a typist looking for projects to type.

2. Ask at your Canada Manpower office for the names of employers who would patronize typing work.

3 Advertise in the classified columns of this newspaper and watch these columns for work you can do.

Get started before you are limited to staying home all the time. Then you could spend some time with an employer, learning to do work you want to take home later. Your Canada Manpower adviser can help you about the going rater where you are.

Ann Landers

Farmers Not Willing To Feed Stray Cats

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "TU bet every farmer in the United States and Canada is mad at you. Your advice to "Williston, N.D.," whose dad drowned the five kittens was really bad. You told the sad young girl that her daddy should have taken the kittens out in the country and given them to a farmer.

Do you have any idea how many cats and dogs are dumped on farmers every day because of city idiots like you? At one time we had 13 cats. Where did they come from? Urban apartment dwellers who drove out in their cars, opened the doors and turned the poor things loose. Cats are not self-supporting, you know. They must be fed. Farmers have to buy groceries, the supermarket just like city people. So please, Ann Landers, don't perpetuate the myth that every farmer is glad to have "one more mouser." It isn't so. — A CAT-ASTROPHY NO-MATTER HOW YOU SPELL IT.

DEAR CAT: I received hundreds of letters from farmers who expressed precisely the same point of view. Please accept the apologies of this City Idiot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several week? ago you printed a letter from Dr. William Center of San Antonio, Texas. He described the value of breast self-examination and urged women to write for the American Cancer Society's free booklet on the subject.

Would you like to know what happened? Our lives have not been the same. The headquarters of the American Cancer Society in New York received nearly a quarter of a million requests. This meant added help, added shifts, a tremendous postage bill and joy unlimited. We are not complaining, Ann — we love it. Because of that column dozens (maybe hundreds) of lives will be saved.

We hope you will publish this letter of gratitude. And please, Ann, tell your readers who have not yet sent for the free booklet that they may obtain one by getting in touch with their local unit of the American Cancer Society. It is listed in the phone book. — JOSEPH CLARK, Director of Press.

DEAR MR. CLARK: Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old girl with a problem I can't talk to anyone about. My older sister is 20 and not married. She lives about 100 miles from here. Rosemary moved out of the house about a year ago to take a cashier's job in a restaurant. (My folks were against it.)

I have reason to believe that Rosemary has had a baby within the last month. She has always been overweight and could have been pregnant without showing anything. When I saw her eight weeks ago she was wearing a smock which she always wore to work, so I didn't think anything of it.

My question is, should I say something to my parents? I am almost positive my hunch is correct. Don't you think Mom and Dad have the right to know whether or not they are grandparents? Ann, I would like to know if I am an aunt. I will take your advice. It is usually right. — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UN: Keep quiet. If your sister did give birth she obviously did not keep the child, so there is nothing to celebrate. Exposing her secret would serve no useful purpose. I repeat: Keep quiet.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Leftover Turkey Can Be Used for Florentine

By MARY MOORE

In late November, to make the most of that large turkey that I roasted to describe to you (Dec. 23), after dinner I sliced 16 thick medium slices from one breast and freezer-wrapped and froze them.

For a made-in-advance dish for dinner after the Grey Cup game I made Turkey Florentine with it.

I think this recipe now comes at a time when you will have leftover turkey to cope with and when you will welcome this high-class variation. As is obvious you can use chicken in this recipe too. Indeed it would pay you to buy a 3½-lb. chicken and boil it to get the meat for this dish.

TURKEY FLORENTINE
(serves 8; chicken may be substituted)

16 thick medium slices cooked turkey breast (or meat from one 3½-lb. chicken)
Three 10-oz. packages spinach
½ cup margarine
6 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
2 cups milk
½-lb. process cheese cut up
Paprika

If turkey slices were frozen as mine were, thaw them.

Wash the spinach well under running water, drain well, and cook covered in a large pot in only the water clinging to leaves. Turn spinach over after 3 min. cooking and cook until limp but still bright green. Drain well through colander and chop and turn into large shallow casserole.

Make Cheese Sauce by blending margarine, flour and salt, then add milk and cheese and stir until thick and cheese is melted. Pour one cup of sauce evenly over spinach in casserole. Arrange turkey slices in one overlapping layer over spinach. Pour remaining cheese sauce all over. Sprinkle with paprika. (Note: If to be made in advance store in refrigerator. Bake at 350 deg. F. about 25-30 min. or until bubbling and tinged with gold on top.

The method of combining fowl with spinach and cheese is surprisingly popular with adults and children.

STARTING A TREND — Ethel Harris, an X-ray technician at Moncton Hospital, has been wearing a pantsuit on the job since the summer. Mrs. Katherine Wright ,director of nursing at the hospital, says that although pantsuits for nurses have not yet been discussed at the hospital, they may be the coming thing. (CP Photo)

Moncton Nurses To Work in Pant Suits

MONCTON (CP) — Pantsuits may be the coming thing for nurses says Mrs. Katherine Wright, director of nursing at Moncton Hospital.

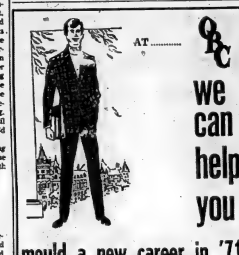
Though pant-suits have not been discussed at her hospital, "during this era of the miniskirt we have tried to keep skirts at reasonable length, say in the vicinity of the knee.

"We have very little trouble enforcing this with the nursing staff."

Hemlines have gone down to the knee at the Victoria Public Hospital in Fredericton, where nurses are also permitted to wear pant-suits.

Miss I. E. Biddington, director of nursing at the Dr. George Dunsent Hospital here, said she wouldn't reject pantsuits for nurses. "I personally would like to work in a pantsuit."

Her hospital has a ruling that skirts must be no higher than one inch above the knee. "But it is hard to enforce this rule because uniforms are not sold in that length.



Ruth Duffy, chief technician of Moncton Hospital's radiology department, said one of her technicians has been wearing a pant-suit to work since the summer.

"The girls here do a lot of reaching and bending in their work, and with the pant-suit they don't have to worry about it."

Miss Duffy said she likes pant-suits and doesn't object to them for work. The technicians don't come under the jurisdiction of the nursing department.

Herbicide Action Compared to German-Japanese in Last War

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States has engaged in activities in Vietnam for which Germany and Japan were prosecuted after the Second World War, a legal authority said Tuesday.

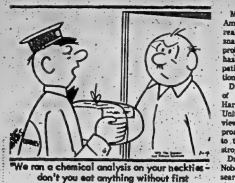
Responding to a report by a group of scientists on the ecological aspects of herbicides, George Bunn, professor of law at the University of Wisconsin, suggested also that military forces have violated guidlines set down in the U.S. Army field manual based on international agreements.

Mr. Bunn is a former general counsel to the U.S. Army Control Agency and former alternate U.S. respresentative to the Geneva disarmament conference.

The White House said last week that the use of herbicides is being abandoned in Vietnam.

North Vietnam said Tuesday in a broadcast from Hanoi that defoliants dumped by U.S. aircraft in South Vietnam have caused millions of persons to suffer the same fate as victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic blasts in the Second World War.

"Clinically, there have been many miscarriages, congenital anomalies and frequent miscarriages" as a result of spraying toxic hemicals, the broadcast claimed.



A herbicide assessment commission, headed by Dr. Matthew S. Meselson, professor of biology at Harvard University, announced Tuesday the first report of a survey of herbicidal damage resulting from spraying of forests and croplands by U.S. forces in South Vietnam.

U.S. military forces have sprayed croplands in South Vietnam with the aim of destroying Viet Cong-North Vietnamese food supplies, but members of the commission said civilian food supplies probably have also been more than those of the military.

The commission also detailed damage to mangrove forests and to South Vietnam's marketable timber stands which it said will take decades to recover.

The commission's report says 2,000 square kilometres of land have been sprayed, entailing the destruction of enough food to feed some 600,000 persons for one year.

Deaths Up, Births Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians registered 36,339 births in November, bringing the total for 11 months to 341,275, a slight decline from the 342,395 in the same period last year.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics also reported Tuesday that November marriages numbered 14,971, raising the 11-month total to 174,175, up by 2.6 per cent from the 169,824 in the 1969 period.

The 19,239 deaths recorded in November brought the 11-month total to 162,312, up from 161,777 last year.

Ingersoll Explosion Said Criminal Act

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police announced Tuesday that the explosion of 8½ tons of dynamite near here Monday night in a bunker on the property of the Canada Cement Co. Ltd., was a criminal act.

A spokesmen for the provincial police said that a shack containing dynamite detonating caps had been broken into prior to the explosion that broke 25 windows in this town eight miles west of Woodstock.

No injuries were reported.

Snowmobilers who had stopped to talk in the area prior to the explosion, told police they saw a dark colored car in the area moving at a slow speed.

Det.-Sgt. Dennis Alsop of the provincial police at London, who is heading the investigation, said no arrests have been made.

Driver's Temper Campaign Target

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two major automobile associations, which have previously emphasized the dangers of drinking while driving and speed, will in 1971 concentrate on persons' tempers and their effect on traffic safety.

Robert Trollope of London, president of the Dominion Automobile Association and the North American Automobile Association, said Tuesday at the associations' regional safety meeting, that statistics in Great Britain indicate "bad tempers" contribute significantly to accidents.

"Now we don't for a minute believe that a bad temper is as important a factor as alcohol or speed, but we have studied these two factors on several occasions in the past. This year we're taking a different approach."

Medals for Babies

TORONTO (CP) — All babies born in Hamilton hospitals next Jan. 11 will receive bronze medallions commemorating the 150th birthday of Sir John A. Macdonald.

The awards will be part of birthday party celebrations for Canada's first prime minister to be held Jan. 10 and 11 by Hamilton Progressive Conservatives.

Venom May Solve Problem

MONTREAL (CP) — An American doctor based in Montreal is hoping that a poisonous snake can help him solve the problem of organ rejection that has caused the death of many patients after transplant operations.

Dr. Robert Nelson, recipient of a $175,000 grant from the Hartford Foundation in the United States, said in an interview he believes his new approach will result in a solution to the body's tendency to destroy foreign tissue.

Dr. Nelson, nominated for a Nobel Prize in 1967 for his research into blood tests for syphilis, explained that at present transplant operations are risky.

Antibodies in the system go to work immediately after surgery to reject the implanted organ. Only massive doses of powerful drugs can stop the antibody action.

At the same time, however, the patient is rendered helpless to fight infection.

Dr. Nelson's work is based on the fact that "for an antibody system to kill a transplanted organ, it needs to work in conjunction with all nine complement proteins."

Since only the first four proteins are required by the body to resist infection, knocking out one of the other five proteins should theoretically save the new organ.

Dr. Pierre Grondin of the Montreal Heart Institute, who has done nine heart transplant operations including Canada's first in 1968, said he did not feel qualified to assess Dr. Nelson's chances of success.

The Nelson theory involves a group of six blood proteins known as the complements and venom from the Malayan pit viper.

We've been collecting the basic preliminary information for about a year," he said. "Now, with this grant, we're ready to go."

U.S. billionaire Howard Hughes has financed Dr. Nelson's work at the Jewish General Hospital's Lady Davis Institute for Medical Research for the past year.

So far, the only re-agent the team has found that will take out one complement is a protein isolated from the venom of a cobra.

"It almost sounds as if I'm making it up," said Dr. Nelson with a laugh, "but it's true."

Unfortunately, the complement knocked out by the cobra venom is one of the four essential for antibody function.

So the researchers are looking at the venom of the Malayan pit viper.

There are indications," he said, "that it may knock out the ninth complement."

The snake protein itself is completely non-poisonous.

Decimal System 7 Weeks Away

LONDON (AP) — Britain is abandoning its 1,200-year-old monetary system in seven weeks for one based on the decimal point, and the government began a £1,250,000 ($3,125,000) advertising campaign today to make D-Day easier.

Advertisements coaxing the 55 million Britons to "meet our new money" appeared in all major newspapers. They showed pictures of the new penny, the basic coin of the new system.

The pound sterling will live on, and it will still be worth about $2.50. But it will be made up of 100 new pence, each worth about 2½ cents, instead of 240 of the present pence. And the shilling, 20 of which have made up a pound, will vanish. Shillings and old pence will remain legal tender for 18 months, but the government hopes to have the conversion completed before then.

Nine newspaper ads before Feb. 15, the day for the changeover, will explain how to cipher costs, total bills and speak in new pence—one pound 50 new pence, for example, instead of one pound 10 shillings, or the colloquial 30 bob. They will show how to write amounts in two places—pounds and new pence—instead of three—pounds, shillings and pence.

South Africa, Australia and New Zealand made the switch to decimalization during the 1960s, but the number of machines and people necessary for Britain's changeover dwarfs the combined total used by those sterling bloc nations.

The government says the trouble is worthwhile.

There will be inevitable problems. Lord Fiske, chairman of the decimal currency board, warned housewives to carry conversion tables to guard against unscrupulous shopkeepers marking up prices in the switch.

Banks are closing Feb. 11-14 to prepare, and one major group will have 4,000 personnel on the public side of its counters Feb. 15 to help customers write cheques.

Trudeau May Go To France

OTTAWA (CP)-Will 1971 be the year when Prime Minister Trudeau receives an official invitation to visit France

Mr. Trudeau is not holding his breath waiting for one but, sources said Tuesday, there are some faint indications France may try to repair the 1967 breach.

The breach occurred when then President Charles de Gaulle not only echoed the cry of Quebec separatists but said his procession from Quebec to Montreal made him feel as he had at the liberation of France in 1944.

It was the latter remark rather than de Gaulle's shout of "Vive le Quebec libre" that infuriated then prime minister Lester Pearson. De Gaulle cut short his official visit when Mr. Pearson described his remarks as "unacceptable."

Neither de Gaulle nor his successor, George Pompidou, has invited a Canadian prime minister to France.

Pompidou may advance an official invitation next year and Mr. Trudeau, informants say, would in all likelihood accept.

But Canada-France relations are mending only slowly.

Guess Who's Athlete of Year?

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Bobby Orr, hailed as "the greatest player ever to don skates," is the runaway choice as Canada's male athlete of 1970.

Orr, at 22, dominated the National Hockey League to win the Ross, Hart, Norris and Smythe trophies as the scoring champion, most valuable player, top defenceman and most valuable player in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

He was chosen Sportsman-of-the-Year by Sports Illustrated and won the Lou Marsh trophy, presented by The Toronto Star to the person chosen in a newspaper poll as Canada's outstanding athlete of the year.

In the annual poll conducted by The Canadian Press among sports writers and broadcasters across the country, it was no contest.

The young Boston Bruins defenceman took all but 29 of 153 first-place votes cast. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis for first, second and third and Orr—with 134, 20 and 3—polled a total of 415 points.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., who pitched his fourth consecutive 20-game season for Chicago Cubs and is a former athlete-of-the-year winner, was runner-up with 148 points.

Jenkins edged Sandy Hawley of Whitby, Ont., who polled 134 points. Canadian champion jockey for two years in a row, he is second to Willie Shoemaker in victories in a single year.

The voters considered 32 athletes, but few outside the top three drew more than a handful of votes.

Jamie Paulson of Calgary, badminton gold-medal winner at the British Commonwealth Games, pulled six second-place votes and eight for third. Tony Esposito, rookie-of-the-year in the NHL and Vezina Trophy goalie with Chicago Black Hawks, got three for second and four for third.

Bill Mahony, Canadian swim star at the Commonwealth Games, got two first-place votes, three for second and six for third.

Balloting for Canadian athlete of the year was complete when Orr won the Star and Sports Illustrated awards.

Jenkins, by winning 20 or more in four consecutive years, has proven to be the most reliable pitcher in the majors. Only Russ Ford of Brandon, who pitched 81 victories in the early 1900s, has a better victory record among Canadians and Jenkins is expected to pass that mark—81—next year.

Hawley, who began his racing year in Tropical Park, Miami, carried his hot streak back into Ontario tracks. He had a record 264 victories in Canada including 21 in stakes races and the Queen's Plate and the Prince of Wales.

Ironically, when he returned to Tropical to finish out his assault on Binsteader's record of 485, he was able to attract few mounts. Of the ones he did get, few were considered top rides.

Hawley's hot streak died just before Christmas, but he was still the hottest jockey in the world for 1970.

And Here's Why

Jean Ratelle picked up an assist in New York Rangers' 3-2 win over California Golden Seals Tuesday night and moved into an eighth-place tie in National Hockey League scoring.

Ratelle, the only Ranger among the top 10 scorers, now has 18 goals and 20 assists for 38 points, tied with Alex Delvecchio of Detroit Red Wings.

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, idle Tuesday, leads the league with 61 points on 32 goals and 29 assists.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts	Pim
Esposito, Bos	32	29	61	27
ORR, BOS	23	41	64	55
Hodge, Bos	19	27	46	46

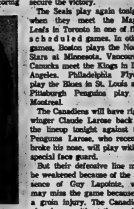
Any Left?

It would be easier to count the trophies Boston Bruin hockey star Bobby Orr HADN'T won. The 22-year-old Parry Sound sensation, seen here with the National Hockey League's Hart and Norris Trophies which he won in the 1969-70 season, has been named Canada's athlete of the year in the annual Canadian Press poll of sportswriters.

Rangers Train Seals To Stretch Home String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers are on the verge of breaking their club record for the longest undefeated streak at home but they still have some distance to go in breaking the National Hockey League team record.



The Rangers, who stretched their obeslem home-ice streak to 19 games this season with a 3-3 victory over California Golden Seals in Tuesday night's only NHL game, now have played 21 games without a loss at Madison Square Garden. The streak includes the final two games last season and equals the club record set two years ago.

However, the Rangers still must go another eight games without a loss before breaking the league's undefeated home record, held by Montreal Canadiens. The Montreal team, during the period March 13, 1943 to Nov. 2, 1944, went 28 games undefeated, 24 and tying four.

The streaking Rangers, who are keeping pace with Boston Bruins for top spot in the NHL's East Division, have lost only two of their last 18 games and their win Tuesday over the Seals, cellar-dwellers in the West Division, moved them into first place with 54 points, one more than the Bruins.

Rod Gilbert, Dave Balon and Arnie Brown provided the scoring for the Rangers before the Garden s 17,250 fans while Dan O'Donoghue and Billy Hicke scored for the Seals.

New York opened the scoring

ROD GILBERT

on a power-play goal by Rod Gilbert at 14:16 of the first period while Gary Jarrett was in the penalty box.

The Rangers increased the score to 3-0 on Dave Balon's 21st goal at 2:16 of the second period and Brown's first goal of the season about midway in the period.

The Seals then replied with goals by O'Donoghue and Hicke before the period ended. There was no scoring in the third period and the Rangers had to play a tight-checking game to secure the victory.

The Seals play again tonight when they meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto in one of five scheduled games. In other games, Boston plays the North Stars at Minnesota, Vancouver Canucks meet the Kings in Los Angeles, Philadelphia Flyers play the Blues in St. Louis and Pittsburgh Penguins play at Montreal.

The Canadiens will have right winger Claude Larose back in the lineup tonight against the Penguins Larose, who recently broke his nose, will play with a special face guard.

But their defensive line may be weakened because of the absence of Guy Lapointe, who may miss the game because of a groin injury. The Canadiens already are without the services of veteran defencemen Jacques Laperriere, who has been sidelined since Oct. 31 with a pinched nerve in his neck.

With Laperriere still out and Lapointe doubtful, the Canadiens will be down to three regular defencemen—J. C. Tremblay, Terry Harper and Serge Savard along with rookie Pierre Bouchard.

Arnie's Ice-breaker Worth Dollar from Park

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League season had stretched some 36 games and, for New York Rangers, most of it had been successful. Still, defenceman Arnie Brown was worried.

Two years ago, Brown scored 18 goals for the Rangers. Last season he had 13 second highest total for any NHL defenceman. The only blueline man with more was Boston's second-year Bobby Orr who, Brown figures, ought to be in a league of his own anyway.

Then came this season and a big, fat zero in Brown's goals-scored column. It was becoming distressing.

"All of a sudden, the puck wasn't going in," said Brown.

ARNIE BROWN

"You wonder if maybe you've lost the touch. I was getting good shots and I felt I was shooting well but nothing went in. It got so that I was pressing."

Now the pressure's off. Brown got his first goal Tuesday night, and it turned out to be the winner in New York's 3-2 victory over California in the only NHL game scheduled.

The victory stretched New York's home-ice unbeaten streak to 19 games this season and 21 over two seasons, matching a club record. It also moved the Rangers into first place in the East Division race, one point ahead of idle Boston. The Bruins have played two fewer games.

Brown and his defensive partner, Rod Seiling, have a little joking going on between themselves. A goal is worth 31 cents at Park's three tables here when comfortably in front.

"He'll never catch me," said Park, scorning his buddy. "That pace he's setting, he'll get about ten."

It's a fact that Brown was the only Ranger who didn't shut out a goal until Tuesday night and his team-mates knew it. As soon as his shot beat California goalie Gary Smith, a team-mate scurried after the puck to preserve it for Brown.

"Yeah, some smart guy brought the puck over," grinned Brown. "I told them, I want the set."

Brown's goal following earlier ones by Rod Gilbert and Dave Balon gave the Rangers a 3-0 edge and the Seals came back with a pair by Dan O'Donoghue and Billy Hicke to narrow the lead to a single goal.

Then Brown and his defensive mates threw up a checking shell that preserved the margin through the scoreless third period.

"That's what they're supposed to do," said coach Emile Francis, who had watched the Rangers blow two-goal leads in the third period of their last two games before Tuesday. "I don't care if the defencemen never score a goal."

But the defencemen care, Emile, the defencemen care.

Montreal Junior Canadiens moved into third place in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Tuesday when they battled from behind a three-goal deficit in the second period and defeated Toronto Marlboros 8-6.

Other action produced no changes in the standings. First-place Peterborough Petes downed fifth-place London Knights 4-3 and Ottawa 67s, lying in second position, made easy work of fourth-place Hamilton Red Wings, 7-3, and ran their unbeaten streak to 14 games.

In Montreal Bobby Lalonde was the architect of the Canadiens victory, scoring four goals and raising his season's total to 38.

Jocelyn Guevremont, Harland Monahan, Francois Gamelin and Camille Lapierre scored the others.

In Peterborough, centre Doug Gibson scored the winning goal for the Petes with 6:48 remaining. Craig Ramsay, Jim Mahon and Danny Gorr scored the others.

London's goals were scored by Randy Osborne with two while Dennis Ververgaert added a single.

In Ottawa Wayne Merrick and Peter Gaw each scored twice for the 67s. Ron Ellacott, Blake Dunlop and Doug Keeler scored one each.

Pat Hickey, Tommy Williams and defenceman Owen Jelly replied for Hamilton.

Hawks Not Cheered Up; Wilt Offers Bulls-eyes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Lanier's cage heroics were bad enough but the Detroit Pistons' chief leader was just too much for Atlanta Hawks.

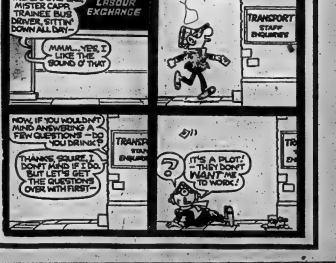
The Hawks had to take Lanier's five points in the closing two minutes that led to a 99-97 Detroit victory Tuesday night but they weren't keeping quiet about the cheerleader. The Hawks played the last 43 seconds under protest, contending Detroit coach Bill Brada Kolff left the bench area to encourage his players.

In other National Basketball Association action, Philadelphia 76ers whipped Buffalo Braves 134-113, Milwaukee Bucks ripped Cleveland Cavaliers 119-91, Los Angeles Lakers upended Chicago Bulls 125-117 and Boston Celtics tripped San Diego Rockets 110-108.

With the score tied 88-88, Lanier hit a three-point play, likewise

WILT CHAMBERLAIN

Knnives made two foul shots and Lanier put in a jumper to give Detroit its victory.



Jim Walker scored 21 points and Lanier 17 for the Pistons. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 19.

Philadelphia got by Buffalo when Billy Cunningham gunned in 21 of his 29 points in the last 15 minutes.

Milwaukee ran its winning streak to five games and snapped Cleveland's victory string at two. Lew Alcindor and Bob Dandridge each scored 23 points for Milwaukee, which has lost only six times in 35 games. John Johnson notched 22 for Cleveland which has won only five of 43 starts.

Wilt Chamberlain's 34 points plus 22 by Jerry West and 24 by Gail Goodrich smothered the Bulls as Los Angeles zoomed to a 68-53 halftime lead.

Here's A Switch: Ken Cured Upset Stomach by Flying High

SASKATOON (CP) — Ken Lundmark's upset stomach and Chuck L a B e a u 's complaints about the cold weather didn't hamper their performances in opening invitational events at the Saskatchewan indoor games Tuesday night.

Lundmark, a 24-year-old Stockholm resident who attended Brigham Young University last year, said he literally "slept in the bathroom Monday night" because of an ailing stomach. He found strength enough to win the high jump with a leap of seven feet.

Bernadin Brown of Los Angeles, who reached the same height, finished second in the six-man field because Lundmark, 1976 European high jump champion, had fewer misses.

Brown, rated the top indoor jumper in North America this year and holder of the Canadian open record of 7-3¼, had three tries at 7-1½ feet but missed all three.

Lundmark made two attempts at the same level and declined the third, he said, because of his illness.

LaBenz, from the Pacific Coast Track and Field Club in Long Beach, Calif., used a patented late kick-to run away from the field in the men's mile.

Instead of elaborating on his winning performance, LaBenz was more concerned with the Saskatoon temperatures which hovered around the zero mark for most of the night.

"This weather is 30 degrees colder than I've ever felt in my life," the Phoenix, Ariz., native said in an interview. "I went for a short walk Tuesday afternoon but was really out for 30 seconds tonight. It took me 10 seconds to go from the hotel to the cab and 10 seconds to run from the cab into the arena.

"I suppose it would be all right if you dressed for it, but I'm used to walking around with no socks and worn out jeans and that just wouldn't do out here."

LaBenz, who had jhe second fastest mile time in the world—3:56.8—in 1970, stayed back of Grant McLaren of University of Western Ontario and Vancouver's Norm Peerless before lurching into the lead with less than two laps remaining.

He finished second in a time of 4:11.5, while Peter Kaal of Oklahoma State finished second in 4:12.9 and Steve Savage of the University of Oregon placed third.

Trevise wound up fourth. Rich Ritchey of Oregon, formerly of Vancouver, placed fifth and McLaren was last.

Tom Von Ruden, world indoor record holder for 1,000 metres in 2:08.3 took an easy victory in the 800-metre event. He covered the distance in 1:55.6 to defeat Mark Winzenried of the University of Wisconsin and Russ Schmeltz of South Dakota State.

For Von Ruden, the victory proved a point. Last year the Oklahoma State graduate finished third in the 600-metre event behind Lee Evans of San Jose, Calif., one of the top-rate runners in the world.

Von Ruden said he returned to Saskatoon to show the people he "could really run."

"But I have to admit that those darn Eskimo carvings were foremost on my mind and I wanted one." The carvings are among the prizes being presented to the invitational athletes.

In the men's relay the Pacific Coast club of John Mason, Jay Elton, Von Ruden and LaBenz outran Oregon State for a hard-earned win over the 1,600 metre distance. The winning time was 3:34.1.

Oregon, anchored by speaker Willie Turner, had a time of 3:25 and Canada, with George Smith of Lethbridge, Bob Brooks and Tony Powell, both from Toronto and Lorne Taroff of Saskatoon, was third in 3:28.5

In the invitational women's pentathlon Dianne Jones of Saskatoon won two of five events and placed second in three others for an over-all point total of 4,309. Her sister, Joanne was second with 4,114 points and Elizabeth Dunman of Kitchener, Ont., had 3,845.

Ben Bulloch of Winnipeg and Louis Tapper of Wynyard, Sask., set two early Canadian records while competing in age-class events.

The latter, with a record list of 1,371 athletes, ends tonight.

Sports On All Fronts

TORONTO (CP) — Loyola College Warriors of Montreal emerged as the top team in Hockey Canada's inaugural invitational college tournament Tuesday by scoring a surprisingly-easy 6-4 victory over York University Yeomen of Toronto. Loyola reached the final after an exciting 3-2 win over St. Mary's University of Halifax Monday in the Montreal leg of the eight-team competition. York beat University of Toronto Blues, defending Canadian college champions, 5-4 Monday in Toronto to capture the western title. Loyola jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Steve Sly and Ron Riley. Then Chris Rogers went to work in the second period, scoring one goal on a shot which bounced off Yeoman goaltender Bill Holden's stick, and a second on a brilliant individual effort while his team was shorthanded. Loyola was clearly the superior team in a game which often lagged. Hayes, captain of the Warriors, accepted the Hockey Canada trophy from president Charles Hay in a ceremony following the game.

New Kind of Kicks

OTTAWA (CP) — Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, said Tuesday that he is interested in bringing a North American Soccer League franchise to Montreal. Berger said in an interview that he has had discussions with soccer league officials, including Clarence Rief of Dallas. Berger said that soccer was particularly popular in Montreal and Toronto, especially among immigrants.

Builders Not in Swim

VICTORIA (CP) — A building contract dispute has forced cancellation of two swim meets planned as the grand opening of Victoria's new $1.5 million swimming pool. The 1971 Canadian Senior National and the British Columbia "I Interscholastic swim meet were scheduled for July 1-5.

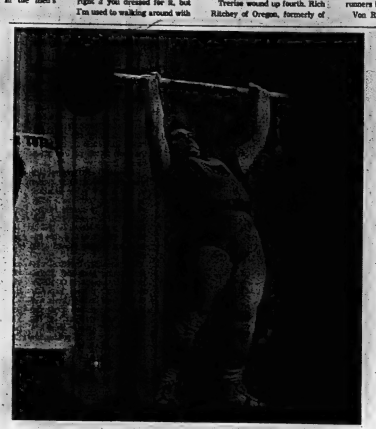
Council Likes Name

SASKATOON (CP) — City council has decided unanimously to stick with the name Blackstrap for the mountain constructed for the Canada Winter Games in February. The name came up after it was suggested Mount Chimo would be more suitable. Blackstrap is the name of a nearby lake.

Expos Sign Fairly

MONTREAL (CP) — First baseman Ron Fairly of Montreal Expos' top hitter in 1970 signed his 1971 contract with the National League club, general manager Jim Fanning announced Tuesday. Fairly is the third Montreal player to sign. He follows right fielder Rusty Staub and pitcher Dan McGinn. Fairly noted out Bob Bailey as the club's leading hitter, with a .288 average.

Warriors Charter Winners



KINGSTON (CP) — University of Waterloo Warriors captured the first annual Queen's University holiday hockey tournament Tuesday by defeating Carleton University Ravens 6-3. Waterloo reached the final round of the two-day event by dumping Royal Military College Lancers 7-2 Carleton advanced with a 5-4 win over Queen's Golden Gaels. University of Ottawa Gee-Gees and University of Toronto Greyhounds were eliminated with two losses each the opening day.

Cobourg Tops at Queen's

KINGSTON (CP) — Cobourg West Collegiate defeated La Salle Secondary School of Kingston 97-32 in the final of the Queen's University high school basketball tournament Tuesday for its first victory in the 11-year history of the event. Cobourg registered other victories over Fellows High School of Pembroke, Thomas A. Steave Collegiate of Peterborough and Oshawa's Eastdale Collegiate. The two other entries in the eight-team tournament were Quinte Secondary School of Belleville and Queen Elizabeth - Collegiate of Kingston.

Schmeling Gains Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Eczard Charles and Max Schmeling, two former world heavyweight champions, are the latest fighters to be named to the Hall of Fame, Charles, Schmeling and the late Harry Wills, Professor Mike Donovan and Kid Williams, were elected Tuesday, bringing to 187 the number of ring greats in the hall. Charles, 48, and suffering from sclerosis, and Schmeling, 65, and a prosperous businessman in Germany, were named to the modern group. Wills, a top-notch heavyweight, was elected by the Old-Timers Committee as was Williams, a former bantamweight champion. Donovan, a former middleweight king, was named by the Hall of Fame's directors.

Load Off His Mind

Hamilton weightlifter Russ Prior, shown here en route to winning the Canadian heavyweight title in Belleville last May, was an easy winner of the 242-pound class competition Tuesday at the Ontario Winter Games in Etobicoke. Prior's three-lift total of 985 pounds was well off his Commonwealth record of 1,078, but still good enough to head the heavyweight field by more than 600 pounds.

Two Boxers Succeed without A Punch

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Henry, 25-year-old veteran from Orillia, found a surprisingly tough opponent in teen-ager Doug Lawrence Tuesday, but hung on to win a gold medal in the bantam boxing class of the Ontario Winter Games.

Lawrence, a 16-year-old newcomer from Kitchener, pressed the veteran for the 54-pound, 3-round bout, losing by a split decision.

Other gold medals went to lightweight Duncan Adams of Henry was one of 12 fighters, including 4 Japanese, selected for the Ontario team that will compete in Saskatoon in February at the Canada Winter Games. The team was selected on the basis of their performance here.

Brampton; Robert Proulx, a featherweight from Cornwall; lightweight, welterweight Tim Taylor of Sarnia, light middleweight Jim Jensen of Kitchener, and Jim French of Windsor, a middleweight.

Two other Kitchener boxers, heavyweight Sam Anderson and light heavyweight Harrison Rees, won golds without entering the ring, winning by default after their opponents failed to show up.

The bouts were of three rounds and all were won on decisions except for Jensen's against Eliseo Lacoletig of Chingacousy which was stopped at 2:27 of the first round.

Freed scored his match over Sarnia's Silvio Fex. Taylor, Canadian welter champion, won a tough decision over Basil Dunbar of Toronto, and French's win came at the expense of Joe Henry of Toronto.

Stewart Joining Sport Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Stewart, Ottawa Rough Riders all-star back and a lawyer on the staff of Nelson Castonguay, representation commissioner, may be transferring to the Fitness and Amateur Sport Directorate in the new year.

"It's about 90 per cent sure that Ron will be joining us," director L. E. (Lou) Lefaive said Tuesday night while attending the Hockey Canada college final. "Ron and I have a meeting scheduled for the morning and I'll know for sure a few details."

Lefaive said that Stewart, 13-year veteran of professional football in Canada, would be involved in communications and sport.

"He will be a big help to us in the setting up of Sport Canada," said Lefaive.

Stewart, 35, is first assistant to Castonguay.

Prior Makes No Alibis For Sub-par Showing

TORONTO (CP) — Russ Prior, a 26-year-old Hamilton strongman, shook off the effects of a three-week illness Tuesday to win the 242½-pound weightlifting title at the first Ontario Winter Games.

But it was evident during the event that his efforts to overcome an intestinal ailment prevented the chunky youth from surpassing his Commonwealth record.

Prior's illness came to light only after he told reporters his disappointing performance was "just one of those things."

In the snatch, with 330 pounds above his head in last Tuesday's dance and dropped the bar on a nearby table, splitting it in half and sending referee Alf Rankins fleeing to safety.

In the clean and jerk, with 390 pounds hoisted to shoulder level and the next move calling for him to jerk it above his head, Prior dropped the bar to the mat.

"I felt fine," he commented later after observing his total lift of 985 pounds for three lifts was well below his Commonwealth mark of 1,078¾.

"I just didn't do well. I had my sights set on 1,100 pounds, but it just wasn't there today. With the facilities and all, the elements were there to break the record."

He said several technical errors probably contributed to his low score "but I'm young enough to have things each time out."

He didn't blame his illness which one weightlifting official said stripped him of 25 pounds.

"He's just now starting to rebuild his body back up to the 240 pounds it was," said the official. "If you want to know why he really looked terrible out there today, that's why."

Prior, an arts student at Ottawa's Carleton University who is built like a football lineman, was disappointed at not showing better here since his training program "had been fantastic."

"I expected to break all kinds of records. The conditions here were ideal."

He wasn't pressed too hard here, however, and he believes Norman Kirov Medal by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada as the top male amateur athlete in the country.

Prior said he was packing 25 and 35 pounds of weights to the bar each time and "you just need one or two mistakes like that to ruin your whole performance."

Ottawa Gymnast Strikes Gold

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Medd, pint-sized Ottawa gymnast with a red hair, shook up the Ontario Winter Games Tuesday by winning five straight gold medals, by far the best individual performances of the Games which end today.

"I guess that was really unusual," the 17-year-old high school student said after his 123 pounds said with a sheepish grin. "You could say I had a good day."

His victories on the pommel horse, vaulting, rings, parallel bars and floor exercises gave him a total of six golds for the Games, staged by the Ontario Federation of Sport. That was enough to select a provincial team for the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon in February.

Medd tied Greg Maill, also of Ottawa, in floor exercises, with perfect athletic scores. But Medd also picked up a second-only winner Joan Manwaring of Toronto Leaside won three golds.

Double gold winners were Miss Bonnell, Toronto gymnasts Sharon Tsukamoto and Wendy Nicholson and speedskaters Judy Dietiker of Ottawa and Catharine Carpenter-of Toronto.

First Ontario Winter Games Leave Everything to Be Desired

By Maurice Switzer Sports Editor

What's wrong with the Ontario Winter Games? What ISN'T wrong with the Ontario Winter Games?

In case you haven't noticed, the Ontario Winter Games is a figment of someone's imagination that is costing Ontario taxpayers $70,000. And in the midst of the three-day, 16-sport extravaganza, scepticism are growing that not only the taxpayers, but the 1,200 participants are not getting their money's worth.

One of his motivating aims, says provincial director of fitness and amateur sport Robert Secord, was to "focus public attention on the Games consistent with the importance of sport in our society."

That goal was nullified by dropping the first Winter Games in the lap of Etobicoke, a suburb of Toronto, where sports-minded souls already have enough amusements, thank you.

Who's going to bulldoze his way out in Etobicoke to watch some 16-year-old win a bronze medal in ping-pong when he's still trying to shake Christmas cobwebs out of his head? Why, one can even watch the Leafs from the safety of a swivel-rocker.

No, the Ontario Winter Games were not designed for the province's largest city. Isn't it enough that Toronto area competitors would win most of the medals (seven of the Games' first 13 Golds) without making them at least drive a few miles to pick them up?

Setting the Games in more subdued surroundings — even some isolated place like Kingston, for Pete's sake — would be fairer to the athletes concerned. It would also ease the minds of many municipalities who are given the impression by Queen's Park that Toronto begins at Brockville and ends at Hamilton, and is bounded on one side by the Northwest Territories.

The 16 sports in the Etobicoke winter brainwave happen to be the same as those on the schedule of the Canadian Winter Games in Saskatoon Feb. 11-27, and this week's competitions are intended to select Ontario's 295-athlete contingent.

If co-ordination of the trip to Saskatoon is anything like that involved in Etobicoke, the Ontario team may find themselves in downtown Dawson City.

Belleville weightlifting coach Ken Carr-Brabat described some of his problems in getting his 13 Apollo Club qualifiers to Etobicoke.

Did Richie Benefit?

"First of all, I wasn't notified about how many of our boys were eligible to go until last week. Then they didn't allow for equipment space on the buses taking athletes from eastern Ontario. They said 'This's your problem,'" fumed Carr-Brabat.

"Anyway, in the end, they decided we needed two buses."

But getting there was just half the fun.

Speedskaters arrived at the starting line Monday morning to find the course was 17 yards too short and that event was postponed.

Tex Kitchener hoarers was gold medals Tuesday without even stepping into the ring. Their opponents didn't show up.

There were other oddities. Belleville lifter Richie Bly, a 13-year-old surfer, found himself competing against Commonwealth heavyweight champion Russ Prior. The Hamilton 15-year-old was all form, coming up with a mere 305-pound three-lift total.

Young Richie did his best in his first competition before more than a smattering of fellow Apollo Club members. He totalled 375 pounds, less than one Prior clean-and-jerk, but wound up with a silver medal!

The idea of developing younger athletes' skills is praiseworthy, but placing a beginner in head-to-head competition with a champion, who happened to be named the same day the country's outstanding amateur athlete, is not benefitting either competitor, not to mention spectators.

To add further indignity, the powers-that-be decided that the Games were not provincial championships, reducing prestige from an already questionable level.

Ontario's first Winter Games were a snow job.

Line Change

Members of the league-leading Wm. Belch and Sons Novices scramble over the boards for a line change in their game with the Kings last night. A total of 15 teams are operating for the under 11 age division which plays Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Throwing Weight Around

Heavyweight lifter Richie Bly, won a silver medal in the 242 pound class with a 375-pound total.

Bly's total lift was far behind Commonwealth gold medalist Russ Prior's winning mark of 495 pounds, but at 13 years of age the Belleville athlete will have a lot of time to improve his performance. Richie is the youngest weightlifting competitor in the games.

Brother Fred Bly had hoisted an identical total Monday to take sixth place in the 181-pound class.

Rob Allore came up with a total lift of 360 pounds yesterday, good for fourth place in the 123-pound class which was won by Dan Herlihy of Hamilton with a 325 total.

Competing today for the Apollo club will be middleweights Gary Ferguson, Brian Rosebush and Paul Barrett along with 198-pounder Bob Walt.

Belleville wrestler Herb Uddenberg won his first two bouts in the 141 pound freestyle division, while figure skaters Michael Fleighaner and Patsy Allore are scheduled to compete today.

In the hockey competition, the Peterborough Lions continued the winning format that allowed them to win 15 of 17 Eastern Ontario Junior B League contests.

The Lions opened play Monday with a 4-2 victory over Owen Sound and then added a win over Petrolia by an identical score.

Their 5-1 victory over the Toronto Young Nationals Tuesday put them in the championship game tonight against Petrolia.

Imperials Crowned

The Blake Kerr Imperials have captured one crown and have their sights set on a double win at the Orillia Midget tournament.

The Imperials blanked Bowmanville 9-0 in a Tuesday meeting and came up with a key 7-3 win over Whitby this morning to give them the Consolation Championship.

Brian Cousins tallied a pair of goals in the victory over Whitby for the Belleville midgets, who have lost only one game, a 2-1 squeaker to Orillia in their tournament opener.

They meet Milton or Barrie at 4 p.m. tonight for the Grand Championship.

Holiday Roll

Five pin bowlers will get things "rolling" for the season's tournament action tonight in the Belleville Bowl-o-Drome's seventh annual Holiday Classic.

A total of 60 competitors from the Quinte area were entered in last year's event including bowlers from Trenton, Cobourg and Peterborough.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 31

Your birthday today: Just enough obstacles in the coming year force you to rise above your accepted limitations, organize all resources. Additional responsibilities are virtually certain: some are the results of your demands, others are thrust upon you because of events in your community or vocation. Emotional evolvement becomes easier with serious study and meditation; much of the time you will find the going rough. Today's natives protect their environment. The men have distinguished themselves patriotically.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Don't force issues or try to make hasty new decisions. Distractions hinder your being heard, even if you have reason for drastic change at the last minute. Do get an early start.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The feeling of being left out is passing, but many hazard is in fact. Instead, you miss quite a squabble by not being the center of attention. Restraint is essential.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make a serious effort to understand why things cost what they do, how your own budget shapes up. Avoid risk, excitement, make it moderate day and night.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): On ordinary days you can trust your luck, get away with your cut-cutting but today you must be careful. Checking tentative agreements reveals a detail you'd like changed.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Temperament gets out of hand all about you: be calm and help keep the situation cool. Distractions, office parties abound, so that little organized work is done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Attend your own wants before the rush of the day develops. Patience and lack of haste will distinguish you, earn you praise and credit. Take a nap.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You now have an age-gap problem: older people find your ideas beyond their acceptance, while younger ones find them too conservative — you can say so in unflattering terms. Attend realizes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Temptations are to haste, carelessness, overly energetic social activity. Get things done early before the distractions of the New Years are at hand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Extra work comes your way, perhaps at some inconvenience. Avoid people with grudges on their shoulders. Enjoy a frivolous but safe evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Buy the very best that you can afford for necessities, pamper yourself a little. Interruptions make it a strenuous day. Be temperate in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be especially considerate, give everybody time to react before you go ahead. Fragile things should be set in safer places, if you have open-house guests evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You have the job of bearing the brunt of misdemeanistic incidents. Diplomatically avoid the responsibility of knowing too much. Moderation tonight is essential.

Judicial System Is Key

I was caught in the conversational cross-fire at dinner the other night, between a lady who was protesting against — police brutality" and a man who was defending the need for "law and order."

Both of these adversaries, it seemed to me, failed to put their arguments in a proper perspective. They were talk, big in a void, filling it with abstractions and sentiments that masqueraded as "philosophy."

In order to keep a sensible balance and find this difficult subject, I think we first of all ought to understand where the U.S. stands on the spectrum of "police power" in terms of comparable nations; most Americans have no idea of what goes on in the rest of the world.

Let us take, as convenient examples, France and England, which rank #11th and #11th among the great democratic powers of the West. If we compare ourselves with France, we have one scale for judging our police; if we compare ourselves with England, we have quite another.

The British police are courteous beyond belief; they are trained to respect the law in a way that American police are not; they have a long tradition of warning suspects about their civil rights; and they cannot even carry a gun without requesting a special permit to do so.

The French police, on the other hand, exercise quite extraordinary powers, unheard of by our standards. They are more physically brutal than U.S. cops; they have more freedom in making arrests; they are less hampered by judicial processes; and they care far less about civil rights.

Yet both England and France have lower crime rates than the U.S. So, obviously, the high incidence of crime here has little to do with the severity or permissiveness of the police system — otherwise, we would expect France to have a significantly lower crime rate than England which is not at all the case.

How America differs from both these countries is not in the toughness or softness of police procedures — it resides within the judicial system itself. In England, for instance (contrary to popular belief) the average suspect is shorter than in the U.S. — but justice is swift, certain and impartial.

There is no alliance of politics and organized crime; no entrenching from low to political headquarters to the bench; no connections, no fix, no long delays, no legal tribulations and deals that let the influential crook off with a suspended sentence, while the petty crook goes up for a term that makes the prosecutor's record look good.

When we understand this, we will stop talking about the police, and start scrutinizing the whole legal system itself.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Trichinosis Often Is Misdiagnosed

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is a traveling salesman, I can oversee his meals when he is home, but of course cannot determine what is best for him to eat when he goes to various restaurants.

About two weeks ago he came home ill complaining of diarrhea and fever and aching in all his muscles. At first we thought he had the flu. But, as he didn't improve at all, our doctor asked him about what he had been eating.

He remembered that some time before this his stomach had become upset after eating pork that "didn't taste right." Perhaps you've guessed it by now. Doctors made a diagnosis of trichinosis.

I love pork, too. My reason for writing is to warn your housewife readers to be sure to cook it thoroughly. As for eating it in restaurants, have your husbands make sure they order it in a reputable place. — Mrs. B.

Comment: I wonder how many cases of trichinosis I have overlooked and treated as flu. I'm sure that it is often misdiagnosed.

Although infection is due to swallowing larvae of trichinella spiralis which hatch, and the tiny worms make their way to muscles and become encysted, it is understandable why we do not become suspicious at first.

Aches, pains, nausea, diarrhea, vomiting, and fever often fit into the common picture of the patient laid up with the flu. Nevertheless, we should always think of other possibilities when the condition "hangs on" longer than we expect.

I recall one patient where I made an early diagnosis of trichinosis simply because he developed sudden, unexpected puffiness and swelling about the eyes. Examination of his blood showed what we call "eosinophilia" (an increase in certain special blood cells). And the diagnosis was confirmed when a piece of a punched - out bit of arm muscle revealed the guilty larvae of trichinosis.

I presume that by the time you read this, Mrs. B., your husband will be improving. Effective treatment is brought about by drugs called anthelmintics and other drugs.

But I want to reemphasize what you said. Be sure that pork is fresh and well-cooked. Not all cases of trichinosis are mild. There have been reports of rare invasion into the heart muscle itself with tremendous graphic changes resulting, although I have never seen such cases personally. Whether it's trichinosis or something else, it's well to remember that carelessness with food preparation can cause trouble.

For Mrs. K.: Your children need vitamin C every day because it is not stored in the body as long as other vitamins. If your youngster can't take orange juice, try tomato juice. If there's any question that he is not getting sufficient vitamin C in the diet your doctor will suggest it in pill form.

For Mrs. D.: I don't see why you can't have hot-dog serving can't be tolerated by an 18 - months - old youngster. But don't make a habit of it. This spicy concoction sometimes decreases the child's appetite for regular offerings of meat and chicken. There's time enough for dogs later on at picnics and parties, and as co-goodies with a bag of peanuts at a baseball game.

• • •

For Mr. J.: A transurethral resection is an operation performed via the urethra, such as a transurethral prostatectomy in which a portion of the prostate gland is removed through the penis.

Student Gets Answer To Policy Questions

TORONTO (CP) — A To-ronto student who raised ques-tions about federal govern-ment policy at a Liberal con-vention last month, received a reply Tuesday from Prime Minister Trudeau.

Denise Howe, a Grade 13 student who attended the con-ference as a Young Liberal delegate, had asked during an accountability session to what extent the government would be "influenced by the deci-sions made at this confer-ence."

In a letter dated Dec. 18, and released in the confer-ence's delegates and the press Tuesday, the prime minister said that while the govern-ment might not be able to ac-cept and act on all resolutions "any colleagues and I cannot and do not intend to ignore any of them."

The prime minister said two resolutions approved by the delegates—provision of a fed-eral review board to oversee administration of the Public Order Act and institution of a guaranteed annual wage—were two examples "why dif-ficulties can be encountered in attempting to carry out the will of the policy convention."

Mr. Trudeau said the idea of a review board had been firmly rejected by Quebec as an invasion of provincial au-thority and that a guaranteed annual income would require government revenues which "simply do not exist at this time."

Miss Howe said she was surprised to receive the letter and doubly surprised that it was "not just a mimeo-graphed copy with my name inserted."

Death Sentences Are Commuted

Jews Go To Prison

MOSCOW (AP) — The Supreme Court of the Russian Federation commuted today the death sentences of the two Jews convicted of treason on Christmas Eve in the Leningrad black case.

The court reduced the sentences of Edward Kuznetsov and Mark Dymshits to 15-year terms in a labor camp.

It also reduced the labor camp terms given in Leningrad to three other defendants but upheld the other six sentences.

The trial and sentencing of the Jews set off a storm of protests in Western Europe, Israel, Canada and the United States, and a number of governmental and world leaders appealed to the Soviet government for clemency.

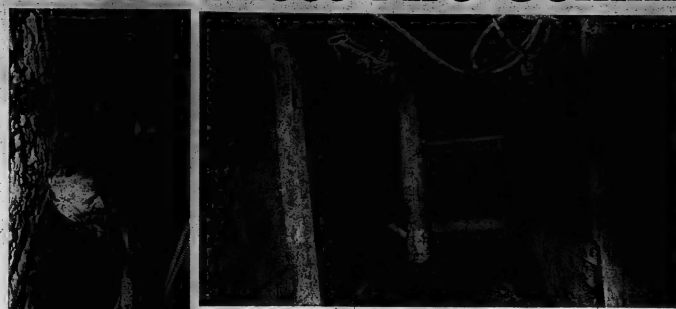
The appeal court reversed the death sentences less than 24 hours after Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish chief of state, commuted the death sentences of six Basque nationalists, and Russian sympathetic to the Leningrad defendants said the Russian court undoubtedly was influenced by Franco's action.

The 11 defendants—nine Jews and two gentiles—were arrested in June as they prepared to board a small Soviet airliner in Leningrad for Finland. At the trial, which began Dec. 15 and ended Christmas Eve, the Jews admitted planning to hijack the plane because the Soviet government refused to let them emigrate to Israel. They were charged with treason.

"In considering their appeals," the Soviet news agency Tass reported, "the Supreme Court proceeded from the fact that the hijack attempt was averted in time and that under the Soviet law the death penalty is an exceptional measure of punishment."

The court acted after a hearing that lasted a day and a half. Barred from the courtroom, supporters of the defendants stood outside the building in the rain and snow as the arguments went on inside.

Kuznetsov, who had a pistol when he was arrested, was ordered confined under "especially strict regime," meaning he will be allowed only one visitor a year, a subsistence diet of about one-third the number of calories required to sustain good health, and no food parcels from outside.



Dymshits, who was to have flown the plane, was sentenced to "strict regime" confinement, meaning reduced visiting and mail privileges and fewer food parcels than ordinary prisoners.

Judge Trahan (Left) Lowers Himself Into Suspect Hideout (Above)

Mud Hideout Stocked with Food

ST. LUC, Que. (CP) — The prime suspects in the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, spent their last hours of freedom holed up in an underground hideaway barely large enough for a man to crawl through.

The hideout was inspected Wednesday by Judge Jacques Trahan, coroner conducting the inquest into the death of Mr. Laporte.

Brothers Jacques and Paul Rose and Francis Simard, sought since October in connection with the kidnapping, surrendered to police Monday after negotiating from the hidden passageway where they hoped to elude police for a second time.

They had previously escaped a police raid by secreting themselves behind a false wall in a clothes closet in a Montreal apartment in November.

This time they had dug a 25-foot tunnel behind a small frame farmhouse in this community about 30 miles southeast of Montreal and had hollowed out a tiny resting place, about four feet high, four feet wide and five feet long.

Police visited the house three times since Oct. 22 without finding the suspects but pounced successfully the fourth time Monday after a glimmer of light revealed action in the apparently-empty house. It was under constant surveillance by police on snowmobiles.

When Judge Jacques Trahan visited the house with court officials and reporters the muddy tunnel was swimming in an inch of water.

Mr. Laporte was kidnaped Oct. 10 by terrorists and strangled one week later. The outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec claimed responsibility for the kidnapping and killing.

The inquest resumes Monday and the Rose brothers and Simard are to appear.

They had already appeared briefly, Tuesday, long enough to be told formally that they are being held as material - witnesses in the Laporte killing.

Wednesday, bail was granted to 12 persons held under the War Measures Act, invoked Oct. 16 to combat Quebec terrorists who had abducted Mr. Laporte and British diplomat James Cross.

Six other applications for bail were rejected and five were withdrawn.

At this crossroads community a half-hour's drive from Montreal, Judge Trahan went down a narrow staircase to the three-room basement where the tunnel started behind the furnace.

The furnace stands on a platform of concrete blocks, and during earlier police raids no evidence of the underground passageway was found. It was hidden under four concrete blocks similar to those used to support the furnace. Beneath the blocks was a man-size hole, about one by 1½ feet, and a tunnel leading back to the chamber fashioned to hide the kidnap suspects.

The tunnel and the enlarged chamber are lined with plywood and lumber supports.

Police say the hiding place was stocked with food and sleeping bags when the suspects were captured.

After the final, successful raid, police went over the house carefully, knocking holes in the walls and ceiling in search of dynamite bombs or booby traps and dusting wherever fingerprints might be found.

No bombs or booby traps were found.

Police say they believe the hideout was dug as a ditch, with the top covered over after a trench had been dug. Oak offi-

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty per cent of Toronto's high school population is using drugs other than alcohol, David Archer, executive director of the Addiction Research Foundation, said Wednesday. The increased numbers of young people who use more than one drug has helped cause an increase in illicit drug use in Ontario that has been quite phenomenal, he said in a year-end interview.

Relief Sweeps Spain

MADRID (CP) — A wave of relief swept across Spain today with the news that Head of State Francisco Franco spared the lives of six young Basque nationalist guerrillas less than 12 hours before they were scheduled to die before a military firing squad.

Nowhere was it received with greater surprise than in the untreated cells of Burgos jail where the six condemned men, who earlier smuggled out a letter saying they wanted to die for their cause, told defence lawyers they expected to learn that the death sentences had been confirmed.

Commutation of the death sentences sent Basques in northern Spain into the streets dancing. Pope Paul, the Archbishop of Canterbury and other religious and political leaders expressed appreciation for Franco's clemency.

The six Basques were sentenced to death Monday in Burgos by a military court which convicted them of the murder of a political police chief. Three of them received double death sentences.

Franco, faced with the greatest political crisis of his 31-year rule and under heavy pressure from abroad, reduced the sentences to 30 years each in prison, to be served concurrently with prison sentences ranging from 27½ to 68 years given five of them by the military court.

Franco's decree specified that the six Basques are barred from any general amnesties and that they cannot reduce their prison terms by good behavior or extra work.

There was no clemency for nine other Basques in the Burgos trial who got prison terms of 12 to 76 years for terrorist activity 30 years and a day is considered fulfilment of a life sentence in Spain. The oldest of the defendants is 37.

Shortly after Franco's clemency was announced, the chief of state, in his annual televised New Year message, said his action allowed Spain to begin the Holy Year—observed every five years—"with spirits of peace."

By his clemency, Franco rebuffed archconservatives in the army and the government who want to club down all opposition.

McCartney Sues For 'Divorce'

LONDON (AP) — Paul McCartney brought a court action today against the other three Beatles—John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr—demanding that the group be legally dissolved.

The writ was filed in the chancery division of the London High Court.

McCartney's suit came after months of rumor that the Beatles were breaking up permanently. They have not played in public together for more than two years.

Potter Tour to Caution Delegates to Keep an Open Mind

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Government is a serious business says Dr. Richard Potter, and choosing a political leader a matter of grave consideration.

The Quinte MPP feels so seriously about it, he is making a lightning tour of Ontario next week to publicly urge seriousness on fellow Conservatives now pondering a successor to Premier Robarts.

The core of his caution to Tory delegates now being assembled to select a new leader at a mid - February convention emerges something like this:

Bandy banners, boose and backroom deals do not a leader make in the 1970s. The times call for new policies, new attitudes. These — not convention hoopla and hijinks — must be the criteria of choice in selecting the man responsible for leading the Tories in the next Ontario election.

To arrive at an intelligent decision, delegates should not prematurely commit themselves to any one leadership bidder, but should wait to assess — seriously — the merits of each candidate's appeal at the convention.

"I want to impress upon the delegates the importance of the approach they must have to choosing the man who will be the next premier of Ontario," said Dr. Potter today. "They should approach this decision very carefully and be sure he is a man for this time."

To carry his caution province-wide, the Quinte MPP will fly four days between major Ontario centres, starting Monday in Toronto.

His itinerary calls for stops at Hamilton, Kitchener, London, Windsor, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and Ottawa.

The exercise is even more unique in that it won't make contact with any other politicians.

Dr. Potter says he will not be meeting with members of any local Conservative organizations. Instead, he will impart his message through the news media — at a series of press conferences already organized.

The plan is deliberate since Dr. Potter seems anxious that his tour not be construed as personal political foraging.

He himself is not considering the leadership nor is his tour associated with any potential candidate.

"I don't want to be hooked in with anybody (on the tour). I'm doing this strictly on my own on the understanding that I'm not a candidate."

The only motive behind the

MADRID (CP) — A wave of relief swept across Spain today with the news that Head of State Francisco Franco spared the lives of six young Basque nationalist guerrillas less than 12 hours before they were scheduled to die before a military firing squad.

Nowhere was it received with greater surprise than in the underground cells of Burgos jail where the six condemned men, who earlier smuggled out a letter saying they wanted to die for their cause, told defence lawyers they expected to learn that the death sentences had been confirmed.

Commutation of the death sentences sent Basques in northern Spain into the streets dancing. Pope Paul, the Archbishop of Canterbury and other religious and political leaders expressed appreciation for Franco's clemency.

The six Basques were sentenced to death Monday in Burgos by a military court which convicted them of the murder of a political police chief. Three of them received double death sentences.

France, faced with the gravest political crisis of his 31-year rule and under heavy pressure from abroad, reduced the sentences to 30 years each in prison, to be served concurrently with prison sentences ranging from 27½ to 80 years given five of them by the military court.

France's decree specified that the six Basques are barred from any general amnesties and that they cannot reduce their prison terms by good behavior or extra work.

There was no clemency for nine other Basques in the Burgos trial who got prison terms of 12 to 70 years for terrorist activity 30 years and a day is considered fulfillment of a life sentence in Spain. The oldest of the defendants is 37.

Shortly after Franco's clemency was announced, the chief of state, in his annual televised New Year message, said his action allowed Spain to begin the Holy Year—observed every five years—"with spirits of peace."

By his clemency, Franco rebuffed archconservatives in the army and the government who want to club doves' all opposition.

McCartney Sues For 'Divorce'

LONDON (AP) — Paul McCartney brought a court action today against the other three Beatles—John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr—demanding that the group be legally dissolved.

The writ was filed in the chancery division of the London High Court.

McCartney's suit came after months of rumor that the Beatles were breaking up permanently. They have not played in public together for more than two years.

Potter Tour to Caution Delegates to Keep an Open Mind

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter

Government is a serious business says Dr. Richard Potter, and choosing a political leader a matter of grave consideration.

The Quinte MPP feels so seriously about it, he is making a lightning tour of Ontario next week to publicly urge seriousness on fellow Conservatives now pondering a successor to Premier Robarts.

The core of his caution to Tory delegates now being assembled to select a new leader at a mid - February convention emerges something like this:

Bands, banners, boone and backroom deals do not a leader make in the 1970s. The times call for new policies, new attitudes. These — not convention hoopla and hijinks — must be the criteria of choice in selecting the man responsible for leading the Tories in the next Ontario election.

To arrive at an intelligent decision, delegates should not prematurely commit themselves to any one leadership bidder, but should wait to assess — seriously — the merits of each candidate's appeal at the convention.

"I want to impress upon the delegates the importance of the approach they must have in choosing the man who will be the next premier of Ontario," said Dr. Potter today. "They should approach this decision very carefully and be sure he is a man for this time."

To carry his caution province-wide, the Quinte MPP will fly four days between major Ontario centres, starting Monday in Toronto.

His itinerary calls for stops at Hamilton, Kitchener, London, Windsor, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and Ottawa.

The exercise is even more unique in that it won't make contact with any other politicians.

Dr. Potter says he will not be meeting with members of any local Conservative organizations. Instead, he will impart his message through the news media — at a series of press conferences already organized.

The plan is deliberate since Dr. Potter seems anxious that his tour not be construed as personal political foraging.

He himself is not considering the leadership nor is he tour associated with any potential candidate.

"I don't want to be hooked in with anybody (on the tour). I'm doing this strictly on my own on the understanding that I'm not a candidate."

The only motive behind the

Belleville Ready for New Year's

New Year's Eve is party time, and throughout the city tonight people will be ringing out the old and ushering in the new year at balls and buffets and get - togethers both public and private.

But the New Year's Eve tradition of formal balls is fading popularity locally, if sales figures are an accurate indication.

Merchants report that the sale of good ballday party wear has declined this year. Snowmobile suits are becoming standard party gear for the festive season as more and more people plan snowmobile parties to see out the old year.

However, most private clubs have long been sold out of tickets for their New Year's parties and few tickets were left yesterday for events scheduled at hotels and pubs for dance spots.

Price of New Year's entertainment varied from a low of $7.50 a couple to dance to records at the Air Force Association's clubhouse on the 6th of Sidney to a high of $20 for the music of Frankie Howard's group and a buffet at Club Cedars.

At the Armories, Jimmy Cathcart is playing for the Fireball ball tonight and at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle St. 30 couples will dance to the music of Charlie Kammzer at a sold-out party costing $20 a couple for members and guests only.

The party at the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans hall on Front St. costs a couple and was also sold out long ago. In addition the ANAF members will hold a New Year's tween 10 and 13 a.m. Jan. 1.

Both the officers and sergeants of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hold brews in their messes on New Year's Day.

The curling club members will be having open house Jan. 1 between 2 and 5 p.m. in addition to a party tonight for members.

The Shrine Club is charging $12 a couple in fancy and the old year and the Yacht Club costs $15 a couple for the music of Doug Jenkins and a midnight buffet.

The Belleville Club holds no New Year's Eve party but this year is trying a new departure on a dinner after the traditional New Year's Day open house in the afternoon.

The Elks and the Park Road Community Centre have thrown their year-end parties open to the public with both offering the usual package of live music, buffet, and noisemakers for the same price — $15 a couple.

At the Quinte Hotel, two parties will be held — the "old year — one in the Tropicana room with a rock group, the Impacts, and another in the Pinnacle Room with Green sale are paladings, wood-carvings and knitted goods.

The Gallery Valley management is offering a complete package to bridge the old and new year. Price is $25 a dance, with two bands, the Gerry Mann Duo and the Young Canadians, at $15 a couple plus $1.50 tax, and then a New Year's Day breakfast starting at $15 for a double room. There were still a few tickets available yesterday.

Winter Sports Complex Is Opening This Week

The Madawaska Valley is trying for a place in the booming winter sports industry with the opening this week of the $250,000 Mount Madawaska ski project.

Located about 125 miles north of Belleville on highway 62, Mount Madawaska caters to skiers, skaters and snowmobile fans. It was built by a group of local citizens of the Barry's Bay area with the aid of grants obtained under the ARDA act.

On the hill, with a 300-foot vertical drop, three ski runs up to a half-mile in length have been constructed. The project includes a 2,300-foot T-bar, 285,000 sq.ft of snowmaking equipment and a beginners' hut.

Headquarters of the 3,300 acre site operated by the local cooperative is a 9-room penny chalet and handicraft shop on highway 62 three miles north of Barry's Bay. A rink for skaters has been constructed in front of the chalet and 25 miles of snowmobile trails begin and end at the highway beside the chalet.

The handicraft shop is a true cooperative effort with all items made by residents of the Madawaska Valley. On sale are paintings, wood-carvings and knitted goods.

The chalet, open daily out in consultation with John Clifford of Ottawa, father of Betty Clifford, Canada's world-record ski champion, and operator of Camp Fortune in the Gatineau.

Plans for the future include construction of a permanent chalet at the hill, which is estimated at about $50,000 and money has already been set aside for the purpose.

Mayor Scott Sees Boom Continuing

Belleville in 1971 will enjoy its most progressive year in history.

That is the prediction of Mayor J. Russell Scott who expects that housing construction and industrial expansion in Belleville next year will surpass all city records.

"We had a big year this year" said Mayor Scott, referring to the year's building total of close to 5 million.

"But next year will be better.

"It will mean more jobs for more people at better pay," he said.

Aside from an expected all-time boom in housing, Mayor Scott said he looked forward to considerable factory construction.

"We have a number of good industrial prospects."

In addition to residential and factory construction, the mayor listed a number of municipal works projects which would be going ahead next year.

Among these was a construction start on the new Sidney Street bridges over the CN double tracks.

Also Mayor Scott said widening of East Dundas Street from the hospital would be going ahead while definite plans for the proposed Canniff - Clifford, Cannifton area over the double tracks should be under way.

"We hope to make a definite start soon to alleviate our north-south traffic problem."

"It looks terrific for us," predicted Mayor Scott, concurring this year's construction total with that of Metropolitan Toronto.

"On a per capita basis our total of $15 million must be greater than that of Toronto."

She is survived by her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Harold (Mary Anne) Murphy of Oshawa and Mrs. John (Sarah) Cotton of Whitby; three grandchildren, William John Murphy, Roger T. Cotton and Allan P. Cotton.

She was predeceased by a brother, Lyle Way.

Verna Sills Retires

AMELIASBURG (Special)— The township employee with the administrative staff longer than any other living member retires officially today.

Treasurer and tax collector Mrs. Verna Sills retirement follows 34 years of continuous service at the municipal office. She plans to devote most of her attention to her home life and church activities.

Mrs. Sills' career began back when Norris Whitney was brews of the township before he had been elected to the Ontario Legislative Assembly. She had served under nine reeves since being engaged for duties at the municipal office.

Actually Mrs. Sills' experience in municipal work dates back to 1931 when her late husband, Truman A. Sills was township treasurer and she acted as his assistant.

For Mrs. Sills change and growth in the township are reflected by the steady increase in paper work in recent years. The township population remains about the same but the number of owners of property has doubled she observed.

Mrs. Sills' years of service were recognized at two separate presentations. She received a wristwatch initially engraved from council and at senior staff, a dozen roses, a swivel rocker and a plaque expressing appreciation from a wider circle of friends and associates.

Her home in the village is where she was born.

Warden Predicts Good Year Ahead

Hastings County Warden John Wilkes, reeve of Marmora and Lake townships, expects 1971 to be both an interesting and prosperous year for county residents.

In a year end look to the future, Warden Wilkes referred to the formation of a new county planning board which in the new year is expected to get down to serious business.

The final objective of the new planning board is preparation of an official plan for the area: preparation of secondary plans for urban areas where considered necessary and preparation of zoning by-laws for the participating municipalities.

Included in the Hastings planning area are all the county municipalities with the exception of Sidney and Thurlow townships and the villages of Stirling and Frankford.

The above municipalities, along with Belleville and Trenton, are included in the Quinte Planning area.

While there has been a delay in any final decision, Warden Wilkes is still hopeful that the new chip plant and kraft paper mill proposed by Canadian International Paper for North Hastings and Prince Edward County, will go ahead.

The company's proposal is for a chip plant to be built in the Hastings or Madoc area which the firm has opioned from the county, with the paper mill to be built on the site in Ontario in Prince Edward county.

The wood chips would be shipped to Prince Edward by CP railway.

"If CIP does ahead with its plans it will mean much work for residents in North Hastings," the warden said.

Farmers were a wide area would find sale for lower grade timber while jobs would be provided by the chip mill operation and also through stepped up activities on the railway.

Next year, would also see completion of the long talked of new bridge over the Trent River at Glen Miller.

Work on the next side bridges piers and on the east approach has already been commenced and completion of the bridge is expected before the end of 1971.

Picton Prepares To Celebrate

PICTON (Staff) — Buffet suppers and dancing are planned tonight at Picton's favorite party spots where couples will join at midnight in singing Auld Lang Syne.

Amateur Forecasters See Trend Toward Conservatism

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Today is 1970. Tomorrow is 1971 — 1971, a year in time like every other, but surrounded with mysterious shadows that are impossible to comprehend.

Man can but glimpse at the sweeping vision that is a new year coming and apply and analyze the happenings of the past when searching for what the new 365 days will bring.

The Intelligencer discussed what the new year would be like with reference to the past year or so with three Belleville people, a man, a woman and a teenage girl.

Anonymously they commented on various subjects and predicted their influence on the coming year — Quebec, space, man versus man, music trends, fashion trends, feminism, culture, philosophy, life styles and patterns, the United States and Viet Nam, people in particular and the rest of the troubled world.

A general analysis of all the topics showed a unanimous trend towards conservatism in the coming year and for a time afterward. In two cases the conservatism was actually a less liberal approach to a new understanding and liberal perspective in the 70s. In one case there was a hint of conservatism for the sake of conservatism. There was a general feeling of optimism.

The first opinions on the next year came from a 19-year-old student who predicted no radical change in anything in 1971, only a slow conservative progression toward modifying new ideas and ideals.

Specifically Quebec headed the list of events that would be heard from in 1971.

She explained that the crisis in Quebec of late year would have the effect of making people in Quebec more conservative. She termed it as a "swing to order."

She said that swing to order might encompass the whole nation but if that were the case, it would be short-lived lasting perhaps only one year.

About Canada's image in the eyes of the world due to the Quebec crisis, she explained that at first there was an adverse affect on Canada, but that the next year would prove that this country has gained respect in the world's eyes.

As far as the United States space program was concerned she predicted a general increase in the negative attitude of people toward it, because of the money involved.

Man versus man has been one of the most complex and controversial subjects over the past year and the past few years.

The young student predicted "the younger generation will have more tolerance for minorities, although there is a growing reaction against violent minorities."

As minority versus majority clashes she cited the generation gap as one of the problems as example. She dismissed the generation gap as nothing more than something created by individuals for rationalizational and exploitive reasons. She stressed that the mass media of helping to create the generation gap.

She claimed there was a growing tolerance for "other races but there isn't a resentment that these minorities revert to violence."

"They have no sense of history. People don't change as rapidly as their environment."

Culturally she predicted a new swing in interest toward religion and spiritualism; a swing away from organized religion but not atheism. "People want to believe in something, work on a philosophy of life," she said.

Despite a slight increase in interest in poetry as an art, she predicted a continuing interest in television and radio although more people are concerned with "the type of garbage television is."

She predicted that the next year would see an increasing interest in things closer to home, increased perseverance in trying to do a little of things at a time instead of tackling the entire large situation.

She also predicted the demise of "doing your own thing" and an increase in organization and leadership, "a good deal of leadership and organization."

There has been a certain lack of neighborly activity and this will continue because the populace is nomadic," she said.

She blamed this on that fact that there is constant movement among modern man and "no roots". There had to be a quick adaptation to new places.

The student said that in a few years more people would be appreciative of their environment, but for the time being and in 1971 there would be an increase in the use of "mechanized toys" to create a recreational situation.

As far as the United States and Viet Nam are concerned, she said that the United States was losing still more support and she felt "the Americans have no hope."

"The Communists have got it all. Either they leave or the war will drag on and on," she warned.

The world in 1971 inspired mediocrity as far as she was concerned. "There will be no progress, but no worse a situation."

She predicted a growing dissatisfaction with student unrest and that students would realize discussion will be more productive than violence.

Generally she predicted sympathy with liberal groups but conservative methods to solve problems.

The woman was quite similar generally in her evaluation of the year to come.

In Quebec she predicted the advent of stability in 1971, explaining that the 1970's troubles may have united Canadians. She said the Liberal Government was in a stronger now.

Canada's image in the world, she claimed, would be strengthened in contrast to the world opinion of South American countries where in the same kidnap situations, governments were releasing prisoners.

As far as space is concerned, she predicted that nothing spectacular would be done by the Americans because of people's objecting to the cost of the space program.

"What will be done, it will be coming from Russia," she said.

She predicted a gradual increase in tolerance, a continuation of the minor increase in the last period of time. She claimed that the so-called silent majority would become louder, objecting to violent minorities. She visualized the minorities coming down in response to the reaction instead of heating up even more.

Speaking culturally and about feminists, she said that women shouldn't have special rights, but they should have equal rights as far as working was concerned.

"Women are speaking their minds more. They're saying I'm going to do what I think. Females are more intuitive to get along with the young than the males. They're more willing to accept change than the man.

"I think artistically there are things happening, but they're in a continuation of change. There won't be any breakthroughs. Conservatives will move in liberalism but at a conservative rate of growth."

Philosophically she predicted a continuation of good, thought.

"The under - 20 group have very good thoughts and lots to best about. Their individual thinking is going to grow into mass thinking," she said.

She spoke of the lowering of the voting age as allowing the voice of youth an audience, but that this was just a continuation of the trend, not a radical change.

She stated that in the past year or two there had been a drawing of the family closer together, explaining that the young had broken away first. People are conscious of smaller families, she said.

"The smaller the group, the lighter they are wound," she said, explaining that more affluent families were coming together first because of mechanization and their ability to afford the expensive recreational toys.

"Something is happening, drawing kids closer to do things with their parents. But fortunately, it starts with money."

She predicted the vacation of Viet Nam by American troops. "Nixon has to keep his word. If he doesn't, the United States will move more and more toward a police state."

She added that once they pulled out, the Americans would look stronger in the eyes of the world, principally because they would help poorer countries.

"People want to see something done for the poorer countries. They're going to do more for those other countries and in the way that the other countries want it."

She predicted a general movement in the world away from the statements and control of the government, using recent events in Poland as an example.

"People will take things stuffed down their throats for only so long. They want to think for themselves. They do not always want what's handed to them. There's a little bit of revolt showing, a better situation in communist countries."

She picked a figure to watch for in 1971 or afterwards. If things don't change in the United States. She predicted that George Wallace would come to power in the 1972 presidential election because he is the type of person to change things.

The man had a similar opinion concerning the Quebec crisis.

"You can't ignore the kidnapping - murder crisis. The results could turn out to be Quebec closer to Canada. Prime Minister Trudeau's actions not only brought him closer to the English and the French, but ensured an election victory."

He said that Canada's prestige had been on the upswing since Expo, when people of other countries had learned that Canadians were not a replica of Americans.

"The dramatic events in Quebec made the world realize that Canada has dramatic problems of its own and can solve them. Within a decade, both Canada will be considered a pioneer in recognizing Red China."

About space, he gave most of the credit for decreased space activity to the protesters, explaining that protesters regarded the situation at home more seriously than a quarter million dollar rocket.

He predicted less emphasis on space in the next couple of years, stating that space was now regarded offhandedly.

Concerning the conflict between men, he said that Canadians don't feel it's their problem. And there is not as much cause for concern.

"In the United States, which seems to be the model of man versus man conflicts, the war in Viet Nam, racial problems, and a awareness that the greatest technology in the world is also the worst pollutor, growing awareness about the Nixon regime, all these factors seem to contribute to what Spiro Agnew's critics call polarization.

"What I'm afraid of is a more repressive society in the United States, a government backlash against student violence."

He commented that the United States is one of the most least - participatory democracies in the world.

"I see Canada as a much more open society than the United States, afraid of trends in the United States."

Culturally he explained that many more people were concerned with "the finer things in life".

He spoke of a boredom of an "over-technological society. The young people are responsible for leading this trend."

Still, he could see no artistic breakthrough in the near future. "I predict that 99 per cent of North American noises will still find ballet boring," he quipped.

About feminism, he said, "Women have been making a terrible mistake by admitting openly they want a share of running the world with men counterparts. It served to make men realize that women have, in fact, been doing a pretty good job on their own in the past two decades."

He predicted that in 1971 certain new labor laws and social legislation would give women a working equality.

"Women aren't looking for equality. I think we'll see women in important government positions. I can't see how any legislation can transform a female personality that has been millions of years in the making."

He predicted that the next decade would produce a genetic problem for men in finding games to play, a problem he big on "cleaning up his playground."

"More and more recreational time as a by-product of the technological age, will be present and anyone who does not involve himself in cultural or recreational pursuits will find himself leading a very dull life."

"I think that the generation of North Americans thought the greatest duty they had in life was to put in an honest 40-hour week. Some are spending their whole life in this style by youth have started a trend towards establishment more personal goals or aims.

"This will continue, although the churches are emptying, and people are becoming more spiritual in a sense. They give more consideration to their role in life."

He predicted the American vacation of Viet Nam and predicted it as one more symptom of a return by the United States to a policy of isolation.

He predicted that the world would become more mindful of political power.

"I'm very optimistic about Canada. Here our democracy is not in what people feel their wishes are being heeded. We don't get the 'write your congressman' put off."

He predicted that Trudeau was the man to watch in the coming year and for years after.

"He is being regarded more and more as a new era leader. If it wasn't for our size he'd be a JF Kennedy.

"The 70s will hold a conservatism in all aspects, a more modified approach to our problems. Confrontation will not be the answer to all our problems," he said. "But I'm an optimist."

On the lighter side, the three mentions had opinions on fashion and music trends. The youngest predicted a swing to modern interpretations of old calms in music, a positive and humorous look at things and less negativism.

In fashion, she predicted more relaxed clothes and more feminine clothes that were not stiff and harsh. She said there would be more of a mixture. Men's fashions will continue to be experimental.

The woman predicted that the lyrics of modern music would follow the trend of calmness as far as Canada was concerned. Generally American music would still contain protest. She predicted more of a low angle.

In fashion for men she predicted a continuation of the color trend because both men and women liked it. Women, she said would be more selective and not take what the fashion houses wanted them to take.

The man predicted a greater interest in music as a whole in 1971, reflecting an interest in simpler and finer aspects of living.

"Fashion, like the arts, is about to enter an almost Victorian era. People have been just about everything they can see in fashion and in fashion. Signs of longer hemlines and higher necklines would indicate not necessarily conservatism, but a reaction to the vulgarity of 'letting it all hang out.'"

Three Men Commended For Aiding Constable

PICTON (Staff) — Chairman of the Picton police commission Jesse Mason announced Tuesday that letters of commendation will be sent to three young men who assisted Constable Harry Sisty in a scuffle at the Globe Hotel Monday evening.

The policeman was attempting to remove a drunken man from the beverage room after a shotgun was discharged when the scuffle occurred.

Mr. Mason said that Constable Sisty was aided by Donald Purchase, Picton; Harry Tuttle, Demorestville and Tom Delise, Madoc.

The shooting incident in the women's beverage room led to the arrest of William Fraser, Jr., 25, who was charged with intent to endanger the lives of others.

When Constable Sisty arrived at the hotel, a scuffle reportedly followed as a relative and friends of Mr. Fraser struggled with the policeman. He was assisted by the three young men mentioned by Mr. Mason.

The chairman of the police commission commented that the public today is frequently critical of policemen. "This was one of the rare occasions when a policeman was aided directly in the performance of his job by citizens," he observed.

Constable Sisty also praised the three men this week stating that he "highly commended" their action in coming to his aid.

A New Year

What do we know for sure about the coming year? Nothing really, beyond the old certainties of death and taxes (tax forms will be in the mail within a few days!), and while life will get quite evolution it will also bring revolution, violence and conflict — if not here then there, for that is the way of the world.

The global society in 1971 will still have to contend with such other certainties as crime and overpopulation and nationalism, with hijackings and kidnappings, with the problems of Basques in Spain as with the problems of Irish protestants and catholics.

To a greater or lesser degree the period ahead will have its share of Che Guevaras, Bernadette Devlins, Rose brothers and men like Francis Pelmard who has been described thus: "Like a lot of the young he was in a hurry . . . he had the idea that history had to be accelerated . . . that things must be pushed."

That was Dr. Jacques Ferron, the man who acted as go-between before the arrest of the FLQ suspects, speaking.

Asked if they were idealists, he had replied: "I guess so. Why else would they do such a thing if not for their ideals? They don't stand to gain anything from it."

Why else indeed? Like Guevara and Devlin they have changed the course of history, and whatever may be thought of their methods and ultimate aims they have focussed public attention on the inequalities of society, the need for a better deal and the realization of that elusive "quality of life" for all mankind.

If the major sin is that of being born, as playwright and Nobel prizewinner Samuel Beckett has observed in a moment of cynicism, then it is up to everyone to leave the world better for having been born. Beckett once said of a New York visit: "People look so unhappy here. Young housewives carry about them a sense of despair, and I sense a great hostility in the faces of the men."

Globe and Mail columnist Bruce West (and just about anybody else familiar with the place) has observed the same phenomenon in Toronto. A lot of it of course is our "public mask," and West says at the same time that it is often a happy child in its mother's arms in the subway who breaks the ice.

At the very fundamental, practical level, then, we can all begin 1971 by trying to bring greater quality into the business of living, for our own sake and that of our children. And for all the concern about overpopulation, let us stay alive in the process. For one thing, that means driving more carefully, whether it be the car or snowmobile.

An Elegant Occasion

Remember the surplus millions that were spent on the National Arts Centre in Ottawa — many more than were first budgeted? Well, maybe it is a good thing that Canada can boast of a cultural establishment worthy of the capital city. Ottawa is no longer Bytown and we cannot expect a city which is the seat of government and of the diplomatic corps to take a second auditorium, bourgeois attitude toward culture.

Moreover, it does seem to make difference to life in the city. Where previously there was no such centre, there is now one which adds a very definite lustre to the Ottawa scene. It would seem also that the people of Ottawa are responding in a way which is making it increasingly worthy of the distinction of a capital city.

Comparisons may be odious, but they do tend to separate the wheat from the chaff, so to speak, as a much-treasured young Vancouver friend discovered at the recent first anniversary of the Arts Centre. Visiting from Vancouver, where she now resides, she said she was really struck by the elegance of the people attending the anniversary concert. And she was reminded of a concert in the Royal Festival Hall in London. In Vancouver on the other hand "one just does not see that sort of thing . . . people don't seem to give any thought to dressing up for a concert or opera but turn up in ordinary street wear."

In Ottawa too, on this anniversary, champagne and birthday cake were served and there was music and dancing. All in all it was an occasion for celebration, and if we could not all have been there, it is good to know that elegant occasions such as this are not lacking in our society.

Use with Care

Before the snowmobile becomes a thoroughly pernicious instrument and its devotees a thoroughly despised segment of society, let all users — and particularly the reckless minority — heed the police warnings about the growing accident and death rate. Pay attention now before it is too late!

Out of Luck—Again

Stanfield Fails with 'Youth Vote' Foray in Quebec

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield continues up to his bushy eyebrows in luck, most of it bad.

Sooner or later the odds have to be that the political dice must come rolling his way with luck, some of it good.

Meanwhile, so many of his key throws persist in coming up losers.

Take his recent pitch for the "youth vote", as the political scientists who advise politicians — some of them practical politicians — term it.

How wrong can it go?

So wrong that the young people — the "youth vote" — which Mr. Stanfield and his advisers have set their hearts for the next election—have been flashing him the being "too soft".

Worse, it was the Conservative party's own youth wing in the biggest centre of "urban Canada", which the party's amateur back-room boys tell him is the doorway to power, that expressed its "disgustment" as it has been described, to him.

And worst of all, it was the young "urban" Tories of Quebec, the province which remains a Conservative power vacuum which must be filled with Stanfield votes, again warn his advisers, if victory is to come in 1972.

In summary, his critics were young, they were urban, they were French — Canadian, and they found him wanting in the quality of toughness — the very thing his strategists had assured him was a drug on the political market where only the soft approach is supposed to sell.

You think the Conservatives have not been planning, even banking on, that remedy, hoping for — on the "urban youth vote"

Believe that and you forsee the "report on Strategy" for the next election which recently-retired Conservative National Organizer Malcolm Wickson left with Mr. Stanfield.

Its keynote: "The party's present base is elderly and rural, so the emphasis has to be on enlisting the young urban voter."

The report came down hard, too, on the bleakness outlook of winning support in Quebec.

So the emphasis — it was to become almost a preoccupation with the party planners — was on youth, the city scene and French Canada.

Robert Stanfield took it seriously.

He went for moderately "mod" styling in shirts, ties and suits.

He did some silly capering on a Toronto stage, supposedly to show the young urban voter that he was "with it," even among codes.

Now he had been to Montreal to try out his new "urban youth appeal" image.

He was hiking in what the Conservative - leaning Montreal Gazette, with its professional observer watching and listening, termed as party "militants."

That means they were, to use an old but still reasonably accurate term, "true-blue Tories" small "c" conservatives.

There were 1,800 of them.

And with a good representation on hand was the Quebec Progressive Conservative Students Association.

Students, mind you. How young can voters come?

The 1,800 Conservative "militants," including the student Tories gave Mr. Stanfield a good and appreciative hand for his brief, if thoroughly professional attack on Liberal economic, employment and taxation policies.

He should have quit right there in his speech while he was ahead.

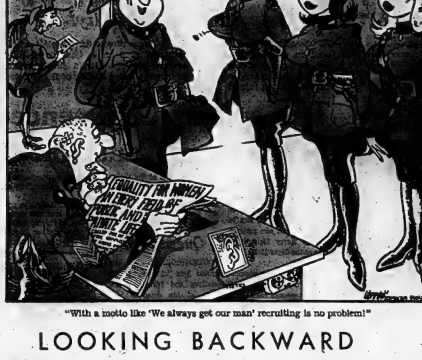
But with still no instinct for good political timing, he went on to mock it to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's stay in reference, to Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa for his handling of the FLQ kidnap-murder terror crisis.

While he insisted he supported the Government — at the same time hammering it, and permitting his party's few dissidents to vote against the anti-terror measures — he accused it openly of "inspiring rumors with the clear purpose of destroying the reputation of prominent Quebecers."

(This was in obvious reference to Prime Minister Trudeau's refusal, even in the crunch of the crisis, to back down and deny there had been talk in Montreal — and perhaps more than talk — of a so-called "provisional government" possibly taking over from Premier Bourassa.)

For Mr. Stanfield, that tore it.

The Gazette reports the audience reaction of the Tory "militants" and students:



"Delivering some 85 percent of his speech in French, Mr. Stanfield's reception gave the impression that the bulk of his audience would have preferred a much harder line."

To nail it down, President Lawrence Webster of the Quebec Conservative Student Association went into qualms: "We were generally disappointed with Mr. Stanfield for not fully supporting the War Measures" in the FLQ crisis.

He also criticized Mr. Stanfield — and this is the Quebec Conservative students' leader speaking, remember — for attacking what the Tory leader had termed "irresponsibilities" of Regional Economic Minister Jean Marchand in warning that the FLQ was trying to capture Montreal in last October's civic election.

Summing up the evening, The Gazette said: Mr. Stanfield "evoked little more than a wry desultory round of lukewarm applause among the party militants, and like a Tory Progressive Conservatives were 2a open opposition in what they saw as their leader's 'soft line' on Quebec terrorism."

Some hope nothing goes right for Robert Lorne Stanfield.

"With a motto like 'We always get our man' recruiting is no problem!"

Dec. 31, 1775 — Brig.-Gen. Richard Montgomery led his outnumbered American forces in an ill-fated attack on Quebec 195 years ago today — in 1775. Montgomery had fewer than 1,000 men for the attack which he launched in a howling blizzard. He was killed early in the battle and the operation quickly collapsed.

1915—Bermuda removed a ban on private cars.

1923—Big Ben's chimes were first broadcast by radio.

1956—The United States Immigration depot at Ellis Island was opened.

1963—The USS Monitor was sunk off Cape Hatteras.

1857—Ottawa was chosen as the capital of Canada by Queen Victoria.

Business and Academics Suffer Growing Alienation

Peter Sousa, director of the Royal Ontario Museum in the Globe and Mail

Two dangerous forces are at work in North American society. One is its driving wedges between its various elements — between youth and age, government and governed, labor and capital, left and right, black and white. The second force, a corollary of the first is hardening the attitudes of these elements. As a result the danger of conflict becomes greater. If this struggle comes, the prospect of its being taken to the left is more likely. As in politics, a liberal, reasonable position has become most difficult to maintain. One area of possible conflict exists between the so-called intellectual and the business man. This is seen most clearly in the relationships on this continent and elsewhere, between the university teacher and the creators of our economic wealth. Businessmen in North America seem often to mistrust the impractical egg-head.

In some European countries an effort is made to bridge the gap by inviting intellectuals to join boards of companies. Evidently this problem is to be to the benefit of both. However, the alienation of the two groups in North America has reached a status where it would be increasingly difficult to achieve even such a token integration. The intellectual would be accused of "selling out". Only the most enlightened business men on the boards of universities understand the problems of the administrators with whom they are sometimes not in sympathy. Attitudes harden, so solution presents itself — except revolution.

This is an area where a serious, non-left, no-holds-barred study might really be of value. Some goodwill still exists on both sides. But nobody seems to be talking and time is of the essence.

Eskimo's Heritage

German Features

TUEBINGEN — Anthropologists from Tuebingen University's Institute of Prehistory are helping to fill in the gaps in our knowledge about North America's prehistoric Eskimos.

The German team spent last summer with Canadian students uncovering stone and bone tools, wooden implements and other vestiges of Eskimo settlements which existed 3,500 years ago.

The finds confirm this ancient people were hunters who made main booty was the musk-ox on banks lined with ice the year under state protection. Later, an advancing ice age forced the Eskimos to become sea hunters.

New Approach by Nixon and Private Agencies

Administration to Tackle Black Community's Problems

WASHINGTON (CP) — The word around Washington is that Richard Nixon, a year after he called "the unseen president," has already made his New Year's resolution.

He's going to communicate.

In 1971, according to word transmitted through aides to a number of White House regulars among the press corps, there will be more press conferences, more meetings with the cabinet, more personal contact with members of Congress.

In preparation for the 1972 presidential election, the story goes, he'll travel more, vacation less at his homes in Florida and California, and in general project a less pragmatic image of one who is invariably right.

Several commentators have suggested that Nixon has already put the New Year's resolution into effect, pointing to Tuesday's cabinet meeting at which Whitney M. Young, director of the Urban League, was invited to discuss Negro problems.

Young said Nixon told him, in an uncharacteristic off-hand gesture, to telephone him directly in a month to outline what progress had been made as a result of the cabinet session.

Young said he viewed the meeting as a new beginning toward greater co-operation between the government and private agencies in attacking problems of the black community.

He had asked for the session and he reported that Nixon "provided real leadership" in the meeting.

Nixon, campaigning in 1968 on the pledge to "bring us together," received virtually no Negro support. There ensued what became known as Nixon's Southern Strategy, whereby it was supposed he abandoned all hope of winning black support and instead endorsed policies aimed at winning the predominantly Democratic white South.

The new game plan may backfire the end of that strategy, some observers suggest.

Young, himself, put it bluntly: "My reading of the political mood of the black community is that there are going to be more independent black voters than ever before and people will respond to the party and not the man," he said. "I think we are concerned at being taken advantage of in the past by the Democrats and ignored by the Republicans.

"I think we are up for grabs."

Despite White House efforts to draw attention to the "new Nixon," many observers are skeptical that there will be any substantive changes.

"These will be essentially cosmetic changes," writes John Pierson of The Wall Street Journal. "Judging by what the president and his top aides are saying, it seems clear that, barring unforeseen circumstances, there will be no basic alteration in Nixon policies for the next two years."

Indeed the problems will remain pretty much what they are but public approach to them leaven much room for image-making. Vietnam, the threat of greater U.S. involvement in Cambodia, and above all else the state of the inflationary economy will be at this early reading—be among the major issues in the 1972 election.

Many in the administration feel they have a basically sound program, particularly on economic domestic issues such as welfare and the like, but that maybe they have done a poor job of "packaging"—putting their ideas over to the public.

A new approach in that area, with the new Nixon in the forefront, will be a major preoccupation for the White House.

Background to Revolt

Independence of Basques Steeped in Heritage of Centuries

MADRID (AP) — In the 16th century an angry people in the north of Spain armed Emperor Carlos V of Germany when he arrived to claim his family inheritance, the Spanish throne.

Descendants of those angry natives still are angry and still throw stones — or something more explosive. They are the Basques, an ancient mysterious people who have been in the centre of political upheavals for centuries.

These are the people who have dreamed up a political nightmare for Gen. Francisco Franco, the ruler he has had in his three decades as chief of the Spanish state.

Sixteen of their sons and daughters were the centrepiece of a show-case military court martial that brought death sentences for six and 351 years in prison for nine. Only one was acquitted.

In the stormy history of the Basque people this is an episode, for the Basques have fought and won and fought and lost for hundreds of years.

The great - grandfathers of the 16 extremists fought the bloody Carlist wars against the Spanish throne in the 19th century. It was on Sunday that two Roman Catholic priests were among the 16, 7 years after led the Carlist armies.

The roots of the Basques go back beyond the written pages of history. Their origins are subject to guesswork. Even their language is like no other in Europe.

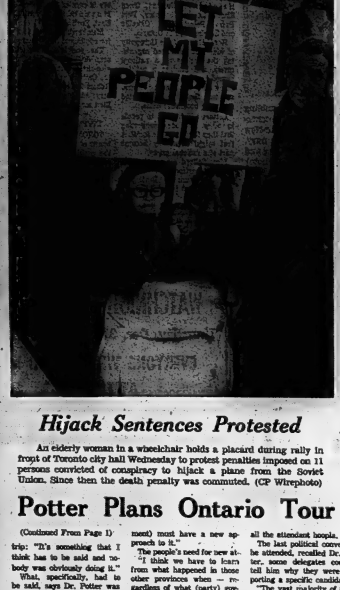
This basic separatism extends to their politics, their sports and their dress.

About one million Spaniards are Basques. They live in three provinces covering 3,000 square miles in northern Spain along the border with France. They are the Alava, Guipuzcoa and Vizcaya provinces.

It is mountainous country where the Basques have operated over the centuries as bandits or smugglers.

Three French provinces are Basque - Navarre, Labourd and Zaberroa — and 120,000 Frenchmen share the Basque heritage.

French Basques wear the red beret and Spanish Basques wear the black beret.



The Basques originated the barra at some chance historical time — their answer to the umbrella. The tightly woven cloth serves well in the rainy weather.

At play it's easy to tell the Basque. He'll be cheering wood in competition with other axwielding Basques, heaving huge stones or playing pelota, known also as jai alai. This Basque handball, played either with paddles or baskets called cestas, is no pale-pale affair. The speed of the hard ball can kill. If it batted hard against the high walls of a court. Old Basques say real pelota is played with the bare hand.

Politically there is a single recurring dream. It is called "euzkadi," the Basque term for "three country." To the young Basques "euzkadi" means carving out an independent nation composed of their three Spanish provinces.

Basque youths dream of their free nation. As their dreams continue to be frustrated by realities, they turn more and more to the left.

Five of the six men condemned by the military court in Burgos admitted they are Marxist-Leninists. Basques admit that anarchism, which once held two million Spaniards enthralled, has invaded Basque country in recent years.

Kentucky Mine Explosion Kills 38 Men

HYDEN, Ky. (AP) — Rescue workers groped through the blackened interior of a mountain early today, seeking the last of 39 men presumed killed by a shattering explosion in a coal mine rolled for safety violations earlier this year.

There was one known survivor from the day underground shift after the blast went off inside the Finley Coal Co. mine Wednesday, filling the honeycombed shafts with dust. Debris and dirt sprayed hundreds of feet outside.

By early morning, 20 bodies had been carried out and mine officials held out little hope for the 19 missing men. Poisonous gas delayed operations.

"Their chances are zero," said Everett Bartlett, supervisor of the Hazard district of the Kentucky department of mines and industries.

He said the disaster was caused by one of two things:

"Either they were shooting (dynamiting) the coal in there or it was a blown (electrical) cable."

In federal inspections earlier this year, the mine was cited for a variety of mine safety law violations, the Louisville Courier-Journal reported.

The newspaper said records show that in June a federal inspector found an "imminent danger" because of loose coal and coal dust accumulations and ordered mining stopped until deficiencies were corrected.

There was no indication that this earlier violations were related to Wednesday's blast, the newspaper said.

Clifford Finley, a relative of the mine owner, was in the mine shop about 50 feet from the main entrance when the explosion occurred.

"It was a blowin' noise, something like an echoing out of a tire suddenly," he said.

Finley immediately ran to two mine openings to see whether the fans were still operating. Both fans were working, but as it lurched out the men in the mine apparently were beyond the need of an air supply.

Finley, who went in with an early rescue party, said the victims he saw were badly burned and appeared to have died immediately.

The only survivor was about 30 feet inside the mine when the detonation came about 12:30 p.m. He was hurled 30 feet but escaped with minor injuries.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn set up temporary headquarters in a metal hut a few yards from the main entrance to the mine. He said an investigation is under way.

As word of the tragedy reached Hyden, the seat of the second poorest county in the United States, relatives began flocking to the site, about one mile up a dirt road.

The coal digging operation consisted of two mines designated as No. 12 and No. 14. They were connected beneath the ground and a spokesman for the U.S. bureau of mines said both probably were involved in the blast.

Rescuers initially probed about 1,200 feet into the mine but were driven off by carbon monoxide gas.

About 6 p.m., another rescue operation was started.

The blast had swelled to more than 200 by the time the first bodies were brought to the surface. They were taken to a makeshift morgue set up in the gymnasium of the Hyden grade school.

H. N. Kirkpatrick, state commissioner of mines and minerals, said that after all bodies are removed, the mine will be sealed to "rest for a few days" before the federal-state underground investigation begins.

The worst disaster in Kentucky coal mining history occurred Aug. 4, 1917, when 62 were killed at the No. 7 mine of the Western Kentucky Coal Co. near Clay.

Davis No Choice: B. Lawrence

TORONTO (CP) — Bert Lawrence, Ontario's minister of financial and commercial affairs, is expected to announce his candidacy Monday for the leadership of the provincial Conservative party, Queen's Park sources said today.

Mr. Lawrence, 47-year-old member of the legislature for Carleton East, would be the second man to declare himself officially in the race to succeed Premier John Robarts. A leadership convention will be held Feb. 10-12 in Toronto.

Education Minister William Davis, 41, announced 10 days ago he will seek the premiership. At least four other candidates are also expected to run.

Mr. Lawrence said he in interview Wednesday that he wants to plot a new course for the party to bring it into an "era of understanding."

He criticized Mr. Davis, appares front-runner in the race, as one of the "old regime" in Ontario politics.

He also expressed "serious doubt" that Mr. Davis could lead the Conservatives—in power for 23 years—in a dec-

Potter Plans Ontario Tour

trip: "It's something that I think has to be said and nobody was obviously doing it."

What, specifically, had to be said, says Mr. Potter, was that "we're living in a new era. I think we (in government) must have a new approach in it."

The people's need for new attitudes we have to learn from what happened in these other provinces when — regardless of what (party) government they had they wanted a change," said Dr. Potter.

The Conservative leadership now presents Ontario Tories with "a glorious opportunity" to "come up with a new leadership. who will give us new policies. And when it comes to an election, he will say this is our new government."

Hence, it is vital that the February convention be a place where delegates "declinations are not influenced "by bands and straw hats" and all the attendant hoopla.

The last political convention he attended, recalled Dr. Potter, some delegates couldn't tell him why they were supporting a specific candidate.

"The vast majority of them had made up their minds before the candidates had spoken at the convention.

Can the Potter tour, while disclaimed of any vested political interest, keep clear of being politically construed — specifically by Education Minister William Davis, the only major Tory to yet announce his candidacy?

Dr. Potter says he already along with Belleville and Trenton constituency and is available — including Mr. Davis.

DR. R. T. POTTER, MPP

Gloves Worn in House

cer said there was no way the earth could have been removed through the furnace room, which measures 10 feet by 10 feet.

Police believe that the Rose brothers and Simard wore gloves when not in the tunnel, because no fingerprints of the trio were found in the house.

A number of French-language newspapers were found inside the underground hideaway.

Those granted bail Wednesday included Jacques Larue-Langlois and Gerard Pelletier, both facing charges of seditious conspiracy among other offences. Bail was set at $10,000.

Jacques Geoffroy, brother of convicted bomber Pierre-Paul Geoffroy, was granted bail of $7,500. Court was told he was found in possession of "thousands" of seditious pamphlets.

MELROSE — The Church School held a Christmas party in the church basement. The juniors who had been trained by their teachers provided the entertainment and Santa Claus distributed gifts to all.

The Christmas eve church service was conducted by members of the HI-C group with Doris Sherman presiding. Readings were given by several members, carols were sung and Rev. William Hendry gave a short address. Lighted candles in the windows and across the front of the church lent a Christmas atmosphere to the service.

Ex-School Teacher Hosts TV Show

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A former Bonnar Manor teacher has forsaken nursery school for consumer education.

Kelly Richardson, who was known as "Miss Kelly" to students of Peterborough's youngsters, now is host of a regular talk show on the cable TV channel called Consumers Count.

The aim of the program is to acquaint people with the work and goals of the Consumers Association of Canada, which has 350 members in this city, 30,000 in Canada.

The programs on the local channel have no budget for programming or publicity, no program schedule listing anywhere, and no paid staff on the air. All, including Mrs. Richardson, are volunteers.

"So far this program is the only medium for consumer education in the city," she said, "and I hope it wins more local support for the CAC."

She explained that the CAC in Peterborough needs members who are willing to donate some time to consumer education, especially in connection with a Fabric Fair to be held in the spring—a crash course in everything the buyer should know when selecting material.

"CAC women are intelligent, dedicated, hard-working, and they're working for all consumers and not themselves," said Mrs. Richardson.

"Yet the group is not well known because they have no teas, bazaars or social events.

The first six programs introduced the executive of Peterborough CAC, discussed credit, pollution, packaging, Canada Standard sizes, shoe-to-doe salesmen and dry-cleaning problems.

"We estimate that we have 600 viewers," said Mrs. Richardson, "but we will take a Gallup poll soon to get a more exact idea of our audience."

Since consumer education was important for everyone—even a child with one cent in his hand"—it should be included in high school or even grade school curricula.

"How many people know that the department of consumer affairs was set up due to pressure from the CAC.

"We can also thank the CAC for Canada Standard sizes, and the 48-hour waiting period in which a buyer can cancel a contract signed unwisely at his door."

Locally the CAC has set up a committee to review complaints about dry-cleaning service. This committee, composed of a dry-cleaner, a retailer, and CAC members, decides whether dry-cleaning accidents are the responsibility of the cleaner, the customer, the retailer, the fabric manufacturer, or improper labelling.

The CAC is also campaigning for care labelling on all fabrics

The Peterborough CAC has a box number at the city post office through which they answer and investigate all types of consumer complaints. If the problem cannot be handled locally it is referred to the Consumer Protection Bureau, Toronto, or Box 90 Ottawa.

Recently the CAC began a pollution and packaging project with the Mothers' Group of Mark St. United Church and Pollution Probe. They will boycott products using pollutants or unnecessary packaging, and send written complaints to the manufacturers.

Mrs. Richardson said the programs have taught her a lot about consumerism, the CAC, and interviewing.

"The program is very good experience for me. I'm hoping that eventually it may be picked up by a commercial television station."

Labels to Show Garment Care

OTTAWA — The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs has announced better care labelling. It is a system of durable washing labels on the garment itself describing how to restore it without harming the article. The Canadian Government Specifications Board has developed a system of symbols to show the best methods of washing, and dry cleaning. These symbols used together will make up the care label. Words are not used, only symbols.

The care labelling system requires the label to be attached permanently to the garment or other fabric article. It cannot come off and get lost. It will always be there as a reminder of the kind of care needed.

The system is based on five basic symbols. Each of these represents a basic care procedure. The five symbols are: a washtub for washing; a triangle for bleaching; a square for drying; a hand iron for ironing or pressing; and a circle for dry cleaning.

Three colors are used to show the need for caution. The three colors are the same as the traffic lights: red — danger, stop (prohibition); amber — caution (take care); green — go (no special precautions needed). The system uses numbers which will use common sense.

The five basic symbols in the different colors, also show additional information. For example, if "100 deg. F." is shown inside an amber washtub, this means that the article is machine washable in water at 100 degrees. A rubber belt, approximately half-a-metre long, with "100 deg. F." appears within a green iron, this means the item may be ironed with a setting of 400 degrees Fahrenheit or the temperature recommended for cotton or linen. An amber square with a single horizontal line in it means that the article should be laid flat to dry. A red circle with an "X" through it means do not dry clean.

More than one symbol will often be used. For example, a label showing a red washtub with an "X" through it, and a green circle, means that the article should be dry cleaned but not washed.

The care symbols apply to the whole textile product including all components such as trim, zippers, belts, buttons and linings.

The symbols do not describe the article's washability, or performance. They refer only to color fastness (running and staining), and dimensional stability (shrinking and stretching).

The Canadian Government Specifications Board has defined the care symbols in terms of standard conditions, laboratory test procedures. Manufacturers who use the symbols must comply with all the requirements of the CGSB standard. Complete textile article must comply with the standard for the labelling symbols.

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs is, in effect the custodian of the symbols. It is the Department's role to promote wide use of the care labelling system and to ensure that it is not misused.

The care labelling system is voluntary. Manufacturers will not be compelled to use it. The system will be of great benefit to consumers, clothing manufacturers, launderers, dry cleaners and retailers. The more widely the new system is adopted, the greater will be the benefits. Clothing manufacturers obviously will choose to use the care labelling system to help consumers and other beneficiaries support the program wholeheartedly.

This new labelling scheme is not going to appear overnight, but consumers should learn about the symbol system in the meantime. When the care labels begin to appear, consumers should make it clear that they want garments which display the care labelling symbols.

Daughter: "Do you want to hear my list of New Year resolutions?"

Mother: "It's silly to make all those resolutions. Nobody ever keeps them. Just do the best you can day by day."

A fresh new year seems like a good time for youngsters to make new plans. Help them to realize what is practical and possible, last don't discourage any attempts to improve.

Mother: "I find I cannot keep a whole list of resolutions so I make just one each year. This year, I'm going to resolve to go to bed a half hour earlier every night."

Fashion Students Suffer

TORONTO (CP) — The coordinator of the fashion technique and design program at Sheridan College says students taking the course "haven't a hope of beginning a business in Toronto."

Jean Eggerton said some students have opened their own business and others are running boutiques, but these are in places outside Toronto.

In Toronto, competitions and costs are both too high, she said.

She said all the students take the course thinking they'll be designers, but by the time they've completed the two-year diploma course many are concentrating on display or buying skills.

One student taking the course, Ann-Marie Gabalis of Ottawa, said Mrs. Eggerton's warnings don't faze her a bit.

"I have high hopes of being a couturiere in Toronto. I want to do one-of-a-kind things for very original people. If I can't get a job here right away I'll go to Europe for a year to work and learn. I think of myself as an artist with fabric. I suppose my things would have to cost anywhere from $100 to $1,000."

John Pagani, another student from Ottawa, has been modelling for several years and is also confident of finding work.

"I'll end up in the fashion field somewhere," he said.

Founding Conference For Costume Society

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. J. G. Collard says old clothes provide clues for a fashion detective.

Mrs. Collard, of Burlington, first chairman of the newly-formed Costume Society of Ontario, considers fashion an important part of social history.

"If I were going into the past and could have several garments from one era, from a wedding those clothes wore, I could give you a pretty accurate account of the way the people lived."

Mrs. Collard said she first dreamed of a costume society about 10 years ago, and she has been working seriously on the project for a year.

About 80 people attended a day-long founding conference—people from Winnipeg and from Hamilton, Kingston, Owen Sound, London, Sudbury, Port Perry, Peterborough, Oakville and Scarborough in Ontario.

Ronal Hastie of the University of Manitoba suggested organizing the society as a national group, and brought a petition signed by 15 people in the Winnipeg area. The meeting consensus was that it be constituted first as a provincial basis.

Letters will be sent to people in other provinces suggesting that they found similar societies that might eventually become part of a national group.

Mrs. Collard set up the costume department at Joseph Brant Museum in Burlington where she now is honorary costume curator.

She has published a booklet on early clothing in southern Ontario, and teaches a creative fashion course at Mohawk College in Hamilton.

She took fashion training in Paris and has worked as a designer and owned her own haute couture establishment in London.

One of the costume society's first projects will probably be the organization of a weekend workshop on fashion of the 1870s to help people planning local centennial projects. About 26 people have already signed up for the workshop.

Another project, for which Prof. Hastie has assumed responsibility, is the publication of a journal. He has set February, 1971, as a target date for the first issue.

Courtesy address for the society is care of the Joseph Brant Museum, 1240 North Shore East, Burlington.

Membership will be $5 a year for adults and $3.50 for students.

The society's other officers are: Judith McErvel, Toronto, vice-chairman; Patricia Hamer, St. Catharines, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Fidler, Caledonia, secretary; and Mrs. Dirk Smit, Hamilton membership secretary.

Ann Landers

People Much Alike The World Over

DEAR ANN LANDERS: According to a wire service story, the U.S.S.R. capital is not Monterey, California, as one of your readers suggested — it is Lincoln, Nebraska. Yes — sleepy old Lincoln, heartland of Middle America where the pattern is not as high as an elephant's eye. Looks as if they've got oats there, too — will come according to the London Daily Telegraph, which sent five reporters to get a sampling of what life is like in a "conservative, Midwestern city."

ANN LANDERS

The reporters found a significant amount of wife-swapping, adultery and various types of hanky-panky, especially among the well-to-do Protestants.

The Mayor of Lincoln and the President of the Council of Churches invited, the reporters back for a better look. They felt the reporters had made unfair, sweeping generalizations based on a few sorry examples.

Your column undoubtedly appears in Lincoln. What is the mail like from "Sin City, Nebraska?" Cut us in on it, will you? — JUST NOSEY.

DEAR JUST: The mail from Lincoln is just like the mail from Miami, or Traverse City, Michigan; Las Vegas, Wheeling, W.Va.; Fort Worth, Mitchell, S.D. and Shreveport, La. People are very much the same all over. If those five reporters went to the U.S.S.R. they would find the same problems that exist in London or Manchester or Leeds.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been happily married for five years. At this very moment his parents are not speaking to me and he has called me "selfish and cold-hearted."

The problem: We live in a university town. Several weeks ago my husband's aunt asked if her daughter could live with us while attending the university. Annette is a lovely girl and willing to pay for room and board. But I don't want her living here. My husband and I both work and we see little of each other as it is, I value our privacy. Our time together is very precious.

We have a small place with only one bathroom. If Annette were living with us, I'd have to serve meals on schedule. It would be like having a house guest on a permanent basis. My husband doesn't understand this but he agreed to allow me to make the final decision.

I feel his aunt was extremely insensitive to have put us in this awkward position. She should have waited for us to offer instead of asking us outright. If money were a problem I would have said O.K. and put up with the inconvenience, but the girl can well afford a dorm. The whole family is mad at me. They think I am terrible. Am IT — TROUBLE IN LANSING.

DEAR T IN L: I don't think you are terrible. I think they are terrible for attempting to punish you for saying no. Your decision was based on valid reasons and you should not feel guilty, nor should you attempt to defend yourself.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Specially for Dieters

By MARY MOORE

Happy New Year to all celebrators.

Dr. Mary P., an Internist in our city, is one of my cooking buddies.

She wants to have a fondue party using her fondue pot but says "Trouble is I do not have time to make the sauces." Another day she says, from her physician's viewpoint, is that the free flame on the table under the hot oil is hazardous.

When I acquired an electric fondue pot I knew readers would be receiving them for Christmas from their husbands and decided to have a test fondue party, so I could answer their queries knowledgeably.

I liked the steady heat of the electric element and the snug way it cradles the fondue pot reducing the possibility of accidental spills.

I kept the amount of oil down to a minimum and measured the amount we cooked in — 1¼" deep. Corn oil is satisfactory but peanut oil is better for it has no flavor and does not fill the dining room with the smell of oil.

The fondue pot I have is Teflon-lined and was a breeze to clean up. I strained the oil through a sieve lined with a paper towel and will use it again.

The easy sauces I worked out for the benefit of Mary P. will appeal to other career girls who want to have a party and to other busy hostesses.

EASY BOUEF FONDUE BOURGUIGNONNE SAUCES

1) Beef sauce: a) Combine 1 cup bottled barbecue sauce with ¼ cup thick horseradish (my favorite); b) Combine 1 cup sour cream and ¼ cup thick horseradish:

2) Oriental Sauce: Blend 3 tbsps. batter with 1 tbsp. corn starch and stir in 1 cup hot water until thick. Add 2 tbsps. soy sauce and 2 tsps. lemon juice and heat through.

3) Sour Cream Hollandaise Sauce: Combine in a small saucepan 1 cup sour cream, 3 egg yolks, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, ½ tsp. dry mustard, ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce and ½ tsp. salt. Cook stirring until hot but not boiling. Serve warm.

WARNING: At a fondue party warn your guests not to burn their lips or, the fondue fork when they cook their pieces of steak. They should transfer pieces of meat to their plates and pick them up with their dinner forks to eat.

ELDORADO WI

The December meeting of the Eldorado and Ramsockburn WI was held at the Maple township hall with the President Mrs. Floyd Blackburn.

Mrs. Harley Blackburn was in charge of the program which included the singing of Christmas carols. A letter in Santa was read by Mrs. Floyd Blackburn.

The motto "happiness is a perfume you could not pour on others without getting a few drops on yourself" was given by Mrs. Ken Bateman. Poems were read by Mrs. H. Powers, Mrs. H. Blackburn, Mrs. Frank Palmer and Mrs. Cecil Blackburn. "Happy birthday" was sung to one of the members. The program closed with several contests. Gifts were exchanged and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Successful Living

Fondue Parties Are Easy on the Hostess

By DORIS CLARK

No eyelashes, nail polish, no underwear; No falsies, nor jewelry. I've cut my hair; No lipstick, not even to brush my teeth; No stockings, no garters, nor girdle here with. Where am I going so undressed tonight? To weight-watchers club, and I want to weigh light. — Dorothy Cameron Smith.

Is there a bright thought for our calorie counters in this prize-winning-humor gem? After all, New Year's resolutions are in order!

Dear Doris: I am a great grandmother, and my grandmother (88 years ago), cut the following poem from a London (England) newspaper and asked me to learn it, I still remember it.

One and three is one shilling and three pence (which will soon be no more).

A GOOD MEMORY

A pound of tea, at one and three,
A pot of raspberry jam.
Two new-laid eggs, a dozen pegs,
And a pound of rashers of ham.

There's Teddie White, flying his kite;
He thinks himself grand, I declare.
I'd make it fly higher than the old church spire,
And there, but there — (and so on) —

"This child wouldn't take a verse suitable for a little girl" note to go shopping; hence the or boy to recite at a family reference to memory. I party. thought you needed old poems for your readers. — Still Remembering.

Dear Still Remembering — and all Others: Succeeding verses show the youngster hopping along to the shop saying the list of things over to a leaflet for an 18-year-old who himself but making an awful has gone with a boy four years botch of it as he lets other and when he gave her a ring thoughts of children at play, she cried, "Oh, what will flying kites, playing in the do? How do I know if it's love? hay — distract him. The result I want to be sure. Could I be is seven amusing bear - like going with him because I feel sorry for him?"

How does a mother explain it to a daughter? It's a big decision. — Enjoying Your Column.

Dear Enjoying: If your girl has been going out with the same boy since she was 14, exclusively, I'm not surprised that she feels unsure of herself.

No matter what kind of a decision we have to make, we usually need some idea of what is available. Do you buy the first dress you try on? Even four years of dating doesn't promise a girl she knows all about men from just the one sample!

The kind of help she needs from you is along the lines of freeing her from making any decision right now. Encourage her to circulate. You might even give the ball rolling by throwing a party and inviting some unattached young people. Otherwise, she might commit herself to a life with her present steady because it is doesn't want to hurt his feelings — a poor excuse for marriage.

Trouble Ahead: Smith

Cohesion of Commonwealth to Suffer Strain in Next Decade

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth conference Arnold Smith of Canada sees many trouble ahead for the 31-country association.

"There is little doubt that the cohesion of the Commonwealth will suffer strain in the coming decade," the secretary-general said in his third report to member governments.

Unless they respond to the challenges confronting the organization, it may not be able to survive "in a meaningful form."

Problems range from proposed British arms sales to South Africa to the need for more markets by the underdeveloped members.

Another big problem is to reverse "dangerous trends towards race-isolationist thinking." Smith, former Canadian diplomat, previously warned against these trends which, he maintains, "could prove costly to our children."

"Continental isolationism could prove as dangerous in the 1970s and 1980s as national isolationism proved in the 1920s and 1930s." Smith said in his report issued today.

Secretary-general since 1965, Smith still play a key role at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Singapore Jan. 14-22. One of the big issues will be Britain's proposal to sell arms to South Africa, a move hotly opposed by many Commonwealth countries. Some have warned that this is a clash which could sink the Commonwealth.

Smith said in his report that he expressed the concern" of these member countries to the British government. Britain maintains arms sales are essential to strengthen joint British-South African defences against Soviet military expansion along the Cape trade routes.

Smith has remained hopeful that Britain can be persuaded to back away from its original intention and agree to delay announcing a decision on the arms controversy.

While Smith made no mention in his report on how the issue can be resolved, he is known to hold the view that perhaps Britain can be persuaded to have the Soviet threat scrutinized by a small Commonwealth committee or similar body which could report to the prime ministers later.

Another major Commonwealth problem is the growing gap between the rich and the poor.

"The share of the low-income countries in world trade has declined by nearly a third in the past 15 years," Smith said as he called for less protectionism on the part of all developed countries, particularly the European Common Market, the United States and Japan.

One encouraging prospect is that a system of tariff preferences to benefit the low-income countries may be introduced in 1971.

"The implications for Commonwealth trade are considerable if the opportunities this opened up can be seized by Commonwealth developing countries," Smith said.

"So this is your boss! Why, he's even more handsome than you said!"

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 1

Your birthday today: You now learn much from the people around you. Emotional adjustment, deeper awareness of feelings of others comes naturally this year and next. Emerging psychic talents come strongly enough to cause an occasional moment of stress — while most of us have latent powers, almost nobody knows how to cope with them appropriately. Your year is full of movement, probably many short journeys. Today's natives are long of memory, and many drift into positions of great authority.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Make it as normal a day as the holiday conditions permit. Your friends are ready for any sort of activity. Fill the evening with lively conversation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you are putting in more work than you are credited for, figure out something to do about it. Simplify your routines. Begin a more austere diet. Get more sleep.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Now is an excellent time to come to a work agreement or close a transaction. The later hours favor entertaining and cultivation of co-operation among relatives.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This weekend is a period of opportunity — see people and ideas which open the door to advancement. You must make the moves. Celebrate good news this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Get an early start — few others will manage this — and take a look around. A beneficial modification is open only for the [illegible] terms with a younger relative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Take a conventional approach in career matters, but at the holidy, bringing with you all the help you can muster, improving your local surroundings is possible now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Learning is today's main activity, although an offer to settle group money arrangements should be taken up promptly. Listen for several levels of information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Delay your reaction to any intrusion: a better understanding helps resolve the matter. Confused [illegible] needed business affairs causes momentary inconvenience. Dispose of unused items.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): New Year's resolutions may actually work this year. A break in routine is almost certain, perhaps in your home. Family life is comforting this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Extend yourself a bit, reach for a higher level of living. Begin a new course of self-improvement, health care. Plan some nice little surprise for your loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be aware of changed conditions so that you can revise your plans. Seek creativity associates compare notes. The more unusual side of your personality surfaces now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Give and ask favors today, particularly of people of considerable resources, younger people [illegible]. You can make a good career agreement at present.

For January 2

Your birthday today: This is a time of redemption, consolidation of your recent learning, normal prosperity, with occasional sparks of dramatic progress and a few temporary setbacks. Your emotional development proceeds with numerous insights — and once you glimpse your own unconscious nature, there's no going back to not knowing. Relationships take different forms, according to your mutual changes of direction. Today's natives can generally remember vast amounts of exact details, figures.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your weekend opens with a minor bit of luck, something that falls into your scheme of things. You can do something special for your mate. Evening is for parties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take any opportunity for a change of work or location. Old questions bring their own inner solutions, ones you could never suppose. A journey furnishes a fresh point of view.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are the centre of attention and unsolicited advice. Remember that those who project wonderful plans for ideal living don't themselves carry them out.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Take counsel with older members of your family or group. Use your skills for your own promotion. Just get some progress made.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pace yourself for a strenuous day, unexpected happenings, strong reactions from other people, particularly those of opposite sex. Don't try to change your home now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tackle those large chores which you've been put off for lack of time and energy. Ask for co-operation; go ahead with what you like without opposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Go along with your friends on impulse, spontaneous events. Do things for people to whom you owe favors. Light entertainment fits the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your intuition leads to an unorthodox but successful solution of a family situation. Extra formal action supports your position. Get estimates for improvements of property.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Take the initiative. Assert your views, gather friends, and push through action to overcome opposition. Long range planning, acquisition of new equipment are favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your services keeping things productively active receive recognition. Offers of co-operation are to be taken advantage of, even in small matters. Collect anything owed to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Conferences clear the air so you know where you stand. Divert yourself with pastimes, give your unconscious a chance to digest information. Solutions come later.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You have better success in keeping your actions out of public view. Make your arrangements early for a full weekend's enjoyment.

Winter's Fun for Everyone

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

What are people doing about winter - besides shovelling, shivering and sniffing?

They're taking to the hills, ice and snow to enjoy themselves - and, together with Mother Nature's snowmaking machine, various clubs and organizations have pitched in to make numerous sport and recreation facilities available.

The Belleville Recreation Commission together with the Public Works Department is readying the last of 19 rinks within the city.

With the temperature staying below freezing, the workmen are taking every opportunity to coat the ice surfaces to provide safe skating.

Cliff Belch of the Recreation Commission, yesterday raised rinks already safe. They are rinks at: the Quinte Skating Club at Queen and Dufferin, with attendant and confection concession, open from 3-5 p.m. and 6-10 (during the holidays, this rink is open in the morning); Ben Bleecker rink, Hillcrest, Haig and Victoria, Park Dale School, all day and all night, and College Street by Quinte Secondary.

Surfaces on the harbor and at Zwick's Island are firm enough for skaters and as the ice thickens, workmen are bringing their vehicles onto the ice.

Work is also in progress on rinks at Harry J. Clarke School, West Park Village, Queen Elizabeth School, Queen Victoria School, Prince of Wales School and Parkdale Wales School and Park Dale Park.

Unsafe rinks are situated at Avondale School, Sir Winston Churchill School, George Vanier, Doctors Hotel, and Haig Park. These have been exposed to only first-stage flooding.

"Most of the rinks will be ready this weekend, if the cold weather continues," said Mr. Belch.

Skiers are having a heyday at the Oak Hills Ski Club, with five slopes available and eight junior, three senior instructors are on hand to take would - be slope manipulators through their first paces.

Ambulance and first aid-trained ski patrols are in attendance at all times in the advent of an emergency.

And ski enthusiasts need not lay out large sums for equipment, the club not only sells and repairs equipment but will rent.

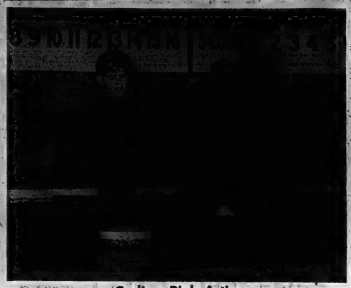
Charges are $4 per day for seniors, $2 for juniors, including ski tow facilities, or yearly membership fees are obtainable.

The slopes are open between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. seven days a week.

The Belleville Curling Club, although open, has no scheduled curling other than club playdowns for provincial events.

Regular curling ended Dec. 19 and will commence Monday, Jan. 6.

Tobogganing, sledding, snowmobiling and that old winter standby, snowballing, are available wherever land slopes and snow falls.

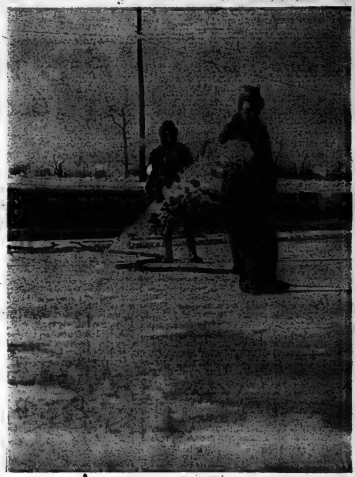


Those a little less interested in Jack Frosts world, have recreation open to them as well.

The Belleville and Family YMCA sponsored a penny carnival, a teen dance, a bridge and euchre party, and a leaders' party as well as regular Y activities. On Jan. 2, family day, with swimming and other indoor sports, plus snowmobile rides in the "back 40" will be featured.

On the fast action scene, Ben Bleecker Auditorium is open to youngsters from 1-4 p.m., adults 7-10 p.m., and Sundays from 3-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. During the holidays, these extra hours were put into effect by the Recreation Department. The auditorium will be closed Jan. 1.

And for those who would rather look at winter sports, rather than participate, the Belleville Winter Carnival will feature just about every type of snow-time sport between Feb. 4 and 7.



Otherwise, there's always a good book and a warm fire to curl up before and watch everyone outside getting cold feet, noses, hands . . . . the joy of it all.

Esposito Adds Two More, Looks Like Second Rocket

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr closed Boston Bruins' 1970 National-Hockey League schedule Wednesday night with a scoring pace that should earn records for both in the new year.

Esposito scored twice and Orr added a goal and three assists to give the Bruins a 8-3 win over Minnesota North Stars and put Boston back in front of New York Rangers in the see-saw battle for the East Division lead.

Orr now has 14 goals and 44 assists while his team-mate has 34 and 36 totals after 36 Boston games.

With more than half the 1970-71 schedule remaining, Orr has already gained more than half the record total 87 assists he set last season while Esposito also is past the half-way mark to his 1968-69 record of 126.

Esposito also stands a chance to beat Bobby Hull's season record of 58 goals in the 76-game 1968-69 schedule and even Rocket Richard's mark of 50 goals in 50 games set in 1944-45.

In other games Wednesday, Toronto Maple Leafs beat California Seals 3-1, Montreal Canadiens edged a 3-2 tie with Pittsburgh Penguins, St. Louis Blues whipped Philadelphia Flyers 5-2 and Vancouver Canucks whipped Los Angeles Kings 4-1.

Danny O'Shea and Murray Oliver scored to give the North Stars a 3-0 lead at Minneapolis. Orr helped set up goals by Esposito and Eddie Westfall to wipe out the Minnesota lead before the end of the second period.

At Montreal, the Penguins paid dearly for the single point that gave them sole possession of fourth spot in the West Division. Right winger Ron Schock suffered a fractured collarbone in the first period when he crashed into the boards and left winger Greg Polis took a deep cut on his left leg when he tangled skates with Canadiens defenseman Serge Savard.

Bob Stewart and Polis were top scorers for the Penguins. Schinkel now will be sidelined for a month, said coach Red Kelly, and Polis for about a week.

"But I thought we played well as a team and after all, I have to be satisfied with our last couple of games," said Kelly. "We played Boston and beat them 4-2, then came in here and tie Canadiens, so we get three out of a possible four points against two tough teams like that."

Coach Al MacNeil, whose Canadiens now are only six points ahead of the resurgent fourth-place Maple Leafs, said his players will have to do better.

"We can't afford to be satisfied with ties like this at home," said MacNeil. "You have to remember that a team is supposed to win in their own rink."

The Canadiens gained the tie with Mark Tardif's goal midway through the final period.

In Toronto, centre Dave Keon scored his 250th career goal in the first minute of play to start the Leafs on their way to victory over the Seals.

California, after a loss to New York Tuesday night, failed to show any scoring power although the careless Leafs gave the Seals several opportunities.

Too Leafs were in one of their relaxed moods when Earl Ingarfield walked into their zone and passed to Gerry Ehman who potted Jacques Plante's shutout bid.

Ehman's goal narrowed the Leaf margin to 2-1 but Paul Henderson scored the clincher early in the third period.

The Seals also lost a man when Henderson decked Ingarfield in the final period. The California centre man was helped off the ice and coach Fred Glover claimed later that Henderson had kneed the Seals player. Glover said he didn't know how long Ingarfield might be out of action.

At St. Louis, centre Red Berenson scored his 14th season goal and helped set up two more by Tim Ecclestone and one each by Bill Sutherland and Barclay Plager for the Blues victory.

Dale Tallon, Andre Boudrias, Murray Hall and Dennis Polonich scored for the Canucks who broke a four-game losing streak at Los Angeles.

The win kept the Canucks four points behind the Leafs in the East while the Kings stayed one point ahead of last-place California in the West.

Down on the Job

Toronto Maple Leaf goaltender Jacques Plante, sprawled on the ice, grapples for loose puck with California Seals' Dennis Hextall during National Hockey League action in Toronto Wednesday night. Moving to help Plante are Leafs' Bobby Baun (21) and Jim Dorey (8). Leafs won 3-1. (CP Wirephoto)

Sport Briefs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ezzard Charles, former world heavyweight boxing champion, couldn't stand up and take a bow for being named to Boxing's Hall of Fame. "But if he could say the words himself, I'm sure Ezzard would want to thank everybody responsible for this honor," said his wife Gladys. Charles is confined to a wheelchair with lateral sclerosis. The honor was accorded Charles, whose speech and movement are restricted, in a poll announced by Ring Magazine. Charles, world title-holder in 1950 and 1951, along with Max Schmeling was voted into the Hall's "modern group."

Another Fish Story

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Newfoundland outfitter says a letter from the head of Harvard University's ichthyology department supports his contention that two Americans who say they broke the 54-year-old record for eastern brook trout actually caught arctic char during a Labrador fishing trip last August.

Walsh Started Surge

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen's University won the annual Carleton University invitational basketball tournament Wednesday by coming back to beat the host club 76-68. In the high school section of the tournament, Ottawa Lisgar defeated Toronto Oakwood 76-72. Afternoon consolation play had York University bedding Ottawa University 69-62 and Brockville walloping Ottawa St. Joseph's 66-32 in the high school section. Carleton had the early lead in the college final, leading Queen's 46-35 at the half. It wasn't until the last minute and a half of play that Queen's took command with Ron Walsh scoring seven of their eight closing points in that period. Brian MacKenzie of Queen's, named the tournament's most valuable player in his section, set the scoring pace with 26 points followed by Andy Baugulis with 20. Dave Mowagno scored 19 and Bob Buchanan 18 points for Carleton.

Seagren Soars Again

SASKATOON (CP) — Bob Seagren of Los Angeles, 1968 Olympic pole vault champion, soared to success in a comeback bid during the final moments of the Saskatchewan Indoor Games Wednesday night. Seagren, former world indoor and outdoor record holder who retired in June to take up acting, won the invitational pole vault with a leap of 16 feet, eight inches. He had three attempts at 17-2 but came close only on the second try. Bruce Simpson of Toronto, the Canadian and 1970 British Common wealth record holder, at 16-9½, finished a surprising second with a jump of 15-8. For Seagren, 34, a University of Southern California graduate, it was a satisfying win. "I'd have t o say I was satisfied with the performance . . . a 16-8 jump isn't bad considering the circumstances . . . I've been running all the time since I called it quits but not necessarily jumping."

Filion Sets Pace For World's Horse Pilots

By MORRIS BROWN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Little Herve Filion is the hardest-working reinsman in the business. This year his efforts have paid off handsomely and established him once more as the No. 1 harness-racing driver of the world, surpassing all track records for winners.

The 30-year-old Canadian world-champion driver has had the field pretty much to himself the last three years after a long, hard climb to the top. Born into a Quebec harness-racing family, he drove his first winner in 1953 when he was only 13.

Filion, also North American champion for the last three years, guided home a winner in the first race at Dover Downs in Delaware Wednesday night to set an all-time record for the number of victories posted in one year of horse racing—either standardbred or thoroughbred.

Filion drove Lyndhurst, an 11-year-old gelding, to victory in the mile pace for his 492nd winner for the year. His total is by far the best ever in harness racing and he also moved one ahead of Willie Shoemaker's 485, the best ever in flat racing.

Shoemaker's mark was posted in 1953, the same year that Filion had his first winning drive behind Guy Gratian at Rigaud, Que.

"I am very much relieved," said Filion, after he scored behind Lyndhurst. "I was very fortunate to be able to win so many."

In 1968, Filion became the first harness-racing driver to win more than 400 races as he posted 406 victories to break the 400 record. Last year he won 385 races, easily outdistancing his nearest rival—Del Insko—by 86 victories.

Filion, a native of Angers, Que., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Filion and has seven brothers who also are harness racing drivers.

Filion recently won the first world harness racing driving championship.

Trotters and pacers driven by Filion have won more than $1.6 million this year, close to the record $1,854,172 earned by Billy Haughton in 1968. Insko last year earned $1,635,403. Filion's horses have earned more than $2,350,000 in the last four years.

Filion is also setting a record for starts this season. He probably will end the year tonight with close to 1,900 drives.

Filion will start defence of his 1970 North American crown when Yonkers, N.Y., raceway opens Jan. 4.

He will have the largest stable at Yonkers with 28 horses for the 50-night session that ends March 2.

In Wednesday's race, "Lyndhurst, a son of Cantab Hanover, was timed in 2:11 3-5 and returned $2.80, $2.20 and $2.20.

Two Clouds Hovering Over AFC Title Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The threat of a heavy snow warning and a light ticket sale today threw two ominous clouds over Sunday's American Football Conference title clash between Oakland Raiders and Baltimore Colts.

The weather bureau issued a heavy snow warning for the entire state of Maryland for Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, which could present the groundcrew at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium with considerable difficulty before Sunday's 2 p.m. EST, kickoff.

At the same time, approximately 4,500 tickets remained for the showdown struggle that will send the survivor into the Super Bowl in Miami, Jan. 17 against the winner of the National Conference title game, also on Sunday between Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers.

The Raiders, a 11½-point favorite to march on to the Super Bowl, are scheduled to arrive Friday night with a squad in its best physical shape of the season while Colts' coach Don McCafferty still has to worry about hobbled tight end John Mackey.

JOHNNY UNITAS

The emphasis in pre-game discussion seems to be on the match-up of quarterbacks Johnny Unitas and Daryle Lamonica.

Unitas, of course, is the veteran Colts' quarterback who has been firing passes for 15 years, and has had an extremely successful season following arm trouble in 1968 that almost brought an end to his career.

Working with a new receiving combination of Eddie Hinton and Roy Jefferson, Unitas completed 168 of 321 attempts for 2,213 yards and 14 touchdowns. Lamonica, however, was No. 1 in the AFC, and his statistics are considerably more impressive.

Lamonica completed 179 of 356 attempts for 2,516 yards and 22 touchdowns.

In Dallas, meanwhile, coach Tom Landry was asked about the Cowboys' playoff losses in the last four straight years.

"I think that's at rest right now," said Landry.

Charity begins at home and Billy Cunningham took advantage of it to help do in Milwaukee Bucks.

Cunningham made all 17 of his free throws and scored 35 points Wednesday night in leading Philadelphia 76ers to 119-107 home-court victory that snapped Buck Bucks' five-game winning streak. Lew Alcindor led Milwaukee with 30 points.

In other National Basketball Association games, New York Knicks took San Francisco Warriors 111-103, Detroit Pistons edged Cincinnati Royals 119-115, Baltimore Bullets whipped Buffalo Braves 106-99, Seattle Super Sonics belted Chicago Bulls 128-109 and Phoenix Suns pummelled Los Angeles Lakers 132-114.

The Knicks rallied in the fourth quarter behind Walt Frazier and Bill Bradley to move up a nine-point Warriors lead. Frazier scored 29 points, Dave DeBusschere 27 and Bradley 19.

for New York. Nate Thurmond scored 24 for San Francisco.

Four foul shots in the last 4 seconds by Dave Bing, who scored 28 points, lifted Detroit Pistons over Cincinnati. Johnny Green paced the Royals with 29 points.

Jack Marin scored 17 of his 24 points in the first half to spark Baltimore Bullets past Buffalo. Bob Kauffman was high for the Braves with 26 points.

Seattle ran away from the Bulls in the first half, grabbing a 43-23 intermission lead. Spencer Haywood, the Sonics' new acquisition from the rival American Basketball Association, suited up but did not play. Dick Snyder led the winners with 23 points.

Clutch shooting by Clem Haskins and former Laker Mel Counts paved the way to Phoenix' victory, preventing Los Angeles from widening its one-game Pacific Division lead over the Warriors.

Promise of Things to Come

World heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier, left, and challenger Muhammad Ali are separated by Edwin Dooley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, at a press conference in a midtown New York restaurant Wednesday. It was announced that Frazier and Ali would meet in a title bout in New York's Madison Square Garden March 8, and each fighter will be guaranteed $2.5 million for the performance. (AP Wirephoto)

Until the Sixties came along, Canada didn't have too much to brag about in her sporting goods line — except hockey.

While the Aussies were swaggering their swimming or tennis credentials, the Yanks their baseball, or the French their skiing, Canada's delegate to the United Nations could always count on hockey to get his edgeways word into an embarrassed ball-session.

All our other sporting pastimes were either hand-me-downs or futile attempts to imitate successful recreations of other lands.

Canadian Football, for example, involved a bunch of drawing rejects of the National Football League freezing their chinstraps in remote outposts like Regina.

Canadian Football League rosters abounded in players hailing from places like Aliquippa, Penn. or Turkey Nock Bend, Ky.

In the realm of so-called amateur sports, Canada was fortunate in only one respect. The fact her name started with the third letter of the alphabet assured us of an early spot in Olympic and Commonwealth Game parades. After that, our athletes were seldom seen again.

We might have the odd breakthrough — a Barbara Ann Scott here, or a Nancy Greene there, but the rest of the world would think it was natural Canadians should win the occasional winter sport medal, seeing as how they lived in igloos all year round.

What a difference a decade makes.

As we enter the second year of the Seventies, Canada can claim feet in the door of a battery of sports.

A couple of years ago Al Balding won the hole-in-one title at golf's World Cup matches and a half-dozen Canadians have cracked the gruelling — but lucrative — U.S. pro golf circuit. Amateurs Gary Cowan and Wick Weslock have beaten the world's best.

Just Wednesday night Herve Filion of Anglers, Quebec set in the sulky for his 636th harness racing win of 1975. That made him the winningest horse pilot in history. Sandy Hawley, a slight Whitby youngster was more thoroughbred winners (431) this past year than any other North American jockey.

Montreal welterweight Donnie Pudnans brought Canada her first steady glimmer of boxing hope, after years of a faltering flicker from George Chuvalo. Pudnans is now ranked fifth in the world.

Betsy Clifford proved that Nancy Greene wasn't to be a Canadian flash in the skiing pan. At 16, the Ottawa girl became the youngest competitor ever to win a gold medal at the world ski championships. A few weeks ago she won a slalom event in the 1976-77 ski circuit against a field of classy European contenders.

Montreal Expos, although we can't claim them as native sport products, have enthusiastically put Canada on the baseball map previously reserved for States-side cities. Only a handful of big-time baseball's 24 entries entered the inaugural Expos, who cracked the magic million mark in 1979.

On a sunny Mexico City afternoon a couple of summers ago, four Canadian riders suddenly thrust their country into the equestrian world's centre ring by stealing an Olympic gold medal.

This summer saw Canadian tennis prodigy boosted when Mike Belkin and John Sharpe battled their way in the American Zinc final of Davis Cup play before bowing to Brazil in a fifth and deciding game.

Toronto department store heir George Eaton won a small but significant niche for himself — and Canada — in Grand Prix-auto racing, and Winnipeg's Don Dugald retained Canada's world curling supremacy in the tradition of the Northcutts and Richardsons before him.

And on the "Stone-pave" circuit, budding stars like blond-cropped Bev Beyo, double-jointed Debbie Brill, George Puce and Bill Crothers were literally jangling with British Commonwealth Games medals on the July flights back from Edinburgh.

Ironically, as we head into the Seventies, the one sport we always considered Canada's private property — hockey — seems to be gradually slipping from our grasp.

Internationally, Canada was left in a cloud of rubbit trucks by "Bunny" Ahearne in one of the fastest double-shuffles on the International hockey books.

Canada is the only remaining country in the world where amateur hockey players are expected to live up to the Olympic code.

Hockey Canada has launched a scholarship program that hopefully will stem the tide of hockey talent streaming south of the border, and now, even being recruited by European countries.

And last, but largest, we find the world's best hockey players — participants in the National Hockey League — being more and more time away from the True North Strong and Free.

Only three Canadian cities can claim entries in the 16-strong and growing NHL. Last year a precedent was set when no Canadian-based team qualified for the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Hopefully, in the years ahead, the United States Hockey League (as it may then be called) will still be accessible to Canadian vix, CBS or whatever other network owns CBC for broadcast rights.

At times like these, even a Stafford Smythe can look like a saviour.

Rams Ran Opponents Ragged To Win Trojan Tournament

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

While the Brockville Collegiate Rams were running it should have been the opposition that took to their heels as the Rams swept to the Trojan Invitational basketball championship at Moira Secondary School, Wednesday.

Utilizing an excellent fast break offence along with a screening zone defence, Brockville polished off Port Hope, the defending champion Quinte Saints and KCVI of Kingston to win the junior tournament.

"We can work the ball around when we have to, but most of our attack is geared to a run-and-shoot type offence," said winning coach John Logie, whose team has been unbeaten this season in the St. Lawrence District.

The Rams first break was particularly effective in the 37-36 championship victory over KCVI, who had been unbeaten previously.

Six-foot-four forwards David Orr and John Zuiker controlled the boards at both ends against Kingston and helped set up scoring chances for sharpshooting guards Anthony McManus and Don Ferguson. Zuiker also kicked in 13 points.

McManus was high scorer for the tournament with 41 points, while Ferguson pumped in 37 in the final games to give him a total of 78 points for the three games.

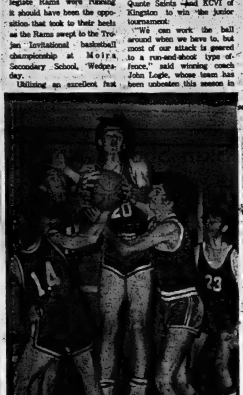
Bill Gibson cracked the Rams' tough 2-1-3 zone defence to total 16 points for the runner-up KCVI squad.

According to Logie, "our toughest match was the one against Quinte, although the KCVI was close until we got the momentum going."

The winners came up with a 15 point effort in the final quarter to stop Quinte 41-35, after holding a narrow 27-25 lead at the end of three quarters of play.

McManus led the attack against Quinte with 22 points, while Neil Dunning had 13 for the Saints.

In the Consolation championship game St. Peters of Peterborough defeated Loyalist Collegiate of Kingston 58-37 after building up an eight point lead at half time.



Donnelly was top scorer for St. Peters with 12 points, while Willoughby topped scoring for the losers.

Nicholson Catholic College narrowly missed making the championship final when they dropped a 44-43 decision to KCVI after leading 10-0 in the opening minutes.

Gibson paced KCVI with 12 points with Garvie scoring 11 for Nicholson.

In first round games Quinte got 15 points from Dunning and 14 from Terry Collins to stop St. Peters 49-32. Nicholson won their first game against LCVI to the tune of 29-26 as Garvie hit for ten points.

Host Moira was defeated 61-36 by KCVI in their first round contest before dropping a 38-34 decision to Loyalist in their final game. Bill Hamilton was the top Trojan scorer in the tournament hitting 33 points in their two games.

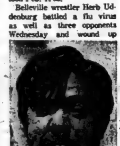
Fingertip Control

John Lewis of KCVI tries to maintain control of the ball from Brockville opponents George Gifford and Gary Murdock, while teammate Bill Amodeo lends a hand. Brockville won the game 57-38 to capture the Moira Invitational Tournament title.

More Shiners for City

ETOBICOKE (Special) — Far six Belleville participants the first Ontario Winter Games had a shiny outcome.

Half a dozen Apollo Barbell Club weightlifters brought home medals from the three-day, 18 - sport extravaganza that wound up Wednesday.



Paul Barrett and Bob Walt the Apollo Club coaches in the Apollo Clu bcollection in Wednesday's final day of competition. Barrett's 760-pound three-lift total topped the middleweight class, with Walt's 862-pound total the best among middle-heavyweight competitors.

Apollo middleweights Brian Roebuck (510-pound total) and Gary Ferguson (665) placed fifth and seventh, respectively.

Earlier in the Games, flyweight Ron Hayes and lightheavyweight Art Walt won gold medals and featherweight Jim Travers and heavyweight novice Richie Bly won-second-place silvers to bring the 13-member Belleville weightlifting contingent's medal total to six.

Their first-place finishes virtually assure Bob and Art Walt, Ron Hayes and Paul Barrett of berths on Ontario's 205-athlete team to the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon Feb. 11-22.

Belleville wrestler Herb Uddenburg battled a flu virus as well as three opponents Wednesday and wound up fifth in the 163-pound class.

PAUL BARRETT

The 19 - year - old BCI student won his first two matches by pinning Georgetown and Thunder Bay district opponents. Pestered by the flu, Uddenburg lost a decision to a Sudbury wrestler in a match that went the distance and exhausted the Belleville competitor.

Uddenburg's opponent was pounds under the limit, was pinned by a Toronto opponent in his fourth and final match.

The Quinte Figure Skating duet of Michael Fleighbon and Peter Hall, Bill Hamilton out of the running in a highly - competitive pairs field.

Meanwhile Peterborough Lions, familiar faces to Belleville followers of Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey wars, won their fourth straight game, a 7-1 smashing of Etobicoke Jets, to take the Games' gold medal for hockey. The Lions are runaway leaders of their six - team eastern Ontario league.

Big One Got Away In Holiday Classic

While Belleville bowlers dominated the top positions at the seventh annual Holiday Classic, the big one got away, as Alex Angel Sr. of Toronto walked off with first prize.

Himes was undefeated in the match play section of the tournament and averaged 296 for the nine games that he rolled.

Wally Knapp had totalled 1201 to lead the field in the four qualifying matches to decide the final 16 competitors, to enter the double knockout finals.

Belleville's George Crabb took second place in the tourney with Bill Fagan of Kingston finishing third.

In a tie for fourth place were Belleville's Glenn Hamilton and Jack Canning.

A three-way deadlock for sixth occurred between city bowlers Ron Saylor and Jack Calnan and Trenton's Wally Knapp.

High singles winners were Art Butler and Jack Calnan of Belleville, Bob Strong of Kingston and Knapp.

Bill Fagan had the high single of the competition with a 393 effort.

ORILLIA (CP—Staff) — The centre portion of the Blake Kerr Imperials' sandwich was the best part of their Orillia Midget Hockey Tournament menu.

Belleville's midget all-stars lost their first and last games of the three-day tourney, but won three in between for the consolation crown.

The Imperials dropped a 7-4 decision to Barrie Wednesday night in the tourney's grand championship game. After suffering a narrow 2-1 opening setback Monday, the Belleville squads won three straight over Richmond Hill, Bowmanville, and Whitby to win the tourney's "B" event and a berth in the grand championship.

Brian Cousins continued to be the Imperials' offensive sparkplug scoring again in the final game as he had in the previous four.

Goalie Bruce Clarke was a tournament standout, making many key saves while the Imperials played shorthanded. Clarke recorded two shutouts and gave up only 11 goals in five tournament games.

Suspected Bank Bandit Killed During Robbery

MONTREAL (CP) — A suspected bank bandit, fatally wounded in a hail of police gunfire, was one of six persons killed in Montreal during a wave of violence Wednesday.

Claude Lefebvre, 37, died en route to hospital from a throat wound received when he and three companions exchanged more than 100 shots with police outside a west-end branch of the Bank of Montreal. Two of the other suspects were wounded, one seriously, while the fourth was arrested unharmed.

Police believe the 4 long-standing family quarrel resulted in four deaths at an east-end apartment in an apparent murder-suicide early Wednesday morning.

They said Marcel Prevost of nearby Chateauguay, shot and killed his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Real Bourbonnais, both 38-year-old father, Delphis, before turning a 303-calibre rifle on himself.

Yesterday's violence began with a mob-machine-gun attack on a Montreal bank branch at about 11 a.m. carrying a haul of money reported to contain $10,000.

Police arrived to stop one of the suspects, who is known to the policemen, called when the two detectives noticed the man heading towards the bank in a truck carrying a double set of licence plates—one wired over the other—arrived on the gunfight began.

The holdup suspects were caught in a crossfire, police said. The fourth man ran into a nearby apartment building.

It was the fifth time this year the two detectives involved had tended shots with persons held up men. They shot and killed another man in July after an armed robbery at a west-end finance company office.

A branch manager at the bank robbed Wednesday was killed in a 1969 holdup.

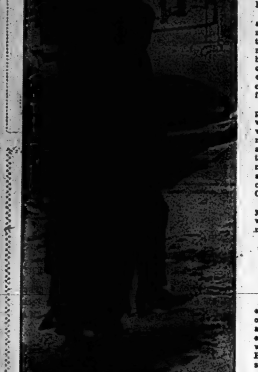
They Could Have Danced All Night

SPRINGVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — They could have danced all night, and they did. Two nights, and two days, in fact.

A dance marathon for the benefit of charity limped to a close at midnight Wednesday night after 53 hours. Nine of the 37 original contestants hung on to the end.



Student councils of high schools in Erie County had organized the marathon, held in the town hall in this village 20 miles south of Buffalo.

Sometimes throughout the ordeal, which had been billed as sponsor the contestants at the rate of a penny a minute, and organizers said they were sure the pledges and ber-office receipts would meet or exceed the $1,000 goal for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Skin Should Not Be Taken for Granted

Like many of our other organs we take our skin for granted — until something goes wrong. Skin is the largest organ in the body, about twice as heavy as either the liver or brain.

Think of it as a fortress against invaders, as is the mucous membrane. It protects us from our environment. When it has not been breached by injury it wards off bacteria, chemicals and other potential molesters. Accidents may weaken your defenses.

For example, a fall, stepping on a nail, and a knife-wound are only a few of the ways in which openings are made that can be potential avenues for infection or other threats. Occasionally carelessness or ignorance of danger are the reasons why we become susceptible to infection. Consider the following letter:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hope you print this letter as a warning to other readers who may not realize they are in danger. A few months ago my husband pulled an incorrect looking hair out of one nostril. He had tried to snip it with small scissors but could not get at it, so he pulled it out with a tweezer.

A few days later he got a small infection in his nose. A few weeks later he was taken to the hospital practically unconscious. Tests showed that he had a brain abscess. Surgery was performed.

He had a stormy course, but recovered. My warning to your readers is this. Consider your skin as a protective armor. Don't do anything to weaken it. Who would have imagine that a brain abscess could form after pulling out a tiny hair from the nose? — Mrs. T.

Comment: I have seen only one similar case. However, there have been many patients with severe localized infections due to careless skin care. The region above the upper lip is especially vulnerable because it is not as well guarded by protective hyaline glands as those found circling the lower face and neck.

If you have the habit of picking at hairs or squeezing pimples in the region of the nose or upper lip, better remember Mrs. T.'s letter. Respect your skin, not only on the inside you have to touch, but as a first-line defense against potential enemies. If neglect is skin deep so is good health.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a sister who is a gambler. She plays bingo daily from Sunday to Friday night. On Saturday she plays cards. She is lazy and lets Mom do all the housework, washing and cooking. She won't even go out with a man if he asks her. Is there anything to do? She's almost like an alcoholic. — Mrs. X.

Comment: An obsessive compulsion to gamble is, as you know, a widespread ailment. — If you want to call it that. The Sport of Kings? A better name is the Sport of Commissioners. Horse racing habitues will tell you that it was much easier to give up smoking or drinking than to stay away from the race track.

And as it is with many who play bingo, or cards, or shoot craps or bet on sporting events. When it becomes an obsession, as appears to be true in your sister's case, perhaps the only one she can straighten her out is your family doctor or a psychiatrist.

• • •

For Mrs. W.: Hormones are chemicals produced by glands, secreted into the blood stream, and affecting the function of distant cells or organs. One example is insulin, secreted by the pancreas, which regulates sugar metabolism. Another is the thyroid gland. I have written many columns about what happens when there is too much or too little thyroid hormone in the blood.

Sydney J. Harris Says

It's Time for the Year's 10 Worsts

Once again the time has rolled around for compiling lists of 10 Best: Editors, critics, and self-appointed experts in every field will soon give out with lists of the 10 Best Books, Best Films, Best Athletes, and so on.

Well, to counteract this vapid and meaningless trend, I've made 8 an annual custom (when I think of it) to publish my own personal list of the 10 Worsts of the Year. Fasten your seat-belts:

1. Worst Fiasco of the Year: The preposterous minuet known as the "peace talks" in Paris.

2. Worst Judgment of the Year: The grand jury report on Kent College, which exonerated the National Guard for firing on student demonstrators on the campus and capital punishment is appropriate for rock-throwing.

3. Worst Politician of the Year: Roman Brunka of Nebraska, whose shooting record of wrong-headedness, and stirring defense of "mediocrity," in every sense but the intellectual seat that was deemed absolutely safe before the recent election.

4. Worst Novel of the Year: Who has read been all? But of those I've come across, The Dick, by Bruce Jay Friedman is the most pretentiously bad.

5. Worst Film of the Year: Not in a decade or more can there have been such unanimity on a cinematic stinker as on Myra Breckenridge (which is rather a pity, since the book wasn't all that bad, and had some amusing ironic elements that went beyond mere sexual-ity).

6. Worst Public Commentator of the Year: Al Capp, whose bitterness is so rancid that it repels people who might be more sympathetic to his point of view if he expressed it with less fanatical hate.

(His attacks on youth seem to spring, indeed, from some deep personal disenchantment rather than from a dispassionate appraisal of them.)

7. Worst New Theory of the Year: The yards of space wasted on the dreadful Manson case, which belongs tucked away in a journal of psychopathology, and has little significance beyond the aberrant.

8. Worst Public Reaction of the Year: The hysterical response of the American people to the My Lai massacre, which we accept as "something that happens in wartime," and which frighteningly few have now concerned or sensibilities have become over the last few years.

9. Worst Menace of the Year: The continuing, and deepening, pollution blight on the American cultural scene, worse now than 20 years ago.

10. Worst Joke of the Year: "Inflation control."

Stupidity of Operators Blamed

Snowmobiling: A Dangerous Winter Pastime

By JAMIE UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stupidity of operators is turning snowmobiling into one of the world's most dangerous winter pastimes, the Canadian Safety Council says.

So far this season, 36 persons have died in Canadian snowmobile mishaps. The council predicts 100 will die before winter is over—seven more than last year.

"It has become apparent that the stupidity of snowmobile operators is the principal cause of accidents and deaths," a safety council spokesman said.

"We can no longer take the easy way out by putting all the blame for accidents on the heads of manufacturers."

Manufacturers, the spokesman said, are doing a good job of policing themselves and making the machines safer.

Across the country, the soaring death rate has prompted demands for stricter legislation to make snowmobiling safer.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows many provinces are proposing stricter laws to control the use of the vehicles.

The legislators face a rapidly-expanding problem. There are 1.5 million snowmobiles in use in Canada this winter. By 1973 manufacturers expect to have produced and sold three million.

Youthful drivers, alcohol, roadway driving and night driving are ruled by the Council as the main factors for fatalities.

Half the current total of 36 deaths resulted from collisions between snowmobiles and motor vehicles. Collisions with stationary objects, such as fences, and drownings have been the other main causes of death.

Alcohol also is an important factor, particularly in resort areas where some drivers apparently like to drink their way from lodge to lodge.

Many drivers have been involved in roadway collisions during these journeys and others have driven into lakes and drowned.

Here is a rundown by regions:

Newfoundland

In Newfoundland, Resources Minister W. R. Callahan said the government does not wish to limit the use of snowmobiles, particularly in areas where they have replaced dog teams.

However restricted areas, as well as registration and age limits, may be outlined in regulations which he hopes to have ready some time this winter.

Maritimes

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island also have been free of snowmobile fatalities so far this winter. P.E.I. has never recorded a snowmobile death.

Both N.S. and N.B. forbid the use of snowmobiles on highways, and neither is considering any changes in the legislation.

Three snowmobilers died in New Brunswick last year, two by drowning and a third after striking a fence.

New legislation was proclaimed in New Brunswick Dec. 3 making the registration of publicly - used snowmobiles necessary and banning their use on highways other than for direct crossing.

Quebec

In Quebec, where ownership averages about 35 machines to every 100 households, legislation is being prepared. No details are available as yet, but Deputy Transport Minister Jacques Verreault says regulations will be far more severe in the case of access to public highways.

Quebec also is planning an intensive campaign to inform the public on safety aspects of snowmobiles and how to handle them correctly.

In an effort to keep drivers away from congested and potentially hazardous areas, tracks have been cleared through Quebec provincial parks.

They are supplied with first-aid stations and depots where minor repairs can be carried out.

So far this winter, 30 people have died in snowmobiling accidents in the province.

Ontario

Ontario Provincial Police, alarmed by the recent spate of deaths, have issued a warning to operators to stop treating their machines as toys.

W. Q. Macnee, Ontario's deputy transport minister said his department feels it has restricted the use of snowmobiles as far as it can. "How do you guard against stupidity?" he asked.

Of the 14 snowmobile deaths in Ontario this winter, eight occurred during the long Christmas weekend. One hospital in

Manitoba

Manitoba's transportation minister, Joe Borowski, said he plans to propose to the cabinet doubling or even tripling the province's registration fee introduced for the first time this year.

He added that it is something close to "criminally irresponsible" for families to put the machines capable of 70 miles an hour or more.

But he said the greater blame rests with a "bunch of irresponsible snowmobile drivers who have refused to abide by the rules set up for their own and other people's safety."

The sport has claimed one life in the province so far this winter.

Saskatchewan

In Saskatchewan, where there have been no deaths this year, licensing is not required as long as the machines are operated on private property.

Bud Tree, federal program co-ordinator of the Saskatchewan Safety Council, says the problem is increasing with one of the main concerns being the use of machines by young persons on private property.

"We're attempting to get more public information on snowmobile accidents such as the rate of fatalities to decide so that we can gain some insight into the frequency of deaths."

Alberta

The Alberta Safety Council attributes the lack of accidents—only one broken leg so far this year—to tough legislation which prohibits driving of snowmobiles on any portion of a highway or sidewalk.

No changes are being planned in Alberta laws governing operation and a police spokesman said the snowmobile has not been a major problem in the province.

British Columbia

British Columbia has no specific regulations, but the government is expected to introduce legislation next month after examining legislation in other provinces and in the United States.

A spokesman for the B.C. Snowmobile Association said the group is in favor of legislation and expects the banning of snowmobiles from highways and railway rights-of-way.

"More than 95 per cent of snowmobilers are law-abiding citizens and have their rights protected," he said. "The best way to do this is through firm, fair regulations."

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
By-Law Number 8360

A By-Law to regulate, govern and control the operation of motor vehicles on property owned by The Corporation of the City of Belleville within the City of Belleville, and to repeal By-Law No. 6307 and all amendments thereto and to repeal By-Law No. 7000 and all amendments thereto insofar as they relate to the City of Belleville.

Be it enacted by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville as follows:

1. That for the purpose of this By-law the following definitions shall apply:

(a) "Automobile" means any motor vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer, or any combination thereof, but does not include a motorized snow vehicle or a motorcycle.

(b) "Corporation" means the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

(c) "Council" means the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

(d) "Driver" means the person who drives or has the care or control of a motor vehicle.

(e) "Motorcycle" means a motor vehicle having a saddle for the use of the driver and designed to travel on not more than three wheels in contact with the ground, but does not include a motorized snow vehicle or a tractor.

(f) "Owner" means a person who is the registered owner of a motor vehicle.

(g) "Property" means all property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville within the City of Belleville.

(h) "Trailer" means any vehicle designed to be drawn by a motor vehicle and designed for the carrying of goods or chattels, but does not include a semi-trailer.

(i) "Truck" means a motor vehicle designed or used for the carrying of goods or chattels or for any purpose other than the transportation of persons.

2. No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle on property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville except on such roadways as are designated for the use of motor vehicles and except on such roadways and at such times and in such manner as may be directed by signs duly erected and maintained for the purpose.

3. No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle on property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville at a speed greater than 20 kilometres per hour.

4. No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle on property owned by the Corporation of the City of Belleville between the hours of 2:00 a.m. and 6:00 a.m. on any day.

5. Every person who contravenes any provision of this By-law is guilty of an offence and on conviction is liable to a fine not exceeding $300.00 and, where the offence is a continuing one, to a fine not exceeding $100.00 for each day or part thereof upon which the offence continues.

6. That By-law Number 6307 and all amendments thereto and By-law Number 7000 and all amendments thereto insofar as they relate to the City of Belleville are hereby repealed.

7. This By-law shall come into force and take effect on the date of the final passing thereof.

Compromise Hinted in RC School Grant Structure

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"You'd better add some wheels, so we can push it along the bottom of the lake."

Priest Named 'Biggest Liar'

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — For a man of the cloth, Brother Gregory Havel of Green Bay, Wis., knows how to tell a story that's cut from whole cloth.

Brother Havel, of St. Mary of the Angels Friary, has been named the biggest liar of 1970 in the 41st annual competition sponsored by the Burlington Liars Club.

"The floods in northern Minnesota were so bad last spring the turtles climbed out of their shells and used them for boats," said Havel, becoming the second clerical prevaricator to win first place.

Otis C. Hulett, who has been conducting the competition since its founding, said Wednesday Rev. Arthur R. Kirk of Biggs, Calif., won the honor in 1951. Kirk told of California land so rich that watermelon vines "grew so fast they dragged the melons along and wore them out."

TORONTO (CP) — The two Opposition parties in the Ontario legislature expect the Conservative government to make some conciliatory gesture soon towards Roman Catholics seeking extension of tax support for separate schools.

Spokesmen for both Liberal and New Democratic parties expect the move before the expected provincial election. They believe the offer will likely bring grants for separate Grades 9 and 10 in the same level as those in public schools of Ontario's dual education system.

Neither of the Opposition education critics—Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) and Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough)—expect the government to go any further. Roman Catholics have demanded full tax support to the end of Grade 13.

If they are right, Catholics will be faced with a choice: accept the Grades 9-10 grants as the most they can get or protest the offer as one designed to destroy their unity in seeking full grant support.

The government has given no indication of what action it will take in response to a five-year organized campaign by separate school supporters for financial help. But Education Minister William Davis, during debate on his department's spending estimates, did give a vague hint that the Conservatives are seeking some compromise.

Responding to a question from Mr. Reid, he said equal grants for separate school Grades 9 and 10 are something "that might be considered."

Separate schools exist as a part of Ontario's education system by guarantee of the British North America Act, written at a time when the only general education available short of university was at the common, or grade school, level. And they have been a factor in almost every provincial election and byelection in the intervening years.

By the constitution, a Roman Catholic taxpayer kept the prior right to designate his education taxes for support of separate schools to the end of what now is Grade 8.

But when the school system was extended and divided into elementary and secondary—high school—sections about seven years after Confederation, the right to designate taxes was not extended. And Roman Catholics almost immediately began urging such an extension.

The issue went to the British Privy Council in 1928. The council ruled, in effect, that the constitution established tax-supported separate schools for common schools, and the provincial government had the authority to determine at what grade common school ended.

It was saying that Roman Catholics had no constitutional guarantee to separate schools beyond the common-school level, but that the province had the authority to say what that level should be.

The Conservative government did change the level in 1964 but did so without giving Roman Catholics any further right to designate taxes.

Provincial grants, at the level paid for elementary schools, were made available for Grades 9 and 10. And the separate school system was given, for the first time, a share in corporation taxes through a foundation tax plan.

Roman Catholic children are in the position of attending separate schools with tax support to Grade 8, and staying by separate schools for Grades 9 and 10 at partial support, usually in classes rented by a separate school board from a private Roman Catholic high school.

But for the upper grades of high schools, they must continue in a private school, paying fees that average about $400, or transfer to a public high school.

Catholics say the fees are too low to meet the operating costs of most of the 59 separate high schools remaining in Ontario, and too high for most Catholic school supporters to afford. Yet the transfer to a public high school means an interruption in the continuous kindergarten-to-Grade 13 educational process most major educationists accept as necessary.

Both the Liberal and New Democratic parties have, since 1969, advocated full tax support to separate schools, on condition that public and separate school boards work together to share common facilities, avoid duplication of services and take other steps to prevent an escalation in education costs.

The NDP, in a policy statement, says it would cost $16 million a year to give full tax support to Grades 11 and 12, but it will cost taxpayers about $16 million anyway if separate high schools are forced to close and their students sent to public high schools.

Both Premier John Robarts and Mr. Davis have declined comment on the issue, despite pressure from Catholics and Opposition parties. The last word from Mr. Robarts was that tax support for Catholic private schools could not be extended without considering the interests of other private schools, and Ontario could not afford what he called the astronomical costs of a dual system of tax-supported schools.

Government critics say the premier is more concerned with political pressure because it would mean lower revenues for public school boards from taxes collected at the local level.

Recognizing the pressure the government is under, separate school trustees made a recent proposal for providing extended support without affecting local taxes.

They have suggested that the local tax structure be left as it is and that Grades 11, 12 and 13 be financed entirely through grants under the foundation tax plan.

Neither Mr. Reid nor Mr. Pitman believe the government will go that far, but they predict that anything less will make the school question an utter nasty election issue in 1971.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Rev. John Bunner was the speaker at the Christmas eve service held at Westminster United Church. Miss Carol Pearson sang some solo verses and Miss Linda Johnstone accompanied the senior choir.

On Wednesday evening members of the Hi-C groups of the Westminster United Church sang Christmas carols at several homes in Bayside and in the Westminster community.

The UCW of Westminster United Church delivered Christmas boxes of fruit to the shut-ins at Bayside. Recipients of boxes were Mrs Arnott, Mrs. J. Palmer, William Bush, Walter Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones and Mrs. William Yeteman.
